"Joyce, please don't," he begged. "Please listen. Maybe I am inhuman and a wolf, and've got sawdust where my brains ought to be. But also I'm . . . Don't you understand how I'm between the devil and the deep sea?"

She looked up, with tears still glistening on her cheeks.

"Alan, I don't believe—oh, I can't believe—about that pack. Alan, say it isn't so!"

Her bewildered misery lugged at Alan. He wanted to comfort her with some lie. But he dared not build up any hope, for he knew it would only prove a tragic disappointment to her in the end.

"Joyce, we've got to believe. The pack is there. No use going over to see if it is. Larry and I made no mistake. We mustn't blind ourselves to the truth."

She suggested eagerly: "Don't you think these furs might have got there some way besides—besides . . . Alan! Don't you see—that pack was planted there? Those men knew you'd find it, and stop, and investigate, and arrest my dad! That would give them time and chance to escape."

As gently as he could, Alan interrupted her. "No, Joyce. Your dad wasn't framed. Larry and I talked that possibility over. If those men had possessed as you suggest, they'd have put the furs in a conspicuous place where you'd have been sure to find them. The pack wasn't planted. Let's not delude ourselves."

"Joyce, let's try to look at the evidence as others will see it. Your father is absent, and has been for four days. Just at this particular time. There is the question of these bandits being strangers and yet getting about this country so well. There's the fact that he was bitter against the big companies and probably was tempted to retaliate against them in the only way in his power. And Joyce, there's the tale of furs; that evidence alone is enough to prove a connection. . . ."

Joyce listened to him piling up the evidence, but the entire staggering total of it did not sway her. Against it she set all she knew of her father's nature. In her whole life she had never seen him utter a penny of false debt against the most ignorant Indian, or devote a hair's breadth from his word of honor. She often had thought that the only person in the world he had ever wronged was himself. Though he had been drinking heavily and taking up with none-too-willing Indian women, it seemed contrary to his whole nature to plot with bandits, to gang with murderers.

As Alan finished his reluctant indictment, her resolve hardened. . . . She was going to fight for her father and defend him with every weapon in her power.

One way shot into her mind. Her ground had dropped a little, and she asked hesitantly: "Alan, do you have to arrest him? Only you and Mr. Young and I know about these furs being here. If you could—if we could some way cover it up—"

She checked the plan. She could not bring herself to put Alan in so fearful a dilemma. Looking up, she met his gaze squarely again. "No, I can't ask that of you. I'd never ask that."

He chose his words very carefully. "The question with me, Joyce, is this: How deeply is your father involved? I can't think he'd go the whole length with these bandits. I can't think he'd countenance murder or even so trivial a robbery as these men staged. Perhaps they deluded him about their intentions. If they're caught, they're going to be and throw as much of the blame on him as they can. But if I can have the truth as a working basis, I can nail their lies. We can't hope to save him from a penalty, but we maybe can save him from the—the worst."

Joyce blushed at the last word, at the specter it aroused. Her father stood charged with murder. In her heart the Law suddenly became a tangible and fearsome thing.

Alan went on: "You stand a better chance of getting the truth from him than I do, Joyce. He'd suspect me if I tried to talk to him. But with you he'd be more frank and open.

when he comes in, won't you try to find out what you can?"

"You mean I'm to watch him and gather what hints I can, and perhaps ask questions that seem innocent?"

"That's exactly it, Joyce. Exactly what I meant. If you'll do that for me, if you'll help me that much . . . Joyce, don't you see why I told you this? Don't you see it's because I'm going to stick with you? I won't see your dad railroaded. I'll help him to the limit I can—because he's your father."

He was facing her in the ghostly morning light. Again he was conscious that his four months of absence, breaking the friendship between them, had hovered her with an aura of strangeness to him; and that all during this brief fateful visit he had become aware of her in a quickened sense, how brave and courageously a girl! And in spite of her hard life here, in spite of her efforts to be a good bush-bopper, how winsome and girlish and adorable she was!

Unwilling to doubt him, Joyce offered him her hand, wishing him success today, hiding her fears for him when he should come up with these men. Alan bent nearer her, he bent down a little to kiss her, as more than once he had done in the years past. It was an impulsive act; he was swept by admiration of her bravery, of her girlish prettiness. And it was a humble act of contrition, too, and self-reproach; for he had kept his visits here, instead of leaving Joyce all alone to the battle, he might have hated Dave MacMillan's plume like a crime.

She went with him down to the wharf and stood watching the patrol embark. At the first bend above, he turned to look back. Vaguely through the mist he saw Joyce still standing on the wharf in the gray chill of earliest morning. He waved to her and caught the tiny white of her kerchief answering.

When the mist had hidden her from him, he turned his eyes ahead. Somewhere on up the spruce-barked Alouksa were those six bandit strangers, rifle-armed and desperate and certain to give battle. Against them he was pitting his life and the lives of his men today.

Fifty miles above the MacMillan trading store, Alan ordered Pedneault to swerve in toward the north bank and stop.

He believed those bandits could not be very far ahead now. Across this silent wilderness the roar of the launch's engine carried for five or six miles. Warned of pursuit, those criminals might lift their canoes back into the timber and let the police go harmlessly past. Likely still, they might lay an ambush where the river was narrow, and open on the launch with repeating rifles at a murderous point-blank range. But if he located them on up-stream, he could slip upon them quietly in the paddle craft and lay a deadly ambush himself.

Taking a pair of binoculars he spied ashore and hurried up a hill to his summit. There he had a clear view of a long river "straight" reaching twenty miles upstream.

He moved his glasses slowly upstream, praying for a glimpse of those two outlaw canoes. Carefully focusing, he scrutinized the river, the banks on either side with their little curves and hollows; and scanned above the trees for a wisp of camp smoke. Nothing, nothing whatsoever, of two creeping black dots. The bandits were twenty miles ahead at least.

As he hurried back down to the launch, he began to realize that those two canoes had traveled more swiftly than he had thought possible. For the first time in his police experience Alan found himself ill at ease and uncertain of what he was running into.

Though he could understand, on the assumption of Dave MacMillan's guilt, how the bandits knew just the right moves to make in this dimly known country, still he was utterly unable to explain how six absolute strangers could get into this country unseen. Who they were, where they had come from, how they had got in here—known to everybody—the whole thing was uncanny. He hardly knew what to expect of them next.

Spashing back upon the launch, he told his men tersely: "They're not in sight yet, and I could see for twenty miles. We've got to meet up with them before they reach the Forks. They're making tracks, Ped, you've light to drive by now. We'll take our chances."

Twice more that morning, between Pedneault's reckless dashes, he hurried ashore and fruitfully searched ahead. Something had gone wrong. The patrol should be within sight of them. Estimating their speed and the speed of the pursuing launch, he knew the police craft should have overhauled them about eighty miles above the MacMillan trading post. He had come a hundred and twenty, and no sight of them yet. They had either dodged aside, or had done something to give them a big edge over what he thought possible.

It was afterward, when the waters of the Alouksa had given up their ghastly secret, that Joyce MacMillan listened to the accounts of several Yellowknife men and gazed upon certain grim evidence, and pieced together the story of how those bandits were able to keep in the lead. But Alan knew nothing of that harrowing story now; he knew only that something had upset all his calculations.

Fifteen miles from the Alouksa Forks he went ashore a last time and climbed a squat tree. He had a clear view to the Forks. The glasses picked up a sight that set his heart pounding madly against his ribs.

Far ahead, three short miles from the Forks of the Alouksa, a pair of tiny black objects, like bugs crawling along a silver ribbon, were jockeying out on the tree, reaped down the slope.

Spashing aboard, he flung all caution to the winds. . . . "Throw into it, Pedneault! We've got to beat them to the Forks. We'll close in on them in the launch. Got to! They'll hear us if they won't stop, won't fight, if they can make it there. Open her up! To hell with rocks and mud bars now!"

His last words were drowned in the engine roar as Pedneault opened out the launch. With the wind stinging his eyes and the spray lushing him, Alan clutched the painter to keep from being flung bodily overboard, and gave Pedneault what help he could.

The craft careered round the last bend, a scant mile from the great Y of the Alouksa. A clear open stretch lay in front. Dashing the blinding spray from his eyes, Alan rose precariously to his feet, looked ahead; and his heart sank as the truth was borne in upon him.

Those canoes had beaten him to the Forks.

It was maddening, his defeat—doubly maddening for its closeness to a smashing triumph. He had come within five minutes of overhauling them in the launch, and then had missed, had missed by a mile that loomed gigantic as two hundred. They had beaten him. They had heard the thundering beat, had flung their whole strength into the race; and now were whipping on eastward along one or other of the Alouksa branches.

The launch would have to be abandoned at the Forks. He knew the police boat would be stranded or wrecked within half a mile if it attempted to go up either of those shallow streams. He would have to take to paddle canoes and split his party.

Unbent, he planned swiftly. The chances were ten to one that the bandits had hurried up the left branch leading northeast into the Thal-Azzab. He decided quickly: "I'll follow that left branch. I'll take one canoe and two men. I'll take Bill with me; he's a red-haired devil in a fight, he's our best shot, he'll be dependable in whatever corner. But the third man—Ped or Larry?" Both splendid men, both experienced veterans of many a patrol.

He made up his mind: "I'll send Ped up the right branch with Burgeon and Whipple. Bill and Larry and I'll shoot up the left. We'll be the ones to do the business."

As the great Y of the Alouksa loomed up, he turned and gestured to Hardsock and Larry. Silently understanding, they crept back to the stern deck, unshipped the canoes and had them ready by the time that Pedneault, slowing down the launch, steered it in between two little willow islands at the Forks and stopped.

Alan ordered him: "Ped, take these two men and whip up the south branch. Larry and Bill and I'll cover the north. If you sight them, don't pitch into that pack. You'd be fighting six men single-handed. If it did happen to go that way, you drop back here to the Forks and wait for us. We'll be able to track them in that timber country. Let's pile out. They can't be over a mile and a half away."

Bill snarled: "It's a big blazes, Alan!—let's stick together. Us splitting this up like this, it's the d-d-d fool trick I ever heard of."

"Shut up!" Alan snapped. "General's orders, not mine. Every d-d thing you say or do will be told to him." He tossed the launch anchor into the mud. "I said pile out. Let's be moving." He stepped down into a canoe, stood rifle between his knees, caught up a paddle.

Cursing beneath their breath, Bill and Larry clambered in with him. The two canoes separated.

Alan's estimate that his quarry could not be more than a mile and a half in the lead, was true enough; but a stern chase is a long chase, and if those bandits were aching from exhaustion, they had the fear of death in their hearts to goad them on.

A whole hour, an hour of terrible labor, went by, and still no sight or sound of the bandits. With the responsibility of this patrol on him, with human lives, the lives of comrades, at stake, a fear gripped Alan that those bandits had taken the south branch of the Alouksa. If they had, Frank Pedneault and those two raw recruits might run into an ambush; or Ped might attack them, reckless fellow that he was, practically lone-handed, and get killed.

The chase was entering the Thal-Azzab itself, that watery wilderness of inlets and labyrinthine channels and maske thousands of square miles in extent. Not far ahead the launch split into a dozen channels leading in every direction. Pursuit would end there. A few miles more, and those canoes would be swallowed up in the watery oblivion of the Thal-Azzab.

But then, as he skirted around a headland, his prophecy yesterday, to Hunkell, and his conviction, founded on long man-hunting experience, that those bandits would surely follow the left branch, were suddenly proved true to the letter. Go ahead, a scant thousand yards, he caught one fleeing glimpse of two heavily laden canoes that carried six men.

Dipping faster, deeper, he and Bill and Larry paddled at a furious pace to come up within rifle range. The river was so winding that they could see only a few hundred yards in front. There was danger, a terrible danger, of running headlong into a blind ambush where all three of them would be killed outright and their canoes sunk before they even could start to shoot back. Every stroke, every curve, every clump of flags they skimmed close past, was a deadly peril. They knew it, but they dared not slow up. They were taking their chances.

PLOUGHING UNDER THE FARM BOARD

The farm board suggested to the southern cotton growers that in order to stimulate the price of their product by creating a scarcity it would be well to plough under every third row of cotton. One of the Dixie planters replied acidly that probably a better result would follow if every third member of the farm board was ploughed under.

It is possible to have a certain amount of sympathy with this suggestion. The farm board went into action to "keep the price of wheat up" when that controversial commodity was selling at a dollar a bushel; after over a year of struggle and recrimination the net result of its labors has been the accumulation of vast hoards of wheat in government warehouses and a present-day price of wheat of less than 40 cents.

The disappointing result cannot justly be charged to the farm board. Those legislators who were naive enough to believe that the law of supply and demand could be changed by congressional enactment are the persons who need to do the explaining. In spite of the fact that no government edict has ever availed to keep up the price of any product of which a surplus exists, the congress embarked gaily on a program of making wheat sell for more than it should, considering conditions in the world market.

The same hullabaloo is now in progress in the cotton market. There is too much cotton and the price is down. Just as the wheat farmers refused to restrict their planting, preferring to rely on Uncle Sam in the role of Santa Claus to keep up prices, so did the cotton planters proceed to plant an acreage that produced this year nearly three million more bales than in 1930, with less market than was available that year. It will require more than a few statutes and a dozen regulations of the farm board to keep cotton prices from going into a very steep nose dive.

The American public may as well write off as a total loss the half billion dollars appropriated for the farm board's use. Regardless of whether or not every third row of cotton is ploughed under, it is obvious that the American taxpayer has been quite thoroughly ploughed under with excess taxes.

GAS MAY ADVANCE

There is strong probability that automobile drivers throughout the country will be paying several cents more per gallon for gasoline following the action of Ross B. Sterling, governor of Texas, and "Alfalfa" Bill Murray, governor of Oklahoma, closing the wells in their states by martial law. By the action of the two states, it is estimated that 1,000,000 barrels of oil a day, or about two-fifths of the entire amount produced in the United States are cut off. It is a general impression that other petroleum products as well as gasoline are headed for substantial increases.

Governor Murray declares that the present regulations will be enforced in Oklahoma until the price of crude oil climbs to $1 a barrel. Governor Sterling set no price limit, but declared martial law because of the frantic efforts of producers to get as much oil out of the ground as possible before the Texas Railroad Commission frames proration rules under a new law passed at a special session of the Legislature. In his proclamation of martial law the governor said:

"It is evident that there exists an organized and entrenched group of crude petroleum-oil and natural-gas operators who are in a state of insurrection against the conservation laws of the State relating to the prevention of waste of crude petroleum oil and natural gas, and are in open rebellion against the efforts of constituted civil authorities of this State to enforce such laws."

Oklahoma, acting alone, probably would have been helpless to stem the flood of cheap oil, which in recent weeks has touched 10 cents a barrel in east Texas.

Interstate control might be used effectively to bring the domestic oil supply down to the market demand. Working together the states could quickly force production down to a point that would bring more equitable prices.

It is to be regretted that agricultural interests of the United States do not adopt a far-reaching program of cutting production similar to the plan of Texas and Oklahoma oil fields. Prices of farm products might then more nearly approach their true value.

CUPID DEPRESSED

Marriages were on the decline in the United States during 1930, and so were divorces. Marriage figures for 1930 as compared with 1929, show a drop of 8.5 per cent, while divorces similarly compared, fell only 5.9 per cent. The count as made public in a preliminary report of the census bureau, shows 1,128,180 marriages and 191,630 divorces last year.

While the decrease in divorce in American families is somewhat encouraging, it is apparent, that there are still far too many divorces with resulting broken homes and scattered children. Whether the husband or wife is the chief cause of marital difficulties is a debatable subject. The emancipation of American women, while, certainly a forward step in civilization, seems to have brought the grave problem of a higher divorce rate. For every six marriages there is one divorce.

One step, if taken, uniform marriage and divorce laws, would curb the freedom of divorces in the country. There are 48 states and nearly as many sets of marriage and divorce laws. South Carolina is the only state that does not permit divorce for any reason. But those who encounter difficulty in breaking the family ties in one state may go to another state and be eased of their burdens. It is of little use for any one state to put up the bars on marriage and divorce so long as adjoining states continue to make it easier to take on or throw off the marriage ties.

How can our children be taught that there is anything sacred about marriage when various states emphasize by their laws that marriage is a man-made institution to be put on or taken off like a garment, without any reason or obligation?

So long as there is such a diversification of laws on the subject, many people will not take seriously any moral code in marriage and divorce, or in sex-matters generally.

It is about time that the states agreed to establish some sort of uniform marriage and divorce laws in this country, so that a man and woman legally married in one state may be sure that they are legally married in all other states, so that it will not be possible for a husband or wife to cross a state line and get a divorce that could not be secured in the state where the husband and wife have been living.

There is an urgent need of national marriage and divorce laws.

PRaises STATE PARKS

Praise for Michigan State Parks is given by Hugh Fullerton, noted short story writer, in a series of articles for the paper for which he is a feature writer, the Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch.

Here is what Mr. Fullerton has to say of our parks:

"Michigan and New York have gone further than any of the other states in providing summer playgrounds for the people, further even than Florida or California, and Michigan is rapidly outstripping them all in inviting the tourist army. The entire state with its wonderful summer climate is capitalizing this asset and making its beauty spots the summer playground of the nation."

"The state itself is doing the greater part of this development, to forestall the private camp interests and to keep the camps free and clean. Michigan now has approximately 70 state parks besides the forests and game preserves and fish hatcheries, and is finding the new state police force, the forest and fire rangers and the agricultural force invaluable in handling the free camps."

"Unless one has toured the state and viewed the camps in operation, he cannot imagine the size of the tourist army, or the amount of money it brings into the state. Tonight in this one camp on Lake Michigan, the state trooper in charge issued permits to camp to more than 800 parties. There are more than 100 cars from 22 states and about 400 men, women and children. The number varies but there are from 70 to 100 camping parties a night from July 1 to September 1. Of course many stay a week or longer in one camp."

"Probably tonight more than 20,000 persons are camping in the free state parks of Michigan. There is no disorder, little noise and a sort of free and easy democracy that is refreshing. Most of us are two-week vacationers but on the park are a dozen or more gasoline gypsies—men and women who have covered almost every trail in the land and who can pitch camp and live in comfort almost anywhere."

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Next Sunday morning the Rev. A. T. Hootman of Petoskey, a former fellow pastor of Rev. J. E. Lockyer in Indiana, will be the preacher. Mr. Hootman is Emmet county school commissioner and a very acceptable preacher. He will be glad to see a good congregation.

The church school is at 12 noon. Miss Vera Belding leads the Epworth League at 7 p. m. on Sunday evening. This will be the first of our fall meetings and make it a good rally meeting.

NEW DUCK LAW, SHORTER SEASON

LICENSE IS REQUIRED FOR PERMANENT BLIND

Hoover Shortens Season To One Month Because of Poor Breeding Year

Confronted with new blind regulations and a shorter season, duck hunters this fall will enter swamplands under more stringent conservation laws than ever before.

The majority of blinds in former years came under the heading of temporary, but during the last session of the legislature permanent and temporary blinds were more distinctly defined.

Under present laws, a temporary blind can only be erected 100 feet or more from the shore line, weed bed, or any other well-defined brush. There is no license fee for the erection of this type of obstruction.

A $5 license is charged if a permanent blind is used, and according to new regulations, must be erected only where shore blinds are impractical. They may be of the floating, anchored, or platform type. Money collected from this source will be paid into the game protection fund. Under the temporary blind regulations also are placed those which are enmoulted to conceal the hunter. Boats, however, cannot be anchored in any one location longer than 12 hours.

The shorter season edict was in a form of proclamation by President Hoover. It specified that the open duck season in the Northwest, which includes Michigan, shall be from Oct. 1 to Oct. 31, inclusive. The legislature set the season from Oct. 1 to Dec. 31, but the federal ruling will hold control.

Commenting on President Hoover's proclamation, George R. Hogarth, director of conservation, said that he believed sportsmen will abide by the proclamation.

"No change was noticed in the flight of ducks last fall," Hogarth said, "but the federal investigation apparently has revealed that the number of birds is slowly diminishing and the only way to preserve them is to enforce a shorter season."

"I believe that Michigan hunters will gladly comply with the proclamation, and the conservation department will do everything within its power to enforce the new law."

WOOD BROTHERS
CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

This was the first time that the canning and livestock club exhibits were displayed at the County Picnic, and judging from the favor with which they were received we were hopeful that it will be an annual event. Never has there been a time in this county when so many folks have had the opportunity of viewing the work done by the boys and girls in their extension program as on this occasion. Another feature connected with the club program was a canning demonstration given by Miss Hazel Mosley and Miss Beth Simpson of Boyne Falls who thoroughly described the steps in canning to a very appreciative audience.

The baseball game between the west end farmers and the east side of the county was hotly contested. In all justice to the west end farmers it was quite apparent that the east side team was somewhat too heavily loaded with experienced ball players, several of whom were not farmers. When the smoke of battle had rolled away the score was twelve to four, in favor of the east side. Immediately after the game the west side farmers stepped right up with the challenge for next year's picnic.

The thirst and hunger of the picnickers was ably taken care of by East Jordan and Boyne City American Legion concessions. The Bingo games took the fancy of the pleasure-seeking public, and did a big business throughout the day.

All in all it was the most splendid occasion, and one that was entirely enjoyed by everyone present. Already the comment was "We surely don't want to miss the next County Picnic."

AMOS HALL AWARDED VERDICT ON A FOUL

Main Go of Legion Boxing Show Ended by Low Blow in 20 Seconds

Following two lively preliminary bouts, the semi and final of the second boxing show staged here last Thursday evening by Promoter Leo Powers ended in a decided disappointment to a large crowd of fans.

After about 20 seconds of fast milling, the main ten-round go was awarded by Referee Harrison Hitch of Muskegon, to Amos Hall, local colored boy, on a foul. His opponent was Marcus Nole, Grand Rapids, who is rated Michigan colored welter-weight champ.

The semi-final was almost as short lived. Walter Blank, St. Louis, Mo., knocked out Bill Bepps, Chicago, a substitute for Young Howe, Cadillac, in just 27 seconds.

The two preliminary bouts were good fights. In the opener, Golden Endenberg, Traverse City, and Jimmy Woodward, Grand Rapids, fought a first draw, while in the second, Neil Strand, another Grand Rapids fighter, handed out a lot of punishment to Harold Lannon, Traverse City. Strand appeared much the better boxer, covered well and emerged with hardly a scratch.

COUNTY WILL PAY A SMALLER STATE TAX

Final Figures Show a Slight Reduction Over 1930 Assessment

Charlevoix county will pay less in state tax this year than in 1930 according to figures released this week at Lansing.

The reduction over last year is small, only $257, but nevertheless a reduction. The 1930 Charlevoix county share of the state tax was $36,086, and the 1931 figure has been placed at $35,829.

Supervisors Harry A. Craig and William J. Pearson were present at Lansing during the hearings held before the state board to set the tax figures.

REPEAL 18th AMENDMENT, LEGION TO ASK

Eleventh Dist. Posts to Make Request at National Convention

Posts of the 11th District, American Legion of Michigan, and their auxiliaries held their regularly quarterly convention, Sunday, September 6, 1931, at Rogers City. Not all of the posts were represented at this meeting, however—Charlevoix having the largest representation from both post and auxiliary.

Following a picnic luncheon in the spacious and well shaded city park the Legionnaires paraded with the bugle and drum corps of Petoskey, Cheboygan and Charlevoix furnishing the music, to the high school building where meetings of the district posts and auxiliaries were held.

Several important matters connected with membership regulations and the coming national convention were discussed, but the most momentous step taken was the instruction of Comrade Fleming, district representative to the national convention at Detroit, to urge the convention, in the name of the 11th district, to go on record in favor of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. This was effected by the unanimous vote of the convention of the district.

The silver bell and gavel, awarded to the post showing the greatest increase in membership in the year, was formally presented by Cheboygan post, the previous winner, to Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226 of Charlevoix, winners for this year, to whom it will ultimately belong if the post can keep its lead for three consecutive years.

INDIANS BREAK EVEN ON WEEK-END GAMES

Defeated Brutus Nine and Dropped Close Game to Ellsworth

Charlevoix Indians broke even on their week-end series of baseball games, winning Sunday afternoon 7 to 2 at Brutus and dropping a red-hot contest Monday afternoon on the local field to the Ellsworth Packers by an 8 to 6 count.

Pitcher Colby invaded his home town Sunday afternoon and pitched air-tight ball to the Brutus nine. He held them to a pair of scratch hits while his team-mates were collecting 11. The game was close through the early innings, Charlevoix leading 3 to 2 from the second to their half of the eighth. At this point Kigima poled out a 3-bagger with a trio of runners on base, scoring all of them. Charlevoix added three more runs in the eighth and ninth innings.

In the Monday afternoon game at North Side park against the Ellsworth Packers, the visitors, with a picked line-up, took advantage of a Charlevoix let-down to score an 8 to 6 victory after a close game.

While Ellsworth gained a lead in the early innings due largely to poor support of Amos Johns' excellent pitching, they also scored frequently throughout the contest. Colby relieved Johns, but was only slightly more effective.

Johns led the batting for Charlevoix, making four 2-baggers and two singles out of 6 times to bat. Charlevoix meets Boyne City in another home game here next Sunday afternoon. A game had formerly been scheduled with Brutus, but the northerners cancelled their engagement.

Mystery Thrillers Officially New
Detective and mystery stories, accepted as one of the most popular and widely read of all fiction today, are a product of the last generation.

This was brought out during research work by Paramount for the filming of "Daughter of the Dragon," Sax Rohmer story in which Anna May Wong, Warner Oland and Sessue Hayakawa are featured at the Palace Theater, Friday and Saturday.

Earl Derr Biggers, from whose original short story, called "Idle Hands," the new Warner Brothers picture "The Millionaire," starring George Arliss, is adapted, is a highly successful novelist and short story writer but he considers the fact that Arliss chose his story to use as the basis for a talking picture the greatest single honor that he has ever received.

The "Millionaire" offers Evalyn Knapp, David Manners, Noah Beery, Bramwell Fletcher, Ivan Simpson, Tully Marshall, J. C. Nugent, James Cagney, J. Farrell MacDonald and Sam Hardy in the supporting cast. John Adolfi directed "The Millionaire" which plays next Sunday and Monday at the Palace Theater.

Two Leading Men Share Film Star in Modern Drama

Nancy Carroll has two leading men in her latest starring picture, "Personal Maid," which opens a two-day run at the Palace Theater on next Tuesday and Wednesday. They are Pat O'Brien, recently seen as the young reporter in "The Front Page," and Gene Raymond, a newcomer to pictures although well known on the New York stage.

"Man" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches on Sunday, September 6.

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Let Israel rejoice in him that made him: let the children of Zion be joyful in their king." (Ps. 149:2).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "For true happiness, man must harmonize with his Principle, divine Love; the Son must be in accord with the Father, in conformity with Christ. According to divine Science, man is in a degree as perfect as the Mind that forms him." (p. 337).

JOBS NOT DOLES IN GRAND RAPIDS

CITY ADOPTS UNIQUE PLAN TO AID ITS UNEMPLOYED

All Able-Bodied Jobless Men Must Work on Public Improvements to Obtain Assistance

Jobs instead of doles is the order in Grand Rapids; for every dollar the city spends in public relief Grand Rapids gets 80 cents in labor on public improvements.

All the physically able unemployed men in the city, paradoxically speaking, are at work on projects that have accumulated over a period of years, projects that have not required the purchase of more material than the city has on hand or can acquire easily out of funds regularly budgeted to the various city departments.

The finding of jobs in Grand Rapids was an easy matter for, as have all cities, Grand Rapids had shelved numerous projects in years gone by largely because of lack of funds. The chief item of expense connected with most of these projects was labor. But since the supply of labor is all too plentiful and the city is faced with the task of providing food and clothing for an unusually large number, the decision was made to beautify and improve the city, both to the benefit of the city and the unemployed.

Some 2,000 men, most of them heads of families, are now busy building many of the things that Grand Rapids has wanted for a long time. The Grand Rapids' method, which has been in operation since December, 1929, has been so successful in eliminating the financial hole that now only about three per cent of the cases receive direct relief. But this direct relief goes only to families without an able-bodied breadwinner or to families too large for the part time efforts of the father to support.

Every able-bodied unemployed man in Grand Rapids who is in need of assistance is working under a system which enables him to get along satisfactorily without losing his self-respect. These men are creating a new park, widening and extending streets, building new sidewalks, rounding off street corners for the convenience and safety of motorists, laying water mains and sewer lines, welding axes for the city wood pile, filling in city lots, painting city buildings, and a hundred and one other things which various city officials have on their books. Already these men have razed the buildings on the site for the new municipal auditorium on which many unemployed will soon be at work. A fine swimming pool in a city park has also been constructed, whose utility demonstrates the soundness of the Grand Rapids plan.

Men being given jobs by the city receive their compensation almost entirely in scrip. Scrip is merely paper money, good for trade only at the city's store. Workmen are paid at the rate of 40 cents an hour, but at the city store the prices of food stuff and clothing and other necessities are so low that the workman's salary goes a long way. The scrip plan was adopted largely for the reason that it simplified the transference of food and clothing to workmen and lessened the danger of mispending and fraud. At first, the Grand Rapids merchants felt that the establishment of a city store was discriminatory; however the efficiency of this method has been proved and now local merchants have changed their opinions.

The men work only in half-day shifts. The number of half-days the individual works during the week is determined by his needs and the number of dependents. Men with large families may work every day while the man with one or two dependents may work two, three or four half-days per week. Single men naturally work less than married men, and for the most part, the single men are taken care of in the city's Social Center, which is housed in an old church. When an individual makes application for assistance from the city, he is given a thorough medical examination regardless of his physical condition. City doctors determine whether or not a man is capable of work and whether or not he is fit (Continued on page 8.)

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPENED MONDAY

ENROLLMENT SHOWED SLIGHT DECREASE FROM LAST YEAR

High School Grades Increase, While Junior High and Grades Show
Considerable Decrease

School bells Monday morning sounded the close of the 1930 vacation season for over 600 Charlevoix children, who are now in pursuit of education for another nine-month period.

Sessions Monday morning were on the short period basis as the children reported to be assigned to classes and to learn the program they will follow throughout the school year. By Monday afternoon everything was running smoothly and regular routine under way.

Enrollment this year shows a slight decrease over 1930, there being 26 less students in all departments exclusive of the county normal. The high school grades, tenth to twelfth, inclusive, number 167 students, an increase of 29, divided in classes as follows: seniors 39, juniors 51, sophomores 77. The same classes in 1930-31 had enrollments of 33, 45 and 60, respectively.

The junior high, which this year includes the 7th, 8th and 9th grades, has 174 students as follows: seventh 56, eighth 42, ninth 76. Last year 7th grade had an enrollment of 49, 8th 54, and 9th 101, or a total of 204 as compared to 174 this year.

The grades, kindergarten to sixth and the training room have an enrollment of 293 as compared to 318 a year ago. However, the increase in number of high school students partly offsets the decrease in the junior high and grades. The county normal has an enrollment of 14, the same as in 1930.

Supt. Gerald Bush Wednesday morning announced dates of Thanksgiving and Christmas vacation periods, as well as a number of other outstanding events of the school year.

The Thanksgiving vacation period will be November 26 to 30, while the Christmas holiday period will be from December 23 to January 4th.

The annual junior class play has been scheduled for December 11th, the Drama Club play for either March 12 or 19, and the senior class play the second Friday after spring vacation. A spring music festival will be held May 6th.

MOTORISTS MUST RENEW LICENSES

ONLY SIX WEEKS REMAINS FOR FIRST DIVISION RENEWAL

Licenses Issued Prior to January 1, 1925, Must Be Renewed By November 1 This Year

One-half million motorists will be barred from the highways of this state after November 1, unless there is a substantial increase in the number of new operator's licenses issued within the next few weeks, Captain Lawrence A. Lyon of the Michigan State Police, said today at a conference of state police and executives of the Automobile Club of Michigan.

"To date, only 225,000 new operators' licenses have been issued, and with the remaining six weeks, an additional 650,000 motorists must obtain new licenses to permit them to operate their automobiles," Captain Lyons said. "In Wayne County alone today, 350,000 operators have failed to renew their licenses."

The state law requires that all Michigan motorists who received drivers' licenses prior to January 1, 1925, must renew this license before November 1 this year. Licenses issued up to January 1, 1925, must be renewed before May 1, 1932; and driving permits issued after January 1, 1925, must be renewed by November 1, 1932. Drivers who have been licensed since April 1 of this year are permitted to retain this license for three years.

"License bureaus have been opened throughout the state for several months, but most of the motorist public has not secured their new licenses," says Lyons. "Even now when only a few days remain, not one of the bureaus is taxed to capacity. A last minute rush is inevitable. And motorists found driving with operators' licenses issued prior to 1925, will be arrested when found driving in the state. The violation carries a maximum penalty of $100 fine or 90 days in jail."

It was also pointed out that a number of persons have made false application for new drivers' licenses, failing to record arrests for reckless or drunk driving or various felonies. This, it was declared, is perjury and easily detected through the state department's record of all serious violations. To date, 8,500 follow-up applications have been made because of false applications. This class of perjury carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in jail.

There are approximately 1,700,000 licensed automobile drivers in Michigan. Of this number, some 900,000 were licensed prior to 1925. At the present time, the license bureaus throughout the state are issuing 3,000 new permits a day, of which 1,000 are in Detroit. In order to renew all licenses before November 1, it will be necessary to re-examine drivers at the rate of 10,000 a day.

FINE PROGRAM AT TRAVERSE CITY FAIR

NORTHERN MICHIGAN EVENT
SEPTEMBER 21 TO 25

Large Exhibits and Many Special Entertainment Features Are Promised on Program

One of the finest entertainment programs ever witnessed in the Grand Traverse region will be seen by those who attend the twenty-second annual Northwestern Michigan Fair at Traverse City, Sept. 21-25. It was promised today by Arnell G. Engstrom, secretary of the fair association.

An entirely new type of program has been booked, including a mammoth and brilliant stage production comparable with the finest shows seen in the largest theaters of the country.

Brilliant lighting effects, gorgeous scenery, scores of beautiful girls, high class dancing, and an imposing array of extraordinary acrobatic and trained animal acts, will make this part of the fair long to be remembered.

The stage show will be the greatest departure from the former free act programs. A huge stage will face the grandstand. On this platform, with its scenic backgrounds, wings and drops, will be given "New, 1931 Ideas." This high class revue will be augmented by Raun's Hippodrome attractions, Flash of Gold, the famous jumping horse, the only mule that ever jumped over a horse, Jack Raun and Edith Cooper and their ten educated thoroughbred horses, The Eleven Comets, advertised as stars of speed, will present versatile tumbling and acrobatic stunts. The Askaris Four also present an acrobatic act that is internationally famous. This act employs three young women and a man.

Harry Sykes and his charming young wife present one of those unbelievable trick bicycle acts. The free entertainment program is presented each afternoon and evening during the fair, culminating in the double wedding ceremony the final evening. The couples have been arranged for. One bride and groom will come from Leelanau county, while the other comes from Grand Traverse county. Their names will not be divulged until just before the public wedding ceremony on the stage in front of the grandstand the evening of Sept. 25.

With new buildings, more and larger exhibits, lower prices for some of the mid-way attractions, and free admission for children under 15, this year's fair should attract the greatest crowd in its history.

CONGREGATIONAL ANNUAL MEETING at Local Church—Many Eminent Speakers on Program

The 54th annual meeting of the Cheboygan Association of Congregational churches will be held at the Charlevoix church on Thursday and Friday of this week.

The program will begin Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. An interesting feature of the Thursday meeting will be the examination and ordination of Mr. O. E. Priest of Gaylord. The ordination sermon will be delivered by Rev. C. J. Strang of Benzonia, and the charge to the pastor by Rev. C. H. Harger of the state office.

The Friday program will be featured by the appearance of Dr. Stephen A. Lloyd, the new state superintendent. Other speakers on the association program are Rev. and Mrs. Charles Trueblood, Alpena; Rev. Robert Baird, Cheboygan; Rev. W. W. Gadd, Vanderbilt; Miss Dora Ramsey, Cheboygan; Miss Helen Dizney, China; Dr. Roscoe Kedzie, Lansing; and Mrs. Hattie Collins of the state office.

A fellowship dinner will be served by the ladies of the local church Friday night at 5:30.

Outstanding among the speakers at the meeting will be Miss Helen Dizney, R. N., "nurse extraordinary" at the Taiku Hospital, North China, and Dr. W. R. Kedzie, Secretary of Educational Institutions of the Congregational Education Society, Lansing.

A contagious Christian cheerfulness, undaunted by circumstances and spiced with delicious humor, makes Helen Dizney a charming personality to meet. She went to Taiku seven years ago after being graduated from Beren College and West Suburban Hospital of Chicago. She will relate many of her interesting experiences while in the China missionary field.

Dr. Kedzie graduated from Michigan State College and from Oberlin seminary. Olivet conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity. He served in pastorates in Vicksburg, St. Johns, and Pontiac, Mich., Glenn Ellyn, Ill., and First Church, Cleveland, Ohio.

Dr. Kedzie will serve under the auspices of the Commission on Missions as the home missionary representative on the Michigan missionary team from September 17 to October 16 and 27 inclusive.

The public is invited to attend all sessions and the fellowship dinner.

FOOTBALL SCHED OPENS SATURDAY

CHARLEVOIX GOES TO ONAWAY
FOR INITIAL TILT

Local Team Heavy, Veteran Combination—Four Home Contests On Eight Game Schedule

Teams of the Tip of Michigan conference of class C schools, including Charlevoix's Red and White aggregation, swing into action Saturday in the opening encounters of the 1931 football season. In every instance, the contests are non-conference tilts, serving as warm-ups for the more serious engagements of future weeks.

For the third successive year, Charlevoix's Kipke-coached warriors will take on Onaway high school for their opening game. Saturday's contest will be at Onaway. The team will have a little over a week's practice before the initial tilt—one which will give local fans their first glimpse of the combination which will represent the school during the fall campaign.

Coach Kipke has a large field of candidates to choose from, including quite a number of letter men. Thirty-three were out for the first night's practice last Wednesday evening when warming-up drills were held. Since that time the group has increased to nearly forty, enough to put three full teams on the field.

From all outward appearances, Charlevoix should have the best team in years. In his first-string line-up, Coach Kipke has eight letter men, including Joe Arvilla, Homer Struthers, Norman Ance, Charles Novotny, Jerry Walker, Devere Bird, Dan Geneit and Vic McSaubly. Among the new-comers are Joe Smith and George LaBlanc, two husky lads who last year were ineligible, but this season should give good accounts of themselves. Then there is Hugh Parker, who at Waterford was an all-county tackle, and David Dick, who was a regular last season. The outfit is a heavy one, averaging in the neighborhood of 150 pounds to the man.

Several 1930 veterans are likely to appear in the same positions as last year. Joe Arvilla, 1931 captain, is almost certain to start at fullback, and Norman Ance will likely again be quarter-back. Devere Bird is at center and Vic McSaubly at right end, their 1930 positions. Joe Smith, one of the new-comers, is being tried at half along with Struthers, who last year played tackle. Struthers, a speedy lad for his 205 pounds, should make a great backfield man. In practice sessions Charles Novotny, a reserve last year, is at left end, while Jerry Walker, who held down one of the end positions during the 1930 season, is at left tackle alongside of Hugh Parker at guard. On the other side of the line, George LaBlanc, who in his sophomore year played in the backfield, is a guard, and Dan Geneit, a substitute half last year, occupies the tackle position. Unless Coach Kipke has some other combination up his sleeve, the men will start Saturday in the positions above named.

There are quite a number of promising men in the list of reserves. Howard Davenport and Edwin McCann have both seen action, while Emerald Chew, Harold Potter and Bernard Foster are among a large group of promising sophomores.

Stewart Coleman, athletic manager, has arranged an eight-game schedule with one open date. There will be four home contests. The schedule follows:

Sept. 19—Onaway there.
Sept. 26—Mancelona here.
Oct. 3—East Jordan here.
Oct. 10—Open.
Oct. 17—Cheboygan here.
Oct. 24—Bozette City there.
Oct. 31—Harbor Springs there.
Nov. 7—Petoskey here.

The same system of ticket sales which proved so popular a year ago will be in force this season. Reduced rates on season tickets for all home games, included both football and basketball will be offered to students and towns-people. Tickets will be placed on sale soon and all local people will be urged to make their purchases and take advantage of savings offered.

The telling of her trip to North Carolina from Central normal. In it she mentioned several things of historical note as well as description of the country passed over, products, etc. She would have pupils correspond with other pupils of distant cities and boards of trades and get certain interesting facts from them.

Advertising Benefits All!

ADVERTISING AN INVESTMENT

The accounting department may classify advertising as an expense, but it is something more than expense; it is an investment.

Advertising is an investment because, rightly done, it pays dividends to the producer, the manufacturer, the jobber, the wholesaler, the retailer.

Advertising pays dividends to the advertiser because by selling demand it tends toward quantity production, greater volume of business with relatively little increase in "overhead" and operating expense.

The farmer has learned that by advertising his live stock and farm sales in papers of county-wide quality circulation, he gets a larger attendance of buyers, sells more at better prices. If only one buyer is influenced to come who otherwise would have remained at home, his presence as a bidder or buyer may easily repay the entire cost of advertising. And the chances are that many more than one are thus influenced.

Every merchant who advertises not only helps the town and country, but he helps every other business man in the community.

The man who does not advertise sometimes reaps where he has not sown, for he gets some patronage from the people brought to town by advertising.

Live clothiers who advertise help each other and incidentally help the dry goods and grocery men and all other lines of business. Advertising dry goods and groceries brings new customers to the clothing store. And so on throughout every department of merchandising, banking and professional activity.

Advertising keeps the town on the map. It is the best preventative of dry rot in communities where the trees are getting thick at the base.

Advertising pays dividends of community interest, profit and progress. Reciprocity is a good idea—help those who help you and yours.

HEART OF THE NORTH

BY
BYRON
MOWERY

As they skirted out upon a shallow little lake fringed about with tall flags, Larry suddenly heaved back on his paddle.

"Lift out! Look! Ahn, look over there!"

Alan looked where he pointed, at the north shore, at the wall of dense reeds. A path had been broken through the flags there; the reeds were parted, some of them trampled, their tops bent to either side.

It told the story to him. Hard-pressed, those men had whipped ashore to shake off pursuit; had lifted canoes to shoulder, and were trying to cut north and hit another channel.

Tidbitious to ambush danger, they skinned over to the telltale break in the flags and drove out upon the mud. Alan and Bill slung the canoe upon their shoulders; and with Larry in the lead, following the signs, they started at a lope back through the flags.

Within a few hundred yards they came to a little creek, a sluggish muskrat highway that led north. The handits had taken to it. Too shallow for a canoe, they had had to wade. So recently had they passed, the water was still rolled from their boots.

The little creek took Alan's party a thousand yards north to a lake, a deep blue lake covering several acres; and there, within the "Thal-Azzah" itself, late in the afternoon, the long relentless chase came to its end.

Larry, a dozen steps in the lead, glimpsed the silvery sheen of water ahead; and stopping dead-short, motioned Bill and Larry to be cautious. They belled forward toward the lake edge where the flags were thin and they had clear view.

After several minutes of waiting, Larry pointed across the lake and stated quietly:

"You see that big patch of brownish flags over there, about thirty or forty yards back from the water? See that little run leading back into them? That's where our men are hiding. They're laying low along that little run. I just noticed a rat start up that run. He come back in a hurry. Then, there's a silent spot over there where I don't hear any bird or animal calls. And then some other signs."

He was silent for half a minute. Finally he whispered: "I'll show you a sign. You see that pair of canvas-backs a-couling this way? They're flying low, making for this lake. Canvas-backs like blue water. Watch 'em close."

Skimming just over the flags, the pair of graceful ducks came on; but just as they stopped heating and started the glide down upon the lake, they suddenly breasted high up in the air, exactly over the spot Larry had indicated. Veering away, they winged swiftly out of sight into the west.

Lying there in the reeds and bog, Alan studied the handit covert and tried to plan. If all five of his men had been along with him, the outcome would have been swift and certain. He could have come at the handits from either side, cut off any chance of escape, boxed them between two fires and deliberately shot them down. But he had split his party at the Aloosa Forks, as Haskell ordered. Now, at the crucial hour here in the Thal-Azzah, Pedneault and those other two men, uselessly following that south branch, were a hundred and forty miles away.

He planned, rejected and planned again, and finally came to a decision. "We've got to carry the fight to them, and we've got to keep them from getting away by that creek yonder. There's only one way we can do both those things. Bill and I are going to circle around them on foot and come at them from the other side. We'll get there somehow, even if we have to swim part way. With any luck at all we ought to get into a position where we can put two or three of them out of business at the very beginning, before they wake up to us. They won't fight if they can help it. Why should they take chances on some of them getting wounded or killed, if they don't have to? They'll try to whip back across this lake and dodge into that channel yonder. Now, Larry, you'll stay here to head that off. Keep out of sight yourself; have a couple or three extra magazines handy, and wait till they get into the middle. When they get in good range, open up on them. Sink those canoes. We don't care about those men. Let them swim ashore and hide if they want to. On foot a man can't make ten miles a week in this muskrat country. With no tent, no shelter, the mosquitoes and flies would drive them crazy in less than a day, and they'd fall into our hands. If you understand now what's cut out for us, we'll be starting."

Both men nodded. Bill and Alan backed away with infinite caution, for one flushing waterfowl would raise all the others. Yard by cautious yard the two men slipped back into the rushes till they were a safe distance from the lake.

Then they began the long hard job of circling around the handits. Wet, muddy, tortured by insect pests, they pushed steadily on, mindful of coming twilight.

It took an hour and a half to make the wide careful circle and start coming in toward the handits from the north. With the sun cut in two by the western horizon and the chill of twilight in the air, those six men would shortly be on the move. But Alan's hopes had risen again; it seemed that he had taken his luck along. The handits did not know they were being stalked. In half an hour more, if luck held, he and Bill would be in position to open on them all unawares.

Dropping at last to hands and knees, the two of them crawled along through mud and water, keeping only their guns dry. They came up within a hundred yards of their quarry. As he parted the reeds in front of his face Alan saw the tops of a clump of flags waving suspiciously. A moment later he glimpsed the dim outline of a man standing up, stretching himself, sitting down again.

In actual sight now, those men who had killed Jimmy Montgomery! And only a pistol shot away! But to take them . . . Alan cursed savagely at the thought of Pedneault and those two men a hundred and forty miles distant. As he remembered what Haskell said about the Law being behind his patrol, his lips curled in scorn at the man's expression. "The Law that's supposed to be back of us, I wonder where in—! It is now! What does it mean to Bill and me now?" Here in this watery wilderness in the creeping twilight, he and Bill were going up against six men who had stood off fifty and who had murder charges hanging over their heads. And if they broke away, Larry single-handed would have to stand the whole brunt of stopping them.

At his gesture Bill slid cautiously up beside him. In whispers, Alan said to him: "Till we've got to get closer. We've got to get across this point. Those muskrat houses out there are particularly good luck for us. By keeping down in the water, with these little reeds to help hide us, we can sneak from one house to the next. The last one isn't a dozen yards from those men. If we make it we'll have point-blank range and the best kind of cover to shoot from."

Taking off their hats and jackets, they wriggled carefully out of the tall flags, eased into the water and squirmed toward the first muskrat house, which stood up four feet above the surface and entirely hid their approach. Behind it they stopped a moment, chose their next one, and sank back into the water.

As they crouched down behind the third little dome of mud and reeds, a towering red-bearded man paged the flags they were staring at, bent and scooped up a handful of water, took a swallow, threw the rest down with an oath at its vile taste; and then, shaking the water out of his hat, he disappeared again.

Alan's last secret doubt about those handits being utter strangers in the country was dispelled now. He had had a clear view of this huge red-bearded leader; he could say positively, as Ashmun and all the passengers had sworn, that he had never laid eyes on the man before.

To Bill he whispered: "When we reach that last house, I'll splash or do something to draw their attention. They'll come out to the flag edge again to see what it is. Don't shoot when just one man shows up. We'll wait till we have three of them in plain sight. If we get three of them at the first crack, we'll be fighting the other three on even terms. Now, Bill, when you're looking down a rifle barrel at those men, don't hesitate. Aim straight. We can't make prisoners of that outfit. This is a night fight, one or the other party is going to get wiped out."

They started for the fourth muskrat house.

Halfway there, disaster overwhelmed them, sudden and stunning.

It came from the air, in the shape of a pair of red-throated loons, flapping heavily out of the west, the birds dropped with a loud splash not ten feet away from the two men.

At the splash Alan heard a muffled oath over in the flags; then a rattling movement, as though the handits had nervously jumped for their guns; then silence. And then a voice from the twilight among the reeds:

"Nothin'! Jus' a pair of divers plumped down."

The alarm would have blown over if the loons had swum off. But the birds, crop-heavy and indolent, stayed where they were, showing no intention of moving away. As the female started preening herself, the male turned its eye suspiciously at the two strange objects sticking above the water.

What startled it Alan never knew. Bill did not move; he himself did not bat an eyelash. But in that jumpy faint silence the male suddenly threw open its beak and sent up a raucous musical shriek, as though some animal had seized it by the neck.

Instantly its mate joined in. The jarring, ear-splitting discord set muskrats diving off their houses and flushed every waterfowl in the lake a hundred yards distant. With a last frantic peal the loons taxed over the water. Finally managed to take wing, and flapped heavily away.

But the damage had been done beyond retrieve. All that hour and a half of careful stalking, all the great caution and palas of slipping unawares upon the handits, had been set at naught by the crazy shriek of a crazy loon.

Over in the murky twilight of the flags there was a commotion, sharp orders, the click of rifle bolts. At the edge of the flags a gun crack-a-check, a rope of flame reached out, a bullet glunched off the water.

It was a shrewd maneuver from the handits, a tentative shot to draw the fire of their stalkers and discover where they were. Alan was quick-witted enough to see their motive and to the low; but Bill jerked his rifle against his cheek and shot point-blank at the sport of fire.

A cry of pain went up. His bullet had scored. But the shot gave away their hiding. With all hope gone now of getting the drop, Alan scrambled behind cover of a muskrat house, fairly dragging Bill after him.

Half a dozen rifles exploded in the flags. Alan thrust his rifle over the top of the house and emptied it at the flashes. A bullet from a Savage, a sharp-cracking deadly Savage, hit his weapon, smashed the mechanism, mangled his hand, and drove jagged fiery bits of steel into his fingers.

For several minutes the bullets of the handits beat a thudding tattoo against the mud mound. As best they could Alan and Bill lifted their belt-guns over the top of their shelter, and fired back. They heard no more yelps of pain. They were shooting wildly, aimlessly. Realizing this, believing the handits had crept into the run and were sheltered by its banks, Alan stopped shooting and checked Bill.

Yonder in the reeds the fire died away raggedly. A silence fell. A minute lengthened into two, three, four. Alan heard, or thought he heard, a faint rustling, a faint creaking of water. He listened intently, but did not hear it again.

With his plans all shattered, with the twilight steadily deepening, he was torn with desperation. If he and Bill moved, it was sheer suicide. If they crouched much longer where they were, the handits would certainly slip away from them in the coming dark. As he fought to think of a plan that would break this deadlock, he heard a long whistle, a clear shrill whistle from Larry's direction. It was Larry signaling.

He sprang up. "Bill! They've backed away, they've slipped up, they're breaking for the lake! Larry's alone. We've got to help Larry!"

They splashed out of the pond and into the flags, in a frantic effort to reach the lake edge. The marsh reeds, clutched at them, tripped them, wrapped around their legs. Savagely they tore their way on through to get into the clear in time to help Larry stop those handits.

As he swung his clubbed rifle, smashing a pathway in front of him, Alan heard a lone gun crack over on the lake, and heard the snarl of half a dozen repeating weapons answering it like an echo. They drowned, they overwhelmed it. The lone gun did not speak again.

It seemed hours to him that he fought and tore through the dense flags, to reach the open and help a comrade who was standing up against six rifles. Before he broke through in the clear, the uneven battle had ended. As he burst out to the lake edge, he had a glimpse of the police canoe drifting helplessly out in the middle; and across at the far side he saw two long blurred objects just entering the deep-water channel.

Numbed and dazed at those six men, escaping, there was a moment when Alan could only realize that his patrol had failed. That those criminals had vanished into the twilight and were lost in this watery wilderness, with pursuit utterly hopeless now.

In the next moment, he heard a sound, a sound like a growling voice calling his name. It drew his eyes to the drifting police craft. What was it doing out there? Like a flash he understood what Larry had done. When the handits started across the lake to escape, Larry must have seen he could never stop them in the semi-darkness except at point-blank range.

In the police canoe he must have come fearlessly out at them, alone. This first deadly volley had got him. That growling voice was Larry's.

Bill came lurching through to the clear. Alan whirled on him: "Bill! They got Larry. He's wounded. Hard hit. Here . . . Tossing Bill his belt-gun and broken rifle, he ran out into breast-deep water and struck out powerfully for the drifting canoe.

By a provident mercy he reached it in time. With half a dozen lides spouting water into it, the craft was filling, tilting, about to overturn.

Larry lay at the bottom of it, writhing in pain.

By heroic struggles, swimming, pushing a dead-weight ahead of him, Alan got the craft into shallower water, put his hand under its keel then, and kept it afloat.

He dragged it to the bank just as Bill came splashing around the lake edge to join him.

"Alan! What happened? Where'd they go?"

"They got away. They're gone—gone. Forget it. Help me, Bill—with Larry!"

Together they bent over their bleeding, stricken comrade; and together they lifted him tenderly ashore.

CHAPTER V

The Broken Sword

By the light of an electric torch Alan cut away Larry's clothing and examined his wounds. Larry had been shot twice, and both wounds were four-some. One bullet, a ricocheting slug, had struck him squarely in the knee, cruelly shattering the bone. The second had pierced his chest high up, just beneath the shoulder, and had passed entirely through his body. Stealing himself to the ordeal, Alan worked desperately with tourniquet and tiny medicine kit till he had stanchied the bleeding. Before he finished, Larry was rousing faintly from the bullet shock.

Half an hour later, when Alan had done all he could and Bill had managed to patch the canoe, they turned their faces toward home, in defeat, in sorrow, in an anguish over Larry.

Alan picked him up in his arms, gently and tenderly, trying to keep that fatal bleeding from starting afresh. With Bill following him, staggering under the weight of canoe, guns and pack, he headed back toward the Aloosa branch.

For an hour they stumbled along, plowed through bog and mire, groped through the tall impending flags. It was an hour of darkness, of blind heroic struggle. But they reached the Aloosa branch at last and set the canoe to water; and making Larry a soft bed of flags, they began their sorrowful journey.

With no sleep in more than fifty hours, with all that long hard chase behind them, they were on the verge

FEEDS WHEAT TO STOCK

Farmers in Michigan say they are feeding wheat to hogs and making money. One of them says that even with the low price of pork on the hoof, there is more profit in feeding pigs' wheat at 35 cents now than there was in feeding them corn at $2 during the war boom. Pork is low, but there is a market for it.

In the same state poultrymen who didn't sell out their breeding flocks when eggs became cheap are now using wheat for chicken feed and making money. Even dairymen are taking advantage of the cheap wheat.

A great deal of the wheat surplus can be absorbed in this way.

DIG POTATOES SOON TO AVOID FREEZING

Frosted Tubers Cost Growers Huge Sum and Discourage Buyers

Michigan farmers who paid $4,000,000 last year for the privilege of harvesting their potatoes late in the season are urged by the farm crops department to harvest early enough this year to avoid the enormous loss caused by freezes before the potatoes are dug.

Field frosted potatoes do not keep well in storage, and, to this loss from rot, the damage done to the quality of the stock must be added. Frosted potatoes have discolored flesh, a sweet flavor, and do not cook well. Housekeepers who once buy frosted stock discriminate against all other potatoes raised in the same section.

Harvesting dates recommended by the crops department are before Sept. 30 for the territory north of Cadillac, before Oct. 10 from Cadillac to Lansing, and before Oct. 20 for the southern three tiers of counties.

NEW STATUES ALTER GAME SEASON

DUCK SEASON OPENS AT NOON
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1

Pheasant, Partridge, Prairie Chicken and Rabbit Seasons Open Oct.
15—Many Other Changes

Sportsmen who will trek the wilds of Michigan this year in the quest of game will do well to peruse their copy of the 1931-1932 Game Laws very carefully before setting out to bag their game. Many changes have been made which affect practically all kinds of hunting.

The pheasant season has been altered to open October 15 and close October 26. Partridge and prairie chicken seasons conform with it.

Duck and geese seasons open October 1 and close October 31. Jack Snipe and coot seasons coincide with it.

All field shooting, including rabbits, opens on October 15. This is a change which is welcome to all true sportsmen and was backed by many. Waltonians who confine their efforts to ring-necks. Last year the rabbit season opened first and it was felt by many that it was a detriment to pheasant hunting.

Seasons on various game and bag limits follow:

Deer (male)—Open season, November 15 to November 30, inclusive. Number in possession, 1 male with not less than 3-inch antlers, under hunter's license; one male with not less than 3-inch antlers under camp license.

Cottontail rabbits, Varying hare (Snowshoe or Jack rabbit)—Open season, October 15 to January 31, inclusive, lower peninsula—Number in possession, (lower peninsula), 5 in one day, 10 in possession, 50 in season.

Fox Squirrel—Open season, lower peninsula, October 15 to October 24, inclusive—Number in possession, 5 in one day, 10 in possession, 15 in season.

Lower peninsula; north of north—line of T. 15 and west of Saginaw Bay, may be trapped from November 15th to November 30th, inclusive, south of north line of T. 16 and east of Saginaw Bay including the Thumb, may be trapped December 1 to December 15, inclusive.

Opossum—Open season, November 1 to December 15, inclusive.

Coyote, wolf, lynx, bobcat, fox, skunk, porcupine, woodchuck, house cats, ground squirrel, red squirrel, weasels, owls, crows, hawks, starlings, blackbirds—May be killed at any time—unlawful to have firearms in possession in hunting areas during closed season on game without permit issued by Conservation Commission.

Bear—Open season, Nov. 15 to 30th, inclusive—Number in possession, one bear; unlawful to have in possession more than 60 days after close of season; owner or lessee of lands or his employees may, take or kill bear on premises at any time when damage has been done or is liable to be done.

Chinese ring-necked pheasant (male)—Open season, Oct. 15 to 26, inclusive, in lower peninsula—Bag limit, 2 in one day, 4 in possession, 4 in season.

Ruffed grouse (partridge)—Open season, Oct. 15 to Oct. 26, inclusive; in lower peninsula, season closed in upper peninsula—Bag limits, 3 in one day, 10 in possession, 10 in season.

Prairie chicken—Open season, Oct. 15 to 26, inclusive, in lower peninsula north of the north line of the counties of Van Buren, Kalamazoo, Calhoun, Jackson, Washtenaw and Wayne—Bag limits, 5 in one day, 10 in possession, 10 in season.

Ducks (except woodduck and elders)—Open season, Oct. 1 to Oct. 31, inclusive—Bag limits, 15 in one day, 30 in possession at one time, 100 in season.

Geese and brant—Open season, Oct. 1 to Oct. 31, inclusive—Bag limits, 4 in one day, 8 in one season, combined.

Fourteen laws adopted by the 1931 legislature and affecting conservation in Michigan will go into effect September 18.

Many conservation laws adopted by the last legislature, including amendments to the inland fishing laws, were given immediate effect and have been in force during the summer.

The new conservation laws, in effect Friday, September 18, are briefly:

Posting of hunting land without the authority of the owner or lessee is prohibited.

Additional powers are given the Geological Survey Division of the Conservation Department in regulating the drilling of oil wells.

Amendments make radical changes in the commercial forest reserve act.

All general laws relative to inland fishing are applicable to the Union City Pond on the St. Joseph River.

Protection of wild predators in the Gull Lake Sanctuary is removed.

Sunday hunting in Hillsdale and Clinton counties is prohibited.

Sunday hunting in Lenawee county is provided by the legislature went into effect last spring.

Establishment and maintenance of county, township, city, village and school district forests is provided.

The Department of Conservation must now pay a 10c tax on tax home-stand and swamp lands held by the department.

Killing of deer in the following counties is now prohibited: Manistee, Muskegon, Wexford, Lake, Newaygo, Mason and Clare.

The amendments to the general game laws including the open and closed seasons are now effective.

Hunting licenses for small game are $1.75; for deer $3.50.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS
By B. C. Mellencamp

Are You Interested in Having Your Farm Home Beautified?

We are glad to announce that plans have been definitely made to have O. I. Gregg, specialist in landscape architecture, Michigan State College, spend Wednesday, September 23 in this county, for the purpose of landscaping as many farms as can be handled in this one day.

During the past few years several farm homes have been beautified which has made them a real beauty spot. Among these the homes of Ben Gardner, Boyne City; W. K. Straw, Charlevoix; and Bert Lumley, Boyne City stand out as shining examples. In this work the expense is not great, and yet the results are indeed surprising. Mr. Gregg has always been careful in his selection, and has included as much of the native shrubs, trees, and plants as possible to carry out his program. Our woods abound in wonderful possibilities. A few hours' effort accomplishes wonders in beautifying your farm surroundings.

If you are interested in having this assistance given you, kindly get in touch with B. C. Mellencamp, our County Agent, immediately so that a reservation can be made in this day's program. It would be advisable for you to telephone instead of writing as someone else may put in their request ahead of you, and bent you to the finish. First come, first served, so be prompt if you want this service this year.

Ask us to give you an estimate on the cost of re-roofing of your house. You will be surprised at the figure the work can be done for. And use Weaver-Wall Co. Roofing—it's the kind to use and that's why we handle it.—Louis S. Orloski, Adv. 3711.

AT THE MOVIES
Lila Lee Rides Bike

Although she wasn't raised in that far off era when women rode bicycles, Lila Lee is a capable and enthusiastic cyclist. While on location at Lone Pine, an isolated community where "Woman Hungry" was being filmed, she found an old bike and had a lot of fun riding it about town. She learned to ride a bicycle as a child on the stage in a Gus Edwards act.

"Women don't ride bicycles any more. In fact, I doubt if one girl in a thousand today even knows how. But they've missed a lot of fun. Of course, there isn't any place much where it's safe any more," she says. Miss Lee plays the feminine lead in "Woman Hungry," the first National picture which comes to the Palace Theater Thursday and Friday.

Noted Divorce Judge Tells Why Love Can't Be Forced

"You can't legislate love into the hearts of a man and a woman." This is the philosophy of Judge George A. Bartlett, famous divorce magistrate of Reno, Nevada, the sanatorium for broken hearts, where "Lightnin'" Will Rogers' third starring vehicle for Fox Movietone was produced in part.

"Lightnin'" with its divorce background, affords Rogers an opportunity to express his views on the momentous subject of divorce during the action of this intensely human screen play. He obtained much first hand information by attending several sessions of court in Reno and his comments are said to be hilariously funny.

"Lightnin'" coming Saturday and Sunday to the Palace Theater, is an intensely human drama. It tells the story of "Lightnin'" Bill Jones, an indolent but whimsical old tippler, who, by his shrewdness, circumvents a band of swindlers who attempt to rob his wife of her hotel and send an innocent young man to prison.

Louise Dresser, one of the outstanding character women of the screen, portrays the role of "Lightnin'" wife, while Helen Cohan, youngest daughter of the celebrated George M. Cohan, enacts the role of their daughter. Others of note in important roles are Joel McCrea, J. M. Kerrigan, Sharon Lynn, Jason Robards, Ruth Warren, Joyce Campbell, Frank Campeau, Rex Bell and Luke Cosgrave.

of exhaustion, and could make no time. Their hands were raw with blisters from puddle work; their faces were bleeding from insect bites; their whole bodies ached intolerably. They were muddled, wet, grimy, and hungry, heart-sick from the disagreeable feeling of their patrol. But they refused to stop or rest; Larry had to be taken home quickly; the hours were a matter of life or death to him. With dogged courage they drove themselves on.

With his spirits at so low an ebb, the picture of that far back in Dave MacMillan's mind rose before Alan's eyes, and he foresaw the inevitable consequences to Dave from that discovery. In his exhaustion, with all the buoyancy of hope drained out of him, he no longer could feel that somehow he was going to get Joyce's father off lightly. He must take Dave into endurance and enter charge; and now, with these bandits escaped, Dave would bear the whole brunt of the law's retribution. He felt that all the rest of his life he would be haunted by the memory of Joyce's pale face, frightened and unquiescent, in the cold gray dawn of yesterday.

In this whole miserable business—Jimmy Montgomery dead, Larry in the shadow of death, that tragically lingering over innocent Joyce MacMillan, the bandits escaped and the patrol disgraced—in all this self-starved affair, only one thought held any comfort for Alan. It was a vengeful thought, born of a savage and vengeful mood. He held a sword now over Inspector Huskell. Huskell had ordered this patrol to be split. Out of his ignorance and jealous anger, he had issued that crazy order, and it had wrecked the patrol. His gross incompetence, which heretofore had been only a vague charge, now stood out clearly and glaringly, in all its inescapable guilt.

Alan swore to wield this sword in his hand.

By mid-afternoon of that interminable day they came to the first struggling trees at the Thia-Azzah edge. At deep twilight they reached the Aloosa Forks and the anchored launch.

Pedonhill had just returned from his useless trip up the south branch. In a few words he understood all that had happened. With one glance at his spent and staggering partners, he took their heavy burden from their shoulders.

Alan hung himself down beside Bill, driven to the limit of human endurance. His last waking thought was the grim satisfaction of knowing that he held a sword over his guilty arrogant officer and could bring him to account at last.

In his cabin Inspector Huskell sat behind his desk, waiting for Alan Baker to come in and report. He was thinking, thinking hard; and for all his self-control his nerves were jumping.

Over in a corner Willupple sat at the table, pretending to write, but in reality waiting there as Huskell had bidden him. Something cold had gripped Huskell half an hour ago when he saw the patrol returning without the six bandits and with Constable Younger desperately wounded. He knew the details of that patrol already; Willupple had come up and prepared to tell him. How the bandits had headed for the Thia-Azzah, as Baker had warned. How Baker had run those six to earth and cornered them. How Pedonhill and the other two constables had been a hundred and forty miles away during that crucial hour.

As he knew, this crime was the most spectacular in years along the Three Rivers. The defeat administered to the police was the most stinging in a decade. This incident would have repercussions at headquarters. Superintendent Williamson would investigate. The very first question of that veteran old officer would be:

"Why in h—l did you order Baker to ditch that patrol? Splitting up his detail that way—didn't you realize that neither party would be able to handle those criminals?"

Not deluding himself, Huskell knew he was caught. He knew he had made a capital mistake in a Force where a man's first mistake is usually his last. In those thirty minutes all his prospects of promotion in service, of surpassing Alan Baker, of swiping Ribzabeth Spaulding to himself, had come tumbling down like a house of cards, and he was thoroughly frightened.

It would spell doom to his career if the facts of the patrol became known. The blame of this shameful defeat lay squarely at his door. Baker surely realized that; Baker surely was going to use that sword against him. It was war now, open and avowed war between them.

Step by step, logic led him to the one and only recourse he had. If Williamson ever found out he had ordered that patrol split, he was sunk. Therefore Williamson must not find out. There was a way to keep him from knowing the facts.

Huskell tried to still his conscience by thinking that Baker had wanted the patrol to fail. If that was so, then this measure was exactly what the sergeant had coming to him. He ought to be smashed, and smashed hard.

You've got to fight fire with fire.

MICHIGAN CROPS
HIT BY DROUGHTPOTATOES, BEANS, PASTURES
HIT BY DRY WEATHERMichigan Corn Crop to Be Little Below
State Average—Beets
Standing Up Well

Another decided decline in Michigan field crop prospects occurred during August. A deficient amount of rainfall, coupled with an unusually dry sub-soil, has effectively reduced the yields of all late-season crops according to the monthly report issued by Herbert E. Powell, state commissioner of agriculture and Verne H. Church, U. S. agricultural statistician. Potatoes, beans, and pastures have suffered the most severely. Corn, oats, barley, buckwheat, and sugar beets show declines in condition of from five to ten points. Fruit is abundant, low in price, well colored and of fine flavor.

While the corn crop is slightly below average, it promises a production of 43,008,000 bushels. This is greatly in excess of the extremely poor crop of 25,276,000 bushels raised in 1930. Many fields are well cured and the ears are well filled. In many others, the ears are short and poorly filled. The crop matured early and silo filling has been nearly completed.

Oats and barley were very poor in the northern half of the state, but the yield increased southward and was very good in some of the extreme southern counties. The grain is lighter in weight than usual.

The condition of field beans dropped from 75 to 48 per cent of normal during August. This indicates a yield of only seven bushels per acre, and a total production of 5,894,000 bushels as compared with 4,602,000 bushels last year. Early plantings generally yielded the best. Many fields planted around the average date have few or no pods, and some acreage is too poor to warrant the expense of harvesting. Late fields were blooming at the end of August and may produce at least a partial crop if September is favorable. The nation's crop is placed at 18,725,000 bushels as compared with 21,907,000 bushels harvested last year.

Sugar beets have withstood dry conditions better than other field crops and the indicated production is 412,000 tons, which is an average of 7.5 tons per acre.

Heat and drought have greatly lowered Michigan's potato prospects. Sections that have been favored with rains have a fair setting of tubers, but they are small in size and dependent upon more moisture soon if they are to reach marketable quality. Many fields are already past further improvement. The outlook is best in the northern half of the state. Prospects are poorer in Minnesota and North Dakota, somewhat doubtful in Wisconsin, and rather poor in Maine and Pennsylvania where late blight prevails quite generally and where the crop is ripening more or less prematurely. The total production for the United States is estimated at 361,036,000 bushels as compared with 343,236,000 bushels in 1930. With the existing unemployment situation and consequent low buying power of consumers, the price outlook is less favorable than last year if this production is actually attained at the end of the season.

CAR OWNERS DEMAND VALUES
—not Claims!

MOTORISTS are finding the Greatest Values in Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Ever since Firestone and Firestone Dealers began advertising the true facts about tire quality and construction and actually demonstrating the Extra Values in Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires, distributors of special-brand mail-order tires have grown bolder and bolder with misleading claims and comparisons in the desperate effort to interest car-owners.

Car owners bought more Firestone Tires in May, June and July, than in any like period in history. This clearly shows that car owners are interested in Firestone Extra Values and are not interested in comparisons based on an almost obsolete tire size—confusing laboratory analyses—meaningless definitions—impractical challenges with unfair claims of twenty-five per-cent savings—and deceiving price comparisons.

Why risk a tire of unknown manufacture when you can get the Extra Quality, Extra Strength, and Extra Safety of the special patented construction features of Firestone Tires—Gum-Dipping, and Two Extra Cord PLYS under the Tread?

You get these Extra Values—plus our Service and the DOUBLE GUARANTEE of Firestone and ourselves—at no more cost!

Drive in today.—We have sections cut from Firestone Tires, special-brand mail-order tires and others.—See the evidence.—Take nothing for granted.—Judge for Yourself.

TEMPERANCE WORKERS HOLD SEPT. MEETING

Program Presented At Community Room Last Friday Afternoon

The September meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held last Friday afternoon in the community room. Mrs. Margaret Jacobs acted as hostess.

Mrs. P. D. Campbell conducted the devotional service and Dr. F. F. McMillan presented the topic which had been assigned to Mrs. McMillan, viz: "Latest Scientific Facts" (concerning alcohol) in a very interesting manner.

The flag committee had purchased the United States flags as directed and at the close of the meeting they were placed in the various school rooms in the standards presented two years ago to replace the old flags which had become faded and worn.

The Loyal Temperance Legion committee was asked to organize that work on an early date.

Mrs. P. D. Campbell was elected delegate to the state convention to be held November 7-11 at Jackson.

Messdames Roger, Leonard, Hamilton and Campbell and Miss Metcalf were elected delegates to the district convention to be held Sept. 22 and 23 at Bellaire. Many others plan to go for at least part of the sessions, as the entertaining Union has extended an invitation to all temperance workers in the district to be present.

LOCAL GROUP HEAR EXTENSION LECTURE

Topics for 1931-32 Presented at Community Room Wednesday

The first lecture in the Michigan State College Home Extension course for 1931-32 was given last Wednesday in the Community Room by Miss Gertrude Reese, who was introduced by County Agent Melencamp.

"House Furnishing" is the topic this year and the course promises to be very interesting, but the September date was evidently too early for the women of this locality, as many more attended the first meeting last year.

The following women were present, viz: Mrs. H. L. Francis and Mrs. Minsco of Phelps, Mrs. Geo. Meggison and Mrs. Williams of Marion Center, Mrs. Elziaga and Mrs. Coeling of Ellsworth, Mrs. Linday and Mrs. Evers of Burgess and Mrs. Saltonstall of Charlevoix.

No doubt many others will attend the balance of the lectures which are scheduled for Oct. 14, Nov. 4 and March 2 and groups which could not be represented Sept. 9th can make arrangements for some of the leaders who were present to relay the first lecture for them.

DISTRICT TEMPERANCE MEETING AT BELLAIRE

Judge Gilbert and Local Speakers on Program Sept. 23-24

The annual convention of the Lower 11th District Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at Bellaire next week, beginning at 2:00 p. m., e. s. t., Tuesday, Sept. 22nd, and closing at 4:00 p. m. Wednesday, September 23rd.

The entertaining Union has invited all temperance workers in the district to be present. Each Union is entitled to five voting delegates.

Mrs. Lottie Woodford, National S. T. I. lecturer, will speak both in the afternoon and evening of the first day. Several Charlevoix young people are scheduled to compete in the Gold Medal declamatory contest that evening.

Judge Parm C. Gilbert of Traverse City, and Mrs. R. B. Armstrong of Charlevoix, are speakers Wednesday afternoon.

Election of officers and other business is on the program for Wednesday morning.

for heavy or light duty. Those who have been residents of Grand Rapids a year or more are eligible for assistance.

The scrip labor plan has the striking advantage of keeping away the "scabs"—those men who are willing to take something for nothing even if they do not need it. Grand Rapids prides herself in elimination of the pauper status from the lives of her hundreds and hundreds of fine workmen. Grand Rapids feels that the retention of pride in these workmen will react decidedly to the city's advantage in the future. Further, Grand Rapids, always a city of pleasing appearance, is rapidly becoming one of the most attractive cities in the country, a city free from drabness.

Grand Rapids is doing all this work through a simple financing process. Finances for relief work are obtained through bond issues, based on a special assessment of one-fourth of one per cent of the assessed valuation of property. This requires only a small outlay from the taxpayer and eliminates the guess work that goes with voluntary contributions.

But the most striking thing of all is that as one saunters down the streets of Grand Rapids, dozens of dozens of signs will be seen reading: "Danger—Men at Work."

EAST JORDAN ENTER- PRISE EARNS PRAISE

City Pays Boys and Girls to Gather Rag Weed Roots

The state papers are applauding the enterprise of East Jordan in telling the world that they are eliminating their ragweed, the pest of hay fever patients.

Boys and girls are being paid for the roots of this plant when picked from the side of the streets, in garden lots and fields within the city. Thousands of these roots have been turned into money and the race is still on.

Sufferers from this unpleasant disease will be attracted to East Jordan on the Lake not only this year but in future seasons.

SUNDAY BALL GAME CALLED BY STORM

Boys City Leading 6 to 3 As Rain Halted Further Play

The baseball game between Charlevoix Indians and Boyne City at North Side ball park Sunday afternoon was an abbreviated affair, being called in the last half of the fifth inning because of rain.

At the close of play, Boyne City was leading 6 to 3. They scored all of their runs in the opening inning, aided by some timely hitting and Charlevoix's poor fielding.

Charlevoix might have won the contest had it gone far enough. After getting away to a poor start, they knocked Brntherston, Boyne's star hurler, from the box in the last half of the third and scored a single run. When the game was called in the fifth they had marked up two more runs, had two men on base and their heavy artillery coming to bat. Maager Rose attempted to have the game finished at some future date, but Sunday's contest closed Boyne's schedule for the year.

The Indians will play two more contests this season. Next Sunday they meet the Michigan Tanning & Extract Co.'s aggregation from Keweenaw, Emmet county champions, in a contest here, and the following Sunday play a return game at Keweenaw.

FREE CHEST CLINIC HERE SEPTEMBER 30

Dr. J. W. Toan, Chest Specialist, Will Be Examining Physician

A free chest clinic will be held in the Health Unit Office, 305 Petoskey Ave., at Charlevoix, Wednesday, September 30. This will give Charlevoix county people who may have tuberculosis an unusual opportunity to check up on their health.

Dr. J. W. Toan, chest specialist, will be the examining physician. The clinic will be open from 9 a. m. until noon and from 2 p. m. until 5 o'clock. This health work is made possible by an appropriation from the county supervisors and funds of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association secured in the 1930 sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals.

The free examinations will be particularly important to persons who have had contacts with known or suspected cases of tuberculosis. Treatments are not given at the clinic, but persons needing further medical attention will be advised to see their personal physicians.

Miss Grace Congdon, Children's Fund nurse, will be in charge of the clinic. She requests that no older person accompany children coming to the clinic, so that information required before the examination may be secured.

We are closing out our stock of bicycles at cost.—Benjamin Brown, Adv. 3762.

MAKE PROFIT ONLY WITH BEST CATTLE

Lower Prices for Products Compel Dairyman to Cut Costs

Prices of dairy products have decreased to the point where members of the dairy department at Michigan State College say that dairyman need cows which produce 325 pounds of butterfat a year to get as much profit as they formerly could make with a herd which averaged 225 pounds of fat.

While feed costs have decreased, the appetites of dairy cattle remain the same and 5,600 pounds of silage, 2,925 pounds of alfalfa hay, 2,120 pounds of grain are eaten each year by the average dairy cow. This amount of feed, at present prices, costs almost $50.

The use of alfalfa hay enables the Michigan dairyman to get good production from his herd without feeding high protein concentrates which have to be bought. A mixture of home grown grains can be used to keep down the costs of the grain ration.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg to Be Principal Speaker

Invitations in the form of an Indian wigwag have been issued for the annual meeting of the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association which will be held all day September 25th at the Pantlind Hotel, Grand Rapids. The meeting will climax the association's year of greatest promotional activity.

With the tourist business bringing between eight million and ten million visitors to Michigan each year, and spending while in our state, some $300,000,000 the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association can be said to head the second largest industry in the state.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg will be the principal speaker at the banquet meeting in the evening, his subject not to be announced until the evening. Lee M. Hutchins will be toastmaster. Other speakers will be George E. Bishop of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, who will speak on "Indirect Returns of the Tourist Business"; Miss Mildred G. Howe, who will tell of the work done by the Chicago office of the association; Hugh J. Gray, under whose direction the tourist promotional work has been carried on and L. J. Thompson, President of the Association.

NORTH BAY PIONEER DIED LAST SATURDAY

W. T. Weller, Civil War Veteran, Succumbed Following Stroke

William T. Weller, of North Bay, Charlevoix county, died Saturday morning at 3 o'clock following a stroke of paralysis.

He was born August 12, 1815, in Irgham county, and was 86 years and one month old. He had lived in that section the last 35 years, coming north from Webberville, Michigan. He was married on April 18th, 1866, at Webberville, his wife being Julia Matilda Hatch.

During the Civil War he served his country as a member of Company A, 12th Michigan Infantry.

He is survived by one son, Ray Weller, of Boyne City. The funeral was held at the North Bay church on Monday. Burial was at the North Bay cemetery with Rev. Mr. Jewell of Horton's Bay in charge.

NEW LAWS BECOME EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 18

225 Out of 336 Passed Will Be Law At That Time

Of the 336 laws passed by the 1931 legislature and signed by the governor, 225 will become effective Sept. 18. The others took effect upon approval by the governor. The state constitution provides that all laws not given immediate effect by a two-thirds vote of both house of representatives and senate, shall become effective 90 days after final adjournment of the legislature.

The net which will have the greatest effect on a majority of Michigan citizens is that making Eastern time official in all parts of the state. After Sept. 18 railroads, courts and other public agencies in all parts of Michigan will operate on Eastern time.

One law will not become effective as its operation has been delayed by the filing with the Department of State of the requisite number of signatures on petitions calling for a referendum in November, 1932. This is the net prohibiting the sale or serving in public places of colored oleomargarine.

A new activity of the Department of State will start on Sept. 18 by virtue of the law providing for the licensing of airplanes. This law provides that all Michigan-owned planes as well as commercial planes, owned outside the state but operating in Michigan, must pay a weight tax and receive a license card which is to be fastened in the cockpit of the plane. Planes, owned by persons not resident in Michigan, can operate in the state for 90 days provided they engage in no commercial activity.

CITY MILK ORDINANCE IS ADOPTED

MEASURE PASSED LAST JUNE WENT INTO EFFECT TUESDAY

Licenses Milk Dealers Distributing in City, Providing Stringent Regulations — Progressive Move

Charlevoix took its place among the more progressive Michigan cities Tuesday. At that time an ordinance adopted June 22, 1931, to regulate the milk supply of the city went into effect.

Adoption of the ordinance assures Charlevoix's permanent and summer visitors a clean milk supply, or, in other words, it safeguards the health of the people in the community by safeguarding the milk supply.

After the date of September 22, 1931, no person shall engage in the production, delivery, distribution or sale of milk for consumption in the city without first obtaining a permit from the city health officer and a license from the city clerk.

Some of the restrictions under which milk dealers will operate in the future are contained in the following paragraphs:

"No person shall sell, deliver or convey into the city of Charlevoix for sale, distribution and delivery milk or cream to which water or any foreign substance has been added; milk or cream kept at a temperature above sixty degrees Fahrenheit; raw milk for direct consumption other than Certified Milk and Grade A Milk as defined in the ordinance; cream containing less than 18 per cent butter fat or whipping cream containing less than 30 per cent butter fat; milk or cream produced from diseased cows or from cows during the period of 15 days preceding parturition or for such time thereafter as the milk is abnormal; milk containing less than three per cent butter fat or less than 8 1/2 per cent solids not fat; milk or cream which has been produced, stored, handled or distributed in any unclean or unsanitary manner, or has been ordered excluded from the city by the health officer or his representative; milk or cream placed in bottles which have not been properly washed and sterilized with steam; milk or cream, the bacteria count of which at the time of delivery to the consumer, exceeds 50,000 per cu. cc. as shown by the standard method of milk analysis; milk which has had the cream line increased by any artificial means."

Milk must be from cows found to be free from tuberculosis as determined by tests made by licensed veterinarians within one year of the time of production or from herds under Federal and State supervision.

Milk dealers must furnish the health officer the names and location of all producers furnishing him milk and cream. He must mark all containers showing the grade of milk contained therein such as "Raw Milk or Cream," "Pasteurized Milk or Cream," "Grade A Milk," "Certified Milk," with his name on the cap.

To produce certain grades of milk, the dealers' plant must be equipped according to specifications ordered by the State Department of Dairying.

One might go on with a dozen or more restrictions under which dealers will operate from now on, but the above plainly show the intent of the ordinance. The ordinance will be enforced to the dot and its violation is punishable by both fine and imprisonment. The city will have a milk inspector who will make routine inspections.

By adopting the milk ordinance, Charlevoix has taken its place along with Detroit, Pontiac, Flint, Ann Arbor, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo and other progressive Michigan cities.

The move was promulgated by the State Department of Dairying in cooperation with the District Health Unit, of which R. G. Nebelung is representative.

CHARLEVOIX INDIANS DEFEAT KEGOMIC NINE

Final Home Game Sunday One of Season's Best Contests

Playing one of the best games of the season, Charlevoix Indians closed their home schedule Sunday afternoon with an 8 to 4 victory over the Michigan Tanning & Extract Co. team from Kegomic.

While Colby was striking out men in one-two-three order in the opening innings, his team-mates bunched their hits nicely to pile up a long lead. They were out in front 3 to 0 at the end of the first stanza, and by the close of the third led 8 to 0.

With two men down, the Emmet county champions opened a spirited rally in the last half of the ninth after six innings had passed in rapid succession without a score. They found Colby for six hits and a walk for four runs before the Charlevoix hurler tightened up.

Colby turned in one of the best performances of the season by striking out 12 batters. The game was very fast and an interesting one to watch.

The Indians will close their season's schedule next Sunday afternoon with a return game at Kegomic.

PETOSKEY HOST TO SCHOOL TEACHERS

Educational leaders of national fame are scheduled to speak on the two-day program, which will include special divisions for elementary, high school and rural teachers, as well as sectional meetings for teachers of various subjects in the public schools.

Outstanding Speakers
Among the outstanding speakers will be Fred A. Jeffers, president Michigan Education association; Dr. Harry A. OLDS BOATHOUSE ADDITION PROGRESSING

Further Dredging and Structure Addition Still Remains

Work on the enlargement of the R. E. Olds boathouse on the south shore of Round lake harbor is progressing rapidly and will soon be completed.

The work of putting down sheet piling has been finished and further operations are now being held up temporarily until dredging of the slip is completed. A delay of several days has been necessitated while the contractor procured additional equipment.

The addition to the south end of the boathouse will be completed within a week after dredging operations are finished, according to John Curtis, who has contract for the job.

TIME LIMIT NEAR TO RENEW LICENSE

CAR OPERATORS HAVE UNTIL NOVEMBER 1, 1931

No Cash Will Be Handled at Local State Department Branch—Sign Application Before Notary

Now that the time is at hand when all drivers of passenger automobiles and all drivers of commercial vehicles not requiring chauffeur licenses, but whose present operator licenses are dated prior to January 1, 1932, should make application for new operator license, the manager of the local branch of the state department wishes to notify such applicants that no currency (other than the necessary two cent charge for postage) can be handled at his office in connection with these operator licenses.

When applying for a license, it is first necessary to obtain either a money order, express order, cashier's check or certified personal check in the sum of one dollar, payable to "Secretary of State." As the regulations require that a separate remittance be attached to each application, getting one money order or check to cover two or more license applications is not permissible.

Also, be sure and look at the date of your present operator license before applying for a new one. This date is rubber stamped on a line in the upper right hand corner of the license—usually, only the last two figures of the year being given (as, for instance, '19 for 1919). If this date is not earlier than January 1, 1932, it is not necessary that you make application now, as you have until May 1, 1932, to secure your new license and possibly until Nov. 1, 1932, depending on the date. If, however, your present license is dated before January 1, 1932, or if your license has been lost or defaced so as to be illegible, you should apply for a new one at once, so as to have it by November 1, 1931.

Applications for operator license must be signed in the presence of a notary. Applicants from the rural routes will be required to have their applications signed by the sheriff or under-sheriff; those from the three cities of the county, by their respective chiefs of police. Whoever OK's them—whether sheriff or chief of police—is charged under the new law with the duty of sending these applications with the remittances to the state department at Lansing. Individuals are not supposed to do this, as under the old law.

Twenty Guests Present at Delightful Affair Saturday Evening

A pleasant party was enjoyed Saturday evening when a group of twenty friends surprised Mrs. L. B. Bartlett at her residence on Park avenue on the occasion of her birthday anniversary. The party was planned and cleverly carried out by Mrs. Bartlett's daughter, Mrs. Carl Kohler.

Following an evening of bridge, at which Mrs. Cora Gray won high score, Mrs. Kohler served delightful refreshments. Before departing, the guests left Mrs. Bartlett a pretty gift in remembrance of the occasion.

BLACK BEAVER COLONY PUT ON ISLAND

PLAN TO PERPETUATE VALUABLE BREED COMPLETED

With Beaver, Deer, Pheasants and Other Game, Beaver Island to Become Sportsman's Paradise

Beaver Island, which already holds an enviable position with its variety and abundance of game, is destined to become a veritable sportsman's paradise.

Some time ago three black beaver live trapped near Sturgeon river, were taken to the island under the direction of District Game Warden Ed. Deuell with the aim of establishing this rare and valuable strain there. The animals took readily to their new home and soon had built a dam on an unnamed creek running into Iron Ore Bay near the island head.

The original trio of beaver were all males of the species, and only within the past week, after a lengthy search, the family was completed by the addition of two females. It is hoped that under rigid protection and strict isolation with no opportunity for cross breeding the valuable species of black beaver will be perpetuated at Beaver Island. Beaver have long been extinct on the island which was named for their kind.

In addition to its beaver, the island abounds with other game. Muskrat, planted there several years ago, have increased with phenomenal rapidity. The original herd of 14 deer placed there in 1926, is now claimed to have increased to over one hundred. Present plans are to import several bucks from one of the state parks to put new blood into the herd.

Beaver Island is now one of the few spots in Northern Michigan where pheasants are numerous. They were planted there several years ago when the idea of stocking the island with game was made a reality through the efforts of the late Harry Bundy, a Detroit, who was one of the originators and most ardent supporters of the plan. Since that time they have increased rapidly. Recent reports from St. James reveal that white rabbits, which once practically over-run the island, have increased to a point where they are becoming a nuisance. They will be hunted heavily the coming season.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR FREE CHEST CLINIC

Will Be Held Wednesday, September 30, at Health Unit Office

Final arrangements have been made for the free chest clinic which will be held in the Health Unit office, 305 Petoskey avenue, Charlevoix, on Wednesday, September 30. The clinic hours will be from 9 a. m. to 12 noon and from 2 p. m. to 5 p. m.

Charlevoix county residents who are suspected of having tuberculosis will be welcome at the clinic for examination by Dr. J. W. Toan, chest specialist.

This work is being financed by an appropriation from the county supervisors and funds of the Michigan Tuberculosis association, secured in the 1930 sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals.

Miss Grace Congdon, Children's Fund Nurse, will have charge of the clinic.

CHEBOYGAN AIRPORT WILL GET STATE AID

Money for Emergency Field Is Made Available by State

Funds for construction of the first system of emergency landing fields to create a safe airway from the Ohio state line to the upper peninsula has been made available by the state administrative board. At the request of Major Floyd E. Evans, the board released $6,500 from the aviation gasoline tax fund.

Six fields are included in the appropriation and they will establish an airway running almost through the center of the state. The fields will be at St. Helens, Waters, Vanderbilt, Indian River, Cheboygan and Moran.

Approximately 90 per cent of the money asked will be expended in preparing the fields for use Evans said.

Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald reported to the board that collections from the malt tax since it was passed by the 1931 legislature have been $442,953 while in the same period the new auto drivers license law has provided $241,759. Corporation tax collections for the year now total $6,423,000.

IMPROVING CHARLEVOIX GOLF COURSE

NEW GRAVITY WELL ONE OF MAJOR PROJECTS

All Greens and Fairways Being Improved and Other Fall Work Done—Course in Fine Shape

Now that the summer season is past, efforts at the Charlevoix Golf club have been turned towards improving the course for the 1932 season.

Throughout the past summer, patrons were often heard to remark upon the fine condition of the fairways and greens.

A year ago, all greens were weeded, thoroughly raked, re-seeded and covered with a heavy coating of fertilizer. A great portion of the fairways were also improved by similar methods, with the result that during the 1931 season the course was in the best condition in history.

The program for the present fall and next spring call for a continuation of the work already commenced along with some new improvements.

Perhaps the biggest task now under way is the building of a new gravity well on the shore of Lake Charlevoix to furnish water for the sprinkling system. Lowering of lake levels to an extent which bared the intake pipe has made this improvement necessary. Instead of extending the intake pipe as has been done in former years, a well has been dug below lake level with a gravity feed pipe. It will insure adequate water supply for years to come.

Other improvements include a new green on hole number three. Many driving tees are being enlarged and the greens are being given their usual fall overhauling. Weeding, top-dressing and new seeding will be carried on throughout the fall as long as weather conditions permit. Most of the fairways will be given a covering of fertilizer this fall.

Work at the golf club is in charge of William Watson, professional, and is being done under supervision of Charles Hamlin, superintendent of greens.

NOTED DRAMATIST WILL APPEAR HERE

Thomas Skehill to Give Address at Gym, Monday, October 5th

Announcement has been made by O. P. North, principal of Charlevoix high school, that persistent efforts have been rewarded by word that Thomas Skehill, noted student of world affairs and one of today's most famous dramatists, will appear in Charlevoix.

Mr. Skehill will give three addresses at the Charlevoix gymnasium on Monday, October 5th, under auspices of the Charlevoix high school faculty. Next week he will be one of the chief attractions at the district teachers' meeting at Petoskey, and his appearance there will be followed by his engagement here.

Full details will be announced later.

LOCAL GRIDDOERS DEFEAT ONAWAY

WON INITIAL TILT SATURDAY BY 12 TO 6 SCORE

Determined Drive in Final Quarter Produced Winning Scores — Mancelona Here Saturday

Charlevoix high school football team opened the 1931 season Saturday afternoon with a 12 to 6 victory over Onaway high school in a game played at Onaway.

The contest was the third season-opener in as many years between the two schools and by far the toughest assignment Charlevoix had encountered with the Presque Isle county aggregation. Facing a veteran combination which developed more opposition than had been expected, Kipke's gridgers had to come from behind and open a determined drive to win in the last quarter.

Although out-played in every department of the game, Onaway managed to bar all of Charlevoix's threats to score during the first half. The statistics failed to show that Onaway made a first down in scrimmage, yet when the whistle scouted at the half-way mark, the score was 0 to 0. Charlevoix had the ball down near Onaway's goal at the intermission, just as they had had on several previous occasions, but their disorganized and slow-moving offense was not strong enough to put over a touchdown.

Onaway scored first in the third period. The touchdown came via the air route. A 20-yard pass and a dash of about the same distance turned the trick. The try for extra point failed and Onaway led 6 to 0.

The unexpected tally appeared to be just what was needed to arouse Charlevoix's fighting spirit, for from then on they put on a determined drive which netted two touchdowns and a victory.

A fumble which Parker, tackle, recovered deep in Onaway territory in the fourth quarter paved the way for the first score. Arvilla, fullback, went over after a 15-yard advance on line plays. Soon afterwards, culminating a steady advance, Struthers, halfback, crashed through for the winning touchdown on a cross-buck play. Charlevoix missed both chances for extra point.

Taking their lack of practice into consideration, Charlevoix made just a fair showing Saturday. They had but a limited number of plays to draw from and for the most part, played just straight football. Had they had a good end run to use, Onaway might have been buried under a heavy score, for Charlevoix played the sort of game Onaway's defense was prepared for when they employed straight football.

Another week of drilling should show a vast improvement in the team's play and fans can look for a far different contest when Mancelona comes here next Saturday afternoon.

Scarcely any property was saved from the burning building, and Mr. Hillman, wife and son, barely escaped with their lives. If it had not been such a rainy morning other buildings would probably have also burned. AT THE MOVIES

Fates Link Careers of Stars, Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell

The ending of this story has yet to be written!

Once upon a recent time (for this is, after all, a modern fairy tale) a certain young man was born in Walpole, Massachusetts. Two years later, in Philadelphia, a certain little lady arrived in this world.

The young man was christened Charles by his proud parents, the Farrells; the young lady, Janet, by her equally proud progenitors, the Gaynors. From that moment, destiny decreed that the fates of these two children were to be inextricably bound together by the magic kitescope, which later, was to flash forth as the motion picture.

Years rolled by.

The young lady moved to Chicago, and to Florida, and finally to California, graduating from a San Francisco school in 1923. The young man remained in Massachusetts, attending college for a couple of years, and then in 1923 he came to California. The movie bug had bitten him severely.

The "extra" road to film fame is a rocky one. Young Mr. Farrell stumbled along it for a year and a half, and in the spring of 1925 achieved his first leading role in a Fox picture called "Wings of Youth."

Meanwhile, the young Miss Gaynor was persuaded by her set of planets to come to Hollywood and try her luck on the same rocky path. She arrived in Filmland the day before Christmas, 1924—and obtained her first extra job the very day after the holiday. Other "bits" soon followed.

Destiny then got busy with a deluge of success; 1926 was the year they selected, and for Farrell they chose two pictures, "Old Ironsides" and "The Rough Riders," while Miss Gaynor, promoted from Westerns to features, found herself with the leading role in "The Johnstown Flood." This brought her also a Fox contract and three more leading roles, in "The Shamrock Handicap," "The Midnight Kiss" and "The Return Of Peter Grimm."

Then the fates murmured in the ear of a certain director named Frank Borzage, who was just preparing to film "7th Heaven," to cast Janet and Charles in the leading roles.

The whole world knows how this turned out—the tremendous popular success of that wistful, utterly charming "7th Heaven," the meteoric rush to stardom of its leading characters, the subsequent popularity of their later offerings, "Street Angel," "Sunny Side Up," "High Society Blues" and "The Man Who Came Back."

And now, the pleased but mysterious fates are not telling what they know of the future success of these two favorites, except that their latest Fox starring picture, "Merely Mary Ann," directed by Henry King and opening at the Palace theatre Saturday, will add new lustre to their fame.

"Matter" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, September 20th.

(II Peter 3:10).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "To all that is unlike unerring and eternal Mind, this Mind saith, 'Thou shalt surely die;' and elsewhere the Scripture says that dust returns to dust." (p. 277).

Still in his muddled and torn uniform, Alan came down the slope toward Haskell's cabin, intending to bludgeon some bird and fast terns out of the gully inspector or shoot a complaint over his head to Superintendent Williamson. If Haskell did not give in to his demands, he meant to send a half-breed runner to the Royal Signal corps station at Resolute and flash a message to the division commander that would start an avalanche.

Over at Mrs. Drummond's house where Joyce had gone, candles were gleaming in the windows. Across at Father Flavery's tiny hospital, Larry Younce lay fighting for his life. Up the slope at barracks Dave MacMillan was backed in the police "inter-lub," charged with being accomplice to robbery and murder.

Joyce had reported secretly: "Alan, I talked with him. He isn't guilty! He never had heard a whisper about these bandits, till I told him. He couldn't have deceived me!"

That same impression had been Alan's. "He couldn't have deceived me." There was something behind that pack of furs which hadn't come to light yet and which would explain those damning circumstances.

It was his conviction that Dave MacMillan was not guilty at all. He meant to put up a fight for Dave. It was easy to resolve that, but the actual job was the hardest thing he had attempted in his whole life. The only way under heaven of clearing Dave was to capture the guilty men and either write a confession out of them or hold out king's evidence as a lure and get them started talking against each other.

Which way would they try, to escape? They'd go east when they left the Thul-Azzah. They'd go across the Great Barrens to Hudson's bay and try to pick up passage on a fishing smack, or go east and south toward the Pas in Manitoba. There was only one route leading east out of the Thul-Azzah, said they'd have to take it. It was an old Tinnah trade route, the Inconau river.

Alan meant to lead a patrol to the Inconau.

As he strode into the cabin, he saw Haskell waiting for him, coolly smoking a cigarette. It seemed to Alan that the man actually did not realize that his ignorant orders had wrecked the patrol and that the whole blame and shame of it lay at his door.

When he finished his report, Haskell made no comment. Wondering at his cool air, Alan was silent a few moments. He could not understand the man's nonchalance. This was war between them; each knew it; and yet Haskell showed no fear, no concern, no condulatory spirit whatsoever.

Keeping back his heavy weapon, Alan took up his defense of Joyce's father:

"About Dave MacMillan. My opinion is, he's entirely innocent. There's no call to send him outside to Edmonton. A traveling court is coming down the Three Rivers in August, and his case can wait for that. He can be kept here, or released on bail. Drummond will put up bail; I'll be personally responsible for him. There's another reason: he's got some good friends among the Dogribs; if he's released he'll get busy and stir them up to help hunt these bandits."

Haskell interposed. "What was he doing last week? Where was he? Can he put up any alibi?"

"He was in the Candle-lee lake country, trying to locate Little Otter's band. He'd fed them all winter, and they owed him their spring peltry; but they'd sneaked away and taken their peltry in the L. & H. He saw no one; he has no alibi."

"That traitor won't be released," Haskell said flatly. "I'll decide whether to keep him here or send him outside to Edmonton."

Dismissing Dave MacMillan's plight with a curt gesture, he demanded: "What made you leave Constable Burgoon there at the trading post, short-handed as we are?"

"To watch after the furs and trade goods."

"That's MacMillan's lookout. I'll have to instruct Pedneault to get Burgoon tomorrow."

"Tint Miss Joyce expects to return there. She has good reasons. What protection do you intend to give her?" "If she insists on returning, I don't feel any responsibility. This isn't an orphanage; it's a Mounted Police post."

Alan entered that remark in his account against the inspector. Haskell's callous attitude toward a defenseless, grief-stricken girl seemed to him an index to the men's real manhood.

Still keeping his sword hidden from Haskell, he broached the matter of that patrol to the Inconau. As he sketched his plan briefly, he saw that Haskell, listening to him coldly, was not even interested. An unwillingness came over him. What was Haskell thinking? Didn't the man realize he had made a fatal mistake?

Alan summed up his plan: "In three weeks I want to have a patrol lying low on the Inconau. I'll take Haskell and Pedneault, and enlist three good 'breeds as special constables."

Haskell stopped him. "I'm not interested in your plan, sergeant. You're merely making a long guess about what they'd do. It sounds thin."

"About as thin as my guess that they'd take the north branch into the Thul-Azzah!" Alan dug back at him. "I know this country. I know what I'm talking about. Now, get this straight, inspector: I'm going to make that trip. I didn't come in here to ask your permission. You've wrecked one patrol. If Superintendent Williamson hears about that, you won't have a chance to wreck any more. You'll keep Dave MacMillan here, you'll keep your hands off this Inconau trip, or Williamson is going to hear d-d quick!"

The threat daunted Haskell not at all. He scarcely seemed to have heard. With that faint sardonic smile on his face, he intoned coldly:

"Besides the timeliness of your plan, sergeant, there's another absurdity about it. You just came back from a patrol that started out with every chance in the world of succeeding. You yourself admit you met the bandits and even had them cornered. But by your weak vacillating light you allowed them to escape."

"What's that?" Alan cut in. "A weak vacillating light? . . . Good Lord!" His memory whipped back to Bill and himself huddling up behind the muskrat house, and to Larry Younce coming out against six men on open water.

"You failed dismally," Haskell proceeded, in knife-edge voice. "You probably wanted to fail, so you could try to hang something onto me. Those criminals—escaped clean, and one of your men was badly shot. After such a performance, don't you think it's a bit ridiculous of you to stand there and badly ask me to let you lead a thousand-mile, all-summer patrol with five men? Instead . . . Well, you've been in the Mounted long enough to know what the consequences are of a failure like yours."

Alan stood dazed. Haskell was actually blaming that disaster upon him! Did the man still fail to realize that the patrol had been wrecked by his own crazy orders?

"Consequences?" he repeated. "Consequences for me? I warned you we shouldn't split our party. That was the cause of us failing. I predicted just what happened."

Haskell brushed the words aside. "The consequences of a blundering, botched-up patrol such as you led are usually demotion to the ranks. That's what you'll have to take. In an important matter like this I haven't any choice but to make you a constable. Whipple, write out the papers for this demotion."

For moments Alan stared at him. Then he laughed. It was incredible, a travesty. Busted! Busted because of this man's orders. Busted because he had been sent out, tied hand and foot, on a patrol doomed to disaster before it started.

He snapped. "You can quit that scorching. Whipple, I'm not a constable yet. And you, inspector, if you haven't got sense enough to know you're hanging onto your command by a couple of fingers, I'll tell you about it. When Williamson finds out about you ordering me to split my party, he'll either ask for your resignation or fan you down to the border where you belong. You're going to give Dave MacMillan a decent chance, and I'm going to make that patrol to the Inconau."

Across the desk Haskell surveyed him coldly. "Just a moment, Baker. You said something about my ordering you to split your party. You're blaming me for your failure." He met Alan's eyes without a tremor; he was able to look steadily at Alan, as he added: "I didn't order you to split your detail. I may have suggested it, but that patrol was yours, and you're not going to hang the blame on—"

"You didn't order me to? You say you didn't order me?" "That's exactly what I said, sergeant. I gave you no such orders."

Speechless for moments, Alan finally found words. "You're a liar. A sneaking liar! You're trying to crawl out—"

Haskell jerked around to Whipple. "Make a note of that remark." He turned to Alan again, and in hard tones, with no hesitation or weakness, he said: "You came in here thinking you had some heavy artillery against me. You meant to get me. Whether I gave orders or merely suggested, isn't the question now, sergeant. The question is: How are you going to prove your charge? Do you happen to possess any documentary evidence, or can you produce any witnesses, that I gave you that order? You can't! Haskell and Younce were blown at the wharf. On the other hand Constable Whipple here was present and heard what you said. So it is the word of two people against yours, and one of them your officer commanding. What do you think of your heavy artillery now?"

He smiled sardonically, in triumph. Alan stood mute, thunderstruck. A moment ago he had thought that Haskell had actually forgotten those crazy orders. But now, with the meaning of those words dawning upon him, he realized that Haskell had deliberately planned this ploy. By a brazen, incredibly brazen lie, he intended to squirm out of any and all responsibility for the wrecked patrol.

The very effrontery of the denial staggered Alan. In a dazed manner he sought to find a way out of what Haskell had just said. But after a little space it was borne in upon him that Haskell had beaten him; that he no longer held a sword over the inspector; that his own heavy weapon was turned against himself now. Whipple had been here; his own men had been down at the wharf. In sickened despair he felt his situation like the fanged jaws of a trap shutting him in.

He stood there speechless, staring into the cold taunting eyes of his enemy. Presently he was able to say, throatily: "I hadn't thought of that, inspector. I knew you were tricky, but still I thought you were too near being a man for a thing like that. I've been associating with men like Larry and Bill and Ted for so long that I'd forgotten your kind exists. A lie, a damnable bare-faced lie, from an officer—in that uniform . . . Good God! If you hadn't said it, I wouldn't have believed."

"Is that all, constable?" Haskell inquired, with a faint sneer on his mouth.

"Yes, that's all. You've got me."

He turned and trudged out the door. His thoughts were all a confused turmoil. Busted—a constable—saddled with the whole blame of that disgraceful patrol—the ground cut out from under him by that brazen lie! Now he realized to the full how unscrupulous Haskell could be in a showdown fight. When reputation and Elizabeth Spaulding and command here were at stake, Haskell was as cunning as a sly fox and as malicious as a cat. The inspector had been out to get him, and had got him. He stood on a level now with Whipple and Burgoon—he, once the proud leader of a proud detachment.

One fact came home to him, hard and inexorable: his Inconau trip was smashed. To make that patrol he had to have Haskell's backing. But to hope for any co-operation from the inspector would be a fool's wishful thinking. Haskell was out to get him, not those criminals. That Inconau plan was dead.

Alan felt the terrible hopelessness of his situation. He was bound hand and foot. There was nothing on earth he could do—nothing except forget the aching vision of running those six unknown murderers to earth.

Did he dare forget? . . . Dimly through the creeping mist he saw the candle light of the tiny hospital where Larry, his able silent comrade on many a patrol, lay tossing in pain and fever; where Larry, so strong of body, so proud of his physical powers, was facing the black realization that he would never again go out on patrol with other men, and would never again follow a Strong-Woods trail. Jutting out from the barracks he could see the massive outlines of the cement cell where Dave MacMillan, helpless to prove his innocence, awaited the full vengeance of the law. He felt a responsibility toward Dave MacMillan, all aside from Dave being Joyce's father. If it had been his duty to arrest MacMillan and bring him in, it was a higher duty now to fight for him, to clear a man whom he knew in his heart to be innocent.

Thinking in hard practical terms, Alan saw that so long as Haskell had power over him, he could not stir a hand. If he was ever to get those criminals, he had to be free. Several paths lay open to him. One by one he studied and rejected them, till only the last remained.

For minutes he weighed that possible act. Its cost to him was a terrible cost. It would wipe out his brilliant reputation, his whole police record. It would kill his last chance of ever bringing Haskell to account. It would uproot him and take him for good and all out of this North country. Torn by doubt and indecision, he wavered. The price seemed too staggering.

Presently he heard some one come up the terrace and glide past him and go on toward his cabin. The figure was merely a moving blur in the mist, but Alan recognized that light foot-step.

He called softly: "Joyce! You wanted to see me?"

"Alan! I've been wondering where you . . . Your cabin was all dark, and I couldn't find you." In eager hope she asked him: "Alan, what did Haskell say about Dad? He's going to release Dad on bail, as you thought?"

Alan shook his head, sorry for her, sorry for all the heartache that lay ahead for her now. "Joyce, Haskell can be brutal and inhuman. He wouldn't consent even to letting your dad remain here. He intends to send him outside to Edmonton."

It was on his lips to add, "Your father is being sacrificed to Haskell's need of a victim." But he could not bring himself to tell Joyce that. The news had stricken her cruelly enough.

If only she could be near her father, if only she could visit him, the ordeal might be lightened for her. The lonely waiting weeks of suspense would be agony, if her father was a thousand miles away, among strangers, with no one to lift a hand for him.

He offered gently: "Joyce, if you want to go along and be near him, I'll pay—I'll see to it that you can. I'll be best for you, and for him too, if you would."

Joyce did not answer at once. As he looked down at her, Alan was struck by the sense of how young and innocent a girl Joyce was; and with bitter self-reproach he remembered those long months of the winter past when he had left her alone to her battle, because Elizabeth, protected, sheltered, kept in ease here at Endurance, had demanded it of him. He realized that in her desperate plight she needed his strength and protection far more than Elizabeth did. Except for him Joyce was alone in the world, without friends, relatives, money, and with her father in the shadow of the gallows.

Presently, with the spirited courage he had always loved in her, Joyce asserted:

"Alan, I'm going back home. The Dogribs are bringing in their furs next week. I'll send several of their men down to the Hares and Loucheux and get their furs, too. I'll sacrifice all our trade goods and raise money for Dad's defense. I'll be a true way of fighting for Dad if I go back home. I don't mind being alone. I can take care of myself. I'll be home some, but all the time I'll be knowing that I'm doing the right thing and being a real help to Dad."

Alan acquiesced reluctantly, against his better judgment. A slender girl like her—scarcely out of her teens—going back to that isolated post. . . . A white girl, winsome, pretty, of the same body, none there, with Indians coming and going, with half-breeds coming and going. . . .

Joyce asked him: "What happened between you and Haskell, Alan?"

Briefly Alan told her what had taken place down there in the cabin. His account left Joyce speechless, in a silent fury, her little fists clenched, her lips parted in astonishment.

"But he can't demote you, Alan!" she cried. "He can't blame you for his mistake."

"He can't? He's already done it! If I try to fight him, if I make the slightest insubordinate move, he's actually got the power to jail me."

"But the Inconau patrol—he'll let you go on that, Alan?"

"And capture those men and get the credit? Not Haskell! He's too wise. Getting those bandits comes second with him. So long as he saves his face, he doesn't really care whether he gets them or not. That Inconau patrol is dead. It was our best hope, but now it can't ever be. I could stir

PROPERTY VALUES

The state tax commission of Michigan has recommended to the board of equalization a cut of $593,000,000 in property valuations for tax purposes. The proposal is naturally welcomed by property owners as a means of tax relief, but there is a feeling of uneasiness at the apparent forcing down of values.

A similar situation exists in many other states. And in every such case it is proper to point out that valuation and value are not the same thing. Valuation is the value assumed as a basis of computing taxes, and the lower it becomes, the more tax relief is provided—as long as tax rates remain the same. Real value is what property is worth in the market. Generally speaking, the market value is independent of arbitrary valuation, moving up or down freely with changing conditions.

It should not worry property owners unduly that values are depressed now. On the whole they have fallen far less than stock values. And real estate may come back before stocks do. Its future, moreover, is more certain, provided it can be kept free hereafter from an excessive burden of public expenditure and unfair taxation.

It remains as true as ever that land, being a "natural monopoly" and limited in quantity, is destined to grow in value with increase of population and wealth. Land is the one thing on which all other values depend, the ultimate material source of all wealth. This is particularly a time to remember the familiar advice, "Take care of your property, and eventually it will take care of you."

FEAR HAS ITS VIRTUE

Sociology text books for years have contained statistics and other information similar to the report of the Wickersham commission that the foreign born people of the United States are less frequent offenders against the laws of the nation in proportion to their total number, than the native born are. The observation of the commission that it believes the children of foreign born to be less lawless than their parents is interesting.

The Wickersham commission makes stronger the old impression that the greater respect the foreign born are apt to show for the statutes, is the result of early background and training which is not carried on to the second generation, rather than the outgrowth of any superior native virtue.

This impression gains strength after reading the tabulation of foreign born offenders according to nationality. Generally speaking, those who behave the best are those coming from lands where the law and its majesty mean something; where there is capital punishment for murder, the lash, perhaps, for sorts of offenses, and, still more important, where there is real reverence for the ordinances of government. Those who have made the least enviable record are the Greeks and Mexicans. For a long time, until a comparatively recent date, Greece was in a highly disturbed condition. In Mexico, banditry has been as prevalent and as unrestrained as it is in any American city.

The lesson for the country is plain. It needs effectively framed laws and endorsement of a sort that will put fear in the hearts of wrongdoers.

"A SOFT LIFE KILLS"

Whether or not everyone agrees with him the philosophy of C. R. W. Nevins, an English painter, who gained distinction for his war scenes, represents some profound thinking. Part of his creed follows:

"I believe in God as the Creator.
"I believe in the spirit and mind of man.

"I believe firmly in obeying all the laws of the country in which I happen to be, no matter how I despise them.

"I believe that criminals are fools and heroes.

"I believe in the Ten Commandments with a far greater intensity than I do in our ten million laws of today. I believe the degenerate Socialist ideas that have crept into all political creeds have caused much unnecessary misery to the poor.

"I believe all men to be nobler than they are thought to be by others, and women far less mercenary; that a hard life harms no one, but that a soft life kills; that courage destroys life and is greater than wealth."

THE EVERLASTING LAND

There is said to be a new back-to-the-land movement at present—not a scramble by any means, but a slow, wide-spread tendency apparent in America and throughout the rest of the industrial world, like an ebb tide from the cities.

This is natural, perhaps inevitable. Bad as agricultural conditions are, almost anyone can see that when there is no work in town a family is better off in the country. There is always work there. And though it may not pay much in money, or even in comfort, it usually manages to sustain life and provide certain basic and enduring satisfactions that are hard to realize in city life.

The land is always there, waiting. From it all men came. Back to it all men go. By it all men are sustained, directly or indirectly, no matter how artificial and complicated life becomes. It is reassuring to realize once more that the universal mother stands ready to welcome back her children in time of need. Touching the earth again, like fabled Anteus, they gain new strength for life's wrestle and see life with new sanity.

ARE YOU THE MISSING CYLINDER

How exhilarating it is to drive a perfectly tuned motor car. What a wonderful feeling of power it gives one to feel that magnificent motor quietly lift one over the hills and heavy grades ahead.

Likewise how thrilling it is to work in a community in which everything is in perfect adjustment. How elated we become while engaged in any community enterprise when everyone is contributing his share to the job.

On the contrary how exasperating it is to drive your car when a cylinder is sputtering and missing; and how unpleasant it is to try to accomplish anything for the community when some of its citizens absolutely refuse to work with others. In other words it is as impossible to scale the high hills on the road to progress with a few citizens knocking as it is for a motor car to scale the rocky mountains with one or more cylinders missing.

EMPLOYMENT IN MICHIGAN

The selection of a group of Michigan people by Governor Brucker to endeavor to organize work in this state for the coming winter and thereby prevent distress resultant from unemployment is a wise step. Conditions may improve in the third quarter and they may not. If they do, there is even then a likelihood of considerable unemployment. Last year there was no organized attempt to help the situation other than public and private charity for unemployed people.

Charity is destructive of morale. Earned wages preserve it. Whether by creation of new forms of work that will not be wasteful, or the distribution of what work there is to be done over the largest number of people can be accomplished or not, time and experience will tell. At any rate most of those chosen by the governor to help solve the problem are competent and intelligent about employment and they may be depended upon to do their best.

PROTECTING HOME INDUSTRIES

Arizona is a state that believes in protecting and encouraging its major industries. When it recently let a contract for automobile license plates, it specified they were to be made of Arizona copper.

It may be said that a few thousand license plates won't make much of a dent in the copper surplus but the principle, when put into use in other fields, has a far reaching influence. It is a sound practice to follow for home prosperity, other things being equal. Every state should do what it can to stimulate local industries and pay-rolls.

The whole West could with profit adopt policies which in many instances tend to increase the use of silver, copper, lead and zinc with resulting increase in payrolls and purchases. Now is the time to do it.

POPULAR COUPLE REPEAT MARRIAGE VOWS

Charles Bellinger and Miss Alice McNeal Wed Sunday at Boyne City

At a pretty home wedding Sunday, Miss Alice McNeal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McNeal of Boyne City, was united in marriage to Chas. Bellinger, son of W. C. Bellinger of this city.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents before a small group of relatives and close friends by Rev. Guy E. Smock, pastor of the Boyne City Presbyterian church. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. William Shepherd, brother-in-law and sister of the bride.

Following a short honeymoon, the couple returned to Charlevoix and are now at home at their residence, 405 Prospect street.

Mr. Bellinger, who for several years has had charge of the A. M. Bellinger jewelry store, graduated from Charlevoix high school, class of '25, and the county normal. Mrs. Bellinger is a graduate of Boyne City schools and Ypsilanti normal college. Both are popular members of the younger social sets of their respective cities. They have the congratulations of their many friends.

TWO STATE FERRIES GIVE HOUR AND HALF SERVICE

One boat was taken off the state ferry service Thursday, the steamer Mackinaw-City leaving at 3:30 that morning for Detroit to have new stern bearings placed in her.

The service is now rendered by two boats, which gives one of intervals of one and one half hours from each end of the route, St. Ignace and Mackinaw City. The boats leave simultaneously, starting (each end) at 6 o'clock in the morning and leaving on the last trip at 9 o'clock p. m. The Mackinaw City is expected back in ten days or so. The Straits of Mackinac will then go to Detroit for similar overhauling.—St. Ignace Republican News.

FARM POULTRY

PROPER RATIONS FOR LAYING HENS

Large Amount of Wheat Is Favored by Expert.

Rations for the farm flock of laying hens and for the commercial flock are given by O. C. Ufford, extension poultryman at the Colorado Agricultural college.

A considerable amount of wheat is recommended in the ration for the farm flock, which is as follows:
Grain mixture—Cracked or whole corn, 40 pounds, and wheat, 60 pounds.
Mash mixture—20 pounds each of fine cornmeal, bran shorts and meat meal, and 20 pounds of either ground oats or barley. Ground wheat may be substituted for the bran and shorts.

For the commercial flock, the following ration is recommended when a green range is not used:
Grain mixture—Corn, 40 pounds, and wheat, 60 pounds.

Mash mixture—Cornmeal (yellow), 20 pounds; ground barley or ground oats, 15 pounds; wheat middlings, 15 pounds; wheat bran, 20 pounds; meat meal, 15 pounds; dried buttermilk, 5 pounds; alfalfa leaf meal, 5 pounds; steamed bone meal, 4 pounds; finely ground oyster shell, 2 pounds, and salt, 1 pound.

Due to the high price of corn, ground hog millet may be substituted entirely or in part for an equal amount of corn in the laying ration. Ufford suggests. Tests have shown that millet is equal to corn in feeding for hogs, and it is believed that its value is equally as great as a poultry feed.

Comfortable House Big Necessity for Winter

The first necessity in proper winter care of the flock is to make the poultry house comfortable. Well housed is more than half of being well kept for poultry during the winter time. That a good poultry house is a profitable investment because of the increased winter production which it makes possible, has been demonstrated time after time.

Unfortunately, it is not possible for every farmer to have just the kind of a chicken house he would like, but so far as possible he should attempt to keep chickens through the winter unless he has some building that can be used for poultry headquarters. Each flock owner should make the most of his opportunities to make the birds as comfortable as possible.

Winter Laying Flocks Value Cod Liver Oil

Good laying flocks need cod liver oil during the dark winter months, according to W. M. Veron, Iowa State college. The months in which fowls should have the oil are from December 1 to April 1.

The rate of feeding the oil should be one quart of the oil to 100 pounds of mash. The oil is first mixed with bran or the mineral mixture and then mixed in the larger amount of feed.

If hens are kept in the house during the winter months this method of feeding is especially recommended and a noon mash may help to increase production.

Poultry Facts

Turkey eggs hatch in 28 days.

One had best avoid labreeding at least until he has had considerable experience.

A practical satisfactory method for the person who does not wish to trapeze or peddle is to buy cockerels preferably as chicks or eggs from a good breeder.

Before trying to raise turkeys, get all the information you can about them. Learn what diseases they are likely to have and be able to recognize them when they occur.

Eggs for hatching should be gathered frequently and held in a uniform temperature, about 50 degrees.

The egg producer can get away with many practices on his farm that the breeder cannot afford to countenance for a moment.

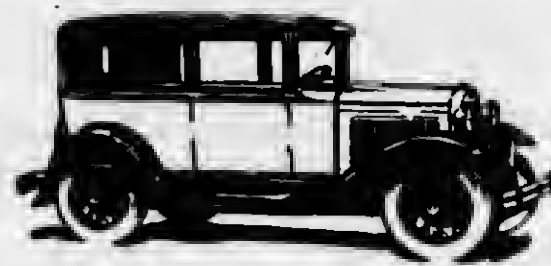

Eggs should be gathered several times a day to cold weather to prevent chilling. Produce as clean eggs as possible, but wipe any that are dirty with a cloth dipped in warm water.

The construction of expensive, elaborate poultry houses should be discouraged, but, on the other hand, no farmer should construct a poultry house that is not durable and comfortable.

Mash feed should be moistened and crumbly, not sloppy, with milk or buttermilk. To this you may add potato peelings, or grains that have been cooked. In case you do not have the milk or buttermilk, use water, but remember that the meat scraps should be used in this case.

Economics find signs of recovery in business.

"Why My Next Car will be A FORD"

WHEN you buy a Ford there are two things you never have to worry about. One is reliability. The other is long life.

Here's an interesting letter from a Ford owner in North Carolina:

"My Ford was purchased May 8, 1928, and has been run 121,767 miles. It has never stopped on the road for repairs of any kind whatsoever except punctures.

"The brakes were relined at 101,000 miles. My gas mileage averaged 21 miles to the gallon, and on tires, 19,000 miles per tire. I travel over all kinds of road conditions—mountainous and flat.

"I consider this a wonderful record and I assure you my next car will also be a Ford."

This is just one of many tributes to the reliability and long life of the Ford. A Ford owner in Iowa tells of driving his Ford 73,000 miles in a single year. Another writes of 120,000 miles of good service.

Think ahead when you are considering the purchase of an automobile and consider what it will be like after thousands of miles of driving. Will you still be satisfied? Will you still say "it's a great car?"

If it's a Ford, you know everything will be O. K. It will be taking you there and back in good style, just as it has always done. And you will have saved many important, worth-while dollars in cost of operation and up-keep and low yearly depreciation.

THE HISTORY OF PUBLIC SCHOOL MUSIC IN THE UNITED STATES

(By ALBERT W. RIDER)

Editor's Note:—The following is the first of a series of articles on the subject, "The History of Public School Music in the United States," written by Albert W. Rider, band leader for the Charlevoix city and public school bands:

Our public school music system, which has come far to the fore in recent years, has had a short but interesting history. It has developed as rapidly in comparison to its original status as has the electric light, the airplane, or the radio.

Public school music which was first introduced in 1838, had its beginnings in the singing school, which grew out of attempts to improve singing in the church service. The New Englanders were so occupied with the development of this new country that music was almost unknown. The first church music consisted of the singing of metrical versions of the psalms. Many controversies arose about the propriety of any singing at all in the church, since puritanic ideas restricted many of such activities. The clergy of the day settled most of the disputes which arose, and so they settled the music question also. Cotton Mather and John Eliot, two influential ministers of their day, stood firm for more and better music. Rev. Thos. Walther early in the eighteenth century writes, "The tunes are now miserably tortured and twisted and quavered in our churches, into a horrid medley of confused and disorderly voices." In 1640 "The Bay Psalm Book," the second book to be printed in America, was published. The ninth edition in 1698 contained thirteen songs in two part harmony. A leader read one line followed by the congregation singing it. The close of the seventeenth century brought agitation for more orderly singing. In the early eighteenth century the better singers began the practice of sitting in a group. This gave rise to the choir. Thus line singing disappeared.

These beginnings provoked more interest, until the singing school finally emerged. Rev. John Tufts of Newburg in 1712 wrote the first book to be used in these schools. It was entitled "A very plain and easy introduction to the Art of Singing Psalm Tunes; With the Cantus, or Trebles, of Twenty-eight Psalm Tunes contrived in such a manner as that the learner may attain the Skill of Singing them with the greatest ease and speed imaginable." Surely with such a title the book should have brought good results—and it did. About 1720, when Bach and Handel were writing their masterpieces, the first singing schools began to be established in America. The singing school laid the foundation for our national music culture. Beginning in Boston it spread through New England and several other of the colonies. Although it was always a private affair the institution of it became truly national. From its beginnings connected with the church it came to be a more social gathering where friends met and became better acquainted.

The teachers regarded the schools as mere side lines. They followed their own occupations during the day and held singing classes at night. For example, one of the teachers was a tanner, another a carpenter, and another a lawyer. The profession of music teaching was not regarded with favor until about the middle of the nineteenth century. Getting classes together was quite a simple process. One of the advertisements read: "All persons desiring to join my singing class may become members at the honorarium of one dollar each for thirteen nights, or two dollars per quarter and subscribers are to find their own wood and coal." This group of teachers, of which William Billings is probably the most famous, followed in the period after the American revolution. Conditions were naturally chaotic so that the next generation were better trained and accomplished more.

The singing school reached its highest peak in the early nineteenth century with Lowell Mason as its leader. Mason was born in Massachusetts and came to Boston to raise the standard of teaching and to improve church music. A group of public spirited citizens became interested in his work and established the Boston Academy of Music. Mason made the Academy a center for a new movement which was developing the convention idea. In 1834 he published his famous Manual of Instruction, which became essential to every music teacher. In 1840 the Academy convention was organized into the "National Music Convention," and as such it attracted music teachers from all parts of the country. Eventually the work of the convention became so complex that it could not be accomplished in a few days. This situation led to the founding of a normal institute in New York City, which lasted for three months. These institutes offered courses in methods, theory, voice and piano. Teachers from all sections came for instruction and many of these teachers went out to do teaching in public schools. Although the singing school and the musical convention have disappeared, they were the foundation and the basis of public school music, the summer music school, the musical conservatory, the great music teachers associations, and many choral societies.

The singing school had harbored only a very few people who seemed to have the necessary "musical ear." It was Lowell Mason's determination to break down the idea that only a few people are talented musically. Boston, although it was not the only musical center, was the leader in many movements. Agitation began to be very strong for music in the public schools. A successful demonstration was given by Lowell Mason's youthful choir. Then a man named William C. Woodbridge had visited Europe to investigate school methods there, and had come back with added zeal for a trial of public school instruction. More interest was aroused and things began moving. Mason published his "Manual of Instruction," which was the first statement of the modern principles of teaching music to be printed in the United States. He set forth the following points:

1. To teach sounds before signs; to make the child sing before he learns the written notes or their names.
2. To lead the child to observe, by hearing and imitating sounds, their resemblances and differences, their agreeable and disagreeable effect, instead of explaining these things to him—in short, to make him active instead of passive in learning.
3. To teach but one thing at a time; rhythm, melody, expression being taught and practiced separately before the child is called to the difficult task of attending to all at once.
4. To make them practice each step of each of these divisions until they have mastered it, before passing to the next.
5. To give the principles and theory after practice and as a deduction from it.
6. To analyze and practice the elements of articulate sound in order to apply them to music.
7. To have the names of the notes correspond to those used in instrumental music.

Strange as it may seem these same principles are fundamental for the system which is in use today.

The year 1832 was a fruitful one. Mason's "Juvenile Choir" began singing public concerts and attracted considerable attention. Toward the end of the year the Boston Academy of Music was established, and it became the center of Mason's activities. In 1836 the Academy prepared a petition, endorsed by a number of prominent citizens, requesting the adoption of a public school of music system. The report in 1837 was very favorable. The introduction to it began as follows:

"After mature deliberation and a careful scrutiny of Arguments and evidence, the committee are unanimously of opinion that it is expedient to comply with the request of the petitioners. They are well aware that the cause they support can find no favor from a board like this except as far as it reaches the convictions through the doors, not of the fancy, but of the understanding." (*From "History of Public School Music in the United States" by Edward Bailey Birge, hereinafter noted by Birge.) The report was lengthy and ended by resolving to give the system a trial. Immediately Mason offered his services as a teacher in one of the schools for one year. He was accepted by the Hawes school in South Boston and thus began the teaching of music in public schools. On August 14th of the year 1838 the Hawes school gave its annual exhibition at the South Baptist church. The first number on the program was "Flowers, Wild Wood Flowers," sung in unison by the pupils of the school. It was probably the first song of its kind to be presented in America. This exhibition gave the necessary impetus to further the movement. Without delay the board passed a vote to contract for a vocal teacher in the Boston public schools. This step was significant because it marked the teaching of music in public schools, but the adoption of music as a regular part of the curriculum. (Continued next week.)

SAYS TREE PLANTING HELPS UNEMPLOYMENT

Michigan Has Thousands of Acres Which Can Be Reforested This Fall

Replanting some of the Michigan lands which should be growing forest trees is a method of employing men who will be released from work when the field crops are harvested, and Prof. P. A. Herbert, Michigan State college, says this method has none of the disadvantages of some of the relief measures.

The men engaged in tree planting are working outdoors and are performing a useful task in planting trees which will furnish a profitable crop in future years. The land is not adapted to the growing of field crops and the produce from this land does not compete with the farmers' cultivated acres.

Millions of seedling and transplant trees are produced by the college forest nurseries and these are sold to Michigan residents for forest plantings at the cost of production. Several varieties of conifers are available at the Dunbar station for planting.

Fall plantings are successful in all parts of Michigan except there is a greater loss in fall plantings of small evergreens in the southern part of the state. Plantings can be made until freezing weather makes it difficult to plant the trees.

In addition to the future profit from the trees, there is an immediate increase of game cover, and the plantings are more attractive to tourists than barren lands.

up trouble for him, I could bring on an investigation; but that would take months. It'd be too late then; those handits'll be gone."

She repeated, brokenly: "Gone, gone—yes, it'll be too late then. Alvin, that means—means Dad will be found guilty—and sent to prison—or worse."

For the second time in the years he had known her, Joyce broke down and cried. It hurt Alvin as few things in his life had ever done. As he felt her sobbing against him, as he thought of this tragedy looming over her, his last hesitancy about his plan was swept away. With those handits safe in the watery wilderness of the Tumb-Azzah, Dave MacMillan would be convicted; he would be sent up for life. It would break Joyce, break her spirited courage, her wild-born nature. When he thought of the terrible stigma upon a girl so innocent and brave, he swore silently:

"I'll never see her brought down to that. I'll get those men, I'll bring the truth into court."

He realized fully that he was starting on a long trail, a trail never to be retraced. He was committing himself to a staggering self-sacrifice. But he had to traverse that path; in honor he could do nothing else.

He rose abruptly, brushing away his last trace of hesitancy; and gave Joyce his hand to rise.

"Joyce, there's something I've got to do now. I've got to go. You mustn't stay here. Come." He took her arm, and as they went down the slope, he asked: "I want to see you again before I—some final arrangements with you. . . . Won't you be down at the wharf in half an hour?"

Wondering at his odd tones, his stern purposeful manner, Joyce promised him.

At Mrs. Drummond's house he left her and started out along the terrace to Haskell's cabin.

Across the deck he demanded, with no preliminaries:

"I want to buy out. Tonight! Here! Now!"

Haskell's eyes narrowed in suspicion. He could hardly believe it. He knew how deeply Baker was rooted in his work and friendships and life in this northern country; and he could scarcely conceive of a man deliberately throwing away a long brilliant police record at one irremediable step.

But there was no doubting Baker's words, no doubting his grim manner. Baker was demanding to buy out—to get out for good. As he studied the agent, Haskell drew back warily. Baker might be laying some trap for him.

"He refused. 'I'm too short-handed here as it is now.'"

"I don't give a d—n about that. I'm buying out."

Haskell's confidence was returning as he saw that Alan intended no physical violence. "If you buy out, your record ends. You'll have to start all over."

"I'm buying out for good. There'll be no starting over again. I'm getting out of the Mounted, out of the country!"

Haskell debated swiftly. He was not averse to Baker cutting his own head off; and he saw now there was no trap laid for him. But there were other things to be considered. His sober judgment, casting back over the last nine months, recalled the score of times Baker had corrected his mistakes of his and kept the post running smoothly. Wisdom whispered to him that he needed the man, needed him desperately. And Elizabeth Spaulding. . . . Was she going away with Baker? Was Baker taking her with him?

If she went, his act in buying the sergeant would prove a boomerang against himself. He tried to temporize.

"I haven't the authority to let you. You'll have to make out application and wait for permission from headquarters."

"That's the rule for close-in detachments. Down north here where a communication would take several months, it's understood that an officer can accept a buy out on his own recognition."

"But it's not the official rule. Under the circumstances I don't choose to accept your papers."

"You will choose! I'll make you choose! You've lusted me, all right; you've saddled the blame and shame of that patrol on me; you've mouthed your lie and you've got a stool pigeon there to back you up. But I can bring on an investigation just the same. There's things happened last winter that you can't lie out of. Williamson is coming down here next month. He hasn't got any too much use for you now. If I'm here when he comes, what'll I tell him won't help your standing much."

Haskell lit a cigarette to hide his nervousness. He asked, "Where are you going if you get out of service?"

"That'll not be your affair, thank God! I'm leaving here. Tonight. That all you need to know."

Haskell started a little. Tonight—no boat coming past—it meant Baker was going by himself! Meant Elizabeth would not go with him but would stay here at Endurance!

Very thoughtful, he looked away, debating. Baker's motives, his reasons for this precipitate move, were dark and puzzling. But he saw no way in which they could possibly harm him.

Hardstock, an experienced northern man, would still be available, a reliable veteran to turn to, especially if lured by the hope of this venetian serenade. Hardstock would be easier to manage, too. Since Elizabeth was going to stay here, at least temporarily, why shouldn't he let Baker go? The further away he was, the better!

The more he studied the situation, the more it seemed too good to be true that Baker was deliberately cutting his head off, buying out, getting out of the country, leaving Elizabeth here alone, killing any possibility of the investigation that he secretly dreaded.

"I'll consent on one condition to your buying out. Otherwise you'll have to wait for official and regular approval."

"What's the condition?"

"There seems," Haskell said steadily, with the ability to look Alan squarely in the eyes, "to be a difference of opinion between us about the responsibility of this Alaska patrol. If you'll sign a statement to the effect that you had complete charge of the detail and split your party on your own initiative—if you'll do that, you can buy out. Otherwise you can't."

Alan wavered. Signing a brazen lie, taking all the atoning disgrace upon himself, strengthening Haskell's guilty hand. . . . But then his thoughts leaped to Jimmy and Larry and Dave MacMillan, and to Joyce, plucking her last hope to him. What did it matter, his signing a lie? Would it change one jot or tittle of God's truth? What did a rag of paper matter on his long free-lung hunt for those murderers, avenging his partners, shielding Joyce?

He said: "Full sign. Load it as heavy as you like. But don't knock Hardstock or Pedernault or Younger."

Haskell wrote out the declaration of responsibility. Alan read it. As he wrote his name, he sneered:

"If I were you, I'd frame that, Inspector, and hang it on the wall. It's a certificate of your dishonor."

Not answering, Haskell went on looking up the remaining enlistment period and figuring the amount. While he brought over the forms and filled in the data. Both Alan and Haskell, with the constable as witness, signed the numerous official sheets of the procedure.

Folding his copy of it, Alan walked out of the door, out of service, out of the Mounted Police.

In the South Bermuda grass is valuable to stop the washing of gullies and to bind levees and other embankments.

Do not let a young calf have milk containing too much butterfat. It may cause digestive trouble. If the milk tests more than 4 per cent butterfat, dilute it with skim milk or water.

Milk dealers of the United States spend about $15,000,000 a year to replace lost or broken milk and cream bottles. Some cities have what are known as milk-bottle exchanges. These exchanges receive bottles from milkmen who have collected bottles belonging to other milkmen and from various places where bottles have been mislaid or lost.

Soybeans spoil rather easily in storage if not properly handled. After threshing, watch the beans to prevent heating and molding. Be sure they are thoroughly dry before storing. Store them in a dry place, piling the sacks so the air will circulate freely around them. Soybeans unlike most peas and beans, are rarely attacked by weevils or other grain insects.

The pocket gopher has such an anti-social nature that often when its burrow intersects a neighbor's it plugs the opening with earth. Usually it is only during periods of mating and rearing young that pocket gophers mingle, says the Bureau of Biological Survey. Two pocket gophers placed together in a cage are likely to fight furiously, and one of them may kill the other.

National Forest watersheds under protection of the U. S. Forest Service serve 90 per cent of the irrigated farms and 87 per cent of the irrigation enterprises in the 12 Western States. There are 782 municipalities dependent wholly or in part for their water supplies upon the National Forests, and 335 water-power projects are located in National Forests.

A well-managed herd of swine needs 15 bushels of corn to each animal, say hog specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. That is, it takes about 15 bushels of corn per hog to feed a sow and litter to weaning time and raise the pigs to a market weight of about 200 pounds. This means 7½ bushels of corn, in addition to supplementary feeds, to put 100 pounds of gain on a pig. Generally speaking, the most profitable weight to market pigs is at about 200 pounds.

Keep the Colt Growing

A colt that is stunted during its first winter never gains proper size or makes its best development. Feed it to make it grow. Clover, timothy, or mixed hay is good, but well-cured alfalfa hay is one of the best roughage for growing colts.

On account of its high protein content, alfalfa should be supplemented with other roughages such as timothy, mixed hay, or corn fodder. Sheep oats are a good supplement to other roughages.

Don't let foals gorge themselves on dry feed. Never feed more than they will clean up. Oats, corn, and peas, preferably well ground, are suitable grains. Bran, linseed meal, or gluten feed add protein and variety. Do not feed cottonseed meal.

Good grain mixtures for the foal's first winter are: 2 parts corn, 5 parts oats, 3 parts bran, and 1 part linseed meal; or 4 parts oats, 1 part corn, and 1 part bran. About 1 pound of grain to 100 pounds live weight is enough until a colt is two years old. Plenty of salt, fresh air, water, and exercise also are essential.

Silverfish in Houses

The silverfish—tht shiny, silvery insect seen in houses when books, papers, clothing, or other articles are moved—suddenly has become pestiferous in recent years, say entomolo-gists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, probably because of increased heat in apartments and houses. Silverfish are especially fond of book bindings, glazed paper, starched cloth, "sized" silk and rayon, and wall paper. They are nocturnal in their habits and the housewife may not notice them. They collect in summer in the basement and become active in the fall when the fires are started. These pests usually cause trouble in libraries, storage rooms, and attics, damaging articles that are packed away in drawers, closets and bookcases. The entomologists say that a powdered mixture of 12 parts of sodium fluoride and 100 parts of wheat flour, or a thin paste of one-half to three-fourths ounce of white arsenic, 1 pint of wheat flour, and water, will control silverfish. Put the poison in out-of-the-way places—on shelves, behind books, back of mantels, and on the bottom of drawers and storage boxes.

BULLETINS DESCRIBE LATEST DISCOVERIES

Work Done at Michigan State College Helps State Farmers

A request to be placed on the mailing list for the Michigan State college, Quarterly Bulletin, will enable residents of the state to keep in touch with the latest discoveries made by the institution in its search for better or cheaper ways of producing plants and animals.

This bulletin is issued four times each year and contains seasonal reports of the college departments. The first mention of new crop varieties or of new methods usually occur in the Quarterly Bulletin. Each issue also carries a complete list of all bulletins published by the college and now available for distribution.

This list covers important discoveries in almost every phase of farm operations. No charge is made for single copies of any of the bulletins—except one which was unusually expensive to print and which is used as a reference text for high school classes in agriculture. Requests for bulletins should be mailed to the director of the experiment station, East Lansing.

Firestone Telling Wonders of Rubber in Brief Radio Talks

Highlights of Industry Given for First Time Over the Air

Speaking over a nationwide N. B. C. network which reaches an estimated audience of 40,000,000 persons, Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., is telling the romantic story of rubber development in a series of brief word pictures forming a part of the Firestone radio program, which is now on the air every Monday night.

In these talks Mr. Firestone, who is vice-president of The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, confines himself almost entirely to the human side of the industry, avoiding technicalities. Always a close student of the business in which his father pioneered, he has amassed many interesting episodes and unusual highlights concerning rubber which he will use in his short broadcasts.

In the automotive world Mr. Firestone has gained distinction as an authority on the growing of rubber and its many thousands of uses. On numerous occasions he has spoken on the subject by invitation of some of the leading industrial and commercial organizations of the country, and the facility with which he interprets the great moments of rubber history in terms of living events has carried the story to audiences with colorful effect and easy understanding.

The background for his familiarity with the subject has been gained over a period of years. In 1928, following the Stevenson Restriction Act to limit the production of rubber on British owned plantations as a means of raising prices, and in connection with his father's campaign that "Americans should produce their own rubber,"

Mr. Firestone made a world tour to study the availability of various countries for rubber growing. Based on the data accumulated in those travels, he selected Liberia as the ideal place for his own company to produce the commodity and negotiated a 99 year lease with the Liberian government for 1,000,000 acres of land. As vice-president and general manager of the Firestone Plantations Company, he has since been in charge of the extensive operations there, in addition to his duties as an executive of the parent company.

Although not inexperienced as a speaker before the microphone, this is the first time he has ever undertaken a regular schedule of broadcasts. His presence on the program makes it literally "The Voice of Firestone," the title under which this weekly program has already won wide favor with the radio public.

Noted stars of radio will furnish the musical entertainment. These include James Melton, tenor, and Gladys Rice, soprano, both of whom have won wide popularity among listeners from coast to coast.

William Merrigan Daly, whom Walter Damrosch described as "the finest young conductor in America," and who has also received high praise from other leaders of the musical world, including Deems Taylor and George Gershwin, will have charge of the Firestone Orchestra. An exceptionally fine quartet of male voices rounds out the program. Alois Havrilla, famous for his flawless English and known as the "genial acres of land. PRETTY WEDDING AN EVENT OF LAST WEEK

Miss Sylvia Black and Walker Miles
United at Congregational Church

At an elaborate wedding, held last Wednesday evening at the Congregational church, Miss Sylvia Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Black, was united in marriage to Walker Miles, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Miles, Muskegon.

The ceremony, which was attended by a large assemblage, was read by Rev. Nels W. Bard, Atwater, Minn., uncle of the bride. The church was prettily decorated with fall flowers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gown in white. Her bridal veil of white was held in place with a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids were the Misses Ellen Cook and Lillis Flanders. Miss Cook was gown in green chiffon and carried pink roses, while Miss Flanders wore a gown of yellow chiffon and carried yellow roses. Dorothy McGhan was flower girl and Billie Miles ring bearer.

Robert C. Miles, brother of the groom, performed the duties of best man. Rex McGhan and Bobbie Miles were the ushers.

Mrs. A. J. Stetter, church organist, played Lohengren's wedding march as the wedding party advanced to the altar, and Mendelssohn's wedding march as they retired. Mrs. Mildred MacArthur, Flint, a friend of the bride, sang "At Dawn," by Chndman, and "Because," by d'Hardelet.

A reception was given in the church dining room following the ceremony. Rev. and Mrs. G. R. Parker acting as host and hostess. Decorations of yellow, green and white were very attractive.

GAME LICENSE SALE PLACES ARE NAMED

Dealers Will This Year Hand Licenses Without Commission

The Michigan Department of Conservation has completed arrangements for the handling of 1931-32 hunting, trapping, fishing and other licenses required by Michigan sportsmen for the coming year.

In the past, the State has paid to the dealers a commission ranging from ten to twenty-five cents a license. This fee system was eliminated by the legislature of 1931, and the game protective fund will now receive the full amount of each license sale. This will result in an additional revenue of about $60,000 annually available for fish and game protection and development.

Game Warden Ed. Deuell of Boyne City, Monday gave out the following list of places in Charlevoix county where licenses may be obtained.

H. O. Wiles, barber and sporting goods; Boyne City Hardware Co.; Ed. Deuell, conservation officer; Department of Conservation, district headquarters, Boyne City; Herman C. Meyer, general merchandise, Boyne Falls; Don E. Goodman, hardware; E. H. Clark, hardware, East Jordan; Ben Belknap, general store, Horton Bay; Wood Bros., hardware; Albert Staley, hardware; Charles B. Gale, hardware; Henry Fille, conservation officer; Featon R. Bulow, county clerk, Charlevoix; Gus Meilke, St. James, Beaver Island.

propagated by the process perfected by members of the horticultural department of Michigan State college.

Blueberries will not grow true to seed, and, until the new method of rooting cuttings was perfected, it was impossible to produce enough rooted cuttings to make the planting of new areas profitable. The native, wild varieties vary so much in size and quality of berries that no great market demand could be created.

Fifty-five Michigan people sent samples of native berries to the college horticultural department this summer, and from these, two excellent specimens were chosen for propagation. The best sample was sent in by Mrs. Fred Taylor, Grass Lake, and the next best by Orvis Williams, Bangor.

The bush from which Mrs. Taylor chose samples grew berries which were over one-half inch in diameter and of excellent flavor. The other bush was nearly as good.

GETTING BUSINESS GLOOM BEHIND US

By ROMIE C. STEPHENSON
President American Bankers Association

THERE is such a thing as over-staying a depression just as there is of over-staying a boom. Over-confidence makes the great majority miss the turn in a boom, and under-confidence makes them miss it in a depression.

A leading New York banker was asked recently when he could tell that a turn for the better had come. "About three months after it has happened," he candidly replied.

There is more significance in that remark than appears on the surface. As more and more manufacturers and business men realize that the turn has already come and that they are over-staying the time to adopt constructive policies, they begin cautiously to press their selling campaigns, to speed up their production, to enlarge their working forces and to increase their commitments for supplies. It is the gathering weight of their influences that finally raises the pressure of confidence to the dynamic power of recovery.

The surest way to bring the nation out of the business depression is to raise the pressure of public confidence to the point of becoming such a dynamic force. It has invariably been the push of that force which has started recovery in the past, and it is the gathering power of this force which will start recovery from this present depression.

It is a favorable sign of the times that there seems to be general agreement that the bottom of the depression has been reached and all eyes are peeled and looking ahead for the first indications that the turn for the better is in sight. Who knows but what the first thing we know we will find ourselves looking backward instead of forward as we realize that the turn has already come. It is a rough and rocky road that runs across the bottom of the valley of business depression, and most of us are too busy steering the old Ford from bump to bump to be able to take in all the scenery. So who knows but what some important changes in the landscape are already taking place.

Legislative Measures Proposed

"There are some external measures, along moderate legislative and supervisory lines, that we also believe would help strengthen banking. Among these are:

(1) The broadening in the states of branch banking laws where conditions warrant an extension of this type of banking service to the public.

(2) The establishment of sound minimum capital funds under which banks will be allowed to operate, which should be materially higher than now prevails in most states; specifically, we believe that the minimum capital with which any new bank shall be chartered, whether state or national, should be at least $50,000.

(3) The provision of funds and regulations to keep the official staffs of all supervisory departments up to a level of ability and integrity that will universally inspire confidence among bankers whose activities they are empowered to review, and will supply real added defenses to the public interests they are appointed to protect.

(4) In connection with the policies of bank chartering departments, we would recommend that, even to a greater extent than is now the practice, the greatest care and moderation should be exercised in granting new charters, so as to guard against over-banking or the launching of new banks by unqualified persons, which have doubtless been serious factors in the bank failure situation in the past.

(5) Also referring to Federal Reserve practice not requiring legislation, we believe that the Federal Reserve Banks should exercise more freely their rights to examine banks and use their discretionary power to refuse rediscount facilities to banks indulging in objectionable banking methods."

Make for Friendliness

Where people who dwell in the country have gardens, we in the city have only tiny window boxes—and these at sadly rare intervals. Yet I have noticed that if a neighbor pushes forth a window box with bright geraniums, or even simple drooping ivy, some one across the street will do the same. It is as if people remote to one another's consciousness suddenly became acquainted over the chasm that divided them. Such a gesture causes those of us who are city bred to realize that there is a friendliness, a desire to become acquainted, even in the dimmest street.—Charles Hanson Towne in Harper's Bazar.

Upolds State Privileges

"We find some bankers who feel that a proper stimulus to the development of branch banking would be given by the Federal Government taking the initiative through granting broader privileges within state lines to national banks than they now enjoy. It is argued that state governments could then follow suit as to state banks and that in this way a more progressive branch banking attitude might be promoted by the national banks taking the lead. While we do not deny that there may be some merit in this view as to some specific localities, we stand firm on the principle that no such grant of powers to national banks should cross state lines, or exceed the privileges that state legislatures will and would grant to their state banks."

BANKERS SUGGEST BANKING REFORMS

Economic Policy Commission of American Bankers Association Recommends Aids to Progress in Banking Business.

FOLLOWING a nation-wide survey of banking conditions and opinions among bankers, the Economic Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association has made the following recommendations for banking betterment:

"Under the category of improved bank management specific improvements we might summarize are:

(1) Liquidation or consolidation of banks where changed local economic conditions render this desirable;

(2) Wider affiliation among state banks with the Federal Reserve System;

(3) Development of limited branch banking where economic conditions and legal authority make this expedient;

(4) A more general practice, especially looking among country banks, to analyze the cost of carrying accounts and other operating details and the establishment of proper service charges to make all classes of function profitable;

(5) A more general application of the theory and practice of secondary reserves;

(6) Avoidance by banks of undue borrowing merely to increase their own profits by re-lending at higher rates, or to over-expand credit to local business in order to increase their own business;

(7) Cooperation among bankers in local communities through city, county or regional clearinghouses so as to promote mutually beneficial conditions and practices;

(8) The insistence upon higher educational effort and qualifications among employees, especially those to be trusted with executive duties.

LOCAL GRIDDERS AGAIN VICTORS

DEFEATED MANCELONA 14 TO 0
IN SATURDAY'S CONTEST

Team Showed Decided Improvement
Over Last Week—Meet Strong
East Jordan Team Saturday

Coach Ray Kipke's Charlevoix football team turned in their second victory of the season last Saturday by defeating Mancelona high school 14 to 0 at South Side athletic field.

A cold north wind and frequent showers made conditions far from ideal for good football, but despite these handicaps, the Kipmen gave a creditable performance, showing a vast improvement over the previous week.

With the exception of the fourth period, when Mancelona opened a determined passing attack in a desperate effort to score, both teams played cautious football. Almost without exception they punted on the fourth down, and many times on the third. Both got off some good punts as well as poor, but for the most part Charlevoix had the best of the kicking duel with the result that Mancelona was kept well into their own territory and on the defense most of the time.

Charlevoix's line outplayed their lighter opponents throughout the contest. Mancelona was never able to penetrate it on punge plays, and the Kipmen broke through consistently to break up end runs, passes, and to block several punts. While raising havoc with the visiting team's offense, they held well until Charlevoix plays were under way and furnished air tight defense for punts.

Although Charlevoix threatened in the opening and second quarters, the first half ended in a scoreless tie. The Kipmen blocked a Mancelona punt just before the whistle ended the initial period. The teams changed ends of the field and Charlevoix proceeded to reel off a first down on a left end run and cross-back. A pass failed and a fumble lost them the ball. Mancelona punted out of danger and the rest of the period resolved itself into a punting duel.

Charlevoix made their first touch-down early in the third session. They received the kick-off, failed to gain after three downs and Anee punted to Mancelona's 20-yard strip. On the first play the visitors fumbled and Charlevoix recovered. On three successive left end runs, Struthers carried the ball over and then scored the extra point in a similar manner.

Charlevoix kicked to the visitors. Brown, their diminutive halfback, tore off a 30-yard run around left end and a 20-yard pass would have put them in scoring position had not the play been called back and a penalty imposed for off-side. Charlevoix stopped the rally by intercepting a pass.

Arvilla was stopped on a line plunge, but on the next play Struthers broke away for 30 yards around left end. Another line play failed, a pass was incomplete and Anee kicked over Mancelona's goal. The visitors attempted to punt out of danger, but the kick was blocked on their 20-yard strip.

This "break" gave Charlevoix their opportunity for a second touch-down and they proceeded to take advantage of it. Struthers skirted left end for 9 yards and Arvilla made it first down through the line. Smith was stopped, but Struthers gained two off tackle as the quarter ended. On the next play Arvilla crashed through and Smith added the extra point around right end.

Mancelona made a final bid to score in the fourth quarter. Following an exchange of punts, Brown made 10 yards for Mancelona and a 30-yard pass hounded off Arvilla's finger tips into the opponent's hands near Charlevoix's goal. The local line met the occasion with stubborn resistance, however, and after three futile line plays and a pass, the ball went over. Anee punted to his own 40-yard line from behind the goal and on the next play Charlevoix intercepted a Mancelona pass to take possession of the ball. The game ended as Charlevoix thwarted three successive passes as Mancelona made their last effort to score.

John Ferenz of Traverse City, was referee, handling the game in a nice ship before a large crowd of fans.

Charlevoix runs into some stiff opposition in their game for the coming week. On Saturday they will entertain Coach Cohen's East Jordan team at South Side field. The Jordanites have shown exceptional strength so far this season. In successive games they have defeated Rogers City and Frankfort by decisive scores. The Kipmen will have to be on their toes to win this contest.

EXPECT MORE PIER REPAIRS THIS FALL

Some Supplies Now Here and Other Equipment Expected Daily

Partial transfer of equipment and supplies to this port in anticipation of harbor repairs has been made by the U. S. Engineering Department, Milwaukee.

Two thousand tons of gravel and sand have been unloaded at the government supply depot, and the tug Cumberland left port late last week with a tow barge after a load of rock. Other equipment necessary for the work is expected here any day.

While nature of the work is still a matter of conjecture as far as local information is concerned, it is understood that the north channel pier between the stone piling and swing bridge will be rebuilt, and possibly some work done on the north side of the upper channel.

NOTED LECTURER WILL TALK HERE

TOM SKEYHILL TO MAKE THREE APPEARANCES MONDAY

Noted Orator, Poet, Dramatist and Biographer Coming Under Sponsorship of High School Faculty

Charlevoix citizens will next Monday be afforded a privilege which does not always come to smaller communities. They will have three opportunities of hearing one of the world's outstanding figures—none other than Tom Skeyhill, who is hailed as the greatest living orator, poet, dramatist, biographer and student of world affairs.

For his background, Skeyhill has three wars and three revolutions, half a million miles of travel and three years of total blindness. Out of these amazing experiences together with years of careful reading and study he has fashioned the lectures which have made him the most sought-after lecturer in America today.

Skeyhill was born in Australia. At the early age of 18 he enlisted for service and as one of the immortal Anzacs participated in the memorable first landing at Gallipoli. In a desperate hand-to-hand struggle with a Turk, he was bayoneted through both hands and a leg. Later in the war he was stricken stone blind by an exploding shell. For three years he lived in a land of unfeeling darkness and then miraculously recovered his sight in Washington, D. C.

He came to this country in 1918 and was immediately hailed as one of the outstanding soldier poets and orators. He teamed up with the late Theodore Roosevelt and under the guidance of that great American raised over one hundred and thirty millions of dollars for war funds.

After the world war he began that life of travel, adventure and study which, combined with his silver-tongued eloquence, has brought him international fame as an author and orator. He attended the Peace Conference in Paris, the opening of The League of Nations in Geneva and most of the other important after-the-war conferences. He ran the lines into Soviet Russia. He marched with the Black-shirts to Rome. He was in Smyrna when that city was burned. He was in the thick of the Russo-Polish and the Turko-Grecian struggles. In Europe, Africa, Asia, America and Australia he has traveled over half a million miles—further than to the moon and back.

Skeyhill will give three lectures next Monday at the gymnasium. At 8:45 a. m. his subject will be "With Mussolini and the Black-Shirts." If Duce is the most talked-of, the most written-of and the most closely watched man in the world today, the outstanding statesman of his time and the most colorful political figure

RECEPTION GIVEN THURSDAY EVENING

TEACHERS GUESTS AT DELIGHT-FUL INFORMAL AFFAIR

Parent-Teacher Association Plays
Role of Host—Organization Completed for Year's Work

A reception, tendered by the Parent-Teacher association to the teachers of Charlevoix public schools at the gymnasium last Thursday evening was a delightfully informal and very enjoyable occasion.

The program consisted of community singing, and address of welcome by Dr. F. F. McMillan, a response by Supt. Gerald F. Bush and two violin solos by Mrs. Dan Soule with Mrs. A. J. Stelter as accompanist.

President Archie L. Livingston introduced the teachers and asked them to stand as their names were called. As each one stood in response to roll call they were greeted with hearty applause.

The committee served ice cream and cake and a social hour following gave all an opportunity to meet and speak personally with the guests of honor.

This gathering took the place of the regular September meeting of the Association and, while no business was transacted, an opportunity was given to pay dues. These are 25c a year and all who are interested in the school are urged to be members. The regular meeting night is the second Wednesday of each month.

Following are the officers and committees for 1931-32:

President, A. L. Livingston; vice-president, O. P. North; secretary, Mrs. Bessie Dean; treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Edwards; program committee, Dr. F. F. McMillan, Mrs. Penri Bigge, Dr. Carleton Dean, Mrs. E. E. Cross, Mrs. Archie Belding; publicity, Mrs. Brayton Saltonstall; music, Miss Helen French, Mrs. Ruth Dowd, Mrs. Dan Soule, William C. Belling; membership, William P. Hicken, Clarence Meggison, Mrs. Wm. C. Palmer; finance, Dr. Carleton Dean and committee of his selection; social, Mrs. Harker Kirby, Rev. Russell Parker, Mrs. Leo Carey, Mrs. Louis Orlovski.

In his address of welcome, Dr. McMillan told the teachers that while he had been asked to present them the keys to the city, that he considered this had already been done when they were given the privilege of teaching the children and young people, who are the choicest possessions of every community.

Supt. Bush, in the response, mentioned the fact that he has some very definite ideas in regard to the vocational training and preparing young people right in the public schools for definite occupations. He thinks the schools should furnish this training as well as cultural education.

DISTRICT RELIEF CORPS MEET HERE

CHARLEVOIX HOST TO ANNUAL CONVENTION LAST WEEK

Sixty-four Delegates and Visitors
From Five Northern Counties
Here for Two-Day Session

The Women's Relief Corps annual 12th district convention, held last Thursday and Friday with Baxter Relief Corps in the entertaining role, was a most successful meeting in every respect.

Sixty-four delegates and visitors from five Northern Michigan counties were present to enjoy the hospitality of the local Corps.

The convention, which opened last Thursday morning with registration, continued with business routine, dinner at noon, additional business matters, supper at 6:30 p. m. and finally a camp fire program at 8 o'clock.

Election of officers was a part of the business taken up, resulting in the selection of Mrs. Lucia Malloy of Cheboygan, as district president; Mrs. Ethel Buchaupt of Petoskey, senior vice president; Mrs. Martha Wheaton of Cheboygan, junior vice president; Mrs. Ella Montgomery of Petoskey, treasurer; Mrs. Eva Stafford of Central Lake, chaplain; Mrs. Merle Feather of Petoskey, conductor; Mrs. Susie Friend of Harbor Springs, guard; Mrs. Fern Todd of Harbor Springs, national delegate; Mrs. Rose Gilman of Petoskey, alternate delegate.

Cheboygan was recommended as the site of the 1932 district convention of the W. R. C., but at Friday's session Harbor Springs was officially chosen for the meeting.

Particularly enjoyable and delightful numbers featuring the camp fire program included a song "Love's Old Sweet Song," by a Legion trio, Chas. Hamlin, Frank Poole and Glen Kirby; welcoming address by R. L. Lewis; Gettysburg address by Barbara Withers; piano solo by Wilma Bellinger; dialogue by Mrs. Mary Prevost and Mrs. Ellen Prevost; saxophone solo by William "Bellinger;" an address, "Americanism," by Mrs. Ethel Wrobbel, department president; reading, "When the Boys in Blue Are Gone," by Mrs. Fern Todd; reading, "The Bronze Button," by Mrs. Olive Christensen; a piano and saxophone solo, "Star Spangled Banner," by Wilma and William Bellinger, and finally, the furling of the flags.

At the Friday morning session, the elected officers were officially installed to their positions, and at the afternoon meeting, the following officers were appointed for 1932: Secretary, Mrs. Blanch Buchan, of Cheboygan; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Enid McCool, of Petoskey; assistant conductor, Mrs. Margaret Williams, of Harbor Springs; assistant guard, Mrs. Rachel Osborne, of Harbor Springs; color bearers, number one, Mrs. Marie B. Zuber, of Harbor Springs; two, Elizabeth Durance, of Charlevoix; three, Mrs. Freeman Cory, of Petoskey; and four, Mrs. William Horniman, of Petoskey; musician, Mrs. Grace Trautman, of Petoskey, and press correspondent, Mrs. Florence Marteneau, of Cheboygan.

Mrs. Paul Friend, of Harbor Springs, who went to the national convention at Des Moines, Iowa, as Twelfth district delegate, read an exceptionally fine and detailed report which was unanimously accepted.

Department officers present were Mrs. Ethel Wrobbel, president; Mrs. Lizetta Coady, past department president and national I. and I. officer, and Mrs. Agnes Abbs, department secretary, all of Detroit, who each gave splendid talks at both of the meetings.

CITY PAYS FINAL ELECTRIC BONDS

TWO ELECTRIC PLANTS NOW ENTIRELY FREE FROM DEBT

Turning Point in Financial Status of Utilities Credit to Administration of Mayor Bergeon

The turning point in the financial status of Charlevoix's electric light plants was reached Monday evening of this week when the city council placed on the current pay roll the final payment of bonded indebtedness against this utility.

A voucher, $10,000 for principal, and $300 interest, will be issued Thursday, October 1, and with this finality completed, Charlevoix's electric light plants will stand clear of any incumbrance for the first time in many years.

This finality will undoubtedly be hailed with no little satisfaction by Charlevoix citizens, and is indeed a credit to the administration of Mayor Arthur Bergeon, whose regime during the past ten years has been largely responsible for the successful management which has brought about this present status of financial affairs.

The history of Charlevoix's electric light department starts back in 1918 when the city bonded for $85,000 to purchase the Bellaire hydro-electric plant. During the years 1918, 19 and 20, the sum of $22,000 was paid on the retirement of the bond issue. Since Mayor Bergeon took over the city reins in 1921, the remaining three-fourths has been paid in addition to $25,000 in improvements running over a period of 10 years.

In the year 1921, the city bonded for $50,000 to build the steam auxiliary plant on Ferry avenue. However, the total cost was $63,000 instead of $50,000; and that additional amount was paid from the electric fund besides retirement of the bond issue.

In 1926 the present administration retired an issue of $16,000 in bonds floated in 1906 for electric light extension work at the time the water tower was installed and other changes in the system made.

In 1930 the Deisel unit was added to the steam auxiliary plant at a cost of $65,000, which was met and paid from earnings of the electric light department.

Taking all the above mentioned items collectively, we find that since 1921, Mayor Arthur Bergeon's administrations have paid out a total of $232,000 in bonds and improvements, put the electric light department completely in the "blue," while the books show a neat balance of $13,581.51. It has been no small accomplishment and the city of Charlevoix today, figuring conservatively, owns utilities valued at $500,000.00.

It might be interesting also to note the change in rates to consumers over that period of years. Prior to 1923, the rate for year round users was 10c and summer patrons 20c. In 1923 the illumination rate was lowered to 8 and 15, and power to 4 and 7. Again in 1927, a reduction placed the illumination rates at 8 and 12 and power at 4 and 5. During the summer of 1931 still another reduction placed the power rate at 3 and 3, while illumination was not changed.

In the year 1920 the gross income from the electric light plants was $18,000. In 1930 it was $56,000.00.

Charlevoix tax payers and electric power consumers will benefit from the present financial independence of this department. With no bonds and interest to be paid from revenue received, a plan will be worked out by the mayor and council, to divert earnings to the city's benefit.

CHAPTER VI

The Dark Hour

In his cabin Alan took off his uniform and changed to civilian clothes. It seemed to him he was stripping off his foot-free adventurist life with that uniform.

What money he had on hand, several hundred dollars, he buttoned carefully in his shirt pocket. His expenses on this trip ahead would be heavy; he would have to borrow. But he was going to take that Victoria job, and he knew Colonel Steele would gladly give him a salary advance.

Then he made up a slender pack—a single blanket, a change of clothes, food for a week or ten days. That was all. No camping outfit, no weapons, no equipment for wilderness travel.

As he was buckling his pack together, Elizabeth unexpectedly came into the cabin. As she stepped into the light, she exclaimed: "Alan! That MacMillan girl told Mrs. Drummond that Haskell blocked you! That you're a constable! That he put all the blame of this patrol on you!"

"That's what he did," Alan answered, straightening up, facing her. "I didn't believe he was capable of it. But I shouldn't have been surprised; he's even more cunning than his nature."

"I'm Out of the Mounted—Out for Good!"

"And you're going to stand for that?" Her voice rose, sharp, ringing. "You're going to be his orderly, a constable, disgraced, bossed around? I'd think that any man would—would—"

She checked herself as she saw the government property laid out on the bed and noticed that Alan was in civilian clothes.

He said quietly: "You were a bit hasty. I didn't stand for it. I thought out. I'm out of the Mounted. Out for good."

Elizabeth gasped. For moments she stared at him, incredulous.

She did not know just why he had taken this drastic step, but vaguely she guessed he had had some fierce clash with Haskell. It did not matter, the circumstances. He was free of this ninety-month rut, this backwoods calling. There had always been a doubt in her mind whether Alan, when the great test came would actually tear himself away from the Mounted. She had expected a fight that would embitter him against her. But now he was out; he would surely take that Victoria offer; next winter she would be living in Victoria!

Her heart leaped at the thought, and her whole manner toward Alan changed. She drew near him, slipped an arm about him; and a softness came into her voice.

"Dear, you're sorry to be out. I'm sorry to see you so hurt. You didn't want to leave here, Alan. I—I did want you to; but I wouldn't have insisted. I'd have given in to you, dear, before I'd seen you unhappy. In the long run, we'll not regret; it'll be the best for us."

Alan watched the candle sheen in her hair, the auburn hair that always brought him poignant memories of her brother Curt. His thoughts, leaping ahead to his lone-handed venture, were scarcely with her at all, yet he was bewildered by her sudden change, her ardent affection. There had been times when affection from her would have cheered and heartened him; but now her lips, inviting him, asking for his own, meant less than the pack lying at his feet.

She asked him: "And now—you're going to take—we'll be down in Victoria, now? Won't Colonel Steele be glad when he hears? You'll write to him right away?"

"I suppose so. Yes, I'm going to take that job. Not much else to turn to."

She noticed how cold, how unmoved he was; and she went on, half-whispering:

"On our way outside, we can be married at Edmonton, and have that trip we planned to the Blackfoot Settlements. And we'll have—we can afford to have now—a cabin back in Vancouver Island; look in the mountains by ourselves, Alan."

He merely said, gesturing at the alcove: "I'm leaving Curt's keepsakes here. You'll watch after them, won't you?" And he added, "I'm leaving here tonight, Elizabeth."

"Leaving here? Tonight?" Her eyes went to the pack on the floor. Suddenly she started, she looked up at him again.

Feeling that he owed some explanation to the girl he was engaged to, he partly explained: "I'm pitching off on a trip, Elizabeth. By myself. I'm going after those men that shut up two of my friends. Haskell blocked a patrol I wanted to make. To go after them I had to be free. I don't know how long it'll take me. Maybe three weeks, maybe six. I'll like for you to wait here."

Something in his manner stopped Elizabeth from questioning him. She knew he intended to marry her and take her to Victoria; but something told her that in this present hour it was not well to question or oppose Alan Baker.

She acquiesced: "I'll wait, dear. I'll wait here for you. But, Alan, before you go . . ."

She stood on tiptoe, reaching up, kissing him, begging: "Aren't you going to tell me goodbye?"

Alan bent and kissed her, as she insisted. But he did it dispassionately, as a thing expected of him. He felt her breath on his cheek, her arm tightening around him, her body pressed against his. He was subtly but unmistakably aware of a certain willingness about her; she wanted him to linger; she would have stayed with him there in the cabin. . . . It surprised, it shocked him, after all these months when she had been so cold and passionless.

When she had gone, he huddled his pack and caught up his hat. As he started to snuff the two candles in the alcove, he heard a thumping footstep on the threshold and turned to see Bill Hardstock. In a flash he guessed that Bill had been waiting outside, not wanting to come in while Elizabeth was there.

"Alan! It's blue blazes!" Bill was all but incoherent as he advanced across the cabin. "Say it isn't so! I heard . . ."

Alan wasn't meaning to lie to him. . . . "You're leaving—us," he gasped. "You're—pitching away—for good. You always stood up for us men, against Haskell. You and me . . . pretty good partners. . . . Now you won't be here any more, Alan. . . ."

"Bill, shake yourself together and listen. I'm going after those bandits. There's several things you've got to do for me. One is, I want you to cut aside from patrols whenever you can and visit Joyce and see she's safe. Another thing. I'm giving you this cabin and what's in it, except for a little personal stuff that I'll get some time or else send for. Then, there's one last thing. Got any free time coming in the next couple weeks?"

"I don't know. Yes, must have three or four days—way we've been hitting the ball all winter."

"Two days will be enough. I need a little help on my plan; and you, here at Endurance, you can give me a hand. It's not much, but it'll mean a lot to me. I'll tell you what I've got in mind, so you'll understand."

In a few terse sentences that left Bill gasping and swearing at so staggering a scheme, Alan sketched his plan.

"And you'll keep quiet about this, Bill? Don't tell Ted, Elizabeth, Drummond, anybody. If it ever gets out, it's week the whole idea, and I'd probably land in a penitentiary."

"I'll keep quiet as a dead dog. I won't breathe a word. But Alan, why in h—, way we've hung together, why can't I be in on your trick?" Bagerly he pleaded. "Let me go along, Alan."

"It'd mean desertion for you. Haskell would give you the limit. And you've got to watch after Joyce. My work is a one-man job anyway. We'll keep in touch, Bill. You write to me. Lord knows what you and I, sometime on ahead, might get together again."

They shook hands.

Alan hurried down the slope to the trading store. Factor Drummond had not gone to bed. The news of the patrol, of his old friend Dava MacMillan being arrested and faced with such overwhelming a guilt, had upset him.

"What the devil, Alan?—civilian clothes?"

Alan was weary of people's astonishment. He wasted no time with explanations.

"Drummond, where's old Dad Pence? I saw him here when we got back this evening."

Drummond pointed behind the counter. Alan walked around, up the narrow aisle, and there found old Pence asleep on a pile of wolf skins.

He had passed his three score and ten, old Dad Pence, at prospecting, trapping, water dogging, whatnot. He had made fortunes and guilelessly had lost them to men sharper than he. He had come down to the twilight of life penniless, homeless, childless. But old Dad Pence could still handle a rifle with the best of the youngsters; and a reputation for mangle which he had acquired among the witch-killing Indians, still clung to him and put fear into primitive hearts. Altogether he was the man for Alan's purpose; if only Joyce would not mother him too much and make his existence thereafter too desolate by contrast.

Shaking him wide enough awake to understand what was wanted of him, Alan explained. He was to go back to the Big Aloska with Joyce and watch after her. He was to keep in touch with Bill Hardstock. Under no circumstances was he to wander off into the bush and leave Joyce alone.

Old Pence nodded. "I'll do it, b'y, just as you say. I'll try not to forget and wander off in the bush. I'll look after Joyce, you don't worry."

Alan thrust a handful of bills into his pocket, and rose up and stepped back around the counter. "I want to buy your motor canoe, Drummond. How much?"

"To buy it? You making a trip? Go ahead, take it and use it, Alan."

"But I'm not bringing it back. I'm leaving this country in it. How much?"

Drummond was all tangled in Alan's swift words. "That canoe isn't worth a lot. . . . You're leaving this country. . . . The motor cost me a hundred, but it's three years old. . . . I guess fifty dollars, Alan. But what I'm not bringing it back? . . ."

Alan gave him the fifty and strode out the door.

Down the terrace at the steamer landing, Joyce was waiting for him, as he had asked her. Laying his pack in Drummond's canoe and saying the painter, Alan stood holding it, hat in hand, for a few last words with Joyce.

He said slowly, lengthening these last moments with her: "Joyce, I'm going away. I'm going after those six men. Bill will tell you something about it. I arranged with him to visit you whenever he can, and old Dad Pence is going back to the Aloska to be company for you."

Though she asked no questions about his trip, her dark eyes were big with wonder. Alan was tempted to tell her all. He could depend on her not to breathe one word of it. A score of times he had confided police secrets to her and she had given him invaluable information gleaned from Indians and breeds.

But his plan was a desperate gamble, and Joyce would surely recognize it as such. She might lose faith in so dubious a venture. And he thought: "I'll be entirely out of the country, out of it for weeks and weeks. She mustn't know that; she'd feel too terribly alone; she might even come to believe I've deserted her, as I did last winter. But if she thinks I'm still here on the Waterways, perhaps working secretly, it'll help her keep up hope."

"Joyce," he instructed her, "I'd like for you, there at the trading post, to question those Indians and men when they bring in peltry. You might pick up some information about those six men."

"I'll do it, Alan. And if there's anything else, to help you—"

"There isn't except to keep your courage up and be careful of yourself. Joyce, if you'll promise to take care of yourself there on the Aloska, I'll go away feeling a mighty lot happier. I'll be worrying about you."

"I'll get along, Alan," she said simply.

As she gave him her hand, wishing him good fortune on his venture, Alan had a vision of the lonely, fear-torn weeks ahead of Joyce. He was all sympathy and tenderness for her—so brave a girl, so loyal to her dad, so spirited and pretty.

He was shaken with the temptation to tell Joyce of the secret and powerful circumstances which had torn him away from her and made inevitable his engagement to Elizabeth. He had done Joyce a wrong; he owed her a confession and an explanation of his motive. But there were reasons that kept him silent. He had fought that fight in his own conscience; he had acted deliberately. To tell Joyce of it now would avail nothing. He felt that Joyce, however much she had loved him once, had gone back to a casual friendship with him now, and a resurrection of their intimacy would be painful to them both.

With a handclasp, a final word of cheer about her father, he stepped into the motor canoe, started the engine, headed the boat out from the shore. Looking back, he watched Joyce's slender figure grow more and more wraith-like in the mist until his eyes no longer could see her.

Over at the MacMillan trading post Joyce was awaiting a visit from Bill Hardstock. A young Loucheux, John Tabanask, had brought a note from Bill, saying he would be along some time late this evening.

This last week had been a favorably busy one for her. With no health-tion she was sacrificing the entire trading stock. Word of her good bargains had gone out by moosehide telegraph, and the peltry was rolling in beyond all her expectations. Her days were from twenty to twenty-four hours long. Husky meals for herself and old Dad Pence. Sleep in broken bits when she could snatch an hour or so. Sorting and grading furs as ex-perly as any man. It was work for any two men, and she was doing it lone-handed, earning the fur-dollars to fight her dad's battle.

Faithfully carrying out Alan's instructions, she had done a bit of detective work on her own account. But she failed to glean the slightest hint of information.

The mystery of the bandits' sudden appearance engrossed her, as it had Alan; and with good reason it made her keenly uneasy. Those men were hiding in the Thia-Azzah, not many hours distant. Knowing in her heart that her father was innocent, she believed that they had put that fateful pack of furs in the shed because of some nibbles against him. Their hostility might extend to her, his daughter; and they might make some attempt against her. There were times, when she thought of those victims brutal criminals so near her, that she wanted to flee back to the safety of the post and the mothering of Mrs. Drummond.

Before she left Endurance, Bill had told her that Alan had bought out and had severed relations with the Force for good and all. That was the news which Joyce had been brooding about. Elizabeth had wanted him to get out of service. He was out now. Elizabeth had wanted him to take that Victoria job. He probably would take it now. Elizabeth had had her way with him. The thing which had held her and Alan apart no longer existed.

For more than a year Joyce had seen Alan Baker slipping away from her, little by little. She had fought for her secret hopes as one will fight in the face of death. She wanted Alan! Her days were like a passionate cry for him. He was the meaning and purpose of life to her, and she could no longer bear up under her racking doubt. She, too, had come to the parting of the ways, and must take some irreversible step.

In the twilight she heard the drone of Bill's motor canoe down the Aloska. When the craft swung around a bend, she stood up and waved. Catching sight of her on the jutting rock, Bill glided in alongside.

He held a warm place in her heart. He was a man's sturdiness will power, he was honest and open as daylight, he was loyal clean through. Joyce knew that Bill loved her, in a dogged hopeless way, asking nothing more than to do favors for her and be always dependable when she needed some one. She was sorry for him, terribly sorry he loved her. For his sake she had several times rebuffed him; but it hurt Bill so visibly that she had almost

A BUSINESS MAN'S PHILOSOPHY

I am annoyed:

By clubs and societies that are kept alive by artificial respiration.

By people who sneer at everything that is new or that is old.

By mechanical contrivances that habitually get out of order.

By a husband who refers to his wife by nickname or vice versa.

By people who are habitually late for appointments.

By women who are easily shocked—or pretend to be.

By anyone who doesn't do his job as well as he can.

By women who complain about their servants.

NO TREE OVERPRODUCTION

There is at least one thing which is not being produced to excess in this country and that is the tree. Our crop of timber has long been dwindling while the rate of consumption is on the increase. As many as 120,000,000 acres of land in the United States, suitable for nothing but forests, are lying idle. Hence there is a practical point in the campaign of the American Tree Association for the planting of 10,000,000 trees. The Association suggests that these trees be planted in memory of George Washington, the two hundredth anniversary of whose birth will be reached on February 22 of next year and that they be dedicated at some time during that year. If a sentimental element in this manner of celebrating the occasion is desired, it may be found in Washington's love for trees, evidenced by references in his diary to their value and their care, as well as by his choice for a home of a site whose beauty owes much to their presence. As Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree Association, notes, "Along the shaded path that leads to his final resting place, two columns of trim, straight trunks stand like sentinels." The millions of trees planted in his honor will constitute a worthy memorial and at the same time a rich addition to the Nation's resources.

A WORD ON LAUGHTER

Instead of telling us the mode of living, not usually applied with success to any other individual, by which he has attained the age of 86 years, Dr. George Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of New York, says that when one is old he should "eat half as much, sleep twice as much, drink three times as much water and laugh four times as much."

This forward-looking wisdom, particularly happy when it comes from one past the allotted three-score-and-ten, is supremely heaven by the last admonition. Much has been written of laughter. Some hold that it is the mark of an ill-mannered fool. Some count laughter the desperate alternative of tears. Yet others agree with Carlyle, doubt though he often was, when he says in "Sartor Resartus" that "The man who cannot laugh is not only fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils, but his whole life is already a treason and a stratagem."

One should begin early in the journey to laugh, lest in his old age, even with his laughter multiplied by four, he finds that after all, he lacks a goodly proportion of mirth.

TAXATION INCREASES

Thirty years ago the population of the United States was 81,000,000 and the average person contributed $19.39 in taxes to support the government.

In 1928, the last year for which complete official statistics are available, the population was 120,000,000 and the per capita tax had increased to $105.20. And now senators are figuring how to raise tax rates to cover the $500,000,000 deficit that followed the last Congress. The tax situation is giving the public something to think about.

THE COST OF CRIME

Crime is costing us as a nation, more than the upkeep of our Army and Navy and four other departments of the Federal government (States, Justice, Labor and Commerce). One thousand million dollars a year or three million dollars a day, is the estimate that the Wickensham commission makes of our crime bill.

EAST JORDAN MAY LOSE ITS RAILROAD

Application Made to Utilities Commission for Abandonment

East Jordan people were told at a meeting of the chamber of commerce there Tuesday evening that application was to be made to the public utilities commission to abandon the East Jordan & Southern railroad, which gives them connection with the Pere Marquette at Belaire.

The road was built 30 years ago, and as an outlet for lumber was a money maker. Since lumbering ceased the road has been losing each year. In 1929 the deficit was $14,000, in 1930 $10,000, and this year is estimated the loss will be $7,500 despite drastic cuts in personnel and equipment.

There is a Reason

Why do so many wise motorists drive by all other filling stations to fill up with Blue Sunoco Gas and Sunoco Mercury-made Oil?

Simple enough. They have tried all other Gas and Oil and found Sunoco gives them the best satisfaction at no extra cost. Try it yourself. Sunoco Oil Station, S. W. City Limits on US-31—Adv. 3812.

FR. FITZPATRICK TO HAVE NEW PASTORATE

Will Be Succeeded Here by Fr. Edward Neubecker of Beaver Island

A pastorate of two years at St. Mary Catholic church at Charlevoix has been terminated by the transfer of Rev. Fr. R. E. Fitzpatrick.

Succeeding him will be Fr. Edward Neubecker, for the past two years pastor of Holy Name church at St. James, Beaver Island. A farewell party for Fr. Neubecker was given by the Islanders Tuesday evening.

During his stay in Charlevoix, Fr. Fitzpatrick has made a host of close friends, both among local and summer residents, and under his guidance a new, modern parish home was built. It is with great reluctance that members of the parish see him take his leave. A petition, bearing nearly 150 names of local parish members, was forwarded to Bishop Pinton at Grand Rapids, urging that action resulting in his transfer be reconsidered.

OLD LICENSE PLATES GOOD UNTIL MARCH 1

Legislative Act Extends Time Limit Sixty More Days

Motorists will not be required to secure 1932 license plates until March 1, 1932.

Under an act of the last legislature the Secretary of State was authorized to extend the time limit for purchasing new plates 60 days, and this extension will be made in connection with the 1932 plates, it was announced by Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald.

One of the effects of this ruling is that motorists who purchase plates Sept. 1, when weight tax fees are cut in half, will be able to use the plates six months instead of four months as in previous years.

Despite the fact that there are 81,000 fewer automobiles registered in Michigan this year than last, the amount of money collected from the gasoline tax is larger than 1930. One of the contributing causes of this increase is that many motorists who could not have purchased license plates Jan. 1 were able to keep their cars in operation for two months through the extension of the time limit.

TRAP NET MENACE TO FISH INDUSTRY

Submarine Outfit Takes Smaller Fish With Fatal Results

The commercial fishing industry on the Great Lakes is headed for hurried destruction in the opinion of many conservation officials because of the introduction of the submarine trap net.

The net, which can be levelled to a depth of 120 feet, 70 feet lower than the old pound nets, engulfs many small fish which cannot be taken. When the net is hoisted from the great depth, sudden changes in water pressure kill the fish.

While the killing of the larger fish makes no particular difference, the undersized fish which are brought to the surface cannot be thrown back. The smaller fish are usually the ones that suffer the heaviest death toll, it is said.

When the pound net is used small fish are less liable to death. It is claimed, since they are taken from shallow water. With the submarine net mechanical hoists are used to elevate the catch and many die en route to the surface.

INDIANS TAKE SECOND GAME FROM KEGOMIC

Scored 6 to 4 Victory Sunday—Play Alba and Traverse City Next

In a close and interesting game, Charlevoix Indians scored their second victory in successive weeks over the Michigan Tanning & Extract Co. team at Kegomic last Sunday afternoon.

The contest was a nip-and-tuck affair throughout. Kegomic scored one run in the second inning and the next stanza was even. Charlevoix knocked in two tallies in the fourth, but Kegomic added three more to lead 4 to 2. Mayle, Pelletier hurler, was batted out of the box when the Indians gathered another run in the 5th, and they added three more in the 7th off Keith Ball, Conway, who relieved Mayle.

Colby, who turned in a wonderful performance on the mound for the Indians, struck out 10 batters, while Campbell, a new-comer in the lineup, led the batting with 3 hits in four times up. One of his drives was the longest ever hit on the Kegomic diamond.

Sunday's tilt was to have closed the season's schedule for the Indians, but Manager Glen Rose announced Tuesday that he had signed up for two more games. Alba, claimed to have a strong, fast team, furnishes the opposition here next Sunday afternoon, while the week following the Indians go to Traverse City for a tussle with Bundy Brief's Traverse City All-Stars. The latter game should be a classic. Manager Rose figures his team as strong as the Traverse City outfit, having his claim on commensurate scores. A good many of the loyal fans will follow the team to Traverse for this contest.

VIKING VESSEL ON VISIT TO HARBOR

Craft on Return Voyage from Minneapolis to Norway

The ship "Roald Amundsen," said to be a replica of the sailing vessel in which Leif Erickson, daring Viking of old, ventured across the Atlantic about 1000 A. D., made its appearance at this port Tuesday, and since that time has been viewed with interest by many.

Under command of Capt. Gerhard Folger, the craft left Norway last February and after an eventful voyage of 59 days, reached the river harbor at Minneapolis, its destination. It remained there until May, when the return voyage along the Illinois river and canal to Chicago was started.

The craft made its last stop before entering port here at Frankfort, where it made a week end stay after being caught on a reef near Glen Haven last Friday evening. Coast guards from the Glen Haven station rescued the boat Saturday. Following a stay of several days here, the Roald Amundsen will leave for Detroit and thence to Buffalo and New York for the return voyage across the Atlantic to Norway.

The appearance of the Roald Amundsen at Minneapolis following its ocean journey and trip up the Mississippi river, marked the first time an ocean-going sailing craft had docked in that port on a voyage from Norway and the return trip from Minneapolis to Norway also will be the first on record, according to Capt. Folger.

THE HISTORY OF PUBLIC SCHOOL MUSIC IN THE UNITED STATES

(By ALBERT W. RIDER)

Editor's Note:—The following is the first of a series of articles on the subject, "The History of Public School Music in the United States," written by Albert W. Rider, band leader for the Charlevoix city and public school bands:

II.

The next period was one of pioneering. The history of Boston's experiment was repeated in several other large cities. But in order to follow the public schools we must again take a look at the musical culture in America. The people knew nothing about orchestra except in Boston, New York and Philadelphia, and nothing about chamber music. Opera had just recently been introduced in New York. The ordinary town had its church choir, its singing society or sometimes a brass band, and an occasional piano teacher. The leading choral and orchestral influences in the forties were the Handel and Haydn Society, the German Opera, and the Mendelssohn Quintet Club in Boston, in addition to the New York Philharmonic Society and the Musical Fund Society of Philadelphia. The only conservatory, the Boston Academy of Music, discontinued its work in 1847. This period, however, saw the beginning of intensive instrument manufacture, of which the first was the Chickering piano. A few European artists including Ole Bull and Thalberg visited America, a few of them staying as teachers.

All of these various influences effected a change which is today considered a very important one. The change marked the beginning of the end of the singing school. The end came as a result of numerous American students going to Europe to study music; the ideas then arose that there were a select few who could go to Europe to study and that music was only for them. Previously, under the singing schools, music had been a social activity of the community in which every family took part. Gradually there came to be homes which were without any music at all. It is this situation which our public school music system is trying to aid today.

Now let us have a look at the state of the public schools in this period. There was a big movement westward which absorbed a lot of time and interest and retarded very rapid progress. Rural schools were only beginning to disappear and public schools with nine grades and a separate teacher for each grade were innovations. High schools were only just beginning. Is it any wonder then that in Chicago in 1840 a music teacher was hired for the public schools at a salary of sixteen dollars a month?

Between 1838 and the time of the Civil War an estimate shows that about fifty schools adopted music as a regular part of their curriculum, among them being Worcester, Massachusetts, Charleston, Lowell, Lynn, and Cambridge. Each of these places began making reports. The Charleston report in 1849 read as follows:

"Vocal music has been taught in the high and grammar schools by a skillful teacher and with good success. We hope it may be continued as a branch of common education, for the healthful influence it exerts upon the discipline of the schools, and for its happy and lasting effects upon the character of the pupils." (Berge). From all these reports three important conclusions were drawn: First, that singing was quite generally practiced in the schools before its formal introduction by public authority, and often with excellent results. Second, that whenever music was introduced a special music teacher was appointed, thus making music a special subject. Third, that the music teacher was not a supervisor. The evolution of the music teacher into a supervisor came later.

In this period of pioneering there are two men to be especially remembered. They are Lowell Mason, the music agitator and director of Boston, and Charles Aiken of Cincinnati, Ohio, whose influence spread much farther than that state. Mr. Aiken worked out a system using the movable DO, besides writing several books which were of value in teaching music. Music teachers in general were isolated from each other and public school music had not yet become a profession; but teachers and their associate singing-school teachers and choir leaders met at numerous musical conventions where the subject was thoroughly discussed. The result of all this pioneering period was that the idea of popular music education was so firmly planted in the minds of vigorous leaders, that it would never die.

III.

The next period from 1861 until 1885 marked the beginning of method. The beginning of method, however, does not mean that music was being established in new schools by leaps and bounds. In fact, there was another big barrier to overcome. That barrier was local public opinion. School systems were entirely in the hands of local boards of trustees and directors. They levied taxes and hired the teachers, so that it was largely a matter of public opinion whether music should be placed in the schools. In many localities the general public believed that people who wanted music could get sufficient training by hiring a music teacher. In 1886 an investigation showed that in the United States there were only two hundred and fifty school systems in which music study was functioning.

On the other hand, the advance in the general field of music outside of schools, gave some impetus to leaders. There are several things to be considered in this field. First, the profession of private music teachers rose very rapidly. Second, there was a widespread advance in choral activity. In Chicago there was organized the Apollo Club and in New York the Oratorio Society. In 1869 Boston, in its Peace Jubilee, produced a chorus of ten thousand voices and an orchestra of a thousand. Third, symphony orchestras were being organized, such as the symphony society of New York, the Boston Symphony, and the Theodore Thomas Orchestra, along with post-war regimental bands. And, fourth, the first conservatories were established, among them being the New England Conservatory, and the Cincinnati Conservatory. This four-fold influence paved the way slowly but inevitably for the introduction of music into all the public schools.

Let us now see what some of the leaders of the period were accomplishing. Benjamin Jepson of New Haven, Connecticut, says, "On the 3rd of January, 1865, I entered upon my duties, having in charge the upper rooms of seven school houses, numbering about 1200 pupils. Year by year more schools, rooms, and pupils were added, until all from kindergarten to high were included. I found at once a plentiful lack of apparatus with which to commence the work of elementary instruction. In the absence of all other musical apparatus, I had constructed at my own expense, a musical chart containing upwards of 1200 square feet of canvas. This chart was hung on a portable frame and reeled off with a crank. With this contrivance transported from school to school in a wagon, I commenced the work of musical instruction in the New Haven public schools. I soon wore out my musical hurdy-gurdy; in the meantime I prepared and published, at my own expense, the first book in the United States known as a music reader." (Berge). From this quotation we find it evident that music directors were working hard at a methodical system of teaching. Others who did notable work are Walter H. Aiken, son of the Charles Aiken of Cincinnati; George B. Laomis of Indianapolis; and Luther Whiting Mason, a distant relative of Lowell Mason.

Luther Mason accomplished the task of organizing music instruction so that it would articulate all the grades under one plan. He first taught in the Louisville schools, was then called to Cincinnati, and later to Boston where he was requested to organize primary music instruction. The next pressing need was one for music books planned to proceed progressively through all of the grades. Mr. Mason compiled what was known as the "National Music Course" and it was published by Edwin Ginn (the founder of the publishing house of Ginn and Company). The series of books proved its worth and became almost universally used.

Looking back over the period of the beginnings of method we see that in 1872 Lowell Mason died; that music conventions became deflected into other channels and ceased to affect public school music; that school music teaching became a distinct profession. Varying conceptions of teaching arose, out of which two became the most important. The first was that pupils should be taught as many songs as possible with the help of the teacher, a sort of rote song process. The second was that pupils should learn to read music in order to sing the songs.

STATE FINANCIAL POLICY

Governor Brucker's policy of setting a minimum state tax is in line with that of his predecessors, if we may discuss this question or its merits without being drawn into its personalities, states H. H. Whitley, one of Michigan's best politically minded daily newspaper publishers in his Dowagiac Daily News. Continuing he editorializes as follows:

Governor Groesbeck, who adapted the administrative board idea and invented the state corporation tax, had plenty of money when he accomplished these ideas and subsequently was able to expand a lot of state functions and at the same time made a tax reduction. But in his final term he had reached the limit. He had exhausted his additional resources and was still bound to reduce the state tax for political purposes. The result was the inevitable deficit.

Governor Green made his effort to stay within his income and could not do it and raised the state tax all he thought was politically advisable and the deficit is still piling up. Governor Brucker, who is committed to an administration of rigid economy, and who probably feels that a larger tax than his predecessor would be an admission of defeat, has levied a minimum tax which will do no better than the others to meet state expense and take care of the deficit.

The increasing tax delinquency is one reason for this deficit. Eventually there will come a time when the collection of delinquent taxes will equal those which go unpaid, but unfortunately that time is not yet in sight. Other state revenues are declining in keeping with the times and in the meanwhile the policy seems to be to pass on the deficit until things are better. The deficit is not particularly large for a state like Michigan but the principal of the thing is all wrong. This state is able to pay its bills and live inside its income. We believe most taxpayers would rather pay a few dollars more state tax than to be continually reading about a state deficit and the use of special state funds for general purposes as well as the inability to pay highway bills because some other department got to the money first.

The state should set an example of rigorous adherence to sound book-keeping and finance. It is the duty of the next legislature to divorce finance and political administration and get back to first principles, setting up a budget for each department and making it available without the jugglery for the state administrative board and keeping that department within its limits. We can see signs that tell us this step is due.

It is claimed that people are losing their interest in the principles of freedom and liberty, but anyway all the jail inmates believe in these grand ideas.

TUBERCULOSIS CARE IS ADVANCED IN STATE

Michigan Has 24,000 Persons Afflicted With This Deadly Disease

A kind heart is not enough in the fight against tuberculosis, says B. A. Shepard, president of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. Unless most carefully and thoughtfully guarded, the limited funds realized from the sale of Christmas seals could be easily spent without a trace, he points out.

Dr. Shepard said in illustration: The total seal sale in Michigan last year was $206,815.53. There are, on a conservative estimate, 27,000 people in Michigan sick with tuberculosis. Based on present sanatorium experience, 90 per cent of them are unable to pay for the care and treatment a consumptive should have. Therefore upwards of 24,000 people in our state are today facing this most deadly disease without sufficient money.

"If the total cost of raising the $206,800.00 was but 10 per cent, and we then divided every remaining dollar in equal proportions among those consumptives needing financial help, they would receive $7.65 each for the year. And there would be left not one penny for any other work—not even for the cost of distributing the sale."

Dr. Shepard states that there is no tuberculosis problem so insistent put before the Board of Trustees of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association as relief of the sick person. They all turn to the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and affiliated local groups, as the proper source of help. In every instance where direct personal relief of the tuberculous individual is sought from a Christmas seal financed agency, there is need for a generous round of information and thinking.

Michigan has had a vigorous sanatorium campaign through the past few years. A recent stock-taking of the work of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association discloses interesting information.

Among other facts, county tuberculosis sanatoriums of Michigan represent a capital outlay of more than $9,000,000. These institutions are spending over $6,600 a day in the care of Michigan's tuberculous sick. Michigan now has 3,700 tuberculosis sanatorium beds as against 2,200 six years ago. In 1924 $18,000 of state money was spent in aid to six county sanatoriums.

Eighteen tuberculosis institutions now receive state aid. The sum provided by the state next year for this purpose is $750,000.

"These advances in the care of the tuberculous sick of our state," said Dr. Shepard, "are not accidents. They are some of the results of a carefully planned legislative campaign on which the staff of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association has been continuously engaged for the past ten years."

Few businesses in Charlevoix county have enjoyed the steady and consistent growth attained by B. Milstein & Co., of East Jordan.

EAST JORDAN CO-OP. ASSOCIATION East Jordan W. L. Stanek, Manager

About the only difference between the so-called dead town and a live city, is the amount of work done on community problems. The live city advertises itself to the nation by the things it accomplishes, while the so-called dead town slumbers peacefully on and is not heard from.

Much of the burden of progressive movement is placed on your local business man and you, his patrons. Show your public spirit and civic loyalty by co-operating in Charlevoix county's advancement. Your money spent with local merchants will help very materially to keep your town and county to the front as a commercial and agricultural center. It will help to enlarge our prospects for a Bigger and Better community.

CHERRY BROTHERS Boyne Falls General Store

Cherry Bros., who are in the general store business at Boyne Falls, exemplify the progressive type of citizen in their community. That they are sincerely interested in the advancement of that community is a well known fact demonstrated throughout the five years they have been in business here. Business houses of this type merit favorable comment because they are real builders of community spirit, and that is an essential of paramount importance.

Patronize those who help build and maintain the town you live in. It pays in the long run.

THE CHARLEVOIX HARD- WARE CO., INC. Chas. B. Gale, Sec.-Treas.

Although mere chance may give a man an opportunity, successful men are usually masters of their own destiny. It is not idle chance but honest purpose and hard work that brings a man to a position in his community where he is regarded by his neighbors as a success. Mr. Charles B. Gale of Charlevoix, embodies the fine American tradition of the boy who starts from the bottom and works his way to the top by sheer industry and integrity of purpose; and gains and merits the honor of those who know him.

Mr. Gale is known all over the county as a man of high repute by those who have had business dealings with him and who are his loyal friends and enthusiastic customers. He has made the hardware business his life's career in the best sense. His training and experience have been along this line, and his knowledge is always available to his customers; his aim being to serve them first, for in serving others does one serve best himself.

Here is a man trained from his youth up in the hardware business. We do not know how a man could secure a finer all-around experience than Mr. Gale possesses; and those who are interested in the purchase of hardware and supplies use good judgment when they avail themselves of his impartial advice.

TEMPLE THEATRE Glen Bulow East Jordan

Frequent changes of program enables the large patronage to enjoy the best pictures at a time they are showing in much larger towns and cities.

Mr. Bulow is a native born resident of this section and is highly respected by all who know him.

R. R. BONTHEON Charlevoix Plumbing and Heating

Twenty years of efficient service to the people of Charlevoix is the record of achievement of this responsible business house. Twenty years is a long time, but mute evidence that these years have been well spent is shown by the large volume of work now being done under the able supervision of Mr. Bonthron himself.

Want plumbing installed? Call 228. Want heating installed? Call 228. You'll be sure to get good work and good service, and prices reasonably consistent with good work and good service. FRANK F. BURNS Walloon Lake Mfg. of Rustic Furniture and Boats

When a man conducts a commercial enterprise in a town, large or small, it is incumbent upon him to conduct that enterprise in a manner befitting him and also the town in which it is situated. Mr. Burns was born here in Charlevoix county, lives here in Charlevoix county, and will probably spend the rest of his life here. It is his home. In the conduct of his business he has always borne these facts in mind; to help make it a better place by giving it a better business house. The individual man, the individual business is but a small component part of the town or county in which he lives, so that by improving himself or business he must of necessity improve that town or county.

THE JORDAN VALLEY CO-OP CREAMERY East Jordan Manufacturers of Jordan Valley Creamery Butter P. Penfold, Manager

Business houses of this nature have always played an important role in Charlevoix county's forward progress. Because of years of successful venture right here in your midst; because of such close association with many of its citizens; because of an inherent good business sense that tells them that their future is unalterably wrapped in the future of Charlevoix county, this firm, The Jordan Valley Co-Op Creamery, has developed a rather close affinity with the county in general, and their business is, in great measure, distributed throughout its breadth.

The products of this concern have firmly and indelibly impressed their merits on the people of this county, and their increasing patronage is more than ample proof that people do know and do appreciate good merchandise; that they are willing, yes eager, to pay a fair price for it, and will even go a little way out of their way to get it. Give them a fair "shake"; that's all they want.

THE PEOPLES STATE BANK OF PELLSTON Organized in 1910

The Peoples State Bank of Pellston has since its earliest existence enjoyed a steady and continuous growth in which it may well take justifiable pride. Starting as it did 21 years ago, it has passed valiantly through many trying times and periods of local and national depression, always with head up and shoulders squared to offer stubborn and tenacious resistance to any and all obstacles that might tend to deter its progress. With mind set and definite aims in view, it has surmounted every barrier and maintained an even, steady pace, always onward and forward, until today it has obtained a position of envied eminence, strong and growing stronger every day. But their day of rest has not yet come.

The Peoples State Bank of Pellston feels that it has not yet accomplished its mission nor fulfilled its purpose; that much remains to be done; that its real work lies in the present and in the future. Always with open mind and ear it is ever ready and willing to aid in any sound way the growth of the community.

Banks of this kind are vital assets to this section. We are glad that the Peoples State Bank of Pellston is one of us.

Business in general is dependent upon various factors, but in the final summation it all resolves itself into a matter of service and value. There is keen demand in Petoskey and vicinity upon the service and values that The Petoskey Wholesale Grocery company offers you. This demand is based upon an intelligent appreciation of the real service and real values the firm has constantly given in its many years of activity in the wholesale business. Under the capable management of its officers and directors the firm has served splendidly the needs and demands of this community on it, every order being carefully attended to.

THE PEOPLES STATE SAVINGS BANK East Jordan

President - W. A. Strobel
Vice-Presidents - J. Porter and R. Mackey
Cashier - W. G. Corneil
Established in 1910

Bank statements are frequently regarded as a barometer indicating the prosperity of the towns in which they may be located and they are invariably very accurate barometers too. The statement of The Peoples State Savings Bank showing a capital of $25,000, surplus and undivided profits of $20,000, and deposits aggregating $300,000, may then be taken as an indication that the town of East Jordan in which it is located, is a thriving one and that the bank itself is doing its share in promoting and maintaining its growth.

The prestige which this bank enjoys has not come to it as a matter of chance but has been well earned by its adherence to the dictates of efficient banking principles and by the high character of service it has consistently rendered and continues to offer its patrons and the community in general. It has been the friend of every deserving business and worthy enterprise and it has proved itself a bulwark of strength and support to its patrons at all times.

The Peoples State Savings Bank is distinctly a community bank, with the firm conviction that it can have no solid and continuous prosperity, separate from the community in which it exists and from which it must exist. It is staunch in its policy to continue to foster and encourage home enterprises and industries and to extend its aid along those lines whenever and wherever it properly can. You can bank with and on The Peoples State Savings Bank at East Jordan.

A. M. BELLINGER Charlevoix Jewelry and Watch Repair C. E. Bellinger

For almost fifty years the name of A. M. Bellinger has been associated and identified with all that is fine in the jewelry business. For almost fifty years it has been instinctive with people of this section to think of Bellinger's when they think of jewelry. Be assured that the reputation justifying this belief was not laid down lightly. For every year of business life it took one year of close adherence to rigid business principles as laid down by A. M. Bellinger. No deviation was ever countenanced. When Mr. Bellinger said it was so, it was so, and there was none to question it. The Bellinger word has won its own recognition.

A reputation of this kind is particularly desirable in your jewelry. Most of us are ignorant of the actual money value of fine jewelry and are compelled to rely on the judgment and integrity of the jeweler. It is comforting then to know that you have a firm of this calibre in your midst. Nice to know that you can buy with full confidence in their judgment, should you be lacking in your own.

SEE'S FURNITURE STORE L. S. See, Prop.

It was Ralph Waldo Emerson, that illustrious exponent of American Philosophy, who is credited with that gem of clear thought and vision, in which he says, "Let a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse trap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

Now as far as I know Mr. L. S. See of Charlevoix, never wrote a book, preached a sermon or built a mouse trap, but a good many people have beaten a path to the door of See's Furniture Store at Charlevoix, and I believe Mr. See must have at least read that epic of Mr. Emerson's, for he has certainly adhered to the tenets of his teaching in the pursuit of his business and if he has it has surely been with profitable results, for the beaten path to the door is very plain and the hinges on that door will never grow rusty. They're kept swinging all the time to the tune of many satisfied customers.

THE FIRST STATE BANK OF PETOSKEY Organized in 1891

Lady Opportunity is knocking at your door. Are you wearing ear muffs? If legendary fiction can be given credence, then this whimsical Lady Opportunity, knocks neither loud nor often.

Are you ready? Can you help her? Can we help you? We can talk to you in this article but you must come here to talk to us. This bank is not too big to talk to you, no matter how small you may be. Though your business may mean nothing to us in the matter of material profit, we value it as evidence of your faith and reliance in us. And we're not hard to talk to. We feel that we are a friendly bank. You can come here with your overalls on. We like it. The sweat of your brow won't chill us. Now we're not going to make a lecture of this article, but this is The First State Bank of Petoskey speaking. If you'll come in and talk to us, we can help you when Lady Opportunity comes a knocking.

A. D. ANDERSON Pellston Gas, Oils and Accessories

It is hardly within the realm of conceivable possibilities that when Mr. Anderson started this enterprise in 1904, he imagined it would attain the sizeable proportions it has already reached, and the probable heights it will undoubtedly mount to in the future. Its previous years of business activity are only the stepping stones leading to much greater things that are in store for this enterprising concern.

Success of this kind is not lightly earned, only hard work could achieve it, hard work, and high grade work and high grade merchandise.

JOHN MCPHEE Alanson General Merchandise

Twenty years of successful service to the people of Alanson and vicinity has established the firm of John McPhee as one of the leaders in this section. In addition to the hardware and other merchandise Mr. McPhee also operates a City Service Gas and Oil station where modern service in this direction can be obtained. A good business in a good town.

W. J. MASTERS Walloon Lake Garage and Boat Works

It is casting no reflection on any other garage to point out Mr. Master's garage and boat works as one of superior qualities, offering a service and grade of workmanship that we know will please and satisfy the most critical. No hap-hazard or shipshod methods of mechanical repairs are tolerated here. Whether it is a small minor repair or a complete overhauling Mr. Masters does it with that same painstaking care and thoroughness that are characteristic of the master workman in any field of endeavor; work that makes you realize what a fine garage this is. They know no other way to do a job. It must be done right or not at all. You'll come back again if Masters does it.

BROWN'S BOAT WORKS AND GARAGE R. B. Brown Walloon Lake

One of the pioneer garages and boat works of Charlevoix county is under that capable ownership of R. B. Brown. Far back in 1896 it was started in a rather modest way and since that time the uprightness principles employed have won their reward, the firm of Brown's Boat Works and Garage now being known as the place in Walloon Lake to get real service.

SCHOOL NOTES

The freshmen, this year, instead of feeling very green and very young among the upper classmen of the senior high building, are at the top of the junior high organization. Besides a change in home room the ninth grade schedule is altered. The required subjects are Physical Education, Algebra, English and Music, and two subjects may be elected from the following group: Biology, General Science, Ancient History, Latin, Manual Arts and Home Economics. Class officers will be elected soon. The activities of the freshmen will be under the direction of Mr. Rider.

The sophomore class will be sponsored by Miss Button, the juniors by Miss Anderson, and the seniors by Miss Fernau. The latter have already begun their year's work by selling hot dogs, candy and coffee at the football games. They report fine support from the students — and others!

Anyway—what is a football game without a hot dog?

Music
The musical organizations have begun another enjoyable year of work. Interesting selections have been purchased for the girls' and boys' glee clubs, and the mixed chorus selected from the latter groups is to make an early debut when they join other students to entertain the teachers Thursday evening at the M. E. A. in Petoskey.

The band, made up of a goodly number of junior and senior high students has not only been practicing music diligently, but also the fine art of marching. It will make its first public exhibition Saturday when it will march from the school to the football field.

Drama Club
Play production will be the principal topic of study in the Drama Club this year. This phase of dramatic work follows last year's background in the theatre and its famous people and the elements of dramatic technique. There are about twenty-four members, each of whom is now preparing a role in a one-act play. It is hoped to have open meetings every three or four weeks at which both one act and full length plays will be presented and to which parents, teachers and students may come for the small fee of ten cents.

Athletics
Next Saturday we play East Jordan in football. East Jordan's team is fast and scrappy, East Jordan winning from Rogers City 15-0 and from Frankfort 27-0. Mr. Ferenz of Traverse City, will be referee. East Jordan, when playing against Charlevoix, plays her best game of the year and a fast, close, scrappy game is expected in which Charlevoix, if it gets the breaks, may win. The admission will be: Adults 35c, students 25c, children 15c. Everybody come out and support the team, the game will be well worth your money.

P. T. A. Reception
Last Thursday evening the P. T. A. held its reception for the teachers at the gymnasium. Archie Livingston, president of the organization, opened the meeting with a few appropriate words as to the purpose of the meeting. Mrs. Soule and Mrs. Stelter led the group in community singing, after which Dr. F. P. McMillan delivered the address of welcome. Dr. McMillan described vividly the lovely scenery of Charlevoix and the neighboring country, making both old and new teachers feel very happy indeed to be in the heart of Michigan's famous beauty spot. Mr. Bush responded in behalf of the teachers.

Mrs. Soule, accompanied by Mrs. Stelter, played violin solos, after which refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Local Teachers Attend Michigan Educational Assn. Meeting
Thursday and Friday of this week, October 1 and 2, the M. E. A. district five, in which Charlevoix is situated, will hold its annual meeting in Petoskey. This year Charlevoix has a 100 per cent enrollment of teachers. Supt. Bush will attend and will have charge of several meetings during the two days. There will be a number of interesting lectures. Most prominent among them is that of Mr. Skehill, America's foremost lecturer at the present time.

The students of the junior and senior high are looking forward with much enthusiasm to hearing Mr. Skehill Monday of next week. He will speak in the gymnasium, morning, afternoon and evening. It is not always that educational features come in such a pleasing form as are Mr. Skehill's lectures.

Last Thursday and Friday Supt. Bush attended the District Superintendent's meeting at Traverse City.

Last Tuesday Dr. F. F. McMillan gave the first of a series of lectures, sponsored by the extension department of the University of Michigan. His subject was goitre. Goitre is perhaps the most common disease we have in Michigan. In some communities as many as 70 to 80% being afflicted. The generally accepted cause of goitre is the deficiency of iodine obtainable in the food or water supply. The state has endeavored to correct this deficiency by arranging with the manufacturers to place iodized salt upon the market.

Surveys among school children who have thus been treated with iodine show that this method is effective in preventing nearly all cases of goitre. This salt is on the market in all the groceries at very little added expense, and should be used on the tables of every family in Charlevoix.

Between now and January we will have a number of equally interesting lectures delivered upon different subjects by our local doctors, Wilkinson, Armstrong and Dean.

The Mary Brewster Circle of the Congregational church will serve their annual Harvest Supper in the church dining room, Wednesday evening, October 7th, from 6 o'clock until all are served. Bill 50c.—Adv. 391.

AT THE MOVIES

Ford Wouldn't Let Sally Act In "The Brat"
It's no trouble at all just being yourself on the screen. In fact, it's rather fun to toss your inhibitions to the winds and act naturally, provided you're Irish and inclined to be frank and sassy anyway.

This probably accounts for the enthusiastic reception Sally O'Neil has had from critics and screen fans alike in her title part in "The Brat," the Fox Films production which comes to the Palace theatre next Saturday. With the role of a somewhat hardboiled little Brooklyn girl who is taken by a wealthy novelist to his home so he can use her as the model for his next fiction heroine, Miss O'Neil has to be impudent and appealing and curious and impulsive all at once. And she loves it.

Frank Albertson, well known juvenile player, who recently played with Will Rogers in "A Connecticut Yankee," and Allan Dinehart, New York stage actor, making his screen debut in the picture, enact the male leads. William Collier, Sr., Virginia Cherrill and June Collyer are the featured players. The cast is complete with Farrell Macdonald, Mary Forbes, Albert Gran, Louise Mackintosh and Margaret Mann.

CHOIR AND CHORUS
SINGING CONTESTSFEATURE AT GAYLORD POTATO
AND APPLE SHOWTwo Hundred and Five Dollars in Prizes Are Offered—Contest
Under Auspices M. S. C.

The Top O' Michigan town and country choir and chorus singing contest held in connection with the ninth annual Potato and Apple Show at Gaylord, will be given more consideration than usual this year, due to the increasing number of entries each year.

The total premiums offered this year have been increased from $450 to $205, and the number of prizes from five to eight. This will allow more choirs to share in the prizes and help defray expenses of coming to Gaylord, according to B. C. Mellenkamp, secretary of the show.

This contest is conducted under the auspices of the R. E. Olds Community Music Fund and the Michigan State college. The two hundred and five dollars in prizes will be awarded as follows: First, $60; second, $40; third, $30; fourth, $25; fifth, $20; and the next three, $10 each.

The contest will take place at the Gaylord auditorium on Friday morning, October 30th, promptly at 10 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time. This is the last day of the show.

The following rules and regulations will apply:

1. The choir from any open country church or town church in towns of 2,000 population or less (according to the 1930 census) or a chorus representing any rural organization, will be eligible to enter the contest.
2. Each choir or chorus must consist of at least six singers and as many more as possible.

3. The participants must be regular choir or chorus members of the church or organization represented.
4. The leader and accompanist may or may not be members of the choir or chorus. If they are not members they must not participate in the singing.
5. Two selections will be rendered by each contesting group.
6. The first may be any selection the group wishes to make.
7. The second is to be "A Joyous Christmas Song" by Geueart. (Sufficient copies of this anthem for your group may be secured by writing to B. C. Mellenkamp, Boyne City.)
8. The scoring will be based on:
 1. General expression 50
 - (a) Attack and Finish
 - (b) Loud and Soft
 - (c) Fast and Slow

since Napoleon. Mr. Skehill has marched with the black-shirts and attended their semi-secret meetings. Unquestionably his lecture is the greatest in the world on the picturesque black-shirts, and it is one of the most timely and vigorous warnings to democracy in the country today.

At 4:15 p. m., Mr. Skehill's lecture will be "The Writing on the Wall of Russia," a story of the Soviet.

In the evening at 8 o'clock he will give his famous lecture, "The Last of the Long-Hunters." This story is an immortal saga of the southern mountaineers. As the official biographer of Sergeant Alvin C. York, "the outstanding hero of the World War," Mr. Skehill has learned to know the mountain people. He traces the settling of Appalachia by the red-headed, raw-boned and gaudy Anglo Saxons, one hundred and fifty years ago. He tells of the evolution of Boone, Crockett, Houston and Old Hickory; and in our own day of Alvin York, stills, shooting matches and the very spirit of the mountains.

Mr. Skehill's appearance at Charlevoix after being the principal speaker at the Petoskey district teachers' meeting, is sponsored by the high school faculty, many of whom have heard the speaker and therefore endorse him to Charlevoix citizens.

An advertisement elsewhere in this issue announces the program and prices for each lecture.

MODEL HOME LAUNDRY

S. O. Sorenson and Ivan Holmes
Owners of Year Round Enterprise

The Model Home Laundry, a year around enterprise, will open for business the early part of next week at No. 5 Van Pelt Place.

The owners are S. O. Sorenson, for many years identified with the laundry business here, and Ivan Holmes, one of Charlevoix's younger business men. Mr. Holmes became a partner in the enterprise through the recent purchase from E. D. Gimble of his interest in what was formerly known as the Troy Laundry. From the date of its opening, the new laundry will run the year around.

New and modern equipment has been purchased and is now being installed.

POTATO SHOW PRE-MIUM BOOKS READY

Over $1600 in Prizes Being Offered
Exhibitors This Year

The premium book of the Ninth Annual Potato and Apple Show to be held at Gaylord October 28th, 29th and 30th, is now off the press and is available to anyone who wants one. Kindly see or write your own agricultural agent or write B. C. Mellenkamp, secretary, Boyne City.

The premium books offer a very attractive list of prizes for the potato and apple growers of the Top O' Michigan. Over $1600 will be available to exhibitors and contestants.

The junior department has grown each year until they occupy a large part of the show, both in exhibits and the program.

A new feature in this year's premium book is the class for alfalfa seed growers. Last year only a cup was offered. This cup must be won three times to become the permanent possession of any grower.

Mr. Mellenkamp, secretary of the show, urges every farmer in the Top O' Michigan to enter this year's show. The beginners' special class has always been a favorite and anyone has a chance to win even though he has never exhibited before.

A new champion in the open class will probably be picked again, for during the last eight years the same grower has not repeated as winner of first place.

Write now for your premium book and plan to select your show potatoes at digging time.

The Mary Brewster Circle of the Congregational church will serve their annual Harvest Supper in the church dining room, Wednesday evening, October 7th, from 6 o'clock until all are served. Bill 50c.—Adv. 3211.

W. C. T. U. DISTRICT

(Reported by O. W. Morse).

The W. C. T. U. meeting at Bellefleur last week Wednesday and Thursday was attended by quite a large crowd. The meeting was called to order at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, by Mrs. Anna Saltonstall, district president, of Charlevoix. The flag salute was led by Mrs. Janet Irwin, nearly eighty years old, of Mancelona. Rev. J. C. Kendall, of Central Lake, led the devotional service. The welcome address was made by Mrs. Griffin of Bellefleur, and responded to by Mrs. Walter Roger of Charlevoix.

A reading was given by Mrs. Minnie Williams of Mancelona, after which a fine address was given on the W. C. T. U. work by a national lecturer, Mrs. Lottie Woodford, of Washington, D. C. Mrs. Woodford also addressed the high school students at Central Lake.

Devotionals in the evening were led by Rev. Baker of Bellefleur, followed by the Gold Medal contest. There were five contestants in this. The gold medal was won by Miss Helen Johnson of Mancelona.

Wednesday morning devotionals were led by Miss Agnes Porter of East Jordan. Two minute talks were given by several members. Miss Patton, president of Mancelona W. C. T. U., gave a talk on the enforcement of the liquor law. She thought that many times the ones who complain on those making moonshine are doing the same thing themselves, and a thorough investigation should be made before there is an arrest. In the matter of press advertising, she said the recommendations made by the editor of the Mancelona paper were that clippings should be sent in early, and that the W. C. T. U. should attempt to keep the papers of the district dry.

Mrs. Mina Williams gave an excellent talk on "Use of Cigarettes by Young People." She said many of the cigarettes passed out at stands were poisoned. It therefore made it much more difficult to quit using them. She has warned several dealers to desist from selling cigarettes to minors. She told where and what pamphlets on use of cigarettes could be obtained.

Mrs. Harriet Lockoff then gave a very pleasing Memorial program in honor of the members, who have passed on. Each president came up to the front, placed a flower on the stand and told of the death, if any, of a member of her Union. Mrs. Ruggles spoke of the death of Mrs. O. P. Barber of Central Lake. Many reminiscences were given by Mrs. Woodford, Mrs. Lockoff and Mrs. Coldren of the former national secretary, Miss Anna Gordan.

Afternoon devotions were led by Mrs. Alice Jolt of East Jordan. After this came an interesting address by Judge Parm C. Gilbert of Traverse City. Mr. Gilbert thought there should be more people attending these meetings as they were of vital interest to all. In regard to the common welfare, he said that there is not much dispute between the best people. He said there were two things to combat in building up communities and we all know some are injurious. These two bad ones are the use of intoxicating liquors and gambling. There is not one good thing to be said in favor of the use of intoxicating liquors. No argument, for all is harmful.

Gambling is but a systematic form of stealing. He said he did not know of any women who gamble. He said many possessed the false pride of thinking, "I will be smart enough to win." He said slot machines cater to the resort people. Heading out poison to keep people in wealth by gambling is just as bad as handing out poison pills. It is systematic stealing with the thought in mind, "get something for nothing."

Any man or woman doing this is not worth the snap of the finger. All should be used alike. Those arrested for other crimes come back at the slot machine men is, "Why not get him as well as me." If a town has gambling for about five years they get hardened to it and say, "It isn't very bad, we have it and probably always will." Times have not changed as much as we think. Things wrong 100 years ago are wrong now. One valid thought to apply is, "Any influence that tends to break down honest integrity is always wrong." We want clean homes, a clean community and a clean country. What we need are men and women who are honest. We don't want anything in our community that we could not take into our own homes.

Mrs. R. B. Armstrong next gave a very forceful talk on "Women in Politics." She told of her experiences, graphically, in getting to the state convention last fall. She said most of her trouble was, as her little granddaughter had said, when the doctor asked what was the matter with her little playmate. The granddaughter replied, "Oh, I think it is her finances." One point was that Gov. Brucker did not indulge in any drinks but ice water, but that a number of other delegates were having intoxicants taken up to their rooms.

The following officers, all the same as the past year, with the exception of the corresponding secretary, were elected: Honorary president, Mrs. Lockoff, Mancelona; president, Mrs. Saltonstall; vice president, Mrs. Gordan, Bellefleur; corresponding secretary, Miss Irene Eckhardt, Central Lake; recording secretary, Mrs. Simmons, treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth Niles, Mancelona.

"Reality" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, September 27.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Both riches and honour come of thee, and thou reignest over all; and in thine hand is power and might; and in thine hand it is to make great, and to give strength unto all." (1 Chron. 29:12).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spiritual understanding unfolds Mind.—Life, Truth, and Love,—and demonstrates the divine sense, giving the spiritual power of the universe in Christian Science." (p. 505).

ROAD MEN TO DISCUSS EMPLOYMENT MEASURES

Commissioners of 27 Counties Meet
Friday at Traverse City

Members of the Charlevoix county road commission have been summoned to a meeting of road officials of 27 Northern Michigan counties at the Park Place hotel at Traverse City Friday, called by Governor Brucker's unemployment relief commission.

The meeting will begin at 10 o'clock E. S. T., and continue through the afternoon, addressed by William "Good Roads" Connelly of Grand Haven, J. W. Hansen of Lansing, secretary of the Michigan Good Roads association, and officials of the highway department.

Attendance of all road officials in the Northern Michigan counties is considered imperative in the cause of unemployment relief this winter.

A pleasant surprise party was given last Thursday evening for Mrs. Amos O'Neil at her home on Sherman street, honoring her birthday anniversary. A large group of friends and relatives were present to enjoy the dinner. A huge birthday cake, trimmed in pink and yellow, was an attraction. Mrs. O'Neil was favored with many nice gifts.

BURRIDGE ASKS THE HIGHWAY
HEADS TO BUILD NOW

Northern Michigan Commissioners
Heard Urge at Traverse City
Meeting Called Last Week

Nearly 200 road commissioners and county officials of the northern half of the state looked the problem of unemployment relief squarely in the eye at a meeting in the Park Place hotel last Friday and immediately launched plans for increased road maintenance and construction work during the winter months. Some went to the meeting with plans already under way for employing more than the normal amount of labor this winter.

The Traverse City meeting was the third and last in a series called in response to a plea by Governor Brucker's unemployment relief commission. Road officials in other sections of the state had met at Jackson, Grand Rapids and Flint in the past few days, mapping their plans for relieving unemployment, giving actual assurance of greater employment in nearly every county. In some sections of the state the county road commissions expect to employ twice as many men this winter as last. Advancing of spring construction work into the winter is the principal factor in most cases.

Officials of 27 counties were called to Traverse City by the Northern Michigan Road Commissioners' association for Friday's conference to report their own plans and discuss the situation with William Connelly of Grand Haven and J. W. Hannon of Lansing, the leaders in the series of meetings, and L. A. Burridge of Cadillac, division engineer of the state highway department.

Much of the relief in Northern Michigan, as in other parts of the state, will be accomplished by starting work under the McNitt township aid bill this winter, rather than in the spring when the bill goes into effect. Under the act, 20 per cent of the township roads will be taken into the county systems each year for five years, starting April 1, 1932. The state will distribute $2,000,000 next year for improvement of the first 20 per cent. The money will be paid to the counties July 1, 1932. All three of the visiting speakers Friday urged Northern Michigan counties to anticipate the state appropriations by starting improvement of these township roads in the winter.

"You have a right to do this," former Senator Connelly told the meeting. "You can do it legally by getting your county board to pass a resolution taking these township roads over as county roads immediately and you know that you are going to get your money from the state. You know you're going to get it just as soon as the first $2,000,000 is distributed in July. We've got to cut technicalities and red tape and these are the times when we can do it."

Engineer Burridge, in his usual vigor, urged the county officials to follow Connelly's advice. "We've got

Charlevoix Courier:

"Dear Sir:—It sure pays to advertise in The Courier. I did not know you had such a large circulation. From my ad. in the classified column I have had buyers for my St. Lawrence apples from Petoskey, East Jordan and Muskegon. They all mentioned reading my ad. in The Courier. Keep it right there until I tell you to stop it. Also come out and have some apples yourself and some of my cider. With best wishes to The Courier, I am

Yes, George, advertising always brings buyers, and we have had wonderful returns from both our classified columns as well as readers and display. The day has long passed when prospective buyers run from store to store or private individual to find what they need. They read the ads. every week and thus know where to shop. If some Charlevoix merchants did one-half the advertising their neighboring competitors do, the trade that rightfully belongs to Charlevoix would remain here.—Ed.

to cut red tape. If it's necessary for you to anticipate your 1932 funds, do it!" he said. "From now until the first of April it's up to you to put on all the labor you can."

Burridge, who is in charge of all state highway construction and maintenance in Northern Michigan, told the commissioners that much work can be done cheaper in winter than summer.

"Clearing and grubbing can be done more economically in winter," he said. "You don't have as much brush to contend with and you can burn it almost anywhere. I say you can do this work 50 to 65 per cent cheaper in winter than in summer. Why don't you do it?"

Discussing the McNitt bill, Burridge said the amount to be received from the state by the counties of this section is more than the combined amount that the townships annually raise.

"We're going to take care of all the men we can," the engineer said for the highway department. "You do your part too. Give the men of your county work instead of a dole. Let them keep their self respect and at the same time feed their families."

NORMAL STUDENT STRICKEN SUDDENLY

ELEANOR FREDERICKSON, PETOSKEY, MENINGITIS VICTIM

Stricken Tuesday on Way to School —Death Followed Four Hours
Later at Charlevoix Hospital

Miss Eleanor Frederickson, age 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Frederickson, Charlevoix avenue, Petoskey, died Tuesday afternoon at Charlevoix hospital following an illness of about three hours.

Miss Frederickson, who had been residing with Mrs. J. L. Price, Newman street, while attending Charlevoix county normal, collapsed on Mason street on her way to school shortly before 1 o'clock. She was assisted to the hospital by a group of school-mates who answered her summons for assistance. Paralysis had robbed her of the use of her legs. Soon after reaching the hospital convulsions set in and death followed at around 4 o'clock.

Dr. R. B. Armstrong, local health officer, who attended the stricken girl, attributed death to meningitis, and with the authority of Dr. Slemons, head of the state health department, with whom he communicated by telephone, gave the cause as unknown.

The remains were taken to Petoskey, where a private funeral will be held.

Due to its unusual nature and because of the state-wide prevalence of infantile paralysis, the case caused no little apprehension among local citizens.

School officials immediately took measures to safeguard pupils by asking advice of the state health department regarding the future conduct of schools, and the following telegram was received this morning:

"Gerald F. Bush, Supt. of Schools, Charlevoix, Mich.

Recommend schools be kept open and daily observation by teachers and nurse.

Signed: Dr. C. D. Barrett." Supt. Bush announced today that Miss Jenn Dasef, who has charge of health education in local schools, will devote the next week to a close daily observation of all students to safeguard from any possible outbreak of contagion.

Charlevoix citizens may rest assured that all possible precautions are being taken to safeguard the health of school children.

Conforming with his usual custom, Mr. Orlofski will close his South Bridge street store for the winter months, and is disposing of a large stock of merchandise at unusually low prices.

SUPERVISORS IN SESSION MONDAY

ANNUAL OCTOBER MEETING AT COUNTY COURT HOUSE

Short Session Will Be Aim of Legislators—Committees Prepare Reports and Recommendations

Next Monday, October 12th, Charlevoix county supervisors will convene at the court house here for their annual fall meeting.

In order to cut the expense of this session as close as possible, it is understood legislators will attempt to complete business at hand in a week or less time, instead of running over into a second week as in some previous years. As a means of saving time to accomplish this purpose, several committees have already met and prepared the reports and recommendations they will make before the board.

At a recent joint meeting of the road committee of the board of supervisors and county road commission, it was recommended 2½ mills be asked of supervisors for road purposes, but at their regular session Tuesday, the commission went on record to recommend 3 mills. This amount, one mill less than a year ago, will raise approximately $30,000, to be expended for maintenance and equipment. No appropriation will be asked for new construction. The imperative need of new equipment to handle snow removal during the coming winter was the deciding factor in the commission's decision to recommend an additional one-half mill over the amount recommended at the joint meeting. With their present equipment, it would be difficult to handle snow with a light winter, and almost an impossibility with a heavy one.

Additional revenue for road maintenance will be received by the county from the state to maintain township roads. Charlevoix county will take over one-fifth of approximately 500 miles of township roads, and will receive in the neighborhood of $17,000 from the state for their maintenance, bringing the total road money to around $7,000 more than was available a year ago when 4 mills were voted.

Another decrease is anticipated in the amount to be raised for the interest and sinking fund. The committee will recommend 3 mills, one-half mill less than a year ago. The county has bonds due in 1933 totaling $223,000.00. The interest and sinking fund has a balance of $183,125.91, leaving $29,874.09 to be raised in addition to $16,725.00 interest, or a total of $56,599.09. With the 3 mills requested this year, and 2½ mills next year, the county should be able to retire all outstanding bonds.

The general fund presents a different story. The fund is already several thousand dollars in the "red" through transfers to the depleted county poor fund, which has reached a new high record in expenditures during the past year. In all likelihood an appropriation of 9 mills will be asked for this fund, offsetting the decrease in the road and interest and sinking funds. Unless supervisors use the pruning knife freely, Charlevoix county tax payers will be called upon to raise 16½ mills, the same as a year ago, or even possibly a half mill more, which, however, is hardly anticipated in view of present conditions.

GREAT CROWD AT LEAGUE MEETING

EPWORTHIANS FROM 12 COUNTIES
WERE HERE LAST WEEK

Attendance Largest in Recent Years
With Cadillac Taking First and Northport Second Honors

Large delegations from all northwestern Michigan were in attendance at the autumn session of the Grand Traverse District of the Epworth League, held last Friday and Saturday at First Methodist church.

The presence of several special trainers from the Chicago headquarters was an attraction, and a friendly rivalry among the Leagues of the various churches helped swell the crowd.

Cadillac carried off attendance honors, which was determined by multiplying the number present by the miles they came from any particular city. The second highest honor went to Northport, who had a fine delegation and really made a remarkable record. They drove over ninety miles, but Cadillac was still farther.

Cities and towns of twelve counties sent their young people, and the banquet served Friday evening was the largest in years. The Women's Club of the local church served the banquet and did themselves great credit, receiving much commendation for getting along so well with such a crowded dining room. About two hundred were in attendance. The ladies also served a luncheon Saturday noon.

After a general session following the banquet, the crowd separated into classes in three sections of the church, with training classes conducted by Dr. Blaine Kirkpatrick, and Dr. Geert, from headquarters, and State President S. W. Niles, of Eaton Rapids.

The Saturday forenoon session was begun by the Morning Watch, of worship, conducted by district president, Rev. James Elton Bowker of Traverse City. After this, classes in special subjects were conducted by Rev. Paul Boodagh, a product of the Methodist mission schools in Persia, who spoke on missions. He is the newly appointed pastor at Boyne City. Rev. A. R. Gratton conducted classes in bible study, while Rev. A. H. Pellow did similar work in the interest of world peace. The latter is the newly appointed pastor at Petoskey, while the former has just taken Central church, Traverse City.

Much was made of the enthusiasm of the youngsters, and the favorable (Continued on page 8.)

PIER REPAIR WORK IS NOW UNDER WAY

Outer North and South Piers to be Re-surfaced With Concrete

Repairs on the north and south piers at the channel entrance in Lake Michigan were started this week by government workers.

The operations here are in charge of I. Vandenburg, construction engineer of the U. S. Engineering Dept., Milwaukee, Wis.

The work this fall is being confined to repairs. Cribbing on the north wooden structure is being strengthened with new cross members and timbers where necessary, filled with crib stone, etc. A concrete surface, the same as that built on the outer end of the south pier a year ago, will be put down.

Operations on the south pier will complete re-surfacing started previously, giving that pier a concrete surface its entire length to a point where new piers were built. The work will probably require about three weeks.

Engineer Vandenburg stated that present work would put the piers in shape until a time when sufficient appropriations are made to allow construction of new concrete piers.

TOURIST BUREAU ANNUAL REPORT

NOT SO MANY PEOPLE HERE IN 1931, FIGURES SHOW

Visitors Asked Mostly for Cabin and Low-Priced Cottage Accommodations Along Lake Shore

The current economic depression showed itself in the number of tourists visiting Charlevoix this summer, according to F. V. Tyler, secretary of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, but not to the extent that one might expect.

While but an imperfect record was kept this summer of the number of visitors at the information bureau, owing to the extension of the sale period for license plates and the additional work entailed by the issuance of operator licenses, a careful estimate would put the figure at 1160 personal inquiries—a point not far below that of 1930, which was 1,225.

Inquiries by letter totaled 291, only eight less than last year, and of such inquiries, 68 were turned over to the eight hotels of the community for attention, as compared with 126 in 1930. This indicates a considerable dropping off in inquiries for hotel accommodations, which was offset by an increase in the number of inquiries for cottage and tourist accommodations. Among those who stopped in person at the bureau, overnight cabins and cottages in groups out along the lake shore served by a central dining hall were the most popular forms of accommodation but, unfortunately could not be supplied—especially in the latter case.

Bath houses along the beaches were also in demand, but not to be found. Telephone inquiries totaled 15, as compared with 99 last year, but the total incoming telephone calls of every nature were 263 and the outgoing, 414—not as many as in 1930 when the sales of automobile licenses were greater.

Total letters written by the secretary were 280 (less than last year by 18) and there were 32 copies of letters, documents, lists, etc., made. More literature was sent out this year than last—800 copies of the illustrated booklet going out in one lot to the convention committee of a builders' association for distribution among its members in Cleveland. All of the regular out-of-state points of distribution and those in the southern part of Michigan were amply supplied, as well as the surrounding towns in our own immediate district. Postage used totaled $42.67, as against $33.56 last year. The secretary believes that this amount may be materially reduced by a change in the system of answering inquiries which he is introducing.

EAST JORDAN GRID- DERS ARE VICTORS

TROUNCED C. H. S. 27 TO 0 HERE
SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Machine-Like Performance of Coach
Cohen's Veteran Squad Too Much for Locals—Chehoygan Next

Charlevoix's hopes of an undefeated season in Tip of Michigan conference football competition went glimmering at south side athletic field last Saturday afternoon when East Jordan's veteran aggregation handed the Kipmen a 27 to 0 trouncing.

Taken off their feet in the early moments of the game by an unexpected touchdown, Charlevoix's gridgers fought a courageous and uphill fight to the finish against a well-coached, well-balanced, alert and superior team. East Jordan had everything that goes to make a champion-hip combination, and this fact became more and more apparent as the contest advanced.

The game opened with Struthers receiving East Jordan's kick-off. He advanced to his own 25-yard line. On the next play, Baker, who was substituting for Joe Smith, a casualty of a week ago, fumbled. East Jordan recovered, tried three unsuccessful thrusts at the line and then passed 15 yards to LaLonde, who dodged Charlevoix's safety man and romped over for a touchdown. A place kick for extra point was blocked.

Arvilla fumbled the kick-off as play resumed. East Jordan failed to gain and punted. Charlevoix did likewise, Anee kicking to his own 40-yard line. Jordan passed for first downs on the next two plays, were stopped at right end, pulled a combination cross-buck and lateral pass for 9 yards and failed on another pass to lose the ball in the shadow of Charlevoix's goal.

For the balance of the first period and during the second and third, the game resolved itself into a punting duel with Charlevoix in the defense and East Jordan sparring for another chance to score. Late in the second session Charlevoix lost Genett, who was taken out with a broken nose. During the third period Struthers went out because of injuries and by that time the moral of the team was badly shaken.

A poor punt, which gave Jordan the ball on Charlevoix's 20-yard line late in the third period, paved the way for their second touchdown. They triple-passed for about 8 yards, made it first down through the line after three thrusts, and Heinzelman romped around right end to score. A pass netted extra point.

They threatened again early in the final period, only to be stopped, but shortly after combined a 30-yard-end run and a pass to LeLonde to score. A pass was good for extra point and the count stood East Jordan 20, Charlevoix 0.

On the first play following the kick-off, Jordan intercepted Anee's pass. Sommerville carried the ball to Charlevoix's 20-yard line. A pass failed, but Hignite made 2, Charlevoix was penalized 5 and a pass to Sommerville, over the goal was completed. (Continued on page 8.)

NORTHERN EDITOR PAYS TRIBUTE TO LOCAL ATTRACTIONS

We have clipped and are reproducing the following item from Monday's issue of the Petoskey Evening News, which in no uncertain way speaks in glowing terms of the many fall attractions awaiting the motorist visiting Charlevoix:

"Petoskey folk, out for their Sunday drives, are finding the short trip to Charlevoix an attractive one. Charlevoix's Boulder park is one of the show places and they have a few miles of real honest to goodness shore drive. Everyone finds it beautiful. The open Lake Michigan reminds one of the ocean. The beautiful stone cottages in Boulder park are just dreams. They are about the most handsome such houses in the north. Then the beautiful flowers attract many. Johnston's dahlias at the east entrance to the city being unusually beautiful. Mr. Johnston has originated many new varieties and right now the place is very attractive. The fish hatchery and the coast guard station at Charlevoix are always interesting, particularly to the children."

The meeting was presided over by Lars Holstead of Traverse City. The new president will be Supt. Spiller of Petoskey, and the next meeting place, probably Cadillac, as that city was the only one sending an invitation. He told of the several inventions that arose out of great necessity, as the washing machine, fountain pen, etc.

Tom Skeychill's address on Capt. York covered the rise of back generations of Scotch and Irish which he said really were Swedes. He told of York's conversion to Christianity from a rough North Carolina boy. His capture of the 132 Germans single handed was graphically described.

The outstanding feature of the meeting was the address by Bishop Fisher of Ann Arbor, in which he gave a wonderful description of the characteristics of Mahatma Gandhi, which do not agree very well with press reports. He described him as a man 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighing 96 pounds. His diet is mostly bread and goat's milk. He attended American school in Calcutta, India, from the age of 13 to 19. He has a degree of Doctor of Laws. He has done work among the Indian people in Africa as well as his own people in India. The treatment of the Indian people in the mines of Africa is the same as slavery. The distress of the starving people of India is terrible, as told by Mr. Fisher. Gandhi's work in trying to get self government for India and the boycott on shipment of cotton was graphically told by the bishop.

Much that will vitally concern the people in regard to government of schools in the future in the state of Michigan was spoken in the agriculture and rural section meetings Friday morning. Gallup of the state college at Lansing, and W. L. Smith of the rural department of Mt. Pleasant Normal prophesied that very soon county commissioners of schools and schools and school boards will be superseded by a superintendent and five associate supervisors, who will hire teachers and supervise the schools of the county as is done in North Carolina. M. L. Smith thinks that county normals will be done away with and the money spent on them be used in county supervision. The state superintendent of public instruction will receive a salary more in accordance with his duties. He said that the superintendent of this great state should receive more than the superintendent of Detroit schools. Mr. Gallup believed that the men now teaching in Smith-Hughes schools would be the supervision officials of the future.

Supt. Christiansen of Kaleva schools, and commissioner of that county (Newaygo) gave some of the weaknesses found in eighth grade examinations. He said individual differences should be taken in account. The examination should be prepared with that idea in view. Then, too, physical ability should be studied. Some children were not able, physically, to take the examination at the time it was given. Some pupils should be given a raise in standing where the child was quite well along in the teens. He sighted an instance of a boy who failed, never went to school again, and has been in the courts twice. If the boy had been passed he might have led a different life.

She invited him: "Bill, let's go up to the post. You're tired. And I'll get you a bite to eat."

"I can't, Joyce," he reluctantly refused. "I've got to light out for Edendurce. I just wanted to drop past and see that everything is all right with you. How've you been making out?"

"Better than I even expected. I've taken in an awful lot of fun."

"That's good. But I mean, any trouble with these 'breds or Smokies?" He spoke rather belligerently toward a hypothetical enemy of hers.

"Not the slightest bit," Joyce assured him. "That was not exactly true; a couple of incidents of the last week had been a little ugly. But she felt she could guard herself against those cowardly men."

She asked rather hesitantly, "Has anything happened at Fort Edendurce, Bill?" She was thinking of Elizabeth waiting there; and that beating-question crowded out even her father's trouble. It took an effort to speak of it. Bill knew more of Alan's plans than she did. He might know the answer to that question.

He said: "No, nothing much has happened. I moved up to Alan's cabin. Hunkell has made Whipple a corporal. Imagine that! The new doctor for Hershel Island came past on his way down north, and looked at Larry. He couldn't do any more than Father Cleverly has done. Larry's getting some strength back, and that chest wound is just the danger point; but his leg is all better. The doctor said Larry had been permanently crippled. No hope of anything better."

"Have they sent— is Dad still there?"

"Yes. We can't spare a man to take him out. He'll be there a week or ten days yet."

"You'll tell him about my good luck here, Bill? And tell him I'll be with him as soon as I close out this post?"

Bill nodded. Personally he hoped that this news might lift Dave MacMillan out of his despondency. Dave's state of mind was causing Bill anxiety. Recently his kindness, he had sunk into a sullen mood, moaning, hopeless—a man brooding self-destruction.

Joyce forced herself to ask, "Have you heard anything at all of Alan, Bill?"

"No, not a word. I don't expect to for some time."

"You must know where he is and what he's doing."

Bill realized she was asking him to tell her of Alan's venture. He wanted to tell her, but he knew he could trust her, but Alan had asked him not to let her know where he'd gone, and Alan might have personal reasons for it.

He hesitated. "No, I don't know. I'd just be guessing."

"But he's coming back, sometime, to Edendurce?" Joyce persisted.

"He may come back and may not. But not to stay. He's out of service, broke away completely. He turned his cabin and things over to me. He isn't intending to come back. I know definite. He's going to take that job in Victoria. Told me. One of the last things he said."

There was a moment's silence. Bill looked at Joyce curiously. She was staring down at the rock, plucking with trembling fingers at the wolf-foot tassels. She was pale. "Did Alan say—" the words came slowly, like reluctant footsteps—"any anything about when he'll get married?"

"He didn't exactly say when, but I'll be as soon as he's carried through this scheme of his."

A question came from Joyce: "He and— and Elizabeth— have decided definitely, then, Bill?"

"Yes. She's waiting for him to come for her or send for her. They've made plans to be married in Edmonton and have their honeymoon in the 'Solikirs' and then go on over to Victoria."

Joyce asked one last question. She asked it calmly, without faltering or even raising on the precipice edge.

"Did Elizabeth say that, or did Alan?"

"Alan said it. I overheard them, this night he left. They planned it together, there in his cabin."

Joyce was aroused by old Dad Pence calling for her. Raising her head from her arms, she looked around. Groggily she realized that she was there on the jutting rock, numbed with cold—with a cold that was more than physical.

Dawn had come. The dark hours had passed. It took her moments to realize. Time had stood still for her since she told Bill goodbye.

Before going up the river bank she had the presence of mind to go down to the water edge and bathe her face and hands and smooth back her hair. She went back to the trading store, with old Pence, and prepared breakfast for him. Over his black-nail pipe old Pence began whittling again at the "story-stick" he was carving these days. The stick was a long-standing ambition of his, for with his razor-keen, six-bladed knife he was carving the story of his life. And he was going about it in earnest, carving steadily every day. It was as though he had some dim fore-knowledge of the black wings hovering—a warning to hurry.

Nothing Joyce's exalted patience and her exhortation, he loathe her: "Now you got to go and rest, and I'll tend to the fur this morning, if anybody comes."

Joyce went into her room. It seemed so cold; she could not get warm; the chill seemed to have passed her through and through. She kicked a fire in her small sheet-iron stove and put in wood, and then lay down on the bed.

From the dresser Alan's picture was looking down at her. She did not glance away, but looked at it steadily, as she lay there so motionless and still.

The exhaustion that had drained her had left her very quiet of mind. She could think clearly, in thoughts precise and rational.

You fought this battle once, Joyce, the sword back to your enemy and gave him power over you again. When Bill first told you last fall of Alan's engagement—do you remember the heartbreak of those weeks, Joyce? You finally rose above it, you conquered. But then you permitted yourself to hope again. When Alan merely came past here on a patrol, after staying away from you all winter, you went wild with hope.

Last night Bill came to you once again; and after he left, you collapsed there on that bed. Joyce, don't lay yourself open to agony such as that. You must forget Alan Baker. You must walk that path. You must never again look back. You have been punished for looking back, and your punishment has been terrible. In self-preservation you must forget Alan Baker.

As she lay there gazing up at Alan's picture and seeing her course so clearly, it seemed to Joyce that if she could destroy his image there on the dresser, if only she had the courage to do that, it would be a symbol of destroying his image in her heart.

After a little while she got up from the bed; and going over to the dresser, began taking out of it all of Alan's letters to her. They dated back across six years, addressed to her here, at her college, at Ottawa—all of them carefully treasured. Pack by pack they went into the stove.

There was ghod angry for Joyce in the firm and unhesitant way she set about burning them.

He had given her more than a few presents: a costly old-fashioned lavalliere which had been his mother's; a miniature hope chest of India-silk kachlefs which had been the envy of her college friends; a gold-and-ivory hunting knife; a wrist watch for graduation present, and a dozen less expensive gifts. Joyce laid aside the lavalliere to send to Elizabeth; but the other gifts she destroyed by fire.

She took his picture from the dresser, and burned it.

Afterwards she sat by the table writing a long letter to her bureau chief in Ottawa, telling him frankly about her father, her hope to see her father vindicated and then to bring him over to Ottawa with her; and asking him if his former promise of a position whenever she wished to return was still good.

At noon, hours later, when old Pence looked in, he was pleased to find her plunged into a dreamless sleep. The secret worry he had noted on her face this last week seemed to have gone now. Her features were pale, but there was a look of peace on them, of some strange spiritual peace at heart.

AT THE MOVIES

Panics 'Em on First Bowl

A tribute rated by few, perhaps no other cinema neophyte, was that accorded Virginia Lee Pickering, petite, blonde and blue-eyed, when she made her initial entry on the Paramount set for her role in "24 Hours," dialogue edition of Louis Bromfield's popular novel which the Palace theatre will show two days beginning Saturday.

Clive Brook left Kay Francis in the middle of a scene to greet Miss Pickering. Regis Toomey instantly deserted lovely Miriam Hopkins; Director Marion Gering and other folks engaged in production, sprang from their chairs to bolster the ranks of the self-appointed welcome committee.

Well, Sixty-Seven Is Modest Figure

It took sixty-seven men to handle the nine women appearing in Paramount's "The Mad Parade," according to William Beaudine, director of the production.

The picture has a cast comprising Evelyn Brent, Irene Rich, Louise Fazenda, Lilyan Tashman, Marceline Day, Fritz Ridgeway, June Clyde and the Kenting twins.

It required the director, two assistants, five cameramen, three sound experts, two technical directors, dialogue experts, electricians, property men, assistant cameramen, carpenters, painters, explosion experts, set designers, grips and miscellaneous workers, sixty-seven in all, to produce it.

"The Mad Parade" relates the wartime experiences of a canteen unit of nine girls, pretty much all on their own. The episodes are said to have been lifted from actual experiences, and were compiled by Gertrude Orr and Doris Malloy, both women with first-hand knowledge of actual happenings in the combat zone.

It will be the Palace theatre's headliner, two days commencing next Tuesday.

LEGISLATURE MAY HAVE UPSET THIS LAW

Possibility that the 1931 legislature may have inadvertently repealed one of its own acts increasing the authority of the state highway commissioner to control erection of traffic lights on trunk line highways was being considered last week by Emerson R. Boyles, deputy attorney general.

The imperiled act was an amendment to one passed in 1929 which was re-written into the penal code of 1931. The penal code carried a repeal clause for the 1929 act which, Boyles believes, carries also repeal of all subsequent amendments, which would include those passed in 1931.

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Did God, Truth, create error? No! 'Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter?' God being everywhere and all-inclusive, how can He be absent or suggest the absence of omnipresence and omnipotence? How can there be more than all?" (p. 287).

THE HISTORY OF PUBLIC SCHOOL MUSIC IN THE UNITED STATES

(By ALBERT W. RIDER)

The next period extending from 1865 to 1905 was concentrated upon music reading. The special music teacher began to disappear rapidly and regular teachers were required to teach the music under the direction of a supervisor. "There was a growing distrust of the rote song approach to music reading, and song-singing itself became an object of suspicion, as being merely entertaining without helping directly to a mastery of the printed page. The music supervisor had had little guide except the printed suggestions in the music books, supplemented by his own pedagogical ability. Thus he became more or less a law unto himself, a condition highly favorable for developing individual initiative, and out of which grew a characteristic feature of the period; namely, the editing and publishing of a large number of school-music readers." (Birge). Connected with the development of new music books is the name of Hosea Deson Holt. He worked out a new plan of music instruction for the elementary grades which was so distinctly his own that it became known as the Holt method. Then in addition with John W. Tufts, who edited and composed the music for the books required, the "Normal Music Course" was published. They soon found it took more than a book to teach music; teachers needed training in methods of presentation, etc. The first step in this direction was taken by Mr. Holt who, in 1884, opened a summer school at Lexington, Massachusetts, for the training of music supervisors. It attracted students from many states, both beginners and experienced supervisors.

Immediately many new books, courses, and systems were put on the market. Luther Mason revised his "National Music Course" and called it the "New National Music Course"; Richardson and Company published "The American Music System"; The John Church Company published the "Model Music Course"; and in the same year, 1895, the American Book Company published the "Natural Course in Music" which was to make an important contribution to school-music pedagogy. The course was compiled by Frederick H. Ripely and Thomas Tapper. After ten years of popularity the "Normal Music Course" proved that, though the child mastered the tonal and rhythmic problems by means of its elaborate drill, they could not combine them so as to read music readily. It was this situation, then, that Ripely and Tapper attempted to improve in their "Natural Music Course." Their largest problem seemed to be the elimination of the so-called theory of music, the object being the idea of having nothing unmusical entering into the presentation.

The scale drill methods, which these various courses had brought into use for the past fifteen years, were beginning to show their fruit. Exhibitions were given which proved the efficiency of the children, but when it came to reading those same intervals in music, the ability was lacking. The children had a lot of training in drill work but none in reading music, as it is written in the ordinary way. Consequently, a new Elijah of music came forth in the person of Sterrie A. Weaver of Westfield, Mass. It was his mission to revise a system by which all paraphernalia would be left out and by which every child could be taught to read music. In the year 1900 he became editor of the public school department of the Musical Courier, and he also established at Westfield his summer school for supervisors. As a teacher his only working tools were the blackboard, his voice, and the voices of the children. He did away with all unnecessary charts, pointers, ladders, modulators, etc. The key to his method was the individual singing child. His plan was flexible enough to meet the needs of the varying abilities of the children and in this respect his contribution was the main one of the period. Along with Mr. Weaver was Francis E. Howard of Bridgeport, Connecticut, who did a great deal for the correct use of the child voice. His book, the "Child Voice in Singing," proved of great value to music supervisors.

Summing up this period of music reading then, in which the special music teacher evolved into the supervisor who directed the grade teacher, we find three outstanding achievements: First, the solution of the reading problem. Second, the discovery of the child voice. And third, the individual singing child.

Purebred Ram Truck Coming October 14th

For the fourth time in as many years, plans have been made for the Purebred Ram truck to again visit Charlevoix county. This affords a real opportunity for our sheep raisers to personally see a fine group of rams, to know the points to look for in a proper selection, and to understand real type.

The first meeting will be held at the farm of Bert Lumley, located on the Deer Lake road, three miles south of Boyne City, on Wednesday forenoon, October 14, at 10:30 o'clock. The second meeting will be held at the farm of Ed. Graham, located on Barnard road and about four miles south of Charlevoix on Wednesday afternoon, October 14, at 2:00 o'clock.

The kind and grade of ram used this fall will determine to a large extent the grade of lambs to be marketed next year, and this in itself will have an important bearing on whether the enterprise of sheep husbandry will show profit or loss. Prices on rams this fall are much lower than last. On the truck you will see rams all the way from $20 and up to around $40, so you will have the opportunity of selecting the kind of ram that you can afford.

Remember the ram is half of your flock and for best results use a good ram. Mark down the dates of these purebred ram truck meetings on your calendar and be sure to attend your nearest meeting on Wednesday, October 14.

Home Furnishing Project Leaders Will Hold Second Lesson

The second lesson of the 1931 home furnishing project will be given by Miss Gertrude Reis, extension specialist in home furnishing, from Michigan State college, at Charlevoix and Boyne City, on October 14 and 15 respectively.

The second lesson in the project will deal largely with color in the home. Miss Reis believes that every home can be made more attractive by adding more color. By following a few simple guides, beautiful color combinations may be made that will add beauty to home decorations. Color may be used to conceal conspicuous and ugly furnishings. We take pleasure in harmonious colors because they introduce cheer, interest and restfulness into the home.

Our classes and groups are not filled to capacity so we are anxious to organize additional groups to carry on the work. This work is entirely free of charge and touches the problems of home life that all homemakers are deeply interested in. Notify your county agent if you think that your community should be taking advantage of this splendid opportunity. Do it at once so that no time will be lost.

Let us supply your table with the best foods at lowest prices. PAY-N-TAK-IT Grocery.—Adv. 4012.

SCHOOL NOTES

Michigan Educational Association

The teachers of the Charlevoix schools returned to their work Monday morning with renewed enthusiasm after the splendid addresses heard at the M. E. A. last Thursday and Friday. The three general meetings were of unusual interest. Dr. Harry A. Overstreet, Department of Philosophy and Psychology of the College of the City of New York, spoke on "Building Minds for This Age," Tom Skeychill on "The Last of the Long Hunters," and Dr. Fisher of Ann Arbor on "Mahatma Gandhi." Divisional meetings were held for elementary, high school, rural, parent-teacher, and physical education, also section meetings were held in which each teacher received ideas and inspiration in his own subject.

New District Officers Were Elected

Supt. Carl Spitzer of Petoskey, chairman, succeeding Lars Hackett of Traverse City; Supt. Bush of Charlevoix, secretary, succeeding Supt. Curtis of Alpena.

Mrs. Ruth Dowd was elected chairman of the speech section for next year.

Football

The football game last Saturday gave the losing score to Charlevoix, but the crowd and the hand gave to their utmost in cheering our team on.

One of the main attractions at the game was the arrangement of the fences which barred the people from the field of play, and also aided the ticket sellers in making a more thorough sale to the people. The fence is about ten feet from the sidelines which enables the players more room in which to carry the ball outside without diving into the crowd.

The crowd cooperated very well in staying on the outside of the fence and giving the team room enough in which to play.

The hand turned out in great form and played many inspiring pieces which urged the crowd into a sporting mood.

Student Election

Student elections will be held this year under the supervision of the civil government class. The first school election will be held Thursday morning when the nominees are read and ballots will be issued and the voting will go on in uniform style. The only election will be for yell-leaders.

Possibly, if this election turns out all right, and the classes wish to do so, the class officers will be elected by this method.

Changes in High School

Many changes have been made this year in and around the school building which aid the students and teachers in many ways. This year we have a reading room, which is combined with the principal's office. This aids the students in many ways because they may go into the room at any time and magazines and other good forms of reading material is at their disposal for their class work.

Also many changes have occurred in the population of the assembly. Last year the enrollment was 245, but it is only 170 now due to the transferring of the freshmen to the junior high building and seats have been removed allowing more floor space.

Thus the students are much more comfortable than last year because of the less congested traffic while classes are passing, and at dismissal.

Home Economics Classes

For the past two weeks the ninth grade home economic classes have been engaged in the canning of fruits and vegetables. They have now completed this project and are beginning the dinner unit. Later they will be given the privilege of serving some of these dinners.

Last week the eighth grade girls were taught the proper breakfasts and how to serve and eat correctly.

GIVE MORE LABOR INSTEAD OF DOLE

the counties, Chairman Albert Carlisle of the Grand Traverse county commission said that county is ready to match any activity in Northwestern Michigan.

Marcus Hoyt, chairman of the Leelanau county commission, drew applause with his terse report of the number of men employed during the year in Leelanau county.

"This year we employed an average of 45 men in January, February and March," he said. "In May, June, July and August we employed an average of 134 men. Our payroll for the year up to September 15 averaged more than $7,000 a month. We anticipate employing 120 men during October, from 75 to 100 during November and 25 during December. That is as far as our plans have gone."

James T. Milliken, president of the Traverse City Chamber of Commerce, gave a brief talk, emphasizing the dependence of this section of the state upon improved highways.

CLOSING OUT SALE

Again, as in past years, citizens of Charlevoix and vicinity will have the opportunity of laying in their winter supply of groceries at prices in some instances less than wholesale. The sale starts Saturday of this week and continues until everything is sold out. There will be no restrictions—everything must be sold, and at prices quoted it means a great savings on all classes of merchandise. Remember, the sale starts

Saturday, October 10th

and continues until the entire stock is sold

INTEREST GROWING IN GAYLORD POTATO SHOW

Premier Potato Growing Contest Will Have Many Contestants

The Premier Potato Growers contest held in connection with the Ninth Annual Top O' Michigan Potato Show at Gaylord October 28, 29 and 30, is attracting unusual attention this year, according to J. J. Bird, potato specialist at the Michigan State college, who has charge of this contest.

Each of the five district potato shows offers $25 to a state fund to pay the expenses of the state winner on a trip to some potato producing section outside the state. Each of the five district shows pick their winner who competes in the state contest at East Lansing during farmers week.

In addition to representing the Top O' Michigan district at the state show, the local winner will receive a prize amounting to $25.

The contest is based on the production of five acres, and winner judged on yield, quality and showmanship.

All yields must be taken under the direct supervision of J. J. Bird.

Dave Reiser of Hawks, Presque Isle county, won the local and state contest last year and made a trip to Pennsylvania, Washington, New York and Niagara Falls late in August.

Mr. Reiser will appear on the program of the certified seed growers' luncheon on Wednesday of the show, and tell some of the experiences of his trip.

TRAVERSE CITY BANKS IN MERGER LAST WEEK

Move Considerably Strengthens Bank Situation in That City

Traverse City banking institutions were strengthened last week by the consolidation of the First National bank and the Peoples Savings bank. Bank stockholders and depositors held a joint meeting last Monday night to discuss the proposed merger and the plan received unanimous approval of about 1,500 persons directly interested. Judge Parm C. Gilbert was chairman of the meeting.

The combined institutions will select a new name, elect new directors and officers, thus giving Traverse City a new banking firm, larger and more powerful.

It is said that Traverse City business men and the bankers themselves have long felt such a move should be made, that city not needing three banking institutions. This will give her two very powerful banking units, the Traverse City State bank being the other one.

LEGION PLANNING TO AID NEEDY FAMILIES

Urge Farmers Bring Surplus Produce for Winter Distribution

Commander Lee C. Allard of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, in outlining a plan of relief for local victims of the present economic depression who are without the means to provide proper food for themselves and their families, wished to urge the farmers of Charlevoix county who have surplus crops of foodstuffs or fruit to donate such surplus to the American Legion for distribution among the needy.

Potatoes, beans, apples, etc., and even articles of clothing can be used to advantage and Legion members agree to assist in harvesting or take over the entire work of gathering the supplies in cases where the farmer cannot devote the necessary time to it.

The plan is being put into effect with very gratifying results in other communities, through the instrumentality of the Legion, and it is hoped that it will prove of equal benefit here. The basement of the Legion home affords excellent cold storage for the produce and a good central point for distribution.

pleted, as was also the kick for extra point.

The game came to a close after East Jordan had intercepted another Charlevoix pass and punted over the goal.

During the contest, Charlevoix punted 17 times and Jordan 13. The visitors completed 12 out of 15 passes, three for touchdowns, while Charlevoix completed one out of nine and had two intercepted. East Jordan made five first downs to Charlevoix's one in the first half, and eleven to Charlevoix's one in the second, showing clearly the margin of their superiority.

John Ferenz of Traverse City, again handled the contest as referee. Snow fence was used effectively to keep spectators off the side-lines. The school band, under its leader, Albert Rider, appeared on the field in uniform and furnished music throughout the game.

Charlevoix's gridgers will probably take things easy for several days now before starting preparations for their next tilt. An open date for the coming Saturday has not been filled as yet, and Coach Kipke will point his team for the Charlevoix contest here October 17th.

LEGION TO HOLD AN- OTHER STAG AFFAIR

County-Wide Welfare Meeting to Precede Card Party Tuesday

Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, will hold another of its popular stag parties on Tuesday evening, October 13, at the Legion home.

Each member is urged to invite as many outside men as possible and furnish tables, cards and score pads, as formerly. Refreshments will be served by an ex-nrmy cook who has a bad memory for faces, so if anyone wants to line up for the second or third helping, he can probably get away with it.

Prior to the card party, at 7:30 p. m., there will be a meeting of the local post, attended by members of the Boyne City and East Jordan posts who are going to cooperate with Charlevoix Legionnaires in welfare work in the county. A number of business men of those cities will also attend the session.

ODD FELLOWS - MASONS PLAN CRIBBAGE MEETS

Series of Six Contests Will Be Started First Monday of November

The I. O. O. F. and Masonic lodges are looking forward to some pleasurable meetings during the fall and winter months, according to plans announced by the entertainment committees of the two fraternal orders.

Arrangements are now under way for a series of preliminary cribbage contests to start with the initial session at the Odd Fellow hall the first Monday evening in November. The contests will continue each Monday evening, alternating between the two lodge meeting places for six consecutive weeks. Four prizes, two to the high scorer of each lodge, and two to the low scorers, will be awarded at the completion of the series. The contests will start at 8 o'clock sharp each Monday evening.

Following the preliminary series, another regular contest between the two lodges similar to that held last winter, will probably be conducted.

S. O. Sorensen is secretary of the contest committee. Contestants may register at any time prior to or during the contest. Eight games will be played each evening.

LARGE CROWD AT LEAGUE MEETING

promise it bore for the future of the church. The young people have had the best year yet, in spite of the special difficulties of these peculiar times. Arrangements were started to provide a handsome cup, or a banner, for the Epworth League carrying off the honors at the next convention to be held at Petoskey.

The organization of work in the Epworth League is interesting, and many do not understand what an opportunity it affords young people. There are four departments, each with a vice-president at its head. First, spiritual work, with the Sunday devotional meetings, and similar work, in charge. The second, on missionary work, both home and foreign, with a special mission study class of six weeks held in the winter, and other missionary activities. Third, the social service and welfare work, including civics, peace and war studies, charities, law enforcement, etc. Fourth, the recreation department, providing recreation and fun and clean and wholesome social entertainment.

INDIANS DEFEATED BY ALBA BALL CLUB

Seventeen Errors Proved Their Undoing in Sunday Contest

Charlevoix Indians hit a decided slump last Sunday and dropped a 16 to 11 decision to Alba at north side ball park.

Although out-hit 13 to 6 during the contest, Alba took advantage of 17 Charlevoix errors to win. Colby was not up to his usual form, allowing six hits in addition to walking nine batters, and this, combined with poor support, proved the undoing of the Indians.

Although runs were freely made, the game was close, being tied in the seventh inning. Alba's rally in the 8th put the game on ice and produced enough scores to offset Amos John's performance of fanning three straight batters to retire the winners in the 9th frame.

Unless arrangements are complete for the previously announced game with Traverse City All-Stars at Traverse next Sunday, the Indians have closed their season. To date, nothing is certain about the Traverse contest.

Whether they play again or not, Manager Glen Rose's 1931 team will go down on the records as one of the best ball clubs representing this city in recent years. The winning column shows victories over Northern Michigan's best teams and decidedly more wins than losses.

KEYHILL LECTURES OUTSTANDING MONDAY

Appreciative Audiences Heard Famous Lecturer at Gymnasium

Charlevoix citizens and the school faculty, the latter responsible for the appearance here Monday of Tom Keyhill, famous lecturer, were justified in their expectations by the three addresses the speaker gave at the gymnasium Monday.

An impromptu talk, at 1 o'clock, "The Writing on the Wall of Russia" at 4:15, and "Last of the Long-hunters," Keyhill's evening lecture, were all that they had been advertised and even more so to those who availed themselves of the opportunity of hearing him.

SUPERVISORS IN OCTOBER SESSION

ECONOMY KEY-NOTE OF SESSIONS OPENED MONDAY

Move to Cut County Normal Appropriation, Elimination of Interest and Sinking Tax High Lights

Charlevoix county supervisors opened their annual October session at the Charlevoix court house Monday morning with a full roll call present, and are now busily engaged with the mass of business at hand.

Economy appears to be the keynote of the present session, with the ultimate result that some drastic cuts in county expense will likely be made before the session comes to a close. Up to the present time all has been harmonious, but at least two propositions have been brought up that may provide fireworks before settled definitely.

A reluctance in some quarters to continue the usual appropriation for maintenance of the Charlevoix county normal came unheralded and as a surprise. The matter was brought up Monday afternoon and Tuesday education officials were given a hearing before the board on the proposition. Supt. Gerold F. Bush of Charlevoix schools; Wm. C. Palmer, county school commissioner; Miss Pearl Biege, normal principal; Mrs. E. J. Hiller, president, and Wm. Hickel, member of the Charlevoix board of education, in turn explained the conduct and benefits students derive from the normal. It was pointed out that the training available was on a par with that at state normal institutions and equal to the first year of college, among other things.

Supt. Close of Boyne City, presented the only dissenting argument, giving mainly as his reasons for opposition the present trend toward economy and surplus of teachers both in the county and state. In closing, Supt. Bush expressed surprise that a person in the educational field would entertain such views and present them as an argument towards curtailment of the normal.

The county has previously given in the neighborhood of $1,000 yearly towards the normal. The Charlevoix board of education provides a similar sum and the state $3,000.

The matter has been referred back to the ways and means committee. We believe the county normal system has sufficient backers among supervisors at large to hold its present financial support from the county. Objections apparently are backed by solons from the east portion of the county. The proposition has mild endorsement of a "steal" and the favorable element should be on their toes in case the matter is brought to a vote.

Monday afternoon the report of the interest and sinking fund committee, recommending a 3 mill tax to retire bonds and interest, was passed by the board. Through an unexpected move Tuesday, previous action was rescinded and the matter given back to the ways and means committee for further discussion and action. A move is afoot to retire bonds with the $183,125.91 now secured in the interest and sinking fund and then renew the balance of $56,599.09, principal and interest, when due.

The plan as we see it, has both good and bad merits. Under present economic conditions, a three mill reduction in taxes would be mighty welcome in many cases, providing the board takes this action. However, the bonds have to be paid in the long run, and postponement may make the burden even harder later on. If the bonds are renewed it means more interest.

Several requests for appropriations have been referred to the ways and means committee. Dr. Carleton Dean reported work of the District Health Unit, of which he is director, and asked that an appropriation for maintenance of offices here be continued.

School Commissioner Palmer asked for an appropriation of $200 for purchase of work books for county schools, also for funds to defray expenses of a county school census. He was asked to present a report in writing, giving the estimated cost, of census.

Hugh J. Gray, secretary of the Michigan Tourist & Resort association; Mrs. Baker, representing the Starr Commonwealth, and John A. Newville, secretary of the Soldier's and Sailors' Relief Commission, appeared before the board, asking for customary appropriations to the organizations they represent.

At Wednesday morning's session, the board heard the reports of the insurance and park committees and then adjourned to await a joint session between the county road commission and road committee of the board of supervisors. The report was to have been given this afternoon.

DEER CREEK POND OPEN YEAR AROUND

Removal from Trout Classification Allows Hook and Line Angling

Efforts of county conservation officers have been successful in opening Deer creek pond to hook and line fishing for species in which there is an open season at any time through the year.

Deer creek pond, once famous trout water, has become over-run with pike which have migrated down from Deer lake. County sportsmen will hail this move as a distinctive conservation act, giving them an opportunity to rid the pond of pike and possibly restock the waters with trout again.

Conservation Officers Deuell and Fike have recommended the action for several years.

LEGION AUXILIARY ELECTED OFFICERS

MRS. GEORGE KELDERHOUSE NOW HEADS ORGANIZATION

Plans to Join Legion Welfare Campaign Outlined at Meeting Last Friday Evening

Charlevoix American Legion Auxiliary elected officers and outlined their program of winter activities at a meeting held last Friday evening at the Legion headquarters on East Garfield avenue.

Mrs. George Kelderhouse is the new Auxiliary president, succeeding Mrs. Lee Allard, who has been the presiding officer since organization last summer. Mrs. Albert Taylor was appointed secretary, and the following officers were re-elected.

Vice-president, Mrs. Wm. Goss; treasurer, Mrs. Sam King; chaplain, Mrs. A. J. Rohfus; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Eva McGhan; color bearers, Mrs. C. H. Sternberg and Mrs. Charles Hamlin; musician, Mrs. Lee Allard; Harry Walstead, Mrs. Harold Withers and Mrs. Lee Allard were chosen members of the social committee, and Mrs. Ray Hamilton head of the publicity committee. Regular meetings will be held the first Monday evening of each month at 8 o'clock.

The Auxiliary has joined hands with the Legion boys in their county-wide welfare campaign to aid the needy during the coming winter. The women will put forth every effort to gather clothing for distribution and will take over this branch of the work entirely. They are broadcasting requests that second-hand articles of clothing be sent to the Legion quarters, where they will be repaired and given to those in want.

The Legion's welfare drive will be the chief topic of discussion at a county-wide Legion meeting to be held here tonight. Members of East Jordan and Boyne City posts, together with business men and others interested in the work are coming here on invitation of the local Legionnaires to complete an organization to handle the drive.

From many quarters have come offers to donate vegetables, fruit, etc., for the Legion welfare campaign. All that remains is to perfect a county-wide organization to handle the task of gathering and distributing supplies, and these matters will be worked out at the meeting tonight.

TOWNSHIP ROAD FUND ANNOUNCED

STATE TO APPORTION TWO MILLION NEXT JULY

Charlevoix County, With 557.9 Miles of Township Roads, Will Receive $18,498.78

Apportionment of the first $2,000,000 to counties under the provisions of the McNitt bill under which counties will take over township road systems in a five-year period has been announced by Grover C. Dillman, state highway commissioner.

The first year's funds to be turned over to counties out of the state highway receipts will be $2,000,000 and will be increased $500,000 annually until it reaches $4,000,000. This amount will be given annually thereafter. The first payment will be made July 1, 1932.

Dillman's report showed that there are 60,317 miles of township roads to be ultimately taken over by the counties, 12,063 miles of which will be taken over next year. On this basis the counties receive payment on a schedule of $167 per mile.

Charlevoix county's share of the first apportionment is given at $18,498.78, based on a total of 557.9 miles. This amount is a trifle more than was anticipated by the county road commission following preliminary estimates.

The following table, prepared by Ernest Peaslee, clerk of the county road commission, gives the total miles of township roads in the county by townships:

Bay	26.6
Boyne Valley	36.2
Chandler	42.1
Charlevoix	6.9
Evangeline	15.8
Eveline	32.4
Hayes	46.5
Hudson	45.0
Marion	48.5
Melrose	36.4
Norwood	20.8
Peaine	58.8
South Arm	55.2
St. James	25.6
Total	557.9

The county road commission will take over one-fifth of the above township roads for maintenance prior to April 1, 1932. The commission is delegated full power in determining which township roads shall be transferred each year, although their decision is passed upon by the state highway commission.

COUNTY PROJECTS ON STATE ROAD PROGRAM

U. S. 31 to Get 1.8 Miles Concrete—Widen Grade on M-75

According to United Press reports published Tuesday, Charlevoix county will benefit through two projects approved by the state highway department as a part of the $10,000,000 emergency winter highway program being mapped out for employment relief. A third will indirectly benefit the county.

As far as Charlevoix is concerned, the most important project approved is the construction of 1.8 miles of concrete on U. S. 31, south, which may be construed as meaning the relocation of this highway to enter the city on South Bridge street.

Widening of grade on M-75 from Boyne Falls to Boyne City is listed, also grading and drainage structure on M-66 north of Manacelon for a distance of 8.6 miles.

The projects must still be passed by the administrative board before they are offered for contract, and this will be speeded up as much as possible to get the work under way this fall.

According to the plan, contractors will be bound to hire unemployed from the district in which the projects are located. County road commissions will be asked to provide a list of such men.

CAMP CHARLEVOIX PLANS BIG PARTY

WILL REPEAT HALLOWE'EN AFFAIR OF TWO YEARS AGO

"Hard-Time" Costumes, Old-Time Dancing, Contests, Etc., to Be Program October 29th

A coming event of interest to everyone of this region is the big "Depression" Halloween party to be held at Camp Charlevoix clubhouse Friday evening, October 29th.

According to Lewis C. Reimann, director of the camp, the party this year will be similar to the one held there two years ago when over 600 people were present to enjoy the Halloween fun, old-time dances, fortune telling, pie-eating contest, apple-bobbing and the many other funny stunts prepared by the committee.

Twelve sets of square dancers were in action at one time on the big floor of the mess hall. People from the entire Northern Michigan region were present for the fun with "hard-time" costumes predominating. Dignity was forgotten as everyone threw themselves into the spirit of the party for a good time. No one will be allowed to come dressed up this year, either. Neckties and fancy clothes are "tabu" and there will be a committee of special police appointed to "arrest" anyone violating the rules. Offenders must face the presiding "judge" and pay whatever fine he imposes for infractions of the rules.

Brown's orchestra from Boyne City, has been procured to furnish music for old-time and round dances. Some of the best callers of the region will call the square dances. Mr. Reimann stated a large quantity of pumpkin pies are being prepared for the pie-eating contest, which two years ago was won by Clair Webster of this city.

The dancing and fun will start promptly at 8 o'clock and continue until the last couple is ready to leave. A committee headed by Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Bird will assist Mr. Reimann. Refreshments will be served and a small charge of fifty cents made to cover expense of the party.

Mr. Reimann stated that no special invitation is necessary. The party is open to everyone who cares to come.

MORE GAS TAX MONEY PAID IN

Collections Show Increase Despite Loss in Motor Registrations

Despite the fact that there are estimated to be 70,000 fewer automobiles operated in Michigan this year as compared with 1930, Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, reported substantial increases in the collection of gas tax moneys during the last August.

Total collections in August, 1931, were reported as $2,382,091 compared with $2,552,370 during August, 1931. Net receipts, after deducting refunds, were $2,171,054 in 1930, compared with $2,380,986 last August.

STATE WILL GIVE 30,000 MEN WORK

HUGE HIGHWAY PROGRAM OUTLINED BY GOV. BRUCKER

Ten Million Dollars Will Be Expended in Road Projects Over Five Month Period

Political and industrial leaders of Michigan are mapping an emergency program under which the state in the next five months will spend $10,000,000 in highway construction to relieve unemployment.

Friday afternoon in a special session the state administrative board authorized Highway Commissioner Grover C. Dillman to undertake the program which will be temporarily financed by private Detroit capital.

Saturday the board met with the executive committee of Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker's special unemployment commission to select projects which will be located in areas which most need relief.

The private capital will be refunded by the state next spring when collections from the auto weight tax commence.

Governor Brucker estimates that the program will provide employment to 30,000 men in addition to the 3,600 which normally would be employed during the winter in maintenance work.

Approval of the road program by the board came late Friday afternoon after the governor had outlined it to his unemployment commission which held its first session in the house of representatives chamber. He said that while it would be perhaps the state's largest concrete contribution to the solution of the unemployment problem this winter he may find it necessary to call a special session of the legislature to provide special sources of revenue for welfare work.

To the commission the governor also expressed unalterable opposition to any system of dole.

In emphasizing his belief that provision of employment is the state's best course in the economic crisis, the governor said that it will be "up to the counties" to provide welfare relief.

At the same time he warned that he expects that citizens shall play their "equitable" part in relieving unemployment suffering. He said that if sufficient funds are not raised locally to care for the problem "it will become my positive duty to take recourse to the second best method and to recommend to the legislature that it secure necessary funds by compulsory methods."

The $10,000,000 highway program sponsored by the governor proposes advancement of a portion of next summer's construction program to this winter. Funds for the financing of the work will not be available until sale of the 1932 license plates is started, and to meet this situation the governor said that he and other state officers have been in negotiation with Detroit financiers.

He said he has been given assurance that the Detroit institutions will finance contractors until the state is able to make payment in the spring. The transaction will not involve the faith and credit of the state.

CHARLEVOIX-CHEBOY- GAN GAME SATURDAY

Local Elovon Takes on Undeafated Class B. Team at South Side Field

Charlevoix high school football team will renew its activities Saturday following a two weeks' rest when they take on the undefeated class B Cheboygan aggregation at south side athletic field.

Following Charlevoix's defeat at the hands of East Jordan, Coach Kipke has been putting his men through strenuous drills to iron out some of the weak spots apparent in previous games. A re-vamped lineup, stronger and much wiser, will face Cheboygan here Saturday in an attempt to regain lost laurels.

Cheboygan is undefeated so far this season and has one of the strongest teams representing the school in recent years. An interesting game should be in prospect.

E. S. Carrol circulated a petition in the village last week and secured fifty signers asking the school board to return to eastern standard time, but it did not appear to have much influence with them. Mrs. Cobb, Sr., was quite badly injured a few weeks ago when the car she was riding in was struck by another car, driven by a drunken driver. Times are bad enough now, but how would it be if intoxicating liquor was allowed to be sold at almost any place.

Dr. Duffie has been giving medical assistance to Agnes and Mildred Dewey, daughters of Forest Dewey of Ellsworth. It at first was thought they were afflicted with infantile paralysis, but it later developed as a case of dysentery. The Warner children near Alden, whom Dr. Duffie is attending, are improving, and no new cases have developed since the death of the little child three years old. Paul Hjelta of Creswell is able to attend school again. He was immediately inoculated by blood transfusion from his brother, Leonard, the school teacher. Leonard Hjelta and Carl Ohman of Creswell, furnished blood for transfusion to the Alden children, the Pelhams at Bellaire, and the Sweet children at Kewadin. All patients have recovered splendidly. The Misner children of Chestonia did not have infantile paralysis. Carl Ohman and Leonard Hjelta were doing quite well in the transfusion business. They received $5 for each case.

CHAPTER VII

By Lone Camp Fires

That gray dawn when he said good-bye to Joyce at Fort Endurance, Baker set off alone on a journey of a thousand miles. Instead of heading north-east toward the Thul-Azzah where the bandits were hiding, he turned his canoe prow directly away from them and started south, up the Mackenzie. He did not delude himself about his plan. It was little better than a desperate gamble, and he knew it. But the usual man-hunting methods were useless against those criminals; and his plan was the last thing in the world they would be expecting.

By traveling in his own motor canoe, depending entirely on his own resources, he expected to cut ten days from the fastest time of the fur-company boats.

In those lonely hours, as he stared in reverie at the shimmering pine hills, it was borne in upon Alan that he had forever cut himself off from life here in this North country. He felt as though he had been torn up by the roots. The system he had founded at Fort Endurance had been his own creation. He had been a builder in his own right. From the ground up, Fort Endurance belonged to him. He and Curt and Jimmy had cut the very timber for barracks and cabins. The work had been his particular work in life. "Sergeant Baker of Endurance" stood for something. There was just one such man in the Dominion. Now he was cut off from it, an alien of lost identity, never to be a part of it, the guiding genius of it again.

On the third day he met a lone-fire Indian, a young Chipewyan wandering aimlessly, with some secret personal tragedy preying on him. Alan took him into the motor canoe, and together they traveled on. Hardly speaking a dozen words a day, they worked on up the Mackenzie, sleeping by turns, spelling each other at the motor. Raising a blanket sail to a northeast wind, they scudded across the island-dotted lake from Resolution, and whipped up the Quatre Fourches delta toward Fort Smith.

Watching the dim clouded stars above him, Alan looked steadily at the two girls who had loomed so large upon his mind. In this last week a cataclysm had happened in his life, breaking into the old order, blasting the even routine of week and month and season. It had opened his eyes in a deeper way than ever before to the preciousness of his intimacy with Joyce, to the priceless quality of their former comradeship. Now, when it was irrevocable, he was asking himself whether the motive and powerful circumstance which had actuated him were humanly justifiable. Had not he and Joyce had a right to happiness? Had he, in his stern sacrifice, been blind to the needs of the human heart?

Tired out by days of incessant travel, he fell asleep at last, and dreamed that in his cabin he had been Joyce, not Elizabeth, whose arm had been around him and who was waiting for him when this lone adventure should be ended.

At Fort Smith the heavy rains had rendered the sixteen-mile portage impossible to teams and to the motor trucks which piled that stretch. Alan dared not wait; his days were too precious. In his decision to go on, his young Chipewyan friend stuck with him. Shouldering their craft, they plodded stolidly across that slippery, red-clay stretch to Fitzgerald.

"Among the north-bound crowd waiting there, he spotted the tall, slightly stooped figure of Superintendent Williamson, who was going north to inspect the down-river posts. The superintendent was the last person in the world whom Alan wanted to meet. His first superior officer when he graduated from the "Awkward Squad," Williamson had been good to him and taken a fatherly interest in his brilliant work. What would he say when he learned that his protégé had bought out and deserted the Force? . . . "Your commission wasn't forthcoming, so you quit? Your loyalty to our work went no deeper than that?" In his eyes a quitter was worse than a gross incompetent.

Passing by, ten feet away, Williamson merely nodded slightly and said, "Good luck, Baker."

Alan understood. He thought: "In civilian clothes, so far away from Endurance. . . . He thinks I'm on some detective detail. Good Lord, when he finds I'm out, hanged out—"

Williamson's esteem was a precious thing to Alan, as precious as a father's. An impulse swept him to talk with the superintendent and tell him the whole sorry story. But there was the matter of that signed affidavit. Alan refused to go back on that; and even if he did he would literally be branding himself a liar. What did his personal feud with Haskell matter now? He was out of the Mounted. And the superintendent would try to stop his venture if he heard, for it was beyond the law.

He allowed Williamson to go past. Setting their boat to water, he and the young Chipewyan hurried on to the great delta-mouth of the Peace, where they caught up with a steamer going on to McMurray. The young Indian wanted to turn west to the Rockies and see the Land of Ice Mountains. Giving him the motor canoe and the outfit, Alan shook hands, said Kiawewya, and went aboard the boat.

In his cabin, with the steamer throbbing on toward Stood-Kind, Alan wondered what Joyce's reaction would be if he should go to her and frankly tell her about that tragic incident in his life which had brought about his engagement to Elizabeth. Joyce would understand his motive. She would no longer think he'd acted of his own free will. Perhaps if she knew this truth, she might allow him to resume their old intimacy. . . . But Elizabeth, what of her? She was waiting, waiting there at Endurance, for him to marry her. In honor and faith he could not break away now. That secret and powerful circumstance still bound him and would bind him to her all his life.

A half-mile up in the fleecy clouds, up above the pretty city of Edmonton, Mr. "Buzzard" Featherfoot was dropping out toy parachutes carrying free cakes and printed matter of the E-Z Kleen Soap and Washing Powder Company, Ltd.

He was tired, stiff, hungry and lude, scribbled bored.

During the late war Buzzard had knocked an assorted number of Fokkers, Taubers and Albatrosses out of the air; had come down himself a couple of times rather precipitately; and once, commanding a five-plane "crews," had brought down a Super-Zeppelin in the Channel after it had dropped its "eggs" in cabbage patches around darkened London.

Since his return to Canada, Buzzard had taken a fling at aerial map-making in British Columbia; had worked a season with the Manitoba Fire Prevention as a "smoke hawk"; had bombed papier-mache French chateaux down amid the flowers and climate of Los Angeles.

Recently, tired of working for other folk, he had raked together some money and brought a machine of his own, which he now was flying.

It was a queer nameless contraption, this monoplane of his—an assemblage of piano wire, canvas, spruce and iron, held together by luck and Buzzard's wizardry at flying. It had originally been a White Speedster with "Jenny" engine, but he had re-doped the fabric and put in a second-hand Whirlwind and equipped it with third-hand under-gear of the float-wheel type, and overhauled it generally till little of the original machine remained. Only his warm friendship with the aviation inspector kept it from being junked. But somehow—and this is the rock-bottom test of any flying machine—it had never yet come down before Buzzard wanted it to. And it did have speed; anything lacking speed would never have satisfied him. Such as it was, it was his very own; and no mother was ever prouder of a conserved, snazzy-bellied child than Buzzard was of his White Speedster.

He was, however, ambitious to get a big new De Havilland, so that he could safely take up a girl down to Kamloops and carry her along with him on his airy path of life. But with no advertising or big company to back him, Buzzard had found this free-lance work to be tough sledding. Had found difficulty keeping up repairs on his old machine, let alone getting a new one. Jobs were sheer accidents. Except for the faint possibility of murdering some more grass-hoppers over near High Hat, the work he was finishing this noon was the last thing in sight.

As he heaved overboard the last of the E-Z Kleen Soap and printed matter, and headed back for the landing field, he yawned and swore: "The devil with this peace-time stuff! Oh Lord, I wish they'd bring on another unpleasantness."

It was in some such frame of mind, as he landed and crawled out of the cockpit, that he saw a tall lanky individual, in lace boots, khaki trousers, jacket and gray hat, get out of a waiting taxi and saunter toward him.

The stranger, as he came up, looked at the machine with that peculiar respectful gaze of a person who has never flown in one.

STANDARD OIL TO ADVERTISE NEW GASOLINE

Story of New Gasoline and Proof of Motor Oils Feature Campaign

Standard Oil Company of Indiana has announced plans to carry out in the remaining months of 1931 the biggest advertising and sales campaign the company has ever undertaken in so short a period.

Directors have decided that the way to end the trench warfare with depression is to go over the top in something resembling in a business way what a major offensive is in warfare.

Advertising is to lay down the preliminary and prolonged intensive bombardment of gloom and hard times. And as the barrage prepares the way, the foot soldiers of the sales organization are to follow with a determined onslaught to secure new business.

Introducing New Gasoline

The advertising campaign begun October 9th and will continue until the middle of December. The main ammunition will be introduction of a new gasoline which the company has been making at refineries for some time and now has at distributing points ready for delivery, but about which the story is not being told in advance of the actual advertising.

Following a series of "teaser" ads the campaign will come out in force on October 15th with large announcements in 1,462 newspapers in the thirteen north central states in which Standard of Indiana operates. These newspapers have a circulation of 12,571,677 in a territory of 32,000,000 population where 8,371,750 cars and trucks are operating with a gasoline consumption of nearly five billion gallons a year. Follow-up advertisements will appear regularly in the following two months.

Newspaper Ads Main Reliance

The newspaper advertising which is to be the main reliance of the campaign, will be supplemented by advertising in trade, and class publications and national magazines, by radio announcements in connection with the broadcasting of the season's big middle west football games from WGN, Chicago, and by twice-a-day brief announcements on thirty-one radio stations in the territory served. Radio advertising will be used primarily to direct attention to the more extensive newspaper advertising. Copy will be changed on billboards, direct mail matter will be circulated, motion pictures will be shown, and practically all other usual forms of advertising will be employed in some supplementary way.

"Proved" Motor Oils

While the concentration will be on gasoline advertising, to which the company has devoted little of its funds previously this year, the extensive campaign on motor oils which has been in progress since last March will also be rounded out. In 130 of the leading newspapers of the territory the story of the "white fleet" of test cars with which the company's motor oils were tested this year will be completed, beginning October 18.

A feature of the motor oil advertising will be use of color ads and rotogravure. Eleven of the largest newspapers will be used for this purpose.

"Proved" is to be the catchword of the campaign, and the advertising will tell how the oils were proved in the 120,000-mile continuous driving test on the Indianapolis speedway, in the 280,000-mile road tour of the summer months, which caused the cars to be seen by thousands in 450 towns and cities, and have now finally been proved for winter driving in a series of tests in cold rooms at automobile plants.

Gasoline and motor oil advertising together will appear in 1,592 newspapers with a combined circulation of 20,737,235 and the total number of messages for both campaigns will run in the neighborhood of 154,517,614.

The gasoline advertising is being placed through the Stack-Goble Advertising Agency, the motor oil advertising through the McCann-Erickson Company, and the direct-mail campaign is in the hands of the Dorsch-Kircher Company.

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, October 11th.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the bible: "Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?" (Rom. 6:16).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "To hold yourself superior to sin, because God made you superior to it and governs man, is true wisdom. To hold yourself superior to sickness and death is equally wise, and is in accordance with divine Science. To fear them is impossible, when you fully apprehend God and know that they are no part of His creation." (p. 231).

WANTING MORE — PAYING LESS

We may get discouraged at trying to raise ourselves by our bootstraps, but we never give up hope, and never quit trying. Most of us are committed to the paradox of trying to sell dearly and buy cheaply. We want the other fellow to reduce his prices while we either keep ours at the top level or increase them as much as possible.

No one seems to want to cut his price for the benefit it will be to others. He is perfectly willing to sacrifice his wife's relations, but desires to be excused himself.

This is a perfectly natural and human thing to do. No one likes to take less than he has been getting. Each one favors an arrangement that will give him a high price for what it is he does while the general trend of prices shall be low.

Yet in the main that cannot be achieved. Wages and prices rise and fall together, or at least in sympathy with one another. One may lag and the other get out of hand, but in the long run the adjustment is certain and the ratio remains about what it always has been.

In periods of declining prices those who hold a monopoly can often keep the price of their wares up to the level it enjoyed in good times. However, even if the public is powerless to break the artificial price thus set, the public is still not without its remedy. It can and does get along without that article. It will find a substitute if possible, and if none is available, then it will use a minimum quantity of the monopoly article so that its possession is really less advantaged than if he had reduced his price along with others.

Everybody is wanting more money for what he does or what he handles. The railroads are asking for an increase in their rates. They want to make transportation more costly to their customers. They say they must have more money or they may go out of business, and they may be correct in this.

The cotton grower and the wheat raiser and the corn farmer all want more money for their crops. They want someone else to pay them more than they have been getting, but they do not in turn want to have to pay more for their supplies than they have been paying at the bottom of the market.

So it goes, everyone wanting more but not wanting to give more.

Well, prosperity will come when the railroads, and the cotton growers, and the corn farmers, and Tom, Dick and Harry generally, find their income increased and their spending facilities enhanced. When that time comes it will be an era of advancing prices. This is what happened in 1919 after the war. Everyone suddenly began to demand and to get more for whatever he had to sell. He got the public to believe that his article was of great value and the supply much under the demand, and promptly raised prices and made the rest of the folks like it.

To those of you who are looking for something cheap and who welcome reduction in prices, it may as well be said that you are in favor of the wrong thing. Prosperity will never return to this country in any era of cheap products.

Present prices are low, and to the extent they are lower than four or five years ago, they are a calamity. This country has passed the time when it can make itself rich by saving. If it ever gets rich again it will be by spending. The trouble with the situation today is there is too much saving and not enough spending. When the tide turns, and it will, its first indication will be more liberal spending and less hoarding.

And when the spending rush gets started, happy days will be here again and the sound of the saw and hammer will permeate the air, the housewife will sing as she goes about her work, and all of us will get renewed courage, and we will have to begin to worry about making new investments instead of paying our debts.

BANKING PROGRESS

During the past ten years there has been a steady decrease in the number of banks in this country, which reached its high point of 30,812 on June 30, 1921, and was down to the neighborhood of 22,500 on June 30, 1931. Mergers, voluntary liquidation and suspensions have each contributed to the reduction.

At the same time there has been a steady upward trend in the aggregate deposits, total resources and capital funds. The trend is toward fewer but larger banks and, while size alone is no guaranty of security, experience has proved that the larger institutions have a definite advantage over the smaller in the wider diversification of their loans.

Ten years ago the average American bank had a capital and surplus of approximately $176,000, deposits of $1,130,000 and total resources of $1,610,000, while today the respective figures would be approximately $430,000, $2,570,000, and $3,180,000.

DISCOUNTING GOOD MONEY

Because a few foreign countries have adopted a double standard for money it has become the excuse for a few financiers and politicians in the U. S. to throw a scare into the people about Canadian money and are discounting it from 15 to 20 per cent. Canada's financial backing is as sound as any in the world, so our advice is to just lay away what Canadian money you have on hand until the politicians get through playing with it. One "wag" says it will buy five times as much pure beer in Canada right now than it will in Michigan. Maybe the guy that started the discount idea wants to buy up a little coin and cross the border a few times.

Why be so discourteous to our most friendly neighbor, asks the Reading (Mich.) Hustler.

DEER LICENSES ARE INCREASED TO $3.50

The Game Protection Fund must be increased by from $350,000 to $500,000 during the next fiscal year.

The deer license was increased from $2.50 to $3.50 with the specific requirement that $1.50 from each license will be devoted to the purchase, maintenance and development of game refuges and adjacent public hunting grounds.

Changed costs of other licenses are:

Resident small game license, from $1.25 to $1.75.

Resident trout license, from $1.00 to $1.75.

Non-resident angler's license from $3.00 to $4.00.

Muskrat trapping license (20 traps), from $1.00 to $2.00.

BUSES AND TRUCKS MUST CARRY A NEW INSURANCE

Buses and trucks in the future will be required to carry insurance for the protection of "other users of the highway," by the new rules and regulations issued by the Public Utilities Commission.

The new regulations, based on the Green and Engel bills passed by the 1931 legislature, became effective September 28th. Heretofore buses were required to carry insurance for passengers only. The new rules require $30,000 property damage and $20,000 personal liability insurance for the protection of other motorists.

THE HISTORY OF PUBLIC SCHOOL MUSIC IN THE UNITED STATES

(By ALBERT W. RIDER)

V. The new century ushered in two forces in music education. One of those forces was the perfecting of a teaching technique which proved that every child might be taught to read music; the other was the demand for more real music, more songs having beauty and charm in the music lesson. It was the mission of the new education to blend these two viewpoints and show that children could learn to read music without destroying their love for it.

The twentieth century has seen rapid development of many new phases of public school music. The first one we shall take up is the instrumental development. Up to this time most supervisors had been vocal soloists. Consequently school music had been confined mostly to singing. A change was to come, however. The impulse for the development of orchestras in schools began in the Middle West. At first the orchestras were made up of those who had been fortunate enough to have learned to play an instrument privately. They rehearsed outside of school hours, and it was considered an extra-curricular activity. Instrumentation was limited to that of an ordinary theatre orchestra including violins, cornets, trombones, clarinets, flutes, drums, and piano, with an occasional bass or violincello. Parents did not care to invest in such instruments as oboes, bassoons, etc., and as a result someone hit upon the idea of the school purchasing the instruments. Thus, there came the question as to who would teach these instruments. Violinists were persuaded to take up bass viol, cello, or viola; cornet players changed to French horn; and clarinet players to oboe and bassoon. Instruction books and occasional private teachers helped, and the pupils passed on what they learned to each other. These orchestras were in high schools and every year a great number were lost through graduation. There was only one way to solve the problem of keeping a good orchestra; that was to maintain the grade school orchestra as a feeder for the high school orchestra; but it soon became an independent organization, and about 1910 the school band movement began to attract a lot of attention.

These orchestras and bands so recently developed were directed by the supervisor of music. It had never occurred to administrators to hire a separate instrumental teacher, but with the intense development of orchestras and bands the supervisors were unable to take care of them along with all the other music. As a result of this, came the class methods of teaching instruments. Albert G. Mitchell, a supervisor at Boston, was the first to investigate class methods. In 1910 he was given a year's leave of absence to study the violin class instruction in England. He came back and introduced the work in the Boston schools. It was known as the Mitchell Class Method. These violin classes were the beginning of orchestral drilling by sections; that is, the drilling of strings, wood wind, and brass separately, and the combination of them into the full orchestra.

The biggest achievement of school orchestras in the United States was the assembling of a National High School Orchestra in 1926 at the National Conference of Music Supervisors. The orchestra was under the direction of Joseph P. Maddy and Ossip Gabrilovitch. And now the National High School Orchestra along with the National High School Chorus has its summer camp at Interlochen, Michigan, where about three hundred players and as many singers work and play together for eight weeks during the summer time. It is planned that in 1931 the National High School Orchestra will make a tour of Europe.

VI.

Leaving instrumental development, we go to another important phase of our twentieth century public school music. That phase is music appreciation development was the use of the player-piano and the phonograph to march children in and out of school. In 1911 the Victor Company organized an educational department with Frances E. Clark in charge. Her work was to make phonograph records a means of education. Records of school song literature, folk songs and dances from all nations, music typifying various moods, styles, and forms, music illustrating different tone colors and qualities—all of these went into the libraries of phonograph companies to be used in public schools.

In connection with the appreciation, the music memory contest grew up. In 1916 the first contest was held in Westfield, New Jersey, under the supervision of Mahel Bray. The idea was brought before the national conference of music supervisors in 1918 and within five years it had swept the entire country. In 1926 it was reported that music memory contests had been introduced into 1083 cities, and in 109 counties it had been conducted on a county-wide scale. The contest vitalizes music study, increases the ability of students to work, and develops observation and memory.

When we mention music appreciation, the first name that comes to our mind is Walter Damrosch. Damrosch has introduced symphonic concerts and lectures for school children by radio. School programs are now adopting special hours for receiving the appreciation lessons which are broadcast. Such opportunities have never been available for school children before.

All of these twentieth century developments have had a part in bringing public school music closer to community music, from whence it sprang. "School music is no longer cloistered. Its spirit is that of cooperation and helpfulness. School and community are rapidly coming together. The spirit which is making America musically powerful today is the same spirit, adapted to changing conditions, of which Lowell Mason was the embodiment." (Birge.)

VII.

Thus far we have traced the progress and development of public school music. All of the progress, of course, came about through exchange of ideas and the exchange of ideas came about through meetings of those who were interested in the world. In other words, it is time to consider the music teachers' associations and the conference movement.

The oldest of these associations is the American Institute of Instruction, organized in 1830 in the city of Boston. The institute was represented by eleven states and it was here that William C. Woodbridge addressed the body in the interest of music as a school subject. In 1849 a national convention of teachers was organized, which in 1857 became the National Education Association. Then in 1884, the same year in which Horace Holt opened his Lexington summer school, a group of public school teachers, through the efforts of Luther Whiting Mason, petitioned the N. E. A. for admission as a department of the association. As a department of N. E. A. the music section divided into state associations, county associations, and district associations, so that National meetings reached only a few of those engaged in school music work. In 1897 at the meeting of the music section of the N. E. A. at Milwaukee an organization arose called "The National Federation of School Music Teachers" which flourished for three years then ceased.

The Music Section of N. E. A. continued its meetings, growing every year until in April, 1907, it became the Music Supervisors Conference which met at Keokuk, Iowa. This conference with its allied conferences has become the most important factor in the twentieth century progress of school music. The Music Supervisors' Journal, published every month, is the official organ of the conference, and it gives reports every month of the various committees at work, so that a person may keep in touch with the goings-on in public school music throughout the United States.

And now we have had the first Anglo-American Music Conference! The conference was held in Lausanne, Switzerland. One feature was of great significance; the non-English speaking countries are invited to become a part of the conference. There was a distinguished group from Germany present at the first meeting, but there was much discussion as to whether it would be profitable to risk such an expansion. The committee appointed, however, recommended: "That a conference be held again in Switzerland the summer of 1931; that other nations be invited to send delegates; that all addresses and discussions at the 1931 conference be in English; that we may look forward to future conferences at which other tongues may be heard." SCHOOL DAYS

Editorial on Leadership

In primitive days of humanity the one with the most brawn was the leader, the one who could force the execution of his wishes by physical power. Now that civilization has reached its present degree of development the position of a leader is far more admirable. Physical supremacy is no longer necessary, but mental ability is. The successful leader must have the ability to organize his workers, determine his methods of procedure and then, the diplomatic ability to carry on.

Our minds turn to this channel of thought because of the recent school election when those who are to hold positions of leadership during this school year were chosen by popular vote. The students who were singled out by their classmates to hold class offices have been honored by this display of respect and trust and we are certain they are prepared to reward this trust with the very best service to their classes that they are able to give.

Drama Club Open Meeting

On Wednesday evening, October 21, the Drama Club will hold an open meeting to which parents, teachers and students are invited. Ten cents admission will be charged which will help to purchase some books which are much needed. Three one-act plays will be presented by members of the Club.

Election Day

Friday was election day in junior and senior high. The returns were as follows:

Junior High. Seventh grade: President, Edward Hansen; vice-pres., Mildred Withers; sec'y-treas., Leslie Shapton. Eighth grade: President, Robert Pearl; vice-pres., Joseph Schwab; sec'y-treas., Hilda Roen. Ninth grade: President, William Chambers; vice-pres., Lewis Greenman; sec'y-treas., Marcia Oldham.

The class sponsors are Miss Milner, Mr. Wisenburger and Mr. Rider.

Senior High. Yell leaders: Marion Tuhy, Junior Supernaw.

The senior high elections were carried on under the direction of Miss Ferneau's Civics class.

Stop Night Coughing

Night coughing is almost always caused by an irritated, inflamed throat; so is almost all coughing. Ordinary cough syrups do not reach these conditions, but Thoxine, a prescription exclusively for throat troubles, does. It relieves the irritation and the cough stops within 15 minutes. And Thoxine goes further too. It eliminates the internal cause which many times develops into serious illness.

A swallow of Thoxine before retiring absolutely prevents night coughing and insures a good night's sleep. It gives the same speedy relief for sore throat too. It contains no chloroform or other harmful drugs and children like it. Relief is guaranteed within 15 minutes or money back. 35c, 60c, and $1.00 bottles. Sold by Central Drug Store and all other good drug stores.

Junior class: President, Lila Tillotson; vice-pres., Winfield Kirby; treas., Marjorie Carey; sec'y., Virginia Nickerson.

Glimpses Into the Class Rooms

For the past two or three weeks the fifth grade has been making an extensive study of nature. They have gone for walks in the park and have observed leaves especially. They are now collecting all the leaves they can find and mounting them on paper. They will take these sheets and make them into a leaf booklet. In this way the children become more acquainted with the many different kinds of leaves.

The General Science class is studying air temperature and air pressure.

The Advanced French class will begin the reading of a new book, "Ca et La En France." Description of a trip taken through France by an American, Mr. Bartlett, and his two sons.

The ninth and tenth grade English classes have been studying enunciation and projection of tone. It is hoped that this will aid the pupils to make clear and distinct recitations which may be heard by every member of the class.

The American History students are now very busy looking for material about the early colonies of the United States. Committees were chosen with a chairman at the head. Topics were then chosen such as: "The Maryland Colony," "The Quakers," or "The Dutch Settlements in New York." Each student took a certain part to report on. These will be presented to the class the first of next week. They are also looking for everything they can find concerning their ancestors. In other words they are hunting for their "family tree." These, they hope, will prove interesting.

Last Friday the elementary building had their first fire drill of the season. The children marched out quickly and in an orderly way, making a very good showing for the first drill.

During Miss Manson's illness Mrs. Walter Weisenburger has had charge of the fourth grade. Mrs. Weisenburger is the wife of the manual arts teacher.

Band News

Up to the present time much of the work has been to develop a "Pep" band which will appear at the athletic contests. Thus the class study has pertained mostly to marches suitable for such functions. Part of the class periods have been used for drilling, a factor which is entirely new.

It is planned that the daily class period not only be used for rehearsing, but much of the time will be spent on discussions of the different instruments of the band, theoretical work will be given, a study will be made of tone production, intonation, ear training and sight reading.

Under the present plan of instruction, try-outs are held the first week of each month. Thus students who are deserving of advancement will have an opportunity to take advantage of a higher rank as he progresses. The judging of these try-outs is not merely the sole judgment of the director, but each student must take part in selecting the candidates. The results of the try-outs held this week are as follows:

Drums: Snare, Teddy Miller, Robt. Neff; bass, Ralph Lemieur.

Cymbals: Howard Davenport.

Trombones: 1st, Carl Beattie; 2nd, Carl Bogart. Baritone: 1st, Robert Cummings; 2nd, Warren Shapton.

Alto horn: 1st, Gerald Hardy; 2nd, Harold Mayhew. Basses: 1st, John Block; 2nd, Carlton Ager.

Flutes: 1st, Marian Tyler; 2nd, Edna Knudsen.

Piccolo: James Hiller.

Oboe: Ruby Supernaw.

Alto saxophone: Walter Johnson.

Tenor saxophone: Dick Straw.

C melody saxophone: Gordon Neff.

Glee Clubs and Chorus

The girls' and boys' glee clubs meet individually on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Then on Tuesdays and Thursdays the groups combine for chorus which is under the direction of Mr. Rider, with Miss Atkinson as accompanist.

The boys' glee club will make their first appearance on Monday evening, October 19, when they will entertain the Charlevoix County Council of Religious Education at their evening meeting that day.

Those members who make up the boys' glee club are as follows: Joe Arvilla, Lloyd Arnold, Robert Cummings, Howard Davenport, Keith Kerr, George LaBlance, Ralph Lemieur, Crawford Norton, Albert McMillan, Hugh Parker, Clifford Struthers, Leo Yettaw. Accompanist is Miss Marjorie Carey.

Instrumental Classes

Instrumental classes have recently been organized for those students who wish instruction. Approximately 20 students have enrolled thus far. All students are eligible for these classes, the only requirement being that they own an instrument. The classes consist, namely, of 4th and 5th grades and junior high pupils.

Each class will meet once each week until all students are familiar with scales and have a general understanding of notation. Then in addition to the regular classes, once each week combined classes will meet for ensemble playing. In this way the students will be trained for the high school band and when they have sufficiently mastered the art of ensemble playing will be admitted to the band on their general ability.

It is urged by the director that parents take advantage of this opportunity for their children to gain a knowledge of instrumental music which is undoubtedly an asset to a child's school work. Mr. Rider will be only too happy to consult with parents on any questions they may have concerning this work.

The members of the girls' glee club are as follows: Bernice Meggison, Charlotte Hicken, Daisy Dutcher, Lucille Bogart, Kathryn Weststaff, Marion Tuhy, Marguerite Chew, Hilda Ogden, Catherine Bogart, Luella Hendricksen, Loretta Stutzman, Leona Block, Sybil Levinson, Bessie Straw, Dorothy McCartney, Neady Scott, Lila Johnson, Doris Chevatil, Delora Richardson, Winnifred Trimble.

AT THE MOVIES

Whoever Shown "My Sin" Draws Large Crowds

Supported by a large cast of well-known character players, Tallulah Bankhead, the electrifying, internationally famous stage actress, and Fredric March make their first joint bow to the screen world in "My Sin," Saturday and Sunday, a Palace theatre attraction.

Miss Bankhead's appearance in "My Sin" follows quickly after her recent sensational personal triumph in "Tarnished Lady," her first moving picture role. A daughter of Alabama's congressman, William B. Bankhead, niece of Alabama's senator, John H. Bankhead, the gorgeous new cinema star triumphed for eight years on the London stage before returning to her native land to captivate moving picture audiences.

March has been seen recently in a series of powerful roles, in "Man-slaughter," with Claudette Colbert in "Royal Family of Broadway," in "Night Angel" with Nancy Carroll. "My Sin" joins his virile talent with the exotic charm of Miss Bankhead, to make, what should be, an exciting romantic combination.

In the supporting cast are Harry Davenport, Scott Kolk, Anne Sutherland, Margaret Adams, Jay Fasset and Lily Cahill.

Elissa Landi Assists in Adapting Screen Drama

"The most intelligent actress in Hollywood!" That's what the magazine and newspaper writers call Elissa Landi, Fox Film player whose cinema star is rapidly on the rise.

This statement was recently confirmed by Allan Dwan, noted director, whose latest Fox picture, "Wicked," starring Miss Landi, opens next Wednesday at the Palace theatre.

In "Wicked," Miss Landi plays the role of a young wife, who discovers, in a shocking manner that her husband has deceived her and is not a broker, but a bank robber. When detectives track him to his home she tries to conceal him and thus falls foul of the law herself.

Miss Landi is supported by a large cast of exceptional brilliance. The leading male player is Victor McLaglen, a star in his own right, and who has become a great favorite through his masterful performances in "The Cock Eyed World," "The Black Watch," "Women Of All Nations" and "Not Exactly Gentlemen." Una Merkel, the "Dixie" star, who recently scored in Janet Gaynor's picture, "Daddy Long Legs," is also featured, as is Allan Dinehart, one of the Broadway stage's most finished actors. Other important players are Theodore von Eltz, Irene Rich, Mae Busch, Eileen Percy, Alice Lake, Ruth Donnelly and Blanche Fred-elici.

"More genuine satisfaction than any car
I ever owned"

THE FORD is good-looking. It is safe. Comfortable. Speedy. Reliable. Long-lived. Economical. Everything a good car should be.

There is, too, an added something about it that brings enthusiastic comments from every one who has ever driven a Ford . . . the joy it puts in motoring.

"I have been a car owner continuously for nearly 20 years," writes a motorist connected with a leading university. "During this period I have bought eleven new automobiles. Eight of the eleven were in the middle-price field, one cost three thousand dollars, and the last is a Ford I purchased thirteen months ago.

"In the light of this experience I can say in all sincerity that I have derived more genuine satisfaction from the Ford than any car I ever owned. In saying this, I am thinking in terms of comfort, safety, driving pleasure, ease of control and economy. My next car will also be a Ford because it will give me what I want at a price I can afford to pay."

When you get behind the wheel of the Ford and drive it yourself you will know it is a truly remarkable car at a low price. You will like it when you first buy it. You will become more and more enthusiastic the longer you drive it.

After thousands of miles of driving you will say "it's a great car." Its economy will save you many dollars.

SHAKESPEARE CLUBOPENS ITS 26TH YEAR

Buffet Luncheon at Home of Mrs. A. F. Bridge Held Monday

On Monday of this week the local Shakespeare Study Club entered its 26th year with a buffet luncheon given by the executive committee consisting of Mrs. R. B. Armstrong, president; Mrs. A. F. Bridge, vice-pres., and Mrs. Robert Bridge, secretary-treasurer, at the home of Mrs. A. F. Bridge.

Club colors, purple and gold, were carried out in a profusion of flowers, the center piece on the serving table being especially beautiful. A unique arrangement of the salad also carried out the purple and gold colors.

An informal meeting followed the luncheon. The programs were given out and the year's work thoroughly explained. Program covers were artistically and appropriately decorated by Mrs. Irene Harsha Young.

The delegates to the district meeting at Bear Lake reported items of interest concerning club work. Mrs. R. B. Armstrong gave a report of the state Federation meeting held in Muskegon, home of the state president, Mrs. C. L. Thompson. It was the largest meeting in attendance yet held, and a tribute to the outstanding regime of Mrs. Thompson.

The routine of business at the Muskegon meeting was interspersed with luncheons, teas and drives, as club women were loyally entertained by city officials. Outstanding items of interest were a lecture by Dr. Fisher, for many years a missionary in India, on "Ghandi," whose work represents the greatest moral revolution the world has ever known; lectures by Tom Skeyhill, whom Charlevoix residents recently had the privilege of hearing; also a talk by Douglas Mallock, "The Poet of the Northland."

Mrs. Armstrong reported that Michigan is the leading state in the general Federation for number of trees planted. The Clubs of this state have planted 40,000 trees on a tract of land near West Branch as a memorial to the bi-centennial of George Washington. A suitable tablet will mark the tract. This work was under the direction of Mrs. Thompson, state president, and Mrs. Willistarr, chairman of conservation.

Guests of the club at its initial meeting were Mrs. Culler, a sister of Mrs. H. S. Harsha; Mrs. Bellsterling, a sister of Mrs. Ralph Price, and Miss Katherine Fitch. Mrs. E. J. Edwards was welcomed back as a member.

Take advantage of my closing out sale at once. A mighty big saving on your winter's supply of groceries. A complete stock of Shingles and roofline at the right prices. Louis S. Orloski.—Adv. 4111.

TWO JAILED MONDAY
FOR LAW VIOLATIONSTom Krussell, Petoskey, Passed Bad
Check to Norwood Farmer.

Charlevoix county jail received a pair of inmates Monday, the first in several weeks.

Tom Krussell of Petoskey, was jailed for passing a bad check. The check was given in February, 1930, to William Mayne, Norwood township farmer, in payment for the purchase of cattle. Up to this time Krussell had failed to make the check good. He is now being afforded the opportunity by local officers.

The other free boarder is Floyd Cooper, 19-year-old Boyne City youth, who was arrested on a statutory charge. He waived examination when arraigned Monday morning before Justice Robert Withers, and was bound over to circuit court under bond.

Following Friday's board meeting Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, announced that he will place 1932 license plates on sale November 15 for two reasons; to stimulate sale of 1932 automobile models to persons who would otherwise postpone purchase until the new licenses would be useable, and to bring in sooner than otherwise the 1932 license revenue.

A direct appeal through local unemployment committees is to be made in an effort to stimulate early purchase of license plates to provide funds for the emergency highway work.

COMMITTEE MEETINGProgram for 1932 Outlined at All-Day Session Here Tuesday

The executive committee of the Lower Eleventh District W. C. T. U. met in the community room here Tuesday for an all-day meeting with cooperative dinner at noon.

Those in attendance were Mrs. Gorham, Bellaire; Mrs. Carrie Ruggles and Mrs. Irene Eckhardt, Central Lake; Mrs. Etta Lewis and Dr. Ruby O. Ford, Gaylord; Mrs. Elizabeth Niles, Miss Mary Patton and Mrs. Carlson, Mancelona; Mrs. Lois Campbell, Mrs. B. Saltonstall and Mrs. James Simmons, Charlevoix.

It was voted to hold a district picnic at Gorham Beach, near Bellaire, August 9, 1932.

Plans were formulated for promoting educational work through the departments of citizenship, medal contest, scientific temperance instruction, Sunday schools, Loyal Temperance Legion, young people's branch and press and publicity, also for cooperation with the National in celebrating the 60th anniversary of the Woman's Crusade in 1934.

Another gold medal declamatory contest will be staged at the convention next fall, which will probably be held in Charlevoix.

Periods of study for the courses vary from 16 weeks each year for two years in the general agricultural course to three days each for the pickle packers and the beekeepers. A total of 22 courses are now offered, the latest additions are those for greens-keepers and for rabbit breeders.

The short course in general agriculture opens October 26, and the school for hatcherymen begins Sept. 12, 1932. Most of the study periods are arranged for late fall or winter to permit those entering to leave their work during slack periods.

CHEBOYGAN WON SATURDAY GAME

DEFEATED KIPMEN 13 TO 0 AT SOUTH SIDE FIELD

Turn Two Fumbles Into Touchdowns in First Half—Charlevoix Showed Improvement in Play

Cheboygan high school football warriors preserved their season's unblemished record at south side athletic field Saturday afternoon by winning 13 to 0 from Charlevoix high school.

The visitors cashed in on two Charlevoix errors to score as many touchdowns, the margin of their victory. Flashing one of the strongest teams to represent the school in recent years, Cheboygan ran true to predictions in winning, but the way Coach Kipke's team fought to the very finish, and the improvement they revealed over previous games, was a great source of satisfaction to the crowd of local fans witnessing the game.

Cheboygan marked up their first touchdown in the early minutes of the first period. A fumble in Charlevoix territory, followed by a 15-yard penalty in their favor, aided an advance which culminated with Dickman, Cheboygan fullback, crossing the goal. The kick for extra point was wild.

The balance of the period saw the two teams battle on an even basis, but early in the second half Cheboygan punted to give the visitors the ball in mid-field. Morrow wriggled off tackle for two gains of 12 and 2 yards, and on the next play, Malenfant broke around right end behind perfect interference for a 40-yard run and touchdown. Cheboygan kicked the extra point and were leading 13 to 0.

Charlevoix received, were unable to gain and Anee punted to Cheboygan's 25-yard line. McClellan was stopped on a line play, but on the next two plays, Dickman, fullback, slipped off tackle for gains of 13 and 11 yards. McClellan lost two yards, a penalty cost Cheboygan 5 yards, a double pass to McClellan netted 20, Morrow added 5 and on two more attempts made it 1st down. A Charlevoix penalty advanced the ball 5, Malenfant passed to Clark for about 8 and it looked like another score until Cheboygan's attempt for a drop kick went wide, giving Charlevoix the ball on their 20-yard strip.

Play during the remainder of the half failed to produce a score, but saw Charlevoix gaining a slight edge. Two passes, Anee to Roen, were good for a total of 60 yards.

The Kipmen continued their determined brand of play as the second half opened. Anee returned the kickoff to his 30-yard line. Struthers added 6, Anee made 1 through center, Arvilla made it first down. Two more plays were stopped before Anee punted to McClellan, who made a nice return to his 40-yard line. Cheboygan failed to advance on three plays and punted to Struthers, who fumbled to lose the ball. Cheboygan punted to Anee in mid-field.

Anee passed to Struthers for 15, Struthers hit the line for 3, a pass, Struthers to Anee, failed, but a— (Continued on Page Six)

OLD-TIME DANCE FOR CHARITY IS PLANNED

Legion Sponsoring Affair Wednesday Evening, October 28th

Another old time dance will be held at the Legion home on East Garfield avenue, Wednesday evening, October 28th, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the work of alleviating distress among the needy persons in the county. Dances, both round and square, will be in order. An effort is being made to secure the services of the same popular orchestra that has played at previous dances given by the local Legion post and a good time is assured. Come and help a good cause along.

A considerable quantity of potatoes, beans and other produce has already been collected, but more is needed and, of course, there is some expense connected with the work. Your money could not be spent to better advantage and you will be enjoying a good time in the bargain.

Methodist ladies will serve a chicken pie supper, Wednesday, October 28th, at the church. Price 40c.—Adv. 4211.

EASTERN STARS SPONSOR MINSTREL SHOW

"The Lady Minstrels from Dixie" at Gym, Friday, October 30th

The Eastern Stars of Charlevoix will present a minstrel show entitled "The Lady Minstrels from Dixie," featuring an all-feminine cast of characters, at the high school gymnasium, the evening of Friday, October 30th.

This show, which is under the direction of Miss Dorothy Nicholson of The Violet Mae Production Co., is decidedly different from the usual type of home talent plays, and uses for its background sure-fire comedy interspersed with plenty of singing and dancing choruses. Last, but not least, is the Big Baby Contest, with local business men taking the parts of the babies and even the "Nigger Mammy" and her little Farina.

The management promises that if you want to see a fast-stepping, high pressure, laugh-provoking show, get your tickets early or you will be sorry with a capital "S."

There will also be a matinee for school children Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The cast of characters will be published in next week's issue.

FAMOUS MAGICIAN WILL APPEAR HERE

BIRCH, THURSTON'S SUCCESSOR, PROCURED BY LEGION

Will Give Performance at School Gymnasium the Evening of Tuesday, November 2nd

Announcement has been made that Birch, the famous magician, whom Thurston, reigning king of magic, has publicly declared to be his successor, will give a performance at the school gymnasium on Monday, November 2nd, at the school gymnasium.

The announcement was made by Commander Lee C. Allard of Leslie T. Shapton post No. 226, American Legion, whose organization has signed a contract with Birch for his appearance here, thus affording an opportunity for local people to see the remarkable array of magic and illusions which the magician presents in his performance.

The Birch show is one of the largest magic shows that has ever toured this country. Equipment, fittings, scenery and effects valued in excess of $25,000, are carried and will be seen at the local performance. Of the entire mystifying array, in which are included many illusions which baffle even the understanding and eyes of other magicians of prominence, perhaps the most interesting is that of the Vanishing Pony, in which Princess, a beautiful miniature horse, is caused to disappear in thin air.

The current tour is Birch's eleventh annual one and he has in that length of time gathered together a most impressive program of mystifying illusions and manifestations of magic. His breadth of experience as a magician and his own attractive personality make him one of the most capable and pleasing entertainers the magic world has ever produced.

GUEST SPEAKER WILL APPEAR HERE SUNDAY

Rev. M. E. Reusch, District Superintendent, at M. E. Church

An unusual program has been arranged for a special service at the First Methodist church Sunday evening, October 25th, at 7:30 o'clock.

In addition to a program of special music, Rev. M. E. Reusch of Traverse City, newly appointed superintendent of the Grand Traverse district, who has served very successful pastorates at Sturgis, Mt. Pleasant and Jackson, will make his first appearance in Charlevoix.

Rev. Reusch will deliver the evening address, following which he will hold the first quarterly conference. Various reports will be given at this time.

Wednesday, October 28, is the date when Dr. Leahy, the Optometrist, will be at the Hotel Charlevoix. Headache, dizziness, nervousness and all other symptoms of eye-strain corrected. Glasses guaranteed to fit.—Adv. 4211.

Holley Gift Shop will be open daily from 12 to 9 o'clock. A gift will be given with each purchase.—Adv. 4211 p4.

SPECIAL CO. ROAD WORK IS APPROVED

PROJECTS ON M-75 AND U. S. 31 TO START THIS FALL

State Highway Commissioner Dillman Informs Road Commission of Official State Sanction

Road projects planned in Charlevoix county as a part of the state highway department's $10,000,000 emergency winter highway program for employment relief have been approved by the state administrative board and will soon be started, according to word from the county road commission.

The commission this week received the following communication from Grover C. Dillman, state highway commissioner:

"During the past week you no doubt have noticed through the press that the state highway department will put on an extensive winter construction program, this being occasioned by the excessive amount of unemployment.

"I am sure you will be interested in knowing what we are planning on doing in your county. The following projects have just been approved by the state administrative board and it is possible that others will follow within a short time.

M-75—Widen grade, 5 miles.

U. S. 31—Concrete, 1.8 miles.

"The projects which are authorized as 'betterment' will be handled, at least in most cases, through the organizations now maintaining state trunk line highways."

In reference to the two above projects, approximately $8,000 has been authorized for widening of grade on M-75 between Boyne Falls and Boyne City. The work will be done under supervision of R. T. Davis, county road superintendent, and work is expected to start early next week. In addition, another authorization of around $2,000 had been made for roadside development on U. S. 31 south of Charlevoix to give further employment to county men.

While only meager information is available on the project calling for 1.8 miles of concrete on U. S. 31 south, it is certain the project will result in re-routing of U. S. 31 into the city via South Bridge street. This job will likely be let on contract, but the state's plan calls for contractors to hire 70 per cent local labor from the list of unemployed in the district where the job is located. In all probability this project, at least the grading, will be started this fall.

OCTOBER COURT SESSIONS OPEN MONDAY

Light Docket in Prospect—Delayed Cases to Be Cleared Up

The October term of circuit court for Charlevoix county will open here Monday.

The docket is a light one, containing three applications for citizenship, five criminal cases, eight issues of fact and law and two chancery cases exclusive of divorce, which number eight.

Sixty-four cases in which no progress has been taken for more than one year, will be presented to Judge Phm C. Gilbert for dismissal in order to clean up the calendar.

RELIGIOUS COUNCIL MET HERE MONDAY

EXCEPTIONALLY LARGE GROUP ATTENDED ANNUAL SESSION

Address by Dr. James King, President Olivet College, High Light of Splendid Program

The annual convention of the Charlevoix County Council of Religious Education was held Monday afternoon and evening at the Charlevoix First Methodist church.

No pains had been spared by the program committee to make the convention an outstanding one, and the appearance on the program of Dr. James King, president of Olivet college, furnished one of the principal attractions.

Interest was stimulated by presentation of a banner to the Sunday school having the largest attendance from the young people's departments. The various delegations stood and were counted at the young people's rally, held in connection with the fellowship supper, the music and other features of which were conducted by Rev. E. P. Linnell of the Bay Shore Presbyterian church. The banner was awarded Charlevoix Methodist Sunday school, and was presented by A. C. Belding, Sunday school superintendent, who in turn accepted the token for the school. Boyne City Presbyterian Sunday school had one less attendance than Charlevoix, and for reason that they had travelled some distance, were given three cheers by Charlevoix Methodists in a spirit of good sportsmanship.

The afternoon convention program was opened by a devotional address, "Is Your Church, and You, a Temple or a Synagogue?" Rev. C. W. Sidebotham of East Jordan, followed with an interesting talk on the real objectives in religious education, putting emphasis on the development of christian character rather than mere education. Rev. Paul Boodagh of Boyne City, gave an interesting discussion, and the Misses Terrill and Gest, evangelistic singers, gave a vocal duet. Supt. A. J. Duncanson of East Jordan, spoke on "The Needs of Our Youth" as a good home, a spiritual church and character building public school systems. As a layman, he gave material and upheld standards worthy of the clergy. Mrs. G. R. Parker gave a very valuable address on "Music in the Sunday School," showing how a knowledge of the facts concerning authorship of our hymns greatly increase the interest. She showed much familiarity with her subject.

Rev. James King, D. D., president of Olivet college, gave a masterful address at the evening service, after three fine selections by the boys' glee club of the high school. Dr. King paid a high tribute to the public school system of this country, but showed how some share of our education must be carried by the church to maintain Christian standards. He gave three reasons: First—Christian schools are necessary to maintain some of the fundamentals of American democracy and government, for religion is a product of certain permanent elements of the soul, one of the instincts which distinguishes man from the brute. That in the entire history of the race, religion has always molded and fashioned the ideals, and therefore, the living of man, and for these reasons is vital to man's present development and ultimate destiny. Second—That we need a higher idealism for modern civilization than the materialistic standards which now threaten us, and by which Egypt, Rome and Greece went down. For when marble went up in great architecture, prosperous cities and great wealth, poets, fine literature and great statesmen went down—disappeared from the national picture. We need religion in education in this country to hold up our ideals and save us from the same fate. Third—We need religion in our education because culture—mere intellectual culture—can never save the individual. Civilization does not do it. Some of the most brilliant and most highly cultured become slaves of their own lower natures and finally meet ruin, for mere intellectual culture lacks the moral element, and also the power to remake the individual, to furnish power to control self.

The new county officers elected were: President, Rev. G. R. Parker, Charlevoix; vice president, Harold Kotesky, Horton Bay; secretary, Mrs. Harker Kirby, Charlevoix; treasurer, Earl Clark, East Jordan.

Another popular old time dance, Wednesday evening, October 28th, at Legion home, Bill, 50c per couple. Extra ladies free.—Adv. 4211.

LEGIONS PREPARE WELFARE CAMPAIGN

ACTIVITIES DURING WINTER WILL BE COUNTY-WIDE

Charlevoix Central Point for Campaign—Committees of Three Posts to Handle Distribution

One of the most comprehensive welfare campaigns conducted in Charlevoix county in recent years is being prepared by American Legion posts and auxiliaries of Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City.

The campaign, which had its origin with the Charlevoix post, has advanced to county-wide scope, giving an assurance that no deserving family will necessarily have to be in want during the coming winter.

Plans have been in the making for several weeks and are now nearing completion. Clarence Meggison, manager of the Charlevoix Cooperative Assn., is welfare officer in charge of the county, and Charlevoix will be the central point of activities. Each of the county's three cities—Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City—will have their own welfare committee composed of the poor commissioner, mayor, a business man and a legionnaire. These committees, which to date have not been organized to full membership, will handle distribution to the needy in their own city and surrounding rural district.

The Legion home on East Garfield avenue at Charlevoix has been made the central point for distribution and for storage of supplies. Farmers have responded generously to the cause sponsored by war veterans. Huge quantities of potatoes, beans, vegetables and fruits have been placed at their disposal. In many instances supplies are already in storage, while in others fields of potatoes and beans will be harvested. One donation was 20 acres of potatoes, which are now stored in a barn awaiting removal to the central distribution point. Delivery equipment has been offered for use in distribution.

The part the several Auxiliaries will play in the campaign is the gathering, repairing and re-distribution of clothing. The women are lending their whole-hearted cooperation to the plan and are prepared to carry the work to the limit to make the campaign successful.

More supplies can be used, and those having donations to make are requested to get in touch with Legion officers nearest to them.

FISH TUG JOSEPHINE SUNK IN FRIDAY BLOW

House Battered in By Waves While Anchored Off Cross Village

The gasoline fish tug Josephine, owned by Charles Bissell of this city, sank off Cross Village in Friday's severe blow.

The craft had been left at anchor while its crew went ashore in a small boat for fuel. Mountainous waves battered in the house, filled the boat, and it sank in about 9 feet of water. Efforts to raise the craft have so far been frustrated by heavy seas.

SUPERVISORS END OCTOBER SESSION

PASS 12 1/2 MILL TAX, LOWEST IN MANY YEARS

General Trend Toward Economy Resulted in Many Cuts in Appropriations and Clerk Hire

Charlevoix county supervisors closed their annual October session Saturday afternoon following a week of intensive work.

The general trend towards economy prevalent throughout the session resulted in a 12 1/2 mill tax, 4 mills lower than last year and the lowest county tax-payers have been asked to raise in a good many years. During these times of depression and business uncertainty, the reduction will be more than welcome.

The cut was made largely through elimination of the interest and sinking fund levy, which once during the session was passed at 3 mills, but later rescinded. The road commission's request for 3 mills was pared to 2 1/2 mills, and the general fund allotment set at 10 mills, one mill higher than a year ago.

County bonds outstanding will be retired with a balance of $183,125.91 now accrued in the interest and sinking fund and the amount left unpaid, approximating $56,599.09, principal and interest, will be renewed at maturity. A committee composed of Supervisors Pearson, Craig and Rasmussen, was appointed to assist the treasurer in retiring bonds.

The usual appropriations were allowed, with cuts in some instances, as follows: Top O'Michigan Potato and Apple Show, $150; county picnic, $125; Whiting park, $1,000; Charlevoix hospital, $500; Soldiers' and Sailors' Relief, $300; Charlevoix county agricultural extension fund (14 months), $2,500, a reduction of $200; Michigan Children's fund, for maintenance of District Health Unit offices at Charlevoix, $450; Starr Commonwealth, Albion, $100; Children's Aid Society, Detroit, $100; Michigan Tourist & Resort Association, $100, a reduction of $100.

A report on expenditures on all county school and township purposes showed a total of $194,770.84 for 1931 as compared with $202,922.33 for 1930, a decrease of $8,151.49, showing the general trend towards economy throughout the county.

Supervisors Pearson and Craig were appointed to represent Charlevoix county at the state board of equalization meeting in Lansing next June.

The board voted the usual appropriation of $1,000 as the county's share towards maintenance of the Charlevoix county normal.

L. E. Benton defeated John H. Bugbee, 18 votes to 7 for re-election as member of the poor commission. By virtue of his residence in Charlevoix, Mr. Benton remains secretary of the commission. Salaries of poor commissioners was placed at $250 each, while the secretary's extra compensation as bookkeeper was reduced (Continued on page 2.)

ENCAMPMENT PLANS A SPECIAL MEETING

Will Fete Grand Lodge Officers at Party Here Friday Night

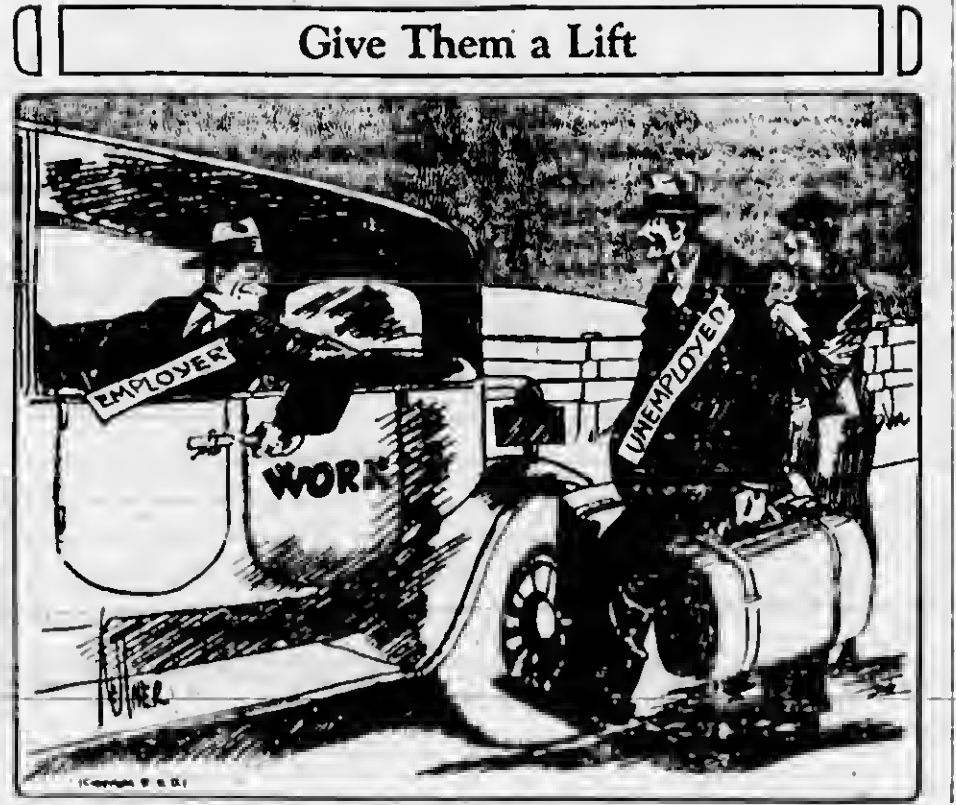

Charlevoix I. O. O. F. Encampment is planning a special business and social session for Friday evening of this week.

The party, to which Petoskey and Boyne City Encampments have been invited as guests, is being given in honor of Grand Patriarch David Howard of Muskegon, a well known former local resident, and Grand Scribe Edward Hoyt of Battle Creek.

Local Encampment members have postponed their annual game supper, for which they have been "gunning" the woods this week in quest of meat, so that it would be part of the special meeting Friday evening. While important business is expected to be transacted, and all members are urgently requested to be present, the meeting is also a social round-up for lodges of this immediate region.

Address by Mr. King

Monday morning the normal, junior and senior high had the pleasure of listening to Dr. King, president of Olivet college. Dr. King chose as his topic, "What Is High School For?" Is it for living? Is it for learning? Is it for life? Outside of the church and the home, the school is the most beneficial part of life. High school should teach us how to live. The greatest purpose of education is to make us alive, to teach us to appreciate the variety of interests around us. An educated man is not one who has studied and learned the material in his book, but one who knows that he knows and can get the people to feel what he knows. He can use his education in any problem or situation that may spring up. Education should give us the vision to see, to appreciate the fineness of life and to build up character.

Dr. King gave many examples to illustrate his address and it was greatly enjoyed by the listeners.

Dramatics

The first open meeting of the dramatics club was held last Wednesday night. Three one-act plays were presented by members of the club. The first play was a comedy, "Wisdom Teeth." The cast: Henry Welington, Dick Straw; Mrs. Henrietta Welington, Marian Tyler; the girl, Mary Helen Fitchman; the attendant, Jean Stelter; stage manager, Jane Stelter. The second presentation was a play of atmosphere, "Minikin and Manikin." The cast: Manikin, Junior Supernaw; Minikin, Esther Brady; stage manager, Jane Stelter.

The last play was a tragedy, "Merry Merry Cuckoo." The cast: David, John Winder; Annie, Dorothy Staley; Guto, Homer Struthers; Lowrey, Jean Stelter; Pastor Marris, Dick Straw; stage manager, Virginia Nickerson.

At an early date another similar evening will present other one-act plays which will cast other members of the club.

Junior Play

The junior class after long deliberation and thought and consultation with members of the faculty and towns people have decided on a difficult play, but one which they feel sure will be a successful venture.

In choosing this play they have departed from the customs of the past years by selecting one which ranks high in literary value and furthermore, is a tragedy.

Channing Pollock's "The Enemy," without harrowing feelings, shows the futility of war, and that man's greatest enemy is not a brother nation, but hatred. Pollock points out that the goal of all the world should be love, tolerance, and peace.

The cast will be chosen and rehearsals begun at an early date.

Kindergarten

The boys and girls of the kindergarten have just finished building a boat that would do credit to a real boat builder.

The green boat has a real pilot house and within it is a realistic pilot wheel and a little chair in which the pilot may sit. The cabin of the boat is large enough to afford room for six little chairs and their six boat passengers. There are two black smoke stacks on top of the cabin and the boat flies the American colors, both fore and aft. The ship, the "Sylvia G." rests on the blue ocean, represented by the blue paper with the waves marked in white chalk. But there is no danger of any passengers being lost for the boat boasts a life boat and four life-savers.

And to make the picture complete, two gang planks extend from the boat to land.

Physical Training

The junior high girls have started to learn to clog and they are progressing rapidly.

Next week the junior high boys will start their "socker" ball games. Undoubtedly the eighth grade boys will play against the ninth grade boys.

Grades Entertained

Last Monday morning the 4th, 5th, and 6th grades had the pleasure of listening to President Hoover over the radio. The grades enjoyed the speech and consider it a great honor to be able to listen to our President.

Manual Arts

The manual arts boys are coming along nicely on some of their projects. Boys are selecting jobs to be both useful and ornamental around the home. They are constructing teapots, taboretts, door weights, table tops, and sheet-metal nail boxes.

The manual arts room is nearly completed, some minor work being done by the students, who are very much interested in the different phases of the work.

A great pep meeting preceded the big Cheboygan-Charlevoix game last Friday. Coach Kipke gave a brief talk about the team, and our new cheer leaders, Junior Supernaw and Marion Tuhy, showed what they could do in the line of getting the gang going.

Here's a Hot Point! When we've any cooking to be done the new stove in our home economics room does it. The domestic science girls tell us that it bakes delicious cookies.

The junior class ring committee is composed of Lila Tillotson, Dorothy Staley, John Winder and Jane Stelter. They promise the best looking rings to be seen in any class.

Mrs. Logan: "Norman, we'll hear from you now. I suppose you read this lesson aloud, as I instructed?"

Norman: "No ma'am, I tried to, but they wouldn't let me in the assembly."

SWIMMING DEER ATTRACTS STATE FERRY PASSENGERS

An extra large doe deer swam around one of the state ferries at its dock at Mackinaw City last Friday forenoon, and after looking the place over, then swam away in the direction of Fly Point, where it went ashore. It is thought the deer came across the Straits from Bois Blanc island where it had been watered by dogs. A great many people passing on and off the ferry were attracted by the deer. It did not seem scared at the crowd gathered on the dock to watch, but swam very fast.

SUPERVISORS END OCTOBER SESSION

from $350 to $250. The appropriation for the poor commission was set at $22,000, the same as a year ago. During 1930-31 expenditures of this department reached approximately $30,000, a new high figure for the county, and in all likelihood the 1931-32 figure will go even higher.

School examiners elected were A. J. Duncanson, East Jordan, 2 years; L. L. Close, Boyne City, one year.

Reductions in clerk hire allowed two county officers were made. County Clerk Bulow was cut from $400 to $300, and Register of Deeds Bird from $600 to $300. The sheriff's allowance for prisoner's meals was reduced from $1 to 75c daily.

Exhibitors at the 1930 county fair will receive unpaid premiums. The board agreed to pay $1,956.75, the amount due.

Another economy measure saw extension of the penalty limit for non-payment of 1931 dog taxes extended to November 1st. Those already assessed the penalty will receive a rebate.

The appointed county park commission of five members, which had handled the affairs of Whiting county park since 1923, was abolished through a ruling presented by Prosecuting Attorney Rollie L. Lewis, setting forth that the state law calls for county road commissioners to act as park commissioners in counties using the county road system.

Dr. Leahy, the Optometrist, will be at the Hotel Charlevoix, Wednesday, October 28th. The care of children's eyes a specialty.—Adv. 4211.

BOYS' CLUB MEETS AND ELECTED NEW OFFICERS

The recent meeting of the Boys' Club of the Methodist church was largely attended. There was a fine program of sports and also a fine program of "facts." The young fellows seemed very capable handling the latter, and the pastor helped quite generously at both features of the evening.

Officers of the Club were elected as follows: President, Carl Bogart; vice president, Warren Shapton; secretary, Marquis Roen; treasurer, John Kerchak.

On Sunday these young fellows form the "Young American Class" in the Sunday school and are very loyal to their teacher, Mrs. William Poole.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S GROUP ARE HOLDING CONTEST

A form of "contest with themselves" is being carried on by the young people of the Methodist church. A large "graph" has been put on the wall to show the rise and fall in attendance. Next Sunday evening a fine program will be given, led by Miss Naomi Black. Topic will be on the general series, "Our Relation to Others," with special reference to the home. Thirty-three were in attendance last Sunday evening, and they want it to be larger next time. The new officers are launching a fine year's work.

HERE is the news you've been waiting for—hoping for—wondering whether you'd hear it this year or next. The news of a NEW GASOLINE—a BETTER GASOLINE. Mark that last phrase! That which is new is not always better. But Standard Red Crown is NEW and BETTER. We introduce it to you as the best all-purpose gasoline ever put on the market. And we've anticipated some of the questions you'll want to ask about this brilliant, sparkling, modern fuel. From now on you'll hear plenty about Standard Red Crown—plenty of praise for a fuel that gives you more for your money—easy starting—more power—more performance—more miles.

Read these questions and answers—and then drive to the nearest STANDARD RED CROWN sign—for your first filling of "The Better Gasoline"

What is Standard Red Crown, the Better Gasoline?

A gasoline in which the fractions are so adjusted to weather conditions as to give a smooth flow of power at any season of the year.

What are fractions in Gasoline?

They're the compounds taken from petroleum each of which vaporizes within definite temperature limits. The skillful merging of these fractions and adjusting the proportions to meet different weather conditions make good gasoline.

What happens if these fractions are not properly adjusted? The engine may perform satisfactorily under one set of conditions but not all. For example, in winter good gasoline requires large amounts of light ends to give quick starting and satisfactory performance, but in summer too much of these light ends causes vapor lock troubles.

Is Standard Red Crown a natural product?

No. Nature is not concerned with producing an ideal gasoline for automobiles. It must be made by skillful men. Standard Red Crown owes much of its anti-knock value to the use of the improved cracking processes developed by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

How is Standard Red Crown made?

Under processes developed in the research laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) utilizing the tremendous refining facilities of this organization.

Is Standard Red Crown a NEW Gasoline?

Yes. It has just been put on the market.

Why do you recommend it for winter driving?

Because it starts easily and accelerates smoothly and because it can be depended upon to operate smoothly in the engine and deliver a rhythmic flow of tremendous power.

Why is Standard Red Crown recommended for 1931-32 cars? Because it is designed to respond to the delicate adjustment of the latest type engines—because it performs better in the older types—because it burns clean at any speed—because it's priced to meet current economic conditions. It gives maximum performance at a moderate price.

Where can I buy Standard Red Crown Gasoline?

Standard Red Crown is sold where the Red Crown emblem is displayed. It is priced for the average pocketbook—but gives maximum performance.

Buzzard thought, "If that fellow asks me to take him for a joy ride, I'll murder him with a monkey-wrench!" A moment later, as he got a closer look at that hard purposeful face, he decided: "No, he's not that kind. Looks like some timber duke. Maybe wants me to fly him out to his limit. Thirty-dollar job—damn well!"

The stranger came on. "Hello."

Buzzard answered tartly, "Hello yourself."

The stranger paid no attention to the brusque reply. Instead he reached out his hand. It was a good-looking hand, big, calloused, fingers like iron bars.

"Name's Baker," he introduced himself, "Alan Baker."

Buzzard partly thawed. This fellow Baker looked to be somebody. His slow smile was mighty fetching; his clear intelligent eyes were kindly, warm, friendly.

"Glad to know you, Baker. Mine's Featherof—James Arbutnot Featherof."

"Good gracious! All that? But what do people call you?"

They both grinned. "They call me 'Buzzard.' Wear red helmet; never flap my wings."

"Buzzard"—that's more like it. I saw you sitting around up there when I got off the train. Made inquiries and hustled out here to the field. Was on my way down to Winnipeg. Expected I'd have to go down there, or maybe Buzzard had found it good policy to lie. If he made out there was a crushing demand for his services, it impressed people and got him jobs—sometimes.

"Oh, about two months," he said carelessly. "All depends on how much flying weather I get."

Baker plucked a blade of grass and chewed it meditatively. Finally he asked: "Say, Featherof, you couldn't shake free for a couple or three weeks, could you? Get sick, or have to get married, or something like that?"

Buzzard took thought as he halted an eye. A couple or three weeks. . . . Must be a good-sized job. . . . Might pay well. . . . Oh d—n the pay! Always thinking of pay. Getting commercial.

"I might," he answered. "Depends. What kind of flying do you want me to do? What for a job is it?"

"That would take me some time to explain. I wouldn't want any man to tackle it without him understanding the whole thing, or then he might feel I'd dragged him into trouble."

Something in Baker's tone made Buzzard look at him sharply. "Nothing illegal—crotch-out of the ordinary, is it?"

"It's all three, and then some."

Buzzard bit his cigarette. "And then some? My eyes! Where're you declaring war on?"

"If you want to know who I am, I was in the Mounted. The O. C. here at Edmonton can tell you about me. And I can give you other references."

"You were in the Mounted?" Buzzard frowned thoughtfully. "Baker—the Mounted. . . . Say, haven't I heard of you somewhere. . . . Are you that Sergeant Baker down north near the Arctic?"

Alan nodded.

"My eyes! I've read about some of your doings. You're on a defective list or something like that, Baker?"

With expert judgment Alan had been sizing up his new acquaintance, from his brick-red helmet, down across his oil-splattered jumpers, to his "slide-walk" shoes. He read the daredevilry in this Featherof. He was a man after Alan's own heart. And he had a machine of his own! If only he'd go, it would save precious days looking for a plane and pilot.

Alan said: "My story is a long one. You look as hungry as I feel. . . . I am, Baker. Let's go out and then talk."

Alan helped him pull a canvas over the machine. Together they stepped over to the taxi. As they rattled down town they swapped war yarns, discovered several mutual acquaintances, and came down to "Alan" and "Buzzard."

At the Chateau Macdonald Alan sent a telegram to Colonel Steele in Victoria. He wrote it swiftly, not daring to think twice of the fatal step.

"Am out of Mounted accepting your fine offer will you wire me five hundred as salary advance would be mighty grateful letter following with details."

"ALAN BAKER."

He and Buzzard ate dinner; and then for a solid hour Alan talked.

He told of the Midnight Sun robbery, of the chase, flight, escape, of Dave MacMillan's trouble; of his resolve to help Joyce; of Joyce going bravely back to the lonely trading station; of his run-in with Haskell, his getting busted, his laying out of service, his thousand-mile trip to Edmonton.

"But just where do the old crims and me come in at?" Buzzard asked.

Alan told why he was looking for an airplane, sketched the strategy of his campaign, explained his whole daring plan of running the handbills to earth.

He asked, "Will you go, Buzzard?" It was so very simple a question, but there was a prayer in his voice and eyes.

"Will I go?" Buzzard echoed, almost angrily. He put his flat down on the table so hard that the salt shaker jumped. "Will I go—on a trick like that? H—t's hell, what a question! Would I kiss my girl if she asked me to?"

Alan checked him: "Just a minute, Buzzard. Let's get a couple things clear. One is the matter of pay. I've got a couple hundred dollars in my pocket and five hundred coming by wire. It'll probably take all that to outfit us, so right now I can't pay you one red cent. But I'm going onto a good-salaried job, and I'll pay you before the year's over."

"How much are you getting out of this? Nothing. Good! I'll take this name."

"But it's my affair, my quarrel."

"Then I'll horn in on it. And besides, I'll get my pay out of it in the long run. Look at the publicity value. Alan, if we pull a stunt like that! With all the headline advertising I'd get."

"But supposing your machine gets wrecked down north somewhere? It'd be a total loss. I couldn't pay you back for a long—"

"I smile when a fellow's plume is a total wreck, he doesn't worry much about the loss. All he cares about is a nice headstone."

"But look here, now, and get this straight. We haven't any right to pull a trick like this, Buzzard. We're stepping outside the law. We're violating several hard and fast statutes. I happen to know."

Buzzard grew impatient. "Suppose we get down to essentials. You said you wanted to leave as soon as you could. Then let's talk sense. How about gas? This crate of mine isn't one of these transatlantic planes. It'll do about seven hundred miles in a pinch, and then it stops and sets down. I'll have to get a pack-chute for you. A decent one'll cost three hundred. I've got to put on a new propeller; that lookpick on the old crate now is about ready to quit. A new prop costs like sixty. . . . Then we need navigating instruments on a long trip like this. They come high. I could use fifteen hundred dollars."

Alan paled a little, but he said doggedly: "I'll raise it. I'll raise it somehow."

Buzzard was thoughtful for a moment. "Maybe," he said finally, "you won't have to raise it. I'll tell you what, Alan; you give me two hundred, and I'll try to manage the rest of it. You'll need money for your outfit and we'll have to keep some for operating expenses."

Alan nodded, though he did wonder what Buzzard meant by that word "manage."

They went back to the Chateau and waited. At three o'clock the wire came from Victoria.

"The five hundred is accompanying this let me know if need more looking forward to seeing you and presumably meeting Mrs. Baker."

"S. G. V. STEELE."

Alan was grateful for the desperately needed money; grateful for the personal warmth of Colonel Steele's message. But he felt that he had sold his freedom now and indentured himself.

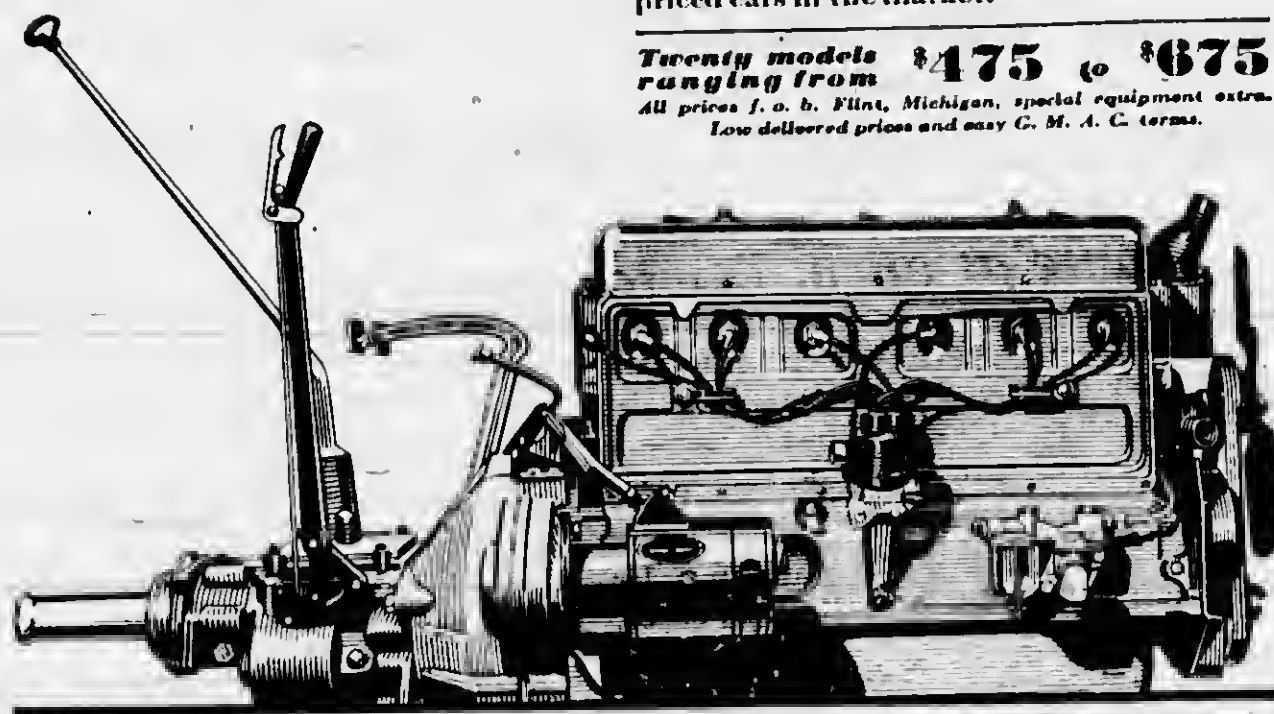

Stimulantly he forced his mind away from the heavy cost and regrets that lay at him. Putting aside three hundred dollars for operating expenses, he gave Buzzard two hundred and kept two hundred for himself. After arranging to meet out at the field that night, they separated.

At a pawn shop Alan stopped and bought a pair of binoculars. Powerful x-12's of a costly make, they put a sad dent in his roll. Earlier along he managed to purchase two heavy automobiles, slipping the proprietor ten dollars extra in lieu of a permit. Then came emergency food for the trip and the flying logs Buzzard had advised him to get.

He still lacked a folding canoe, a number of small items, and one lost piece of equipment—the most vital of all his adventure. Down to fifteen dollars, he went into another pawn shop and soaked his expensive watch and a diamond bracelet of his mother's, making the owner promise to hold them for six months. With a hundred and seventy-five in his pocket, and a second-hand Ingersoll which the old gentleman had kindly given him, he walked out, breathing easier.

Charlevoix Auto Sales

The whole question was settled long ago—as to how many cylinders it takes in a motor car engine to give satisfactory smoothness. Science definitely established the fact that at least six are necessary. And today, the public accepts the multi-cylinder engine in the same way that it accepts 4-wheel brakes, parallel-mounted springs and every other principle of proved and acknowledged superiority. Everybody knows that nothing less than a six can give you built-in smoothness.

Today, six-cylinder smoothness is within reach of every new car buyer. For Chevrolet has produced a quality car, powered by a finely-mounted six-cylinder motor—engineered it to run with unsurpassed economy—and priced it down among the very lowest-priced cars in the market.

Baker Jerked His Thumb at the Plane—"Whose Is That?"

to Calgary, to find a machine and a pilot.

"Uh-huh."

Baker jerked his thumb at the plane—"Whose is that?"

"Looking at you. Belongs to me and myself. Unlimited. Bought it with cigarette coupons."

Baker's face brightened a little, and now Buzzard noticed that this hard-bitten man was deeply worried but was hiding his trouble and talking with a jest on his lips.

"So the machine belongs to you. Glad to hear that. Working on your own hook, I suppose? That's still better. Say, Featherof, how long are you booked up ahead?"

Mr. Allen, husband of the former Myrtle Mack, daughter of Mrs. Roy Ranger, formerly resided here and was well known by local residents.

L. C. Reimann, director of Camp Charlevoix, will arrive here Friday to spend the following week in preparation for the big "Depression" Halloween party to be held at the camp the evening of Friday, October 30th, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Reimann will meet with the committees to plan for the fun and frolic that is expected to make this party the outstanding event of the year. Few people have not heard of the affair two years ago, so an even larger attendance is expected than before.

Dr. James King, president of Olivet college, and Mrs. King, were Charlevoix visitors Sunday and Monday.

Dr. King was the principal speaker at the meeting of the County Council of Religious Education, held Monday afternoon and evening at the First Methodist church. Monday evening Dr. and Mrs. King were honored at a dinner party given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Carleton Dean, close friends. In addition to the honored guests, twelve couples were present at the delightful affair.

Program Includes International and State Authorities—Show Opens
October 28th

The Top O'Michigan Potato association has arranged a very attractive program for those who attend its ninth annual show at Gaylord during the three days beginning Wednesday, October 28th.

The very first day opens with speakers that everyone should hear. H. A. Berg of the Michigan State college will discuss "Cost Factors in Potato Production." Stanley Johnston, superintendent of the South Haven experiment station, will talk about "Small Fruits of Northern Michigan." P. R. Miller of the Michigan State college will discuss "Alfalfa Seed Production."

The women will have a special program on Wednesday, with Miss Mary Iford, club leader in charge. Miss Margaret Morris of Marquette will appear on this program and conduct a potato cooking demonstration. Miss Muriel Dundas of the Michigan State college will talk about "Practical Nutrition."

The certified seed growers will hold their annual luncheon on Wednesday noon with John Tucker of Ottawa, Canada, as their main speaker.

On Thursday forenoon the junior program will be held. Speakers on this program include Prof. Glenn Schonhals of Onaway and Prof. E. R. Austin of the Michigan State college. Thursday afternoon the general program will continue with O. B. Price of the New York Central Lines discussing the agricultural progress of Northern Michigan.

John Tucker of Ottawa, Canada, will tell the potato growers of this region what the Canadian farmers are doing in potato production. J. J. Bird of the potato department, Michigan State college, will talk about "The New Standard for Commercial Potatoes." Then on Thursday evening at 6:30 p. m. the annual banquet and program will be held with L. S. Baldwin of Mancelona as toastmaster.

The large number of prizes and premiums offered should attract a large entry according to B. C. Mellencamp, secretary.

Each year since the show has been held, there have been increases and the management has prepared for this increase again. A total of $1560 in cash prizes will be offered to winners in the various divisions. Potato exhibitors will take home over $730. Apple exhibitors will complete for nearly $400. Prizes offered for the various contests total well over $300. In addition, the junior department offers $150 for boys and girls in prizes and contests.

For the first time, prizes are being offered this year for alfalfa seed, totaling $37.

The largest amount offered in the potato division is in the county sweepstakes, where $170 is offered and 36 exhibitors will win some of the money.

In the apple division, the largest offer is made in the apple trays, with a total of $202.

The choir singing contest leads all contests with a total of $200 for eight places. Special trade prizes and silver loving-cup makes the total value of prizes and premiums well over $1700.

All exhibitors are asked to have their exhibits in place by 7 o'clock p. m. Tuesday, October 27th. This show opens officially to the public on Wednesday morning.

Entry blanks may be secured from your county agricultural agent or the secretary.

BURGESS WOMEN HOLD EXTENSION MEETING

All-Day Session at Webster Home
Called October 29th

The first meeting of the Burgess Home Management Club convened at the home of Mrs. Orson Cook on Tuesday, October 13th, with a very good attendance. The subject, "Home Furnishing," was presented by the leader, Mrs. A. Evers.

Mrs. Evers' resignation as leader was reluctantly accepted at this meeting, and Mrs. George Burns was appointed to fill the vacancy.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Platt Webster on Thursday, October 29. All-day session with pot-luck dinner.

AT THE MOVIES

Director Sees Wide Variety in Marx Humor

The Four Marx Brothers do not miss a trick when it comes to providing comedy on the screen. In fact, Director Norman McLeod, who bosomed their most recent and most frolicsomeopus, "Monkey Business" (coming to the Palace theatre for two days beginning on Saturday next) sees in their efforts on the screen every known comedy method, ranging from slapstick to subtle satire.

No "Make-Believe" About Buck Jones

A real he-man, off the screen as well as on—that is Buck Jones, the greatest and most popular "western" star in films today! Give Buck Jones a gun and a dog, and a good stretch of wild country and he'll amuse himself for days. For Buck Jones is a hound for hunting, and the minute the camera clicks on the last shot of one of his pictures, he makes for some out of the way spot to stalk wild game and exercise his latent for expert marksmanship. He was on just such a jaunt as this when Columbia executives decided it was time to start work on "The Texas Ranger," his latest vehicle which comes to the Palace theatre on Wednesday and Thursday next.

LANSING MAN PLACES ORDER FOR STEELHEAD

100,000 Eggs to Be Reared to Fingerlings for Lake Charlevoix

We have an interesting letter from R. W. Morse, Lansing sportsman, whose efforts resulted last spring in the shipping here of 35,000 Oregon steelhead eggs, which were reared at the local government hatchery and subsequently planted as fingerlings in streams emptying into Lake Charlevoix.

Mr. Morse states that under the excellent care received at the hands of E. R. Widemeyer, local hatchery foreman, the eggs were raised to fingerling stage with the loss of about 100.

He writes further that he has placed a request for 100,000 steelheads from River Rogue, Oregon, for next year's planting. These will be sent to the hatchery for rearing and later planted as fingerlings in streams emptying into Lake Charlevoix.

Mr. Morse hopes within a few years to re-establish the steelhead fishing available in Lake Charlevoix twenty years ago.

Following the business session a pot-luck supper and social hour was enjoyed.

other, Ance to Davenport, put the ball on Cheboygan's 10-yard line and a touchdown seemed certain. Struthers made three yards in two right end plays, a penalty set them back five, a pass failed. Struthers lost three more and the scoring chance ended with an incomplete pass. It was Charlevoix's lone opportunity to count.

Play was fairly even during the remainder of the game with the exception of a Cheboygan threat early in the fourth period which ended when another attempt to dropkick went wild.

Cheboygan displayed a well-balanced back field in McClellan, quarter, Morrow and Malafant, halves, and Dickman, fullback, who starred throughout the contest. Charlevoix's play showed a decided improvement over previous games. Their tackling was for the most part hard and clean. Ance showed some good work in running back punts, and for the first time this year hit the line hard. Parker played his usual good game at tackle, and Marcus Ryan, a newcomer, played well at end.

Charlevoix meets another strong opponent Saturday at Boyne City. Brotherton's lads showed unexpected strength by defeating Harbor Springs last Saturday and should provide plenty opposition for the Kipmen.

CLOSED TROUT SEASON EFFECTIVE OCTOBER 20

Local Commercial Fishermen Pull Rigs Until Ban Is Lifted

Commercial fishermen operating out of Charlevoix and Beaver Island harbors lifted all trout rig Tuesday in compliance with the state law closing fishing for mackinaw trout in Lake Michigan.

Some operators will continue fishing chubs through the closed season period, but a larger portion will devote their time to preparation for the annual trout spawning run, which is expected to open the first week of November.

Determination of open season is made by conservation officials setting test nets. When the required percentage of ripe spawn is found in fish taken, the ban is lifted and fishermen who have procured licenses to operate during the spawning season will be allowed to fish.

With a market price of 6c per pound for trout in prospect, many fishermen are showing an inclination to discontinue fishing operations. It is possible that they may organize and demand 9c contracts before placing any nets in the water. Fishermen point out that the anticipated market price will not pay operating expenses and depreciation of equipment.

MRS. SHORES HOSTESS TO PILGRIM CIRCLE

Affair Last Friday Observed Anniversary of Organization

Mrs. N. A. Shores was hostess to about fifty ladies at her home last Friday afternoon, the occasion being the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the organization of the Pilgrim Circle, of which Mrs. Shores is president.

The following program was rendered: Singing, "Auld Lang Syne;" historical sketch, Mrs. B. Saltonstall; singing, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds;" an original poem read by Mrs. Bridge; duet, by the Misses Terrell and Gest; games in charge of Mrs. E. J. Hiller.

The cakes were made by Mrs. Kelderhouse, who with Mrs. Bartlett, Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Rife, Mrs. Hines, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Sterritt, assisted the hostess in serving.

A complete historical sketch of the Pilgrim Circle will be published in these columns next week.

OBITUARY

E. A. Robinson was born May 29, 1870, in Quincy, Ill., and came to Boyne City when one year old. His father took up a homestead near Boyne Falls in pioneer days.

He was married to Ivy Edwards of Charlevoix, in December, 1914. He was a devoted husband and father and will be missed by a host of friends, both in Boyne City, where he made his home, and throughout the countryside.

He has been exceptionally faithful to his duties as surveyor and citizen, and a patient sufferer through a long period of illness, culminated on October 13, 1931, at 7 o'clock p. m.

Surviving him are his wife and two sons, Edward and Hudson, of Boyne City; two sisters, Ruby Fox Worthy and Mary Crapo of Flint; and a brother, Flynn, of Boyne City.

The coming of Dr. James King to the Charlevoix and Ironton pulpits, Sunday, was a decided inspiration. He was well received in the Boyne City, East Jordan and Charlevoix high schools. His appearance at the Charlevoix high school was doubly interesting because Dr. King and Supt. Bush were old acquaintances while Mr. Bush was in the state department at Lansing. The ministers at the minister's luncheon were warm in their praise of Dr. King's address before them. Dr. and Mrs. King started early Tuesday morning to return to his work at Olivet college.

BOYNE CITY WON SATURDAY'S GAME

SCORED EARLY TOUCHDOWN TO GAIN 7 TO 0 DECISION

With Exception of Lone "Break" Contest Was Even Throughout—Play at Harbor Saturday

Charlevoix high school gridlers lost their second game in Tip of Michigan class C conference competition at Boyne City Saturday afternoon by a 7 to 0 score.

Boyne City turned the only "break" of a very evenly-fought contest into the lone touchdown of the afternoon, thereby keeping their conference record unblemished and established themselves more firmly in first position along with Gaylord.

The bungle which cost Charlevoix a probable tie came early in the first period. Playing against the wind and deep in his own territory, Auce, Charlevoix quarter, punted to his 30-yard strip. The ball grounded in a huddle of players, and when Charlevoix failed to drop upon it, Sandel, Boyne fullback, picked up the rolling leather and romped unmolested over the goal. Charlevoix fans were as dumfounded as the team. White added the extra point on a run around left end.

Throughout the remainder of the contest, play was almost as even as two teams could make it. Whatever advantage there was aided the team with the wind in their favor, and this advantage alternated between the two. In the second quarter, Charlevoix advanced from Boyne's 45-yard line to their 19 only to lose the ball on downs. A 11-yard run by Baker, halfback, and line plunges by Arvilla and Struthers seemed headed for a touchdown, but failed by a 23-yard margin.

Again in the third quarter, with the wind favoring him, Auce's toe had Boyne backed up against their own goal, once forcing them to punt from behind the final chalk line. The return punt gave Charlevoix the ball on Boyne's 29-yard line, but after gaining four yards on two plays, the local players were penalized 15 and Auce's pass was intercepted to end the threat.

Boyne, this time with the wind in their favor, kept Charlevoix on the defense throughout the fourth period. Twice they punted over the goal, giving Charlevoix the ball on their 20-yard strip. Boyne's advantage availed them nothing, however, for Charlevoix stopped their advances repeatedly. Only once, when H. White broke away for a 20-yard gain, did it look like a Boyne score. B. White lost 10 yards attempting to pass on the next play, and the opportunity faded.

Sandel, fullback, and H. White, half, carried the brunt of Boyne's attack. For Charlevoix, Auce's punting, his returning of punts and all-around ball carrying were pretty to watch. Baker got away for one good run, and one pass, Auce to Struthers, was completed. Marquis Roen, a sophomore, playing his second game, proved a sensation on defense. This youngster refused to be pulled in on end runs and repeatedly threw Boyne for losses when they attempted to gain around his end.

The contest was clean all the way, lacking the "knock 'em down and drag 'em out" tactics employed in the East Jordan tilt here. Officials were:

LOCAL NURSES FAIL TO MEET STATE REQUIREMENTS; RESIGN

Radical changes in the nursing staff at Charlevoix hospital will be made within the next week as the result of action taken recently by the State Department of Health.

The Charlevoix hospital board of directors, complying with orders made by the health department through L. A. Potter, director of the enforcement division, has asked and received the resignation of the nursing staff.

While Miss Anne Baumgartner and other members of the staff have given the Charlevoix hospital expert and efficient service, they were graduate nurses of neighboring states, and unable to comply with the Michigan statutes in regards to academic qualifications and registration, and therefore could not legally accept employment in Michigan.

The State law requires that nurses employed within the state be registered Michigan nurses, thus providing protection against the invasion of out-of-staters.

Referee, Dickie, Harbor Springs; umpire, Cohen, East Jordan; head linesman, Sutton, Harbor Springs.

Charlevoix plays its final conference tilt Saturday against Harbor Springs, who hold the cellar position along with Manelona. With Bradley in the line-up with his ineligibility troubles cleared up, the game should be a thriller.

Boyne City and Gaylord lead the conference standing with two wins and no defeats. East Jordan is third with three wins and one loss, and Charlevoix fourth with one win and two losses. Harbor Springs and Manelona have not won a game.

REV. HURD WILL GIVE ARMISTICE DAY ADDRESS

Charlevoix ministers have extended a unanimous invitation to Rev. W. W. Hurd, new pastor of the First Methodist church, to preach the Armistice Day-Sunday address before war veterans and the general public at a union meeting to be held Sunday evening, November 8th. The Legion chaplain will assist with the service.

NEARING CLOSE OF OCTOBER SESSION

EXPECT ADJOURNMENT OF CIRCUIT COURT HERE THURSDAY

Carl Holland Acquitted of Liquor Law Violation—Several Probationers Were Dismissed

With the completion of many cases on a somewhat light docket, the October session of circuit court for Charlevoix county was drawing near a close Wednesday, with prospects of adjourning Thursday.

Eight violators, who had faithfully lived up to the conditions of probation orders, were dismissed by Judge Parm C. Gilbert, while other cases were continued to subsequent terms. Those dismissed were Irving Dufore, Sol Henderson, Zander Bass, Joseph Edward Burke, James Hunt and Paul Carrow, liquor law violators, Nelson Baker and Philo Ostrum, breaking and entering, Forest Eggers, carrying concealed weapons.

Mrs. Maude Mosley was awarded judgment of $5,000, in her trespass case against the Estate of George McAfee, who is now serving a life sentence at Jackson prison for the murder of Mrs. Mosley's husband in Melrose township two years ago.

The Charlevoix State Savings bank was awarded judgment of $327.37 in a similar action against Walter Daniels, former Boyne City automobile dealer.

Carl Holland, charged with violation of the liquor law, was found "not guilty" before a jury Tuesday morning.

The garnishment case of the General Motors Delco Light Co. vs. Henry Gooch, defendant, and First National Bank of Boyne City, garnishee defendants, was taken up Tuesday afternoon and is still in progress.

The case of R. C. Korth, appeal from justice court, was dismissed following payment of court costs by respondent.

Forty-one cases to the "no progress" calendar have been dismissed by order of the court. One was settled and one continued to the next court term.

It is probable that the present court term will be concluded on Thursday of this week.

WILLIAM P. HICKEN BUYS CREDIT EXCHANGE

Transaction Closed Tuesday — Will Also Handle Real Estate

Through a deal closed Tuesday, William P. Hicken, well known local business man, purchased the Charlevoix-Antrim Counties Credit Exchange from Fred Ahlert, who has operated the business several years.

Mr. Hicken, recently resigned as secretary-treasurer of the W. E. Parmelee Lumber Co., announced Tuesday that he would operate the Charlevoix county branch of the Exchange as formerly, and, while soliciting Antrim county business, would not carry a membership in that territory. Through this arrangement, most of his time will be devoted to Charlevoix county.

Mr. Hicken will also conduct a real estate and rental business in connection with the Credit Exchange, with offices in the Birnkraft building, corner Bridge and Park avenue.

KEEPING FAITH WITH THE BANK

The news that "the bank has failed" has swept through hundreds of towns and cities within the past year, and the people of these communities have been fairly crushed by these financial tragedies.

Most of these banks were financially solvent. In financing their customers and communities the bankers had loaned money on securities that they have not been able to rediscount, or borrow on for more than two years. When the published reports of the banks showed a decrease in deposits, the bankers found that their customers increased their withdrawals. The result was that, after while, these banks were compelled to close.

Banks in neighboring cities have closed. Panic spread with the word, and for no other reason than fear, the public has forced, through withdrawal of savings, the closing of perfectly sound, responsible banks.

Charlevoix banks are sound. They will continue to be as long as they have public confidence. When this confidence is lost, Charlevoix banks will close to protect their depositors.

Let's keep faith with our local banks and avoid the tragedies other cities have experienced.

COWARDLY JOURNALISM

If for nothing more than out of courtesy to the group of men who are serving to the best of their ability and without compensation as directors of the Charlevoix Hospital, a public institution, we feel obligated to take exception to an article published last week in The Charlevoix Sentinel.

To the uninformed, Editor Ira Adams' account of the visit here of a state official could be construed to mean an investigation of most anything from embezzlement of funds to the performing of illegal operations. It was a contemptible, cowardly manner in which to bring the incident before the public. It was a discredit to clean, honest journalism; an unnecessary and damaging attack upon the integrity of the group who are managing the hospital affairs.

This matter of a state investigation at the hospital at least deserved a statement of facts. Either Editor Adams was too lazy to get far enough from his desk to obtain the necessary information, or else he just wilfully took advantage of his position as editor, for personal or other reasons, to discredit and attack the hospital directors.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS AT ADAMS & SON STORE

Place Enlarged and Much New Equipment Will Be Added

A program of improvements which was started several weeks ago at the Adams & Son store, corner Park avenue and Bridge street, are now practically completed.

Owing to inability to adequately care for a rapidly increasing business, Mr. Adams has found it necessary to enlarge his store. A partition enclosing a rear room has been removed, adding considerable floor space. A re-arrangement of wall cases and counters has been made and several new ones will be added. The entire floor has been covered with a pleasing pattern of inlaid linoleum.

Before opening next spring, Mr. Adams will add to his present equipment a new refrigerating counter, sandwich tables, sandwich toaster, a drip coffee urn, and several sets of tables and chairs.

HEART OF THE NORTH

As he passed a fashion shop, his eyes happened to be caught by an exquisite cellulose acetate, a broad sashbelt hand-made in old Quebec. Thinking of the worn and faded one Joyce owned, he stood admiring this beauty, imagining how rapturous Joyce would be if she had it. She knew how to wear it properly, with a saucy grace that only the metisse girls could match, for the wearing of the bright girle was an ancient voyage custom rapidly dying out. . . . Forty precious dollars . . . but worth the price if she'd like it, a gift from him.

With almost his last dollar he went in and bought the girle.

Later, through the gathering twilight, he walked to the armory. Two companies were practicing there, that evening. By pretending to be a new Edmonton citizen anxious to learn how to drill and perhaps to join the militia, he not only got inside but was shown all around the place by a lieutenant impressed by his stalwart powerful physique.

The lieutenant went back to his duties, the companies went on drilling, the privileged spectators began trickling homeward. When the armory was closed at eleven, when the count big building was locked up and deserted, it was Alan Baker who rose up, like a thief in the night, out of a big brass drum case in the corner on the ground floor.

Not daring to strike a light, he groped across the parade floor to the room where the lieutenant had showed him the machine guns and explained their use to him, commander of a machine gun platoon through a dozen major battles. He felt around among various types till he laid hands on an old friend, the Browning nine-miled, A-10. He found plenty of ammunition, a better tripod, and lastly a tarpaulin to wrap the whole outfit in, for if he started down an Edmonton street with a machine gun over his shoulder he was not likely to get far.

Gathering all his things at the Chateau, he hurried on out to the rendezvous arranged with his new-found partner.

Buzzard had put in some busy hours too. He had filled up on gas and oil; had attended to several repairs and replacements; had acquired a pack-chute, new propeller and half a dozen costly flying instruments.

With a couple of mechanics whom he had awakened at an all-night garage, he was busy putting on the new prop.

Vaguely suspicious, Alan took him aside and asked quietly:

"Say, Buzzard, how did you get all this equipment? You've got more than a thousand dollars' worth here, and you only had two hundred."

"I borrowed that stuff temporarily. There's several government planes here, and they had extra equipment."

"Borrowed it? Temporarily?"

"Well, so to speak."

"Stole it? Government property? Good Lord, man! That's a pretty serious offense. The authorities will send sure catch on to who took it."

"Yes, I expect they will. At least the night watchman'll know. I invested five dollars in liquor for him; and he's sleeping it off over behind that hangar. I'll put them next to us." Buzzard's voice became serious. "But Alan, I couldn't get it any other way. We simply had to have it, or give up our trip."

"Yes, we had to have it," Alan admitted reluctantly. "I guess you did right, Buzzard." But it staggered him to realize that he and his partner were criminals now in the eyes of the law. Their motives would be no excuse. They faced a prison term if caught. And their capture was inevitable: soon or late they would have to show up somewhere.

He could not bring himself to reproach Buzzard. He himself had stolen a machine gun, though he had covered his tracks pretty well; and Buzzard after all had done this for his sake. And he felt that this theft was justified, if ever theft could be. With no chance of personal gain, at heavy cost of their own hard-earned dollars and at risk of their very lives, he and Buzzard were flinging themselves against a pack of murderous criminals.

He said: "We'd better be getting away from Edmonton forthwith. At daylight there'll be people here on the field. I'll be our link if we're not gone."

They donned their flying togs. Buzzard showed Alan how to put on his pack-chute, how to jump clear in case of disaster and jerk the rip-cord. They climbed in and snapped their safety belts.

Revolving up in short order, Buzzard flopped the throttle, jumped over the corks, taxied down the field, and gave it the gun.

Just as the first rosy fingers of dawn were reaching up into the eastern sky, they hopped off, left the sleeping city behind them, and roared away into the North.

CHAPTER VIII

A Deadly Trap

"Stob-lee," Jensen was glaring

The Others All Nodded Emphatically around him at the other five faces in the tent.

"Some of you lubbers," he growled, "ain't got the sense you was borned with. You gimme a pain with your whining and growling and always wanting to argue about what I tell you. Now I'm gonna explain just what's ahead of us and what we gotta do."

The six men were as motley a crew as ever the whaling fleets of Berling's sea and the Western Arctic could muster up. With one exception the six of them were deck hands—wharf wolves of gutter speech and alley vices; strange men to be camped in the heart of a wilderness that even the Indians seldom penetrated.

There was John Siebelski, a square-faced squat Alaskan, a descendant of the Cossack Promyshleniki (fur-hunters) who for generations, when Russia ruled the northwestern shores of America, had held brutal sway over the Aleuts and Kutchins in their lust for peltry.

There was Pete Gonzalez, a Sandwich Islander, brown-skinned, his white teeth flashing, his dress gaudy and picturesque.

There was "Lunnon Dick," a wiry stunted Ilmei, with Battersea accent and quick jerky ways.

There was "Chink" Woolley, a quarter-Chinese, an olive-faced, all-but-nondescript, with his right arm in sling from Bill Hardcock's bullet.

The fifth was a Dogrib met named Andre, a thin small weasel-like man of fifty. He had just returned from a scouting trip down the Big Alaskan.

The six of them were talking, or listening rather to Jensen talk, of final plans to escape. Echoing the identical line of reasoning which Alan Baker had sketched in Hinkell's cabin, Jensen went on: "Some of you want to go back to the River and get outside Hinkell's. It's a fine—you'd make it—ten miles afore the Yellow-strips and grab you off. Some of you want to go north to the Arctic coast. Why not?

No ships to get away on, and the Yellow-strips've got patrols there to boot. You say, 'Head south.' Yeah—and run into the nest of p'lice posted down there around Athabasca. We can't go south nor west nor north, but we kin go east—"

Lunnon Dick spoke up:

"Clear hover 't' 'Udon bay or Manitoba? Two thousand miles away? That's a bloody long 'ard trot. Stob-lee."

Jensen turned on him with a fierce anger and withering sarcasm that silenced Lunnon for an hour.

"Sure it's a b—ish long hard trot, you runty blige rat! Don't I know it? But I'd rather tramp ten thousand miles than do them twenty slow short steps from a house to a scaffold!"

The others all nodded emphatically, fearful of Jensen's scorching anger. They were sitting there on a hundred and fifty thousand dollars which he had got for them. They owed their very lives to his quick thinking aboard the steamer, when he had pulled their trick out of the fire. And they were leaning on him now to save them from the Mounted and get them out to the oblivion of a big city.

He went on explaining the escape.

"Now, here, all of you—look 't' here." He smoothed a place on the mud floor; and as the others leaned forward to watch, he drew a rule map with his long thumb nail. "We'll follow the Inconnu east a ways and then head south for Manitoba. We'll spend the rest of this summer and fall working down into timber country. Then we'll find some good hiding place and build a couple shacks and lay in meat, and we'll wait there till the break-up. Next spring we'll east on down and out to Winnipeg, and there we'll be with hether a hundred and fifty thousand in hides and furs!"

His own personal and private plans after they did get out to Winnipeg, Jensen did not see fit to disclose. He knew a party there in the Queen City of the Wheat Plains who would buy the furs at two-thirds of their auction value and say "muddling." The dust, being unstamped, could be sold anywhere. He himself, both business manager and leader of this enterprise, would naturally attend to those business matters. Once with the money in his pocket, would he split six ways with these lubbers? Or would he take a train and fade out of their lives and have that hundred and fifty thousand for his own sweet own? You bet your life he would!

With his plans clear and the men completely under his sway, Jensen leaned back against a cushion of furs and sat, smoking, thinking.

He guessed that for once the police were altogether baffled. They must be pounding their heads to explain who he and his men were, where they had come from, how they had got into this country, unknown, unseen; and how they, complete strangers, knew the ins and outs of this northern wilderness as well as the police themselves. He thought of them as a pack of hums circling frantically to pick up a scent. It was pleasing to know he had out-manoeuvred them from start to finish. A man who could beat the Yellow-strips would have no trouble at all in dodging the provincial police and town cops.

But this reflection was only on the surface of his thoughts. He was thinking of the MacMillan trading post. Breed Andre had said that Dave MacMillan was not there. Jensen slowly guessed where the trader was. From the MacMillan girl being alone at the post, except for that white-whiskered old coot, Jensen guessed that Dave MacMillan had got into trouble over that pack of other furs in the storage shed.

Through the tobacco haze Jensen looked back across six years and saw again all the details of a certain incident between himself and Joyce MacMillan. He had realized that incident a thousand times since it happened. The memory of it, the memory of that laughing-eyed girl, had come down across the years like the scent of fresh violets. Two weeks ago when his party passed the MacMillan trading post, the place had seemed deserted. But he had known she lived there; and drawn by some overpowering impulse to see her, to be near her again, he had hung caution and hot haste to the winds, and stopped, and gone shore. The picture of that MacMillan girl asleep, an arm under her head, a ghost-spurred violet in her hair—that flesh-and-blood reminiscence of her former memory had been a madness in his blood ever since. It had overshadowed his waking thoughts, had flitted across his dreams, had been present with him even during the hot battle with the three Mounties at the edge of Myny Waters.

The news which Breed Andre had brought back—that Joyce was practically alone at the trading post, scarcely two days travel away, that the trading had dwindled and few Indians or metis came now, that the officer commanding at Port Enlurence was giving her no protection whatsoever—this news to Jensen was like a match to a barrel of powder.

His deliberate brain saw danger in his scheme; but he had risked death for the furs and gold, and that hundred and fifty thousand was far less vivid, less tangible, less impassioned to him than the memory of that moment when he stood looking through Joyce's window. He had spent a year on a whaler without getting back to port; a year of exile in Alaskan mountains, among prospectors. . . . There are hungers more powerful than the hunger for food or gold. . . .

It would be ridiculously easy, he reasoned, to knock the old coot on the head and take the defenseless girl. They would land above the station and creep upon it through the bush. Two of his men would go in peacefully, as though to trade, and watch their chance to seize her. His party could swoop, strike, and have the whole thing over in ten minutes.

Knocking the ashes from his pipe, he leaned forward:

"Men, I got an idee. I just showed you lubbers our one chance to 'scape. Now I'm gonna show you how we can make out getaway dead sure and certain. How we can tie them Yellow-strips up in a sick and throw away the key. Anybody objecting? Anybody wanting to kick over the traces?"

Glaring around him, he saw enthusiastic details. The men were lunging upon his words; he knew they would obey him without a whimper of protest.

He went on: "We're going to make a little subway down the Alaskan to MacMillan's trading post. We're going to it tomorrow. We'll rap that old duffer on the head and take the girl. We'll throw them Yellow-strips clear off the scent. While they're hunting for her, we'll be making tracks southeast to Manitoba. You'll how we saved our skins on the steamer by taking that other skirt? We'll do it again; but we'll carry this'n on along with us. No one'll ever know what happened to her. . . ."

For a few days after Alan Baker hought out of service and left Port Enlurence, Inspector Hinkell enjoyed more peace and security than he had felt in many months. But after the first satisfaction wore away, it gradually occurred to Hinkell that maybe he ought to make some move to capture those six bandits. To let them escape without raising a hand against them would look bad, very bad, to Superintendent Williamson on his coming visit to the post.

Thinking over his situation, he remembered how Baker had demanded to lead a patrol to the Inconnu river and lie in wait there. Baker had said they would try to escape by that route. He knew what he was talking about. Hinkell realized he knew.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

Historical sketch of the Pilgrim Circle of the Congregational Ladies' Aid Society read at the tenth anniversary meeting held October 16, 1931, at the home of Mrs. N. A. Shores:

"We have met this afternoon to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the organization of the Pilgrim Circle, originally called the Valley Circle, which took place in October, 1921.

"This date was disputed at the Aid meeting last week by a lady who had lived here twelve years and remembered there were circles when she came. As a matter of fact we had six or seven of them, but some of these ceased to function, so in the year named it was thought desirable to attempt a new alignment.

"According to the plan then formulated there were to be three circles to which the members of the Aid Society on the north side, south side, and valley, were to belong according to their residence. There was a possibility of a fourth circle which would include the young women of the church, only a few of whom were then members of the Aid.

"Mrs. Finucan was asked to organize this group and was so successful that two circles resulted from her efforts. These later united and became the Mary Brewster's.

"The women on the hill, several of whom had been circle leaders under the first arrangement, seemed to grasp the idea best of all and their circle has functioned properly and continuously right from the start. They were at first known as the Pillsilla's but later changed the name to South Side Circle.

"We have the old record book showing that the Valley Circle held its first meeting at the home of Mrs. Sloan on October 11, 1921. Mrs. Sloan was elected chairman and Mrs. Kelderhouse secretary and treasurer.

"There were twenty-six members enrolled the first year, nine of whom are still listed. Eight of the others have moved away, four have died, three transferred to the South Side Circle, and two never were active and soon dropped out.

"The North Side Circle functioned for a time but the membership was small and some went south for the winter so they decided to come in with the Valley Circle. Owing to Mrs. Sloan's poor health the valley women were not called together from the time of adjournment for the summer in 1922, until January 24, 1923, when the north side women were invited to meet with them. At that date the name was changed to Pilgrim Circle. Mrs. Sloan resigned the presidency because of poor health and Mrs. Rose Tynlor was elected, serving one year. Mrs. Nat Burns succeeded her for ten months and then Mrs. Sloan was pressed into service again. She carried on for the year, though she was suffering from an incurable malady, and six months later, July 18, 1926, she passed away.

"The next president was Mrs. N. A. Shores, who was elected November 18, 1925. That is a Red Letter day in the annals of the circle, for Mrs. Shores is still president and we hope she may continue to be for many years to come. Leaders of other groups may wear themselves out in a year or two and insist upon being relieved of office, but Mrs. Shores is still untiring in her efforts in behalf of the Pilgrim Circle after six years. We call her "grandma," but she can outwork us all. Mrs. Elston is vice-president and Mrs. Stevenson is secretary-treasurer.

"The enrollment for 1924-5 reached 43, but a good many on the list attended only a few times and probably should not have been counted as members. The membership at present is around thirty. Naturally, through the years we have lost members by transfer, removal and death.

"Among the deceased are: Mrs. Chamberlain, Mrs. Crandell, Mrs. Correll, Mrs. Galbraith, Mrs. Glassford, Mrs. Elmer Johnson, Mrs. Amanda Moore, Mrs. Katherine Sloan, Mrs. Charles See, and Mrs. Dan Swartz. Among those who have moved away are Mrs. Walter Ball, Miss Hettie Bennett, Mrs. H. D. Dean, Mrs. Deitz, Mrs. Dave Furst, Mrs. Hanson, Mrs. Robert Johnson, Mrs. C. W. Long, Mrs. Richard Lewis, Mrs. B. G. Mattson, Mrs. Paidock, Mrs. Lou Smith, Miss Nellie Stites and Mrs. Nellie Wood.

"The nine who were members in 1921 and are still on the roll are: Mrs. Bartlett, Mrs. John Burns, Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Elston, Mrs. Harsha, Mrs. Harrington, Mrs. Kelderhouse, Mrs. Shookley, Mrs. Saltonstall and Miss Pearl Brown. To these should be added the following who must have been members of the North Side Circle before the union, viz: Mrs. A. F. Bridge, Mrs. Nat Burns, Mrs. Cross, Mrs. Irwin, Miss Hines, Mrs. Shores, Mrs. George Swinton and Mrs. Taylor.

"According to a constitution adopted January 9, 1924, the circle is auxiliary to the Ladies' Aid Society and its object is to render service to the church. Regular meetings are held the second Wednesday of each month from October to May, and officers are elected in November. As a matter of fact we usually meet twice a month and many special work meetings are held.

"We have had teas, suppers, luncheons, sales and pot-lucks galore. Our Experience Social has been an annual event since 1926. We have sewed for each other and for the poor, and mended for the hospital. We have served seven public suppers for the Ladies' Aid Society. We have tied over one hundred comforters. We have sponsored one movie and two home talent plays, etc., etc.

"The first play entitled, 'The Neighbors,' we consider one of our happiest undertakings. It was such a homey little production and taught such a good lesson. Mrs. Sterritt, Mrs. Burns, Mrs. Kelderhouse, Mrs. King, Mrs. Denn, Elizabeth Iligman, Mr. Fowler and Mr. North were the cast and in the lime-light dispensing rural philosophy, while the rest of us helped with the costuming of the accompanying children's skit and other behind-the-scenes activities.

"Mrs. Cross, who was to have taken a leading part, had the misfortune to break her leg just a short time before the performance. Mrs. Dean came to the rescue and committed the lines in two days, so the play went on just the same.

"We received a personal letter from Miss Zona Gale, the author of the play, granting us permission to plant a community tree in lieu of royalty. This we were able to do without expense to the circle. Mr. Hemingway of the Ironton Nursery donated the tree and Dr. Mattson and Mayor Burgeon managed some way to get it to town and planted. This was in 1927 and the beautiful evergreen tree planted at that time in the city park overlooking Round lake, is still growing and thriving.

"Miss Gale added to her letter: 'I sometimes ask another royalty, which is that all the members of the cast and of the audience be neighbors to everybody else as long as they live.' This letter added the final touch to our satisfaction.

"As we review the record of the years we know we have found real enjoyment in our Circle activities and we are sure there is no closer bond than that which binds us together in service for our Lord."

STATE IS FORCING GAS TAX PAYMENT

Operators Who Fail to Send Checks Find Business Seized

Warrants for the seizure of eleven gasoline distributing companies were being served by state police Thursday on order of Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state. The property of the concerns will be sold at auction to satisfy claims which the state makes for non-payment of the gasoline tax.

The companies' licenses also are revoked and they will be required to obtain new ones under a 1931 act which requires posting a bond if they are to renew operations.

The companies are the Van Petroleum company of Ferndale, the Southwestern Auto Supply Co. of Pontiac, the Mutchler Oil corporation of Battle Creek, National Motor Fuels company of Detroit, Samoline Oil corporation of Detroit, the Weser Oil company of Grand Rapids, Detroit Oil and Naval Stores company of Detroit, the Sanilac company of Sandusky, the Den-Hill-Petroleum corporation of Detroit, William C. Fall Achievement Day a Decided Success

The fall achievement day held in the East Jordan high school auditorium on Friday evening, October 23, was most wonderful in all respects. This year for the first time the work with the juniors in the county was merged together which made a most attractive display. The Smith-Hughes boys of East Jordan high school displayed their potatoes and apples in great number. Very attractive in design and artistically arranged was a huge map of the state of Michigan made out of apples.

The exhibit of the home economics department received much favorable comment from the large audience. The canned goods on display were just too wonderful to describe. The manual training department likewise exhibited the fine work accomplished by their students.

In the club department we had by far the best collection of potatoes, corn and beans we have ever exhibited by the club members. Special praise must be extended to the potato exhibitors that represented such a huge amount of effort on the part of the exhibitors. In this class two boys, Gwendon Hott and Albert Omland, both of East Jordan, had a fight right to the finish when it came to selecting the best exhibit. Finally, however, Kenneth Ousterhout, county agent of Antrim county, decided in favor of Gwendon Hott for first place. Third place was won by Fred Ranney, East Jordan, and fourth place by Ernest Rude, also of East Jordan. It is to be regretted that more folks didn't have the opportunity of viewing the high quality exhibits that were on display.

In the white beans we had more competition than in any other class. Finally when the smoke of battle had blown over, Charles Struthers of Charlevoix was decided upon as the winner in competition with ten entries in this class. Second place went to Stanley Jensen, Walloon Lake; third place to Opal Gregory, Bay Shore; and fourth place to Barbarn Evers, also of Bay Shore.

In the red kidney bean class four entries were in the thick of battle. First place was won by Howard McDonald, Ellsworth; second place, Wm. Jenkins, Boyne City; and third place to Lewis Laurie, Boyne City.

In the golden glow seed corn class two samples were on display. The one shown by Clayton Healey of East Jordan, was a very wonderful display of corn and would go a long way in any show. Second place was awarded to George Jones of Boyne City.

A very splendid program added to the enjoyment of the evening and was indeed very well balanced. Mr. Bush, superintendent of schools at Charlevoix, gave a very wonderful address, touching many educational problems of the present time and their relationship in building character. Mr. Otis, superintendent of schools at Williamsburg, also appeared on the program and in a very few chosen words gave a brief summary of the progress of the Smith-Hughes project work as carried on in the East Jordan public schools, as well as throughout the state of Michigan. He also named the winners in the Smith-Hughes competition. The home economics department more than held their own by furnishing one or two very enjoyable plays. Music by the glee club and orchestra all combined to make this evening one of great inspiration to all in attendance, and will do much toward staging a similar program another year.

AUTO DRIVERS MUST HAVE NEW LICENSES

Licenses Dated Prior to January 1, 1925, Void After November 1

Now that the time is at hand when all drivers of passenger automobiles and all drivers of commercial vehicles not requiring chauffeur licenses, but whose present operator licenses are dated prior to January 1, 1925, should make application for new operator license, the manager of the local branch of the State Department wishes to notify such applicants that no currency (other than the necessary two cent charge for postage) can be handled at his office in connection with these operator licenses.

When applying for a license, it is first necessary to obtain either a money order, express order, cashier's check or certified personal check in the sum of one dollar, payable to "Secretary of State." As the regulations require that a separate remittance be attached to each application, getting one money order or check to cover two or more license applications is not permissible.

Also be sure and look at the date of your present operator license before applying for a new one. This date is rubber stamped on a line in the upper right hand corner of the license—usually, only the last two figures of the year being given (as, for instance, '19 for 1919). If this date is not earlier than January 1, 1925, it is not necessary that you make application now, as you have until May, 1932, to secure your new license and possibly until November 1, 1932, depending on the date. If, however, your present license is dated before January 1, 1925, or if your license has been lost or defaced so as to be illegible, you should apply for a new one at once, so as to have it by November 1, 1931.

Applications for operator license must be signed in the presence of a notary. Applicants from the rural routes will be required to have their applications signed by the sheriff or under-sheriff; those from the cities of a county, by their respective chiefs of police. Whoever obeys them whether sheriff or chief of police, is charged under the new law with the duty of sending these applications with the remittances to the state department at Lansing. Individuals are not supposed to do this, as under the old law.

C. H. S. Athletic Rating
For the school year 1929-30, approved officials have rated high schools with which they have come in contact in officiating football and basketball games. As a result, Michigan schoolmen were given an idea of the standing of their schools in administration and sportsmanship. The general plan of rating was this: 1st, excellent; 2nd, good; 3rd, average; 4th, below average; 5th, very poor. Those schools whose average ratings in administration and sportsmanship were 1.5 or less are listed on the honor roll. The failure of a school's name to appear on the honor roll may be due to one of two things: First, the average rating of the school may be greater than 1.5; or second, a school may not have been rated by any official. Charlevoix took her place on the honor roll. In football we were rated by three officials and in basketball by seven officials. The official ratings of Charlevoix high school in football were as follows:

Administration—Correspondence, 1; punctuality, 1; game preparation, 1.3; control of players, 1; control of spectators, 1.6; average rating in administration, 1.2.

Sportsmanship—Coaches, 1; other school officials, 1; players, 1; spectators, 2; average rating in sportsmanship, 1.2.

So we may see, the ratings of C. H. S. in football were fairly good. And we may safely venture to say that next year it will be better for the fault found in the spectators has been remedied. The fences have been placed around the field so that no one but the football players, the referees and linemen may be inside. This will undoubtedly raise the standard of Charlevoix in both administration and sportsmanship.

Football

The game with Boyne last Saturday was rather a fade-out for Charlevoix's hopes of attaining high honors in the Northern Michigan football conference.

Many fans had expectations of seeing the famous "jinx" broken which has held sway in favor of Boyne for the past five or six years, but hope faded as the last few minutes of the game ticked by with the score 7-0 in favor of Boyne.

The touchdown for Boyne was made in the first quarter, when Charlevoix was deep in their own territory. Charlevoix punted, but the ball went high but with no distance, due to the strong wind which continued throughout the game, was picked up by a Boyne man on about the 30-yard line and went over for a touchdown. They then made the extra point by completing a wide end sweep. This ended the scoring for the rest of the game for both sides.

But putting all other games aside, our team is going over to Harbor Springs next Saturday to fight it out, and let's hope they pull another rejuvenating stunt like they did with Chiboygan.

Junior Play

The cast has been chosen for Channing Pollock's, "The Enemy," and the first rehearsal was held on Monday evening. The junior class feels sure that the public will welcome this presentation which has proved to be such a success in high schools, colleges and universities, and in Little Theatres and stock companies. It has been said concerning "The Enemy" that could it be seen by the majority of people in all the countries of the world that there would be no more war.

The young people realize that they have set for themselves a hard task, but one well worth the doing. Both cast and staff will do all in their power to make the evening of December 11th, a memorable one for Charlevoix.

It has already been decided to reduce the admission charge to 35 and 25 cents in order to give an opportunity for more people to witness this play which Miss Bonstelle, founder and director of the Detroit Civic theatre, believes to be one of the masterpieces of this age.

American History

It seems that the American History people are at least original and imaginative, or can you imagine the C. H. S. mourning the deaths of Stewart Irish Coleman and O. P. North? But, that's exactly what we are doing. The American History classes were supposed to get some material on American colonists. One group took a Quakers' meeting, and Miss Jane Stelter gave a report in the meeting to the effect that the ladies' sewing class were making handbags to put on the tombs of the deceased Coleman and North. They were to be different kinds as the manner in which the two met their deaths were different. Mr. Coleman having killed Mr. North which warranted the hanging of S. E. Coleman.

Other reports were given. Jean Stelter reported on the private life of William Penn. Mary Helen Fitchman on the every day life of the colonists from 1620 to 1772; Dorothy Partridge on general life in the colonies, and Virginia Nickerson chose to reproduce letters from colonists to England.

We have evidence from people in the assembly that hour that they must have had an historians time, judging from the amount of laughter.

COUNTY NORMAL

The county normal visiting day proved to be an ideal one, in every way. The class wishes to express a word of appreciation to all who helped make such a program possible. It is to be regretted that because of illness, Miss Patterson was unable to go with the other members of the class.

If anyone is interested in knowing just how some of the normal students teach, or learn to teach,—come to school some time when the regular teacher is absent and watch proceedings.

"For every privilege there is an accompanying duty." The class expects Miss Miller to pay her obligation for being excused last Wednesday and Friday afternoon.

Sh—Whisper it softly! Halloween is coming. Witches, owls and black cats have all been promiscuously turned loose in the rooms. One very congenial owl spread the news that the Misses Patterson and Manley are to be hostesses at a Halloween party Friday evening. Hurray! Let's go! This party is the first social event of the year, and is looked forward to in joyful anticipation,—with fear and trembling.

The normal students are gradually becoming acquainted with some of the duties of a rural school teacher. Six more weeks of "getting ready" and they should be prepared to "begin to learn to teach." Let's hope so.

Through the courtesy of Miss Congdon the members of the normal class are getting "first hand" information about the health program in the rural schools of Charlevoix county. It is hoped that each student may have an opportunity to accompany her on one of her tours.

The class is looking forward to the arrival of Miss Hutzler, who is the first of six lecturers the state is sending out on its county normal health program. Miss Hutzler will address the class at 9:45, 11:00, 1:30 and 2:30 Wednesday, November 4. Anyone interested in hearing this lecture on "Health Promotion and Protection" is cordially invited to the normal room. Visitors are always welcome.

Miss Bigge and Mrs. Dick of Charlevoix, were visitors Thursday afternoon.

Phyllis, Josephine and Clair Stevens are back in school after a week's absence.

Mr. Palmer called at our school Monday. He gave us book covers and a health picture.

The beginners have commenced reading in their pre-Primers which they enjoy very much.

Merle Blanchard, Leola Henley, Bernice Blanchard, Shirley Block, Helen and Mary Saganek, Otto Saganek, Donald Stevens and Alice Himebaugh, had perfect spelling lessons all last week.

MICHIGAN BANKS IN CREDIT GROUP

ORGANIZE AND PLAN FOR PART IN PROSPERITY MOVE

Robert Bridge and Gerald Richardson of Local Banks Attended Meeting at Detroit

Bankers of Michigan's lower peninsula Monday were banded together to back, with the resources of their institutions, the National Credit Corporation, which was organized to restore confidence and provide funds for industry. President Hoover suggested the plan.

Some 400 bankers of the state attended the state organization meeting. How much each bank will place at the disposal of the national corporation will not be known for the present. The individual banks will pledge funds through subscribing to the debentures of the national group.

Robert O. Lord, president of the Detroit Guardian bank, in addressing the group, said the plan had been erroneously described as a move to help bankers.

"More emphasis should be placed on the idea that it will help business and the individual," he said. "This reestablishment of confidence should gradually increase the volume of buying and should bring from safe deposit boxes and other hiding places literally hundreds of millions of dollars, which, so far as their usefulness to industry and commerce is concerned, might just as well not be in existence."

Joseph H. Brewer, president of the Grand Rapids National bank, unit of Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., and Huber W. Curtis, vice president of Old Kent bank, were appointed regional loan advisers in Grand Rapids for the Michigan division of the corporation.

Robert Bridge, cashier of the Charlevoix County bank, and Gerald Richardson, assistant cashier of the Charlevoix State Savings bank, attended the session at Detroit Monday and Tuesday.

Morning worship, 10:45; church school, 12:00; mid-week service at 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

Ironton
Morning worship, 10:30; church school, 11:30; young people's service, 5:00 p. m. All Ironton services are on eastern standard time.

Beginning next Sunday morning, November 1st, the pastor will preach a series of sermons using the Ten Commandments as his subject. Next Sunday the subject will be "An Introduction to the Ten Commandments." Dr. William L. Stidger, a leading preacher of the Methodist Episcopal church, together with other religious leaders, believes that "the hour has struck when we must begin a period of re-emphasis upon the salvation of the individual." But this end cannot be attained without the teaching and understanding of a few underlying Christian facts. The Ten Commandments contain some of those facts. Our sermons will not be controversial. Controversy has had its place in the extension of the Kingdom of God, but greater good has come from a setting forth of truths in a straight forward manner. With the interests of the Kingdom of God at heart we present these too-little-preached-about Christian truths.

Thursday, November 5th, we will have with us Miss Ruth Isabel Seabury of Boston. Miss Seabury speaks before our Sunday School Workers' Group at its monthly get-together supper. Although the Sunday school workers are directing these monthly events it is for the public also. The supper is cooperative. Miss Seabury comes very highly recommended in these words: "She is the best." She is witty, quick, thoroughly informed, and will command the attention and sustained interest of any group, old or young, male or female. Those who have heard her speak are clamorous for return engagements." Miss Seabury will speak before the Ironton church group in the afternoon of November 5th. No expense or effort in connection with this event. Mrs. Allen Campbell is chairman of the arrangements committee.

The Club meets this week Thursday with Mrs. George Trimble. All members, attendants and friends, invited to home-coming Monday evening, November 9. Free supper at 6:30, with program, and welcome to the pastor and wife. See notice in the past.

What will be of interest, or at least curiosity, to not only the special group immediately interested, but to many others in this city, is being put on, as a special financial system in this church. There are a great many church people in Charlevoix, and all are interested in church business, and methods and systems followed by various groups. Many churches have a very loose system, or none at all. Some people have smilingly declared that it was the greatest proof of the divine character of the church, that it continued to live and flourish, with many of the usual systems. The local Methodist church is employing a Board of Equalization, and Board of Review, and these have had five evening sessions, to carefully analyze the whole matter of church finance, studying not only every item of church expense, both local and general, but this expense in relation to all the personal resources in the church. The last two sessions acted as Boards of Review. The entire Methodist membership have a home-coming and rally, with a fine supper and program, on Monday, November 9th. Fine program and welcome to the new pastor and wife.

SPUD SHOW AT GAY- LORD ON THIS WEEK

Annual Exhibits to Be Largest in History of Important Event

This week the ninth annual Potato, Apple and Seed Show is being held at Gaylord.

While its beginning dates back only to 1923, it has grown to be the leading agricultural institution in Northern Michigan. At first comprising only five counties, it now comprises twelve, all working together for better agriculture in the Top O' Michigan.

For three years only potatoes were exhibited; later apples were added, and alfalfa seed has been admitted for the first time this year.

It is a growing institution and one every farmer in the Top O' Michigan should visit, whether he be an exhibitor or not.

Over twenty-five different individuals will have a definite part in the program, most of them of state reputation, a few of national reputation and one of international fame.

NEW LICENSE PLATES GO ON SALE NOV. 15

State Hopes to Encourage Sale of New Autos by Action

In an effort to aid the unemployment situation, Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald has announced that 1932 automobile license plates will be placed on sale November 14.

This date is 15 days earlier than in former years, but it is thought that the advance in date will stimulate the purchase of new model automobiles, and thus provide increased employment for Michigan workmen.

No change has been made regarding 1931 license plates. They may be used legally until March 1, 1932, but an appeal, based on state patriotism, has been made to all persons, financially able to do so, to purchase 1932 plates by January 1st to assist Michigan in financing its $10,000,000 winter highway construction program, affording work to about 30,000 men.

Wednesday evening at 7:45 first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.
The public is cordially invited to all services.

"Prohibition After Death" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, October 25th.

Among the citations, which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." (Rev. 22:12.)

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Perfection is gained only by perfection. They who are unrighteous shall be unrighteous still, until in divine Science Christ, Truth, removes all ignorance and sin." (p. 290.)

DEER LAW IS UPHOLD BY ATTORNEY GENERAL

An act of the 1931 legislature which prevents persons who have been convicted of violating the deer law within the past three years or who have wounded or killed any person by shooting within the past five years from obtaining a deer hunting license this fall is constitutional in the opinion of Attorney General Paul W. Voorhies.

The attorney general's opinion, given at the request of the department of conservation, says that the legislature was entirely within its rights in passing such a law and making it effective this year.

TRAVERSE CONDUCTS A SERIES AUTUMN TOURS

Belief that Northwestern Michigan can be as popular for autumn touring as summer is the basis of a campaign begun by the Traverse City Chamber of Commerce to sell this section's October days to the rest of the nation. A week of Indian summer tours is proclaimed beginning next Sunday in the hope that tourists will come from distant cities to travel the oblaioned highways throughout the region while autumn is at its height.

An organized tour from Traverse City to the Old Mission lighthouse at 2 o'clock, C. S. T., Sunday provides the opening ceremony for the week.

MICHIGAN'S PARK SYSTEM IS UNIQUE

One of Nation's Few Operated on a No Charge Basis to Patrons

Michigan has one of the few state park systems in the country in which no charges are made of any kind to the public, according to the parks division of the conservation department after a survey of the other state's recreational systems.

The only charge made in any of the Michigan parks is for special services such as rental of bathing suits and boats and sales made at supervised concessions.

In some states, according to the parks division, charges are made for camping space. In other parks visitors are charged for parking their automobiles. In one state a fee of ten cents is charged all adults entering the parks.

One large park system leases cottages on a more or less permanent basis and occupying some of the choicest park land.

Michigan's state parks are supported entirely from public funds—by appropriations from the state legislature.

AT THE MOVIES

Comedy Abounds, Romance Too, in New Hit at Palace Theatre

Comedy—sparkling senders of it—and drama, romance, pathos are the elements which get a thorough workout in the hands of a very capable and very large cast of stage and screen favorites in "Girls About Town," Paramount's lavish and brilliant talkie which comes to the Palace theatre on Saturday and Sunday next.

The story is an original by Zoe Akins, the woman novelist and playwright who has achieved glory in a few years in the field of letters and of the stage and screen, with such op as the scenarios of "Sarah and Son" and "Anybody's Woman"—and the stage original, "The Greeks Had a Word For It."

The Americans have a word for what the central characters of "Girls About Town" do. It is "gold-digging." Kay Francis and Lilian Tashman play these parts as inveterate brunettes and blond dazlers who prey upon the easy spenders who come to the big city for business and pleasure.

First Film Assignment for Vivienne Osborne
Paramount introduces a new talkie personality in "The Beloved Bachelor," Paul Lukas' newest picture, which comes to the Palace theatre on Wednesday next for a two-day run.

In "The Beloved Bachelor" she plays the part of Elinor Hunter, the actress who falls in love with Lukas, then forgets him, then comes back again.

Her beauty and talent and her fine work in theatrical productions in New York brought her to the attention of Paramount executives and resulted in her contract as a featured player.

Miss Osborne created the title role in "Aloma of the South Sea," which she later played in London for Be-lasco. She scored in "The Three Musketeers" with Dennis King about three years ago—and in other plays with William Faversham, Ernest Tru-ex and Sidney Blackmer.

COUNTY IS WINNER AT GAYLORD SHOW

BRING HOME $262 AS RESULT
OF SHOWING

Eveline Orchards Was One of Charlevoix County's Heaviest Individual Prize Winner

(By B. C. Mellenkamp.)
The ninth annual Top O'Michigan Potato, Apple and Seed show was decidedly the greatest exhibition ever held in Northern Michigan. The show was bigger and better, in every particular. A large audience was present at the programs. Never have we seen as large a display of apples. The apple department was approximately one-third larger than it was last year and the competition much more keen. It was a wonderful sight to see the deep red color that was evident on all exhibits.

In the potato department the same statement holds true. The competition was such that many wonderfully arranged exhibits were not awarded premium money. In one class alone there were over 125 peck samples. In this department Frank A. W. Behling of Boyne City was the heaviest winner, receiving a total of $31.00. He had first place on a peck sample of Burbanks, third place on a sample of Irish Cobbler, second place on a bushel of Burbanks (baking potatoes), and second on a bushel of White Rurals in addition to having other smaller awards.

William Shepherd, East Jordan, who exhibited for the first time this year was our next highest winner. He received sixth with a peck of Russet potatoes competing against the entire show, was second in the beginners' class, and had the best peck within the county. Next came Harry Behling of Boyne City, who had the best bushel of baking potatoes in the show, and had seventh place with a peck of Russet potatoes, and received 9th with a bushel of certified seed, making a total of $15. Next came George Sneathen of Charlevoix, who received second place with a peck of Irish Cobbler. The Charlevoix county exhibit placed third in competition with six counties. This exhibit consists of ten different samples and is one of the features of the show.

In the junior department Gwendon Hott, East Jordan, was our best showman, having fourth best sample in the entire department in addition to winning first within his club. Robt. Tainter, Boyne City, placed highest in the club potato judging contest in competition with a large number of club members.

In the apple division we were nicely represented by Eveline Orchards, Douglas Tibbits and Wilbur Spidle. Eveline Orchards won a total of $59 and had a display that was the largest and most complete of any one exhibitor. Among their winnings were first on plates of Golden Russet and Starks Delicious; first on a tray of Jonathans; second on trays of N. W. Greenings, Golden Russets, Grimes Golden and Starks Delicious. In the bushel class they received fourth, and in the apple collection of fifty apples also second, and fourth in the fancy pack class.

Douglas Tibbits of Boyne City, had first on plates of Wealthy and Wolf Rivers; second on a tray of Wealthies; third and two awards of merit in the bushel class; fourth in the collection of fifty apples, and second in the fancy pack. His greatest achievement was having the best apple in the entire show, a most wonderful McIntosh sample.

Wilbur Spidle of East Jordan, had second on a tray of Wolf Rivers and second best bushel in the entire show, making a total of $19 in premium money.

There were several other exhibitors in Charlevoix county, but space will not permit giving all their accomplishments. However, Charlevoix county still continues to make their splendid showings that they have made for the last three or four years. This year we won $60 more than the year before. For further details concerning the various programs offered and the winners of various contests, kindly read carefully the supplement that you will find enclosed with this paper.

DEATH TAKES FORMER WELL KNOWN RESIDENT

Mrs. Cora Gray Died Last Tuesday
Following Stroke of Paralysis

Funeral services were held Thursday morning from the Gaskin residence on the Chicago Club for Mrs. Cora B. Gray, well known former resident, who died at 4:45 Tuesday morning of last week.

Mrs. Gray, who had been residing with her sister, Mrs. James Gaskin, since last May, had been in ill health for a year or more. A stroke of paralysis suffered Saturday, October 24th, hastened her death.

Cora B. Stanford was born in Allendale, Michigan. Her husband, William Gray, preceded her in death two years ago. Mrs. Gray came to Charlevoix about 33 years ago. She at one time operated what was known as the Shawley store, was owner and operator of the Maple Grove Inn at Wequetonsing, and for 14 years was a successful real estate operator at Melbourne, Florida.

Surviving are a son, Carroll Gray, Melbourne, Fla.; a sister, Mrs. James Gaskin, this city, and a brother, E. L. Stanford of Marquette.

Rev. G. R. Parker of the Congregational church, officiated at the services Thursday, and interment was at Brookside cemetery.

UNION ARMISTICE SERVICES SUNDAY

ALL CHARLEVOIX CHURCHES
UNITE AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. W. W. Hurd to Give Principal
Address of Evening—Special
Program Has Been Prepared

Following a custom which has been observed annually for several years, Charlevoix churches will unite Sunday evening, November 8th, for a union Armistice service.

The plan in previous years has been to hold the service in different churches according to turn, and the same plan has been carried out in reference to speakers, so that the preacher giving the address will not speak in his own pulpit. In view of this arrangement, Sunday evening's service will be held in the Baptist church, with Rev. W. W. Hurd, new pastor of the First Methodist church, as the speaker.

Pastors of the various Charlevoix churches have united in preparing a program of special interest for this very important occasion. The service will open at 7 o'clock with special music under the direction of Rev. James F. Harrison, Moody Bible Institute evangelist now conducting a series of special meetings at the Baptist church. This will be followed with invocation by Rev. I. T. Marks, pastor of the Church of God. Special music will then be followed by American Legion services, conducted by the Post chaplain. Scripture lesson will be read by Rev. G. R. Parker, pastor of the Congregational church, followed by announcements, a "Chalk Talk" by the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and music.

Rev. W. W. Hurd, who will give the principal address of the evening, has chosen an appropriate topic, "Those Phantom Buddies."

The program will close with music and benediction.

Legion and Auxiliary members, all war veterans and the general public of Charlevoix and the surrounding rural communities are cordially invited and urged to attend this service, conducted in reverence to our war heroes.

MAGICIAN GIVES GREAT PROGRAM

BIRCH ENTERTAINMENT MON-
DAY FOR LEGION BENEFIT

Variety of Amazing and Baffling
Stunts Proved Wonderful Treat
to a Capacity Audience

Charlevoixans were given a great treat Monday evening. For the first time in a good number of years they were privileged to see the work of a real magician, and the name of Birch, who appeared at the high school gymnasium under auspices of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, will linger long in their memory. Birch proved all that was promised of him and a packed house was well pleased with his program.

Birch presented a variety of amazing and baffling stunts. His escape from imprisonment in the wooden box which had been on display near the Central Drug Store since early last week was a feature. He stepped into the box and allowed local men to nail the cover securely. The box was then dragged behind a curtain. There followed a sound like breaking wood and as the box was hauled back onto the stage again and opened, Birch entered from a wing.

The disappearing pony trick was a baffling one. A small Shetland pony, enclosed in a crate, was suspended in the air so all could view it. It completely vanished before the eyes of the amazed audience following an explosion and flash of powder.

Another equally amazing stunt was the shooting of a canary bird into an electric light bulb from across the stage. Before the trick, the bulb was lighted to show it was empty. Birch apparently held the bird in a paper as he shot a gun, and then released it from the bulb by breaking the glass.

Perhaps the most amusing stunts for the kiddies was when Birch pulled yards of silk, flags, live rabbits, etc., from an apparently empty tube. In other illusions, a woman appeared to be cut into four pieces without injury, bolts were driven through a boy's neck and hands, a live woman was produced from an empty doll house. The entire program kept the audience in suspense throughout and Birch was given a big hand after each trick.

Birch's appearance here was sponsored by the American Legion and proceeds of the performance will be used in their maintenance and welfare funds.

FINAL FOOTBALL CON- TEST HERE SATURDAY

Charlevoix Meets Class B Petoskey
Gridders at South Side Field

Charlevoix high school will close its 1931 football season here Saturday afternoon, meeting Petoskey high school at south side athletic field.

Considering comparative results of performances of the two teams during the season, and also the fact that Petoskey has one of the strongest aggregations representing that school in recent years, Charlevoix can hardly expect a victory.

Petoskey should win by a margin of several touchdowns, but despite the fact that they come here top-heavy favorites, Charlevoix gridgers may be relied upon to put up a hard battle.

WINTER SPEARING SEASON SHORTENED

LIMITED TO MONTHS OF JAN-
UARY AND FEBRUARY

Spring Spearing in Lower Peninsula
Non-Trout Streams Allowed from
March 1 to April 30

While the winter spear fishermen have been given more waters in which to fish and added species to take, the time in which they may pursue their favorite sport has been shortened.

While during 1930 winter spearing for certain species was permitted on inland lakes "during the time these lakes were frozen over," during the coming winter, spearing will be permitted only during the months of January and February. However, spearing will be permitted in all inland waters, except that it will be unlawful to spear in trout streams and quasi-trout streams at any time.

During the winter of 1930, only pickerel, mullet, suckers and redhorse could be speared in the inland lakes. During the coming winter the use of spears will be permitted during January and February in the inland waters for carp, sheepshead, suckers, mullet, redhorse, lake trout, smelt, pike (great northern, grass pike and pickerel), muskellunge, whitefish, ciscoes, dogfish and garpike. Spearing is not permitted with the use of a jack or artificial light at any time.

Fishing with the use of hook and line or ice lines only is permitted during the winter for all species during the respective open seasons. Black bass may be taken to December 31, and pike, bluegills, sunfish, wormmouth bass and perch may be taken to March 31. Rock bass, calico or strawberry bass and crappies were removed from the list of game fish by the last legislature and may now be taken in any waters open to fishing at any time of the year, and there is no minimum size limit.

Spring spearing in non-trout streams, for carp, suckers, redhorse, mullet, dogfish and garpike will be limited in the upper peninsula from March 1 to May 15 and in the lower peninsula from March 1 to April 30.

Winter fishermen who enjoy their sport with ice lines may now use "not to exceed five single hooks which may be attached to not more than five single lines." Formerly ice fishermen were restricted to not to exceed five lines with a single hook attached, but now may use five hooks on one line only if they so desire.

RAILROAD CREW COM- PLETES REPAIRS HERE

Occupied Several Weeks With Work
on Pere Marquette Property

A Pere Marquette Railway Company construction unit pulled out of Charlevoix Tuesday afternoon following several weeks of work here.

The crew, under the supervision of John Hindes of Traverse City, made numerous repairs, including work on The Inn, railroad summer hotel, the freight depot, passenger depot, railroad swing bridge, etc. Wreckage of the Belvedere depot, destroyed early last summer by fire, was removed and fence along the station property rebuilt.

It is rumored that the work done this fall is the forerunner to a large program of improvements to be carried out beginning early next spring.

at Round Lake Park

Work has been started on the construction of a concrete curb and gutter on the east side of the parkway fronting the municipal docks on Round lake.

Continual wash-outs at times of heavy rain made the action necessary and the improvement will greatly enhance the appearance of this city property. The curb will extend from the foot of Antrim street to the foot of Mason street.

Bert Sharrow has the contract for the work.

WELL KNOWN BUSI- NESS MAN IS DEAD

W. L. ZIRBES PASSED SUNDAY
AFTER LONG ILLNESS

First Manager and Then Owner of
Charlevoix Auto Sales, He Had
Resided Here Since 1928

Charlevoix has lost a well known and highly respected business man in the death of William L. Zirbes, who succumbed Sunday evening at his residence on State street.

Mr. Zirbes, who was owner of the Charlevoix Auto Sales, Chevrolet distributors for this district, had been in ill health for over a year and confined to his bed the past six months.

Mr. Zirbes was born September 17, 1883, at Racine, Wisconsin. He spent his boyhood days and received his education at the place of birth. After leaving high school, Mr. Zirbes played professional roller polo and baseball with nationally known teams at Racine and Zanesville, Ohio, for a good many years, and his name is still well known throughout the middle west in connection with these sports.

Entering business, Mr. Zirbes was connected with the H. M. Billsby Co. at Tacoma, Wash., and with the Dupont Engineering Company from 1919 to 1923. Other business connections were with the Ransom Construction Co. of Pontiac, and the L. W. Hancock Construction Company of Louisville, Ky., and Miami, Fla. Mr. Zirbes was with the latter concern for three years at Miami, Fla., before coming to Charlevoix in 1928, at which time he took over the management of the Charlevoix Auto Sales, which concern he purchased in February, 1931.

Mr. Zirbes was married August 31, 1925, at Pontiac, Michigan, to Miss Margaret C. McManus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. McManus of Petoskey. Surviving besides his wife are three children, Margaret Mary, Petronella and William L. Jr., also four brothers, Carl Zirbes, Atlanta, Ga.; Theodore R. and M. J. Zirbes, Racine, Wis., and A. Zirbes, Wausau, Wisconsin.

Funeral services were held at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning from St. Mary Catholic church, Fr. Edward Neubecker officiating. Interment was at St. Mary cemetery.

Mr. Zirbes was a member of the Elks fraternal order, having joined while residing at Tacoma, Washington. His death will be mourned by business associates and a large following of friends.

CHARLEVOIX-HAR- BOR BATTLE TIE

STRUGGLE SATURDAY ENDED
WITH SCORE KNOTTED 6-ALL

Contest Closed Charlevoix's Tie of Michigan Conference Sched.—Tie
With Harbor for 4th Place

Playing their fourth and final game in Tip of Michigan class C conference competition, Charlevoix high school football warriors battled Harbor Springs to a 6 to 6 tie at Harbor last Saturday afternoon.

Coach Kipke's re-vamped line-up, which saw Struthers at tackle instead of half, Davenport shifted from his end position to Struthers' half and Jerry Walker holding down Davenport's wing, presented a strong defensive front, but no consistency on offense.

After battling through the first period without a score on either side, Struthers grabbed the limelight by scooping up a blocked Harbor punt on their 5-yard strip and romping over for the initial score. The try for extra point failed. Harbor trailed but a short time, however, for in the same period they culminated a 50-yard advance with a touchdown. Passes to Grimes and Sorensen were good for a total of 25 yards, and using the old Statue of Liberty play, Francis, Harbor half, circled the end for the needed distance. Harbor missed the chance for extra point and the score stood 6 and 6, where it remained throughout the balance of the contest.

Both teams missed chances to score in the second half. Fumbles marred good opportunities in the third period. An intercepted pass halted a Harbor advance in the fourth, and a Charlevoix threat which carried the ball to Harbor's 1-foot line, was bungled up with a 5-yard penalty, and finally an intercepted pass near the close of the contest.

Result of Saturday's contest gave Charlevoix one win, one tie and two losses in conference competition. As matters now stand, Charlevoix and Harbor are tied for fourth position with a similar record.

The officials Saturday were: Whitehead, Cheboygan, referee; Cohen, East Jordan, umpire; Cornell, Harbor, head linesman.

The line-ups:
Charlevoix—Center, Bird; guards, LaBlanc and McCann; tackles, Walker and Struthers; ends, Roen and McSaubey; quarter, Anee; halves, Baker and Davenport; fullback, Arvilla.
Harbor Springs—Center, Corey; guards, Norton and Juilleret; tackles, Gillespie and Rockwell; ends, Schrader and Grimes; quarterback, Capt. Bradley; halves, Sorensen and Francis; fullback, Bassett. Subs—Casper for Juilleret.

While Charlevoix and Harbor fought to a dead-lock Saturday, Boyne City strengthened its lead in conference standing by defeating Mancelona 6 to 0. The victory kept their record clean.

CHEAP FEEDS KEEP IDLE WORK HORSES

Roughages and Little Alfalfa Maintain Weight of Animals in Test

Farm work horses doing only work enough to provide them with exercise need very little grain to carry them through the winter in good condition if they are fed roughages and some alfalfa hay, according to the animal husbandry department at Michigan State college.

Two lots of draft horses were carried through the winter at the college and received no grain from November until January 26, when the horses were given three pounds of ear corn daily and this amount was gradually increased until the horses were on full feed in March.

The horses were pastured on corn stubble or alfalfa during the first eight weeks of the test. They were then turned in the barnyards for exercise and one lot was given silage and the other carrots. At the conclusion of the feeding period, the horses which were fed carrots were in better condition than those fed silage.

Should he send a detail to the Inconnu?

The more Haskell pondered the idea, the more it appealed to him. It was reasonably sure to succeed. It would be the positive action he needed. On his wall map he hunted for the Inconnu. He found a small channel of the Mackenzie by that name, but Baker's Inconnu was some large river. Perhaps the chart listed it as "The Unknown," the English translation of the name. He searched for an Inconnu and an Unknown, but found neither. Such a stream simply was not shown on his map.

When Little Otter came in to the post for a supply of chewing tobacco, Haskell pumped him. The sub-chief had only the haziest idea where the Inconnu was, but Indian-like he would not admit his ignorance. He started talking, gesticulating—till Haskell caught him in a flat self-contradiction and kicked him out of the cabin in angry disgust.

The Inconnu patrol blew up. There was nothing Haskell could do about capturing those bandits. He knew that if Williamson asked why no move had been made, the short-hummedness at the post would be at least some excuse. Besides, one of the other detachments, over on Hudson's bay or southeast in the Reddeer Lake country, would probably kill those bandits and the affair would blow over.

Those rainy imprisoning days, as he sat in his cabin and looked out along the slope for a mere glimpse of Elizabeth Spanning, he was tortured by the question of why she was still here, and what stood between her and Baker. Why had Baker fought out in such hot haste and left this North country that was his home? Was Elizabeth waiting for him, or had they split up?

Sometimes it seemed to Haskell that his appointment to this northern post had not been a mere vagary of luck but a manifest act of destiny, that he might meet Elizabeth Spanning. His triumph over Baker, his commission as a Mounted officer, his career in the Mounted—what did the whole of it weigh as against the prospect of losing Elizabeth after he had found her? With the sincerity of the only passionate love in his life, he felt that if Baker married her and took her away, his victory over the ex-sergeant would be a grinning mockery.

Late one quiet evening, when Bill Hardsock was gone on patrol, Haskell saw Elizabeth go up the slope to the cabin which had been Baker's, and light the candles there, and after a quarter-hour come away again. Tripping down the grassy terrace to Mrs. Drummond's flower garden, she sat down alone by the edge of it.

He went out of his lonesome cabin and out along the twilight slope toward her.

But in hand, Haskell came up. With cold, sardonic eyes she surveyed him, amused at his humility. "Toward her the man had no pride left."

She reminded him sharply: "I believe I asked you not to talk with me again."

"I. Lewis Cigar Mfg. Co., Newark, N. J., Makers."

"Yes, you did," he said humbly. "I haven't forgotten. It's made those last couple weeks pretty miserable. But when I saw you over there tonight . . . Elizabeth, won't you let me—can't I stay just a little while? I got some news day before yesterday that cut me up pretty bad. . . ." He waited for her to comment, but she said nothing. "You remember last winter I said my father was in poor health? I got a radiogram night before last about—about him."

Elizabeth understood that his father had died. She was quite well aware that Haskell was not exactly stricken by the news, though he was trying to play upon her sympathy.

She wondered why he was discussing the matter with her now.

As he went on talking of it, she began to see his reason. He mentioned the big country estate outside of Cobham, the town house in Ottawa, the extensive and valuable timber lands up the Kanikik. When he hinted at himself being the only heir and the owner of all this, she saw his whole drift.

The news left her entirely cold. From his treatment of Alan she knew how tricky, and dishonorable he could be. He was trying to bait her. . . . She smiled sardonically at him for being so crude about it. Probably he thought to make her his Ottawa mistress.

The affections of such a man were evanescent at best, and certainly quicksand to build upon. Imagining her relations with this man if she ever allowed herself to become dependent on him, she saw him slaving off marriage by the old threadbare dodges, and at last turning chilly away when passion went. Alan Baker in time would go farther than Haskell and his Odium estate. Alan was every way more a man. He was honest, he could be depended upon.

Angry and contemptuous, she rose. "I've got to go. But there's something I really must thank you for, Inspector."

"To thank me for?" He too had risen; he was leaning toward her eagerly. "I'm glad . . . I didn't know I'd done—"

"You didn't intend it as a favor, but it was." With mocking irony in her tones she went on: "Last winter Alan was offered a very splendid position in Victoria. I wanted him to take it. You need to say he was a man-com with no prospects, and that was somewhat as I felt. He didn't want to leave. He wanted to stay in service and live here in the North. Just when he was wavering, you forced his hand. You made him buy out, and so you made our marriage possible. I'm awfully grateful to you, really. You didn't realize what a favor you were doing."

She left him standing there, staring after her, dazed and speechless.

That same evening, only an hour later, Haskell made a discovery so startling that in some measure it took his tortured thoughts away from Elizabeth.

A knock sounded on the door, and Whipple came in with a report.

"Sir, last week I missed fifty gallons of gasoline out of our stores. I thought it might be a paper mistake, but today I checked up again and we're short still more."

"Well, what about it?" Haskell snapped.

"Nothing, sir; nothing at all," Whipple said hastily. He saw that his chief was in a vicious mood, and he backed away to the door. "I just thought that you would like to know, sir. Most likely some half-breed with an outdoor motor is stealing this, sir." And he closed the door quietly.

Alone again, unable to bear his stinging thoughts, Haskell turned in desperation to the service radio set in an effort to distract himself. As he had done on evenings past, he picked up an Edmonton station. Among the orders, news and personal messages, he heard that an aviator named Feather and another man, name unknown, had stolen a machine gun, a propeller, pack-chests, flying instruments and other things at Edmonton; and escaping in Feather's monoplane, had last been sighted following the Alberta and Great Waterways railroad toward McMurray. The posts were warned to be on the lookout for the plane and to arrest the criminals on sight.

The name and description of Feather meant nothing to Haskell, but the description of the other person made him thoughtful. Tall, rangy, sandy-haired, gray-eyed, with a long prominent scar across his left temple—that description would fit Alan Baker to a dot. And Baker had gone south and might conceivably have reached Edmonton.

Haskell pondered this possibility a minute and then dismissed it. It was Bill Hardsock who innocently opened his eyes to the truth.

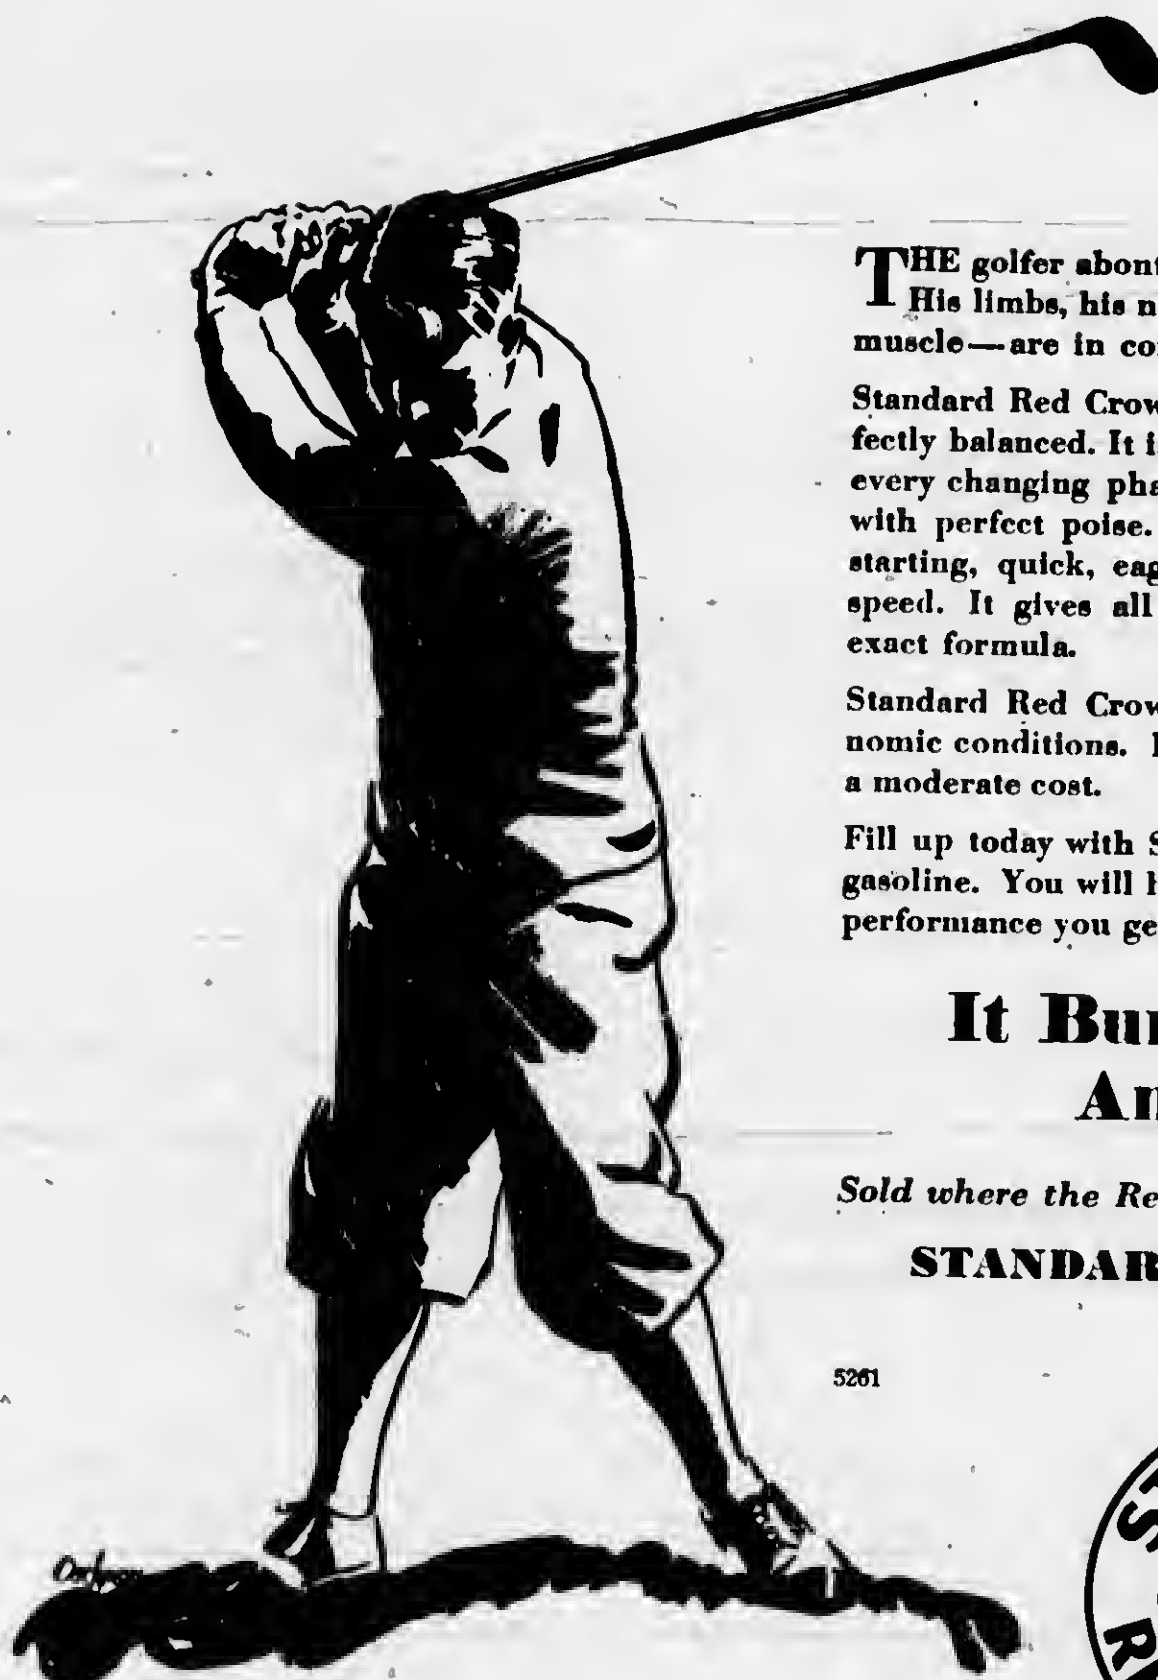

Knocking, entering, standing before the desk, Bill requested:

"Sir, if you don't mind, I've got three days' leave I'm coming to me, and if you don't mind I'd like to take

"I'm short of men as I is," Haskell cut him off. "You can't go. That's that!"

It wasn't "that" for Bill. Refusing to be driven out, he planted himself there while-legged and pleaded for his three days—pleaded till Haskell saw that the corporal must have some special and urgent reason for wanting off duty.

"Are you getting married?" he demanded sarcasmically.

"No, sir," Bill answered, with more outward respect than he had ever shown before. "I—I want to go trout fishing."

Haskell angled. He started to order Bill out of the cabin on penalty of c. b. But then he suddenly checked himself, he half-rose from his chair, gasping, with a revelation volting through his brain.

There it was—the whole crashing truth! Baker's strange haste to buy out, his strange journey out in civilization, that plane coming north, the missing gasoline, Bill Hardsock's request for a furlough of absence. . . . All these disjointed facts suddenly clicked together like the parts of a Chinese puzzle.

That man wanted in Edmonton had been Baker! He was coming back in a plane to get those bandits! Hardsock was stealing gas and oil for the machine to maneuver on! He needed these three days of absence in order to take the fuel out to the rendezvous!

Waiting time to think, time to make the right move, Haskell said jerkily: "Just a—minute, corporal. I'll have to . . . I want to consider your request." And he turned away to the window.

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Science adjusts the balance as Jesus adjusted it. Science removes the penalty only by first removing the sin which incurs the penalty. This is my sense of divine pardon, which I understand to mean God's method of destroying sin." (p. 40).

Night Coughing Quickly Stopped

Night coughing is almost always caused by an irritated, inflamed throat; so is almost all coughing. Ordinary cough syrups do not reach these conditions, but Thoxine, a prescription exclusively for throat troubles, does. It relieves the irritation and the cough stops within 15 minutes. And Thoxine goes still further—it eliminates the internal cause which many times develops into serious illness.

A swallow of Thoxine before retiring absolutely prevents night coughing and insures a good night's sleep. It gives the same speedy relief for sore throat too. It contains no chloroform or other harmful drugs and children like it. Relief is guaranteed within 15 minutes or money back. 35c, 60c, and $1.00 bottles. Sold by Central Drug Store and all other good drug stores.

Dr. Dean and Nurse Grace Congdon were callers at school Thursday. The hearts and lungs of all the children were examined and seven were vaccinated for smallpox.

Much interest and enthusiasm is shown in the new and unique type of special meeting now being conducted in the First Baptist church by the Rev. James F. Harrison of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Mr. Harrison has brought with him a variety of gifts: tender, preacher, artist, and musician. These he freely employs in the nightly services. His appeal is not only to adults, but to young people and boys and girls.

Nightly bible contests stimulate interest in the Scriptures and are enjoyed by all. An interesting feature of the service each evening are the unusual Scripture songs written by Mr. Harrison, both words and music, and published in a book entitled "Truth-Tunes." Various musical forms are to be used during the meeting, such as canon form, etc. Tomorrow night the congregation will sing antiphonally.

Mr. Harrison's illustrated message is the climax of every evening service. While speaking, he draws with bottled to a tie with Harbor Springs. It was a very good game, fast and interesting. Charlevoix fellows played a good game and portrayed some very good defense, and were in the shadow of Harbor's posts a good part of the time. Arvilla picked up a blocked punt and carried it for a touchdown.

Next Saturday Charlevoix ends her football season when we play Petoskey on our home field. It promises to be a very interesting game, in fact one of the best which will have been played in this northern section this season.

Junior High

The junior high school is organizing a student council which is based on local school needs. It is similar to other junior high constitutional councils such as Fordson, Burton Junior High in Grand Rapids and Holland.

A primary election for each of the three grades will be held soon to determine what persons will run for seats in the Council.

Mr. Bush addressed the students last Thursday concerning the ideals of the project and wished them good luck in the undertaking. The students are eagerly looking forward to the operation of this plan.

Soccer

The ninth grade boys defeated the eighth grade boys, 2 to 0, Monday afternoon. This was a peppy game and both goals were made by Charles Levinson.

The ninth grade listened to the Walter Damrosch program Friday, while in music class. It was coming in very clearly over the radio and was based upon the music written by Haydn.

Music

The mixed chorus sang "My Creed," by Garrett, at the Congregational church, Miss Atkinson, accompanist. "The Great Awakening," by Kramer, was sung by Mr. Rider.

Students were detained from their classes for a short while last Friday because when they entered the assembly, they were confronted by a wonderful sight. The books from every desk were piled high and dry in the front of the room, and what a mess! But eventually the books were sorted out, but not without a loss of quite a few books not having the names of the owners.

All student activities have been cancelled until the damages are made good.

Plans are being made for a series of junior and senior high assembly programs. Some of these will be held independently, and some will be for both groups.

The first program is to be musical with assembly singing at the gym. The band and glee clubs will also officiate.

Other programs are to be put on by the English, history, and science departments.

The history department will emphasize the George Washington Bicentennial. The science department will put on demonstrations in chemistry and other subjects.

We look forward to a very eventful year with all these meetings being planned and many look for a very interesting time.

A class in physical education has been formed for Tuesday nights after school by a group of girls. This is voluntary on their part and shows the desire of the girls for this form of activity.

The state conference on child health and protection will be held at Lansing on November 9-10-11. It is sponsored by President Hoover and Governor Brucker. It is probable that Dr. Dean and Supt. Bush will attend.

LEGION PLANS FOR MORE ACTIVITIES

Stag Supper Next Tuesday Night and Armistice Program Arranged

At their regular meeting, Tuesday evening, members of Leslie T. Shapton post, American Legion, decided to hold a stag supper at the Legion home next Tuesday evening, November 10th, at which rabbit will be the chief dish and to which members of Boyne City and East Jordan posts are to be invited. Among other matters of business transacted, perhaps the most important was the appointment of a house committee for the year to look after repairs and care of the Legion home. Fred Gill will be chairman of this committee, with Frank Coatta and Herbert Wakefield as co-members.

Legionnaires are urged not to forget that the 1932 departmental record cards and dues are to be turned over to the state commander on Armistice day, November 11th. If the post is to receive the special national citation, it will be necessary for the membership to equal or exceed that for 1931, on that date. Only $1.75 need be paid now by new or renewing members, with the balance of $1.25 due June 1st, 1932.

On Armistice day, the flag in the city memorial park will be flown at half mast until 11 o'clock a. m., when members of the Legion's bugle squad will play taps, after which it will be raised to the masthead and day fireworks will be set off. The post bugle and drum corps will take part in the parade at Petoskey in the afternoon.

SPAWN FISHING MAY START IN FEW DAYS

Test Nets Set Monday—Fishers Demand Higher Market

Opening of spawn fishing for mackinaw trout is anticipated the latter part of this week. Test nets were set Monday at Dahlia Shoals by John Nordrum, but heavy west and nor-west gales Tuesday and Wednesday has kept all small craft under cover and no lift has been made as yet.

The season opened a year ago November 9th, and it seems probable that the opening date this year will likely be about the same as last.

Judging from reports in circulation, all is not well between commercial fishermen and packing interests. Fishermen here and at Beaver Island want contracts before setting, requesting 8 cents per pound at Beaver Island and 8½ cents here on minimum catches of seven tons for gas boats and ten tons for stern tugs.

Booth Fisheries, leading local packers, are offering 7 cents, which they claim is all the present market affords. Whether or not fishermen will make good their threat to discontinue operations unless their demands are met, is a matter of conjecture.

CHURCH HALLOWE'EN PARTY FINE AFFAIR

Over One Hundred Were in Attendance Last Thursday Evening

One of the very enjoyable events of the Halloween season was the all-church party given last Thursday evening at the Methodist church. Over one hundred were present to enjoy the evening program.

Cash prizes were given for the best costumes, adding considerably to the interest. Miss Igma Isakson of the Baptist church, representing a native Norwegian girl, won first prize. She wore a remarkable costume of genuine Norwegian clothing and ornaments. Mary Frances Zeitler of the Catholic parish, representing "Little Bo Peep," won second prize. Miss Dittmer, George Meggison and a gentleman from Detroit acted as judges.

The church was prettily and appropriately decorated by the Epworth League, whose members also served refreshments. It is hoped that the all-church party can be made an annual event for orderly and directed Halloween merry-making.

COUNTY IS WINNER AT GAYLORD SHOW

BRING HOME $262 AS RESULT
OF SHOWING

Eveline Orchards Was One of Charlevoix County's Heaviest Individual Prize Winner

(By B. C. Mellenkamp.)

The ninth annual Top O' Michigan Potato, Apple and Seed show was decidedly the greatest exhibition ever held in Northern Michigan. The show was bigger and better in every particular. A large audience was present at the programs. Never have we seen as large a display of apples. The apple department was approximately one-third larger than it was last year and the competition much more keen. It was a wonderful sight to see the deep red color that was evident on all exhibits.

In the potato department the same statement holds true. The competition was such that many wonderfully arranged exhibits were not awarded premium money. In one class alone there were over 125 peck samples. In this department Frank A. W. Behling of Boyne City was the heaviest winner, receiving a total of $31.00. He had first place on a peck sample of Burbanks, third place on a sample of Irish Cobblers, second place on a bushel of Burbanks (baking potatoes), and second on a bushel of White Rurals in addition to having other smaller awards.

William Shepherd, East Jordan, who exhibited for the first time this year was our next highest winner. He received sixth with a peck of Russet potatoes competing against the entire show, was second in the beginners' class, and had the best peck within the county. Next came Harry Behling of Boyne City, who had the best bushel of baking potatoes in the show, and had seventh place with a peck of Russet potatoes, and received 9th with a bushel of certified seed, making a total of $15. Next came George Sneathen of Charlevoix, who received second place with a peck of Irish Cobblers. The Charlevoix county exhibit placed third in competition with six counties. This exhibit consists of ten different samples and is one of the features of the show.

In the junior department Gwendon Hott, East Jordan, was our best showman, having fourth best sample in the entire department in addition to winning first within his club. Robert Tainter, Boyne City, placed highest in the club potato judging contest in competition with a large number of club members.

In the apple division we were nicely represented by Eveline Orchards, Douglas Tibbits and Wilbur Spidle. Eveline Orchards won a total of $69 and had a display that was the largest and most complete of any one exhibitor. Among their winnings were first on plates of Golden Russet and Starks Delicious; first on a tray of Jonathans; second on trays of N. W. Greenings, Golden Russets, Grimes Golden and Starks Delicious. In the bushel class they received fourth, and in the apple collection of fifty apples also second, and fourth in the fancy pack class.

Douglas Tibbits of Boyne City, had first on plates of Wealthy and Wolf Rivers; second on a tray of Wealthies; third and two awards of merit in the bushel class; fourth in the collection of fifty apples, and second in the fancy pack. His greatest achievement was having the best apple in the entire show, a most wonderful McIntosh sample.

Wilbur Spidle of East Jordan, had second on a tray of Wolf Rivers and second best bushel in the entire show, making a total of $19 in premium money.

There were several other exhibitors in Charlevoix county, but space will not permit giving all their accomplishments. However, Charlevoix county still continues to make their splendid showings that they have made for the last three or four years. This year we won $60 more than the year before. For further details concerning the various programs offered and the winners of various contests, kindly read carefully the supplement that you will find enclosed with this paper.

DEATH TAKES FORMER WELL KNOWN RESIDENT

Mrs. Cora Gray Died Last Tuesday
Following Stroke of Paralysis

Funeral services were held Thursday morning from the Gnskin residence on the Chicago Club for Mrs. Cora B. Gray, well known former resident, who died at 4:45 Tuesday morning of last week.

Mrs. Gray, who had been residing with her sister, Mrs. James Gaskin, since last May, had been in ill health for a year or more. A stroke of paralysis suffered Saturday, October 24th, hastened her death.

Cora B. Stanford was born in Allendale, Michigan. Her husband, William Gray, preceded her in death two years ago. Mrs. Gray came to Charlevoix about 33 years ago. She at one time operated what was known as the Shawley store, was owner and operator of the Maple Grove Inn at Wequeton, and for 14 years was a successful real estate operator at Melbourne, Florida.

Surviving are a son, Carroll Gray, Melbourne, Fla.; a sister, Mrs. James Gaskin, this city, and a brother, E. L. Stanford of Marquette.

Rev. G. R. Parker of the Congregational church, officiated at the services Thursday, and interment was at Brookside cemetery.

UNION ARMISTICE SERVICES SUNDAY

ALL CHARLEVOIX CHURCHES
UNITE AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. W. W. Hurd to Give Principal
Address of Evening—Special
Program Has Been Prepared

Following a custom which has been observed annually for several years, Charlevoix churches will unite Sunday evening, November 8th, for a union Armistice service.

The plan in previous years has been to hold the service in different churches according to turn, and the same plan has been carried out in reference to speakers, so that the preacher giving the address will not speak in his own pulpit. In view of this arrangement, Sunday evening's service will be held in the Baptist church, with Rev. W. W. Hurd, new pastor of the First Methodist church, as the speaker.

Pastors of the various Charlevoix churches have united in preparing a program of special interest for this very important occasion. The service will open at 7 o'clock with special music under the direction of Rev. James F. Harrison, Moody Bible Institute evangelist now conducting a series of special meetings at the Baptist church. This will be followed with invocation by Rev. T. T. Marks, pastor of the Church of God. Special music will then be followed by American Legion services, conducted by the Post chaplain. Scripture lesson will be read by Rev. G. R. Parker, pastor of the Congregational church, followed by announcements, a "Chalk Talk" by the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and music.

Rev. W. W. Hurd, who will give the principal address of the evening, has chosen an appropriate topic, "Those Phantom Rattles."

The program will close with music and benediction.

Legion and Auxiliary members, all war veterans and the general public of Charlevoix and the surrounding rural communities are cordially invited and urgently requested to attend this service, conducted in reverence to our war heroes.

MAGICIAN GIVES GREAT PROGRAM

BIRCH ENTERTAINMENT MON-
DAY FOR LEGION BENEFIT

Variety of Amazing and Baffling
Stunts Proved Wonderful Treat
to a Capacity Audience

Charlevoixans were given a great treat Monday evening. For the first time in a good number of years they were privileged to see the work of a real magician, and the name of Birch, who appeared at the high school gymnasium under auspices of Leslie T. Shpton Post No. 226, American Legion, will linger long in their memory. Birch proved all that was promised of him and a packed house was well pleased with his program.

Birch presented a variety of amazing and baffling stunts. His escape from imprisonment in the wooden box which had been on display near the Central Drug Store since early last week was a feature. He stepped into the box and allowed local men to nail the cover securely. The box was then dragged behind a curtain. There followed a sound like breaking wood and as the box was hauled back onto the stage again and opened, Birch entered from a wing.

The disappearing pony trick was a baffling one. A small Shetland pony, enclosed in a crate, was suspended in the air so all could view it. It completely vanished before the eyes of the amazed audience following an explosion and flash of powder.

Another equally amazing stunt was the shooting of a canary bird into an electric light bulb from across the stage. Before the trick, the bulb was lighted to show it was empty. Birch apparently held the bird in a paper as he shot a gun, and then released it from the bulb by breaking the glass.

Perhaps the most amusing stunts for the kiddies was when Birch pulled yards of silk, flags, live rabbits, etc., from an apparently empty tube. In other illusions, a woman appeared to be cut into four pieces without injury, bolts were driven through a boy's neck and hands, a live woman was produced from an empty doll house. The entire program kept the audience in suspense throughout and Birch was given a big hand after each trick.

Birch's appearance here was sponsored by the American Legion and proceeds of the performance will be used in their maintenance and welfare funds.

FINAL FOOTBALL CON- TEST HERE SATURDAY

Charlevoix Meets Class B Petoskey
Gridlers at South Side Field

Charlevoix high school will close its 1931 football season here Saturday afternoon, meeting Petoskey high school at south side athletic field.

Considering comparative results of performances of the two teams during the season, and also the fact that Petoskey has one of the strongest aggregations representing that school in recent years, Charlevoix can hardly expect a victory.

Petoskey should win by a margin of several touchdowns, but despite the fact that they come here top-heavy favorites, Charlevoix gridlers may be relied upon to put up a hard battle.

WINTER SPEARING SEASON SHORTENED

LIMITED TO MONTHS OF JAN-
UARY AND FEBRUARY

Spring Spearing in Lower Peninsula
Non-Trout Streams Allowed from
March 1 to April 30

While the winter spear fishermen have been given more waters in which to fish and added species to take, the time in which they may pursue their favorite sport has been shortened.

While during 1930 winter spearing for certain species was permitted on inland lakes "during the time these lakes were frozen over," during the coming winter, spearing will be permitted only during the months of January and February. However, spearing will be permitted in all inland waters, except that it will be unlawful to spear in trout streams and quasi-trout streams at any time.

During the winter of 1930, only pickerel, mullet, suckers and redhorse could be speared in the inland lakes. During the coming winter the use of spears will be permitted during January and February in the inland waters for carp, sheepshead, suckers, mullet, redhorse, lake trout, zmel, pike (great northern, grass pike and pickerel), muskellunge, whitefish, ciscoes, pilotfish or menominee whitefish, dogfish and garpike.

Spearing is not permitted with the use of a jack or artificial light at any time.

Fishing with the use of hook and line or ice lines only is permitted during the winter for all species during the respective open seasons. Black bass may be taken to December 31, and pike, bluegills, sunfish, warmouth bass and perch may be taken to March 31. Rock bass, calico or strawberry bass and crappies were removed from the list of game fish by the last legislature and may now be taken in any waters open to fishing at any time of the year, and there is no minimum size limit.

Spring spearing in non-trout streams, for carp, suckers, redhorse, mullet, dogfish and garpike will be limited in the upper peninsula from March 1 to May 15 and in the lower peninsula from March 1 to April 30.

Winter fishermen who enjoy their sport with ice lines may now use "not to exceed five single hooks which may be attached to not more than five single lines." Formerly ice fishermen were restricted to not to exceed five lines with a single hook attached, but now may use five hooks on one line only if they so desire.

RAILROAD CREW COM- PLETES REPAIRS HERE

Occupied Several Weeks With Work
on Pere Marquette Property

A Pere Marquette Railway Company construction unit pulled out of Charlevoix Tuesday afternoon following several weeks of work here.

The crew, under the supervision of John Hindges of Traverse City, made numerous repairs, including work on the Inn, railroad summer hotel, the freight depot, passenger depot, railroad swing bridge, etc. Wreckage of the Belvedere depot, destroyed early last summer by fire, was removed and fence along the station property rebuilt.

It is rumored that the work done this fall is the forerunner to a large program of improvements to be carried out beginning early next spring.

Work has been started on the construction of a concrete curb and gutter on the east side of the parkway fronting the municipal docks on Round Lake.

Continual wash-outs at times of heavy rain made the action necessary and the improvement will greatly enhance the appearance of this city property. The curb will extend from the foot of Antrim street to the foot of Mason street.

Bert Sharrow has the contract for the work.

WELL KNOWN BUSI- NESS MAN IS DEAD

W. L. ZIRBES PASSED SUNDAY
AFTER LONG ILLNESS

First Manager and Then Owner of
Charlevoix Auto Sales, He Had
Resided Here Since 1928

Charlevoix has lost a well known and highly respected business man in the death of William L. Zirbes, who succumbed Sunday evening at his residence on State street.

Mr. Zirbes, who was owner of the Charlevoix Auto Sales, Chevrolet distributors for this district, had been in ill health for over a year and confined to his bed the past six months.

Mr. Zirbes was born September 17, 1883, at Racine, Wisconsin. He spent his boyhood days and received his education at the place of birth. After leaving high school, Mr. Zirbes played professional roller polo and baseball with nationally known teams at Racine and Zanesville, Ohio, for a good many years, and his name is still well known throughout the middle west in connection with these sports.

Entering business, Mr. Zirbes was connected with the H. M. Billsby Co. at Tacoma, Wash., and with the Dupont Engineering Company from 1919 to 1923. Other business connections were with the Ransom Construction Co. of Pontiac, and the L. W. Hancock Construction Company of Louisville, Ky., and Miami, Fla. Mr. Zirbes was with the latter concern for three years at Miami, Fla., before coming to Charlevoix in 1928, at which time he took over the management of the Charlevoix Auto Sales, which concern he purchased in February, 1931.

Mr. Zirbes was married August 31, 1925, at Pontiac, Michigan, to Miss Margaret C. McManus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. McManus of Petoskey. Surviving besides his wife are three children, Margaret Mary, Petronella and William L. Jr., also four brothers, Carl Zirbes, Atlanta, Ga.; Theodore R. and M. J. Zirbes, Racine, Wis., and A. Zirbes, Wausau, Wisconsin.

Funeral services were held at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning from St. Mary Catholic church, Fr. Edward Neubecker officiating. Interment was at St. Mary cemetery.

Mr. Zirbes was a member of the Elks fraternal order, having joined while residing at Tacoma, Washington. His death will be mourned by business associates and a large following of friends.

CHARLEVOIX-HAR- BOR BATTLE TIE

STRUGGLE SATURDAY ENDED
WITH SCORE KNOTTED 6-ALL

Contest Closed Charlevoix's Tip of Michigan Conference Sched.—Tie
With Harbor for 4th Place

Playing their fourth and final game in Tip of Michigan class C conference competition, Charlevoix high school football warriors battled Harbor Springs to a 6 to 6 tie at Harbor last Saturday afternoon.

Coach Kipke's re-vamped line-up, which saw Struthers at tackle instead of half, Davenport shifted from his end position to Struthers' half and Jerry Walker holding down Davenport's wing, presented a strong defensive front, but no consistency on offense.

After battling through the first period without a score on either side, Struthers grabbed the limelight by scooping up a blocked Harbor punt on their 5-yard strip and romping over for the initial score. The try for extra point failed, Harbor trailed but a short time, however, for in the same period they culminated a 50-yard advance with a touchdown. Passes to Grimes and Sorenson were good for a total of 25 yards, and using the old Statue of Liberty play, Francis, Harbor half, circled the end for the needed distance. Harbor missed the chance for extra point and the score stood 6 and 6, where it remained throughout the balance of the contest.

Both teams missed chances to score in the second half. Fumbles marred good opportunities in the third period. An intercepted pass halted a Harbor advance in the fourth, and a Charlevoix threat which carried the ball to Harbor's 1-foot line, was hungled up with a 5-yard penalty, and finally an intercepted pass near the close of the contest.

Result of Saturday's contest gave Charlevoix one win, one tie and two losses in conference competition. As matters now stand, Charlevoix and Harbor are tied for fourth position with a similar record.

The officials Saturday were: Whitehead, Cheboygan, referee; Cohen, East Jordan, umpire; Cornell, Harbor, head linesman.

The line-ups: Charlevoix—Center, Bird; guards, LaBlanc and McCann; tackles, Walker and Struthers; ends, Roen and McSauby; quarter, Ance; halves, Baker and Davenport; fullback, Arvilla.

Harbor Springs—Center, Corey; guards, Norton and Juilleret; tackles, Gillespie and Rockwell; ends, Schrader and Grimes; quarterback, Capt. Bradley; halves, Sorenson and Francis; fullback, Bassett. Subs—Casskey for Juilleret.

While Charlevoix and Harbor fought to a dead-lock Saturday, Boyne City strengthened its lead in conference standing by defeating Mancelona 6 to 0. The victory kept their record clean.

ILLNESS FATAL TO JUNE SMITH, AGE 9

Succumbed Thursday Following Confinement of Several Weeks

The sympathy of Charlevoix residents was aroused Thursday by the death of June Smith, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Smith, who succumbed at the family home on South Bridge street following an illness of several weeks.

Surviving besides the parents, grandparents and other relatives, are a brother, Frank, and two sisters, Dorothy and Mrs. Florence Donaldson, the latter of East Jordan.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, Rev. W. H. Rauch, pastor of the Baptist church, officiating. Interment was at Brookside cemetery.

REGION MINISTERS
FORM ASSOCIATION

Organization to Be Known as Little Traverse Bay Association

At a meeting of ministers of Northern Michigan churches held Monday at Petoskey, a permanent ministerial association was formed to be known as the Little Traverse Bay Ministerial Association.

Rev. A. H. Pellowe, Petoskey Methodist pastor, was named president and G. R. Parker, pastor of the Charlevoix Congregational church, was made vice-president. Rev. G. E. Smock, Presbyterian pastor from Boyne City, was elected as secretary-treasurer.

The association takes in Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim, Otsego and Cheboygan counties and at the meeting at Harbor Springs, December 7th, an effort will be made to have all of the pastors from those counties present. E. P. Linnell, J. N. Booth and E. S. Doan, pastors from Petoskey, are to provide the program for that meeting.

The meeting of Monday was at the Pie Shop where, following the luncheon, Rev. E. P. Linnell, acted as chairman. Speakers included G. R. Parker, Charlevoix, "Ministers' Hobbies," H. Lee North, "What a Sunday School Superintendent May Expect of His Pastor," and Rev. A. H. Pellowe in a review of the religious book, "Pathways to God."

Roughages and Little Alfalfa Maintain Weight of Animals in Test

Farm work horses doing only work enough to provide them with exercise need very little grain to carry them through the winter in good condition if they are fed roughages and some alfalfa hay, according to the animal husbandry department at Michigan State college.

Two lots of draft horses were carried through the winter at the college and received no grain from November until January 26, when the horses were given three pounds of ear corn daily and this amount was gradually increased until the horses were on full feed in March.

The horses were pastured on corn stubble or alfalfa during the first eight weeks of the test. They were then turned in the barnyards for exercise and one lot was given silage and the other carrots. At the conclusion of the feeding period, the horses which were fed carrots were in better condition than those fed silage.

Should he send a detail to the Inconnu?

The more Haskell pondered the idea, the more it appealed to him. It was reasonably sure to succeed. It would be the positive action he needed. On his wall map he hunted for the Inconnu. He found a small channel of the Mackenzie by that name, but Baker's Inconnu was some large river. Perhaps the chart listed it as "The Unknown," the English translation of the name. He searched for an Inconnu and an Unknown, but found neither. Such a stream simply was not shown on his map.

When Little Otter came in to the post for a supply of chewing stemo, Haskell pumped him. The sub-elief had only the faintest idea where the Inconnu was, but Indian-like he would not admit his ignorance. He started talking, gesticulating—till Haskell caught him in a flat self-contradiction and kicked him out of the cabin in angry disgust.

The Inconnu patrol blew up. There was nothing Haskell could do about capturing those bandits. He knew that if Williamson asked why no move had been made, the short-handedness at the post would be at least some excuse. Besides, one of the other detachments, over on Hudson's bay or southeast in the Reindeer Lake country, would probably nail those bandits and the affair would blow over.

These rainy imprisoning days, as he sat in his cabin and looked out along the slope for a mere glimpse of Elizabeth Spaulding, he was tortured by the question of why she was still here, and what stood between her and Baker. Why had Baker brought out in such hot haste and left this North country that was his home? Was Elizabeth waiting for him, or had they split up?

Sometimes it seemed to Haskell that his appointment to this northern post had not been a mere vagary of luck but a manifest act of destiny, that he might meet Elizabeth Spaulding. His triumph over Baker, his commission as a Mounted officer, his career in the Mounted—what did the whole of it weigh in against the prospect of losing Elizabeth after he had found her? With the sincerity of the only passionate love in his life, he felt that if Baker married her and took her away, his victory over the ex-sergeant would be a grinning mockery.

Late one quiet evening, when Bill Hardsack was gone on patrol, Haskell saw Elizabeth go up the slope to the cabin which had been Baker's, and light the candles there, and after a quarter-hour came away again. Tripping down the grassy terrace to Mrs. Drummond's dower garden, she sat down alone by the edge of it.

He went out of his lonesome cabin and out along the twilight slope toward her.

But in hand, Haskell came up. With cold, sad eyes she surveyed him, amazed at his humility. Toward her the man had no pride left.

She reminded him sharply: "I believe I asked you not to talk with me again."

"Are You Getting Married?" He Demanded Sarcastically.

Three days—pleaded till Haskell saw that the corporal must have some special and urgent reason for wanting off duty.

"Are you getting married?" he demanded sarcastically.

"No, sir," Bill answered, with more outward respect than he had ever shown before. "I—I want to go trout fishing."

Haskell answered. He started to order Bill out of the cabin on penalty of c. b. But then he suddenly checked himself. He half-rose from his chair, gasping, with a revelation voicing through his brain.

There it was—the whole crashing truth! Baker's strange haste to buy out, his strange journey out to civilization, that plane journey north, the missing gasoline, Bill Hardsack's request for a leave of absence.

All these disjointed facts suddenly clicked together like the parts of a Chinese puzzle.

That man wanted in Edmonton had been Baker! He was coming back in a plane to get those bandits! Hardsack was stealing gas and oil for the machine to maneuver on! He needed these three days of absence in order to take the fuel out to the rendezvous!

Wanting time to think, time to make the right move, Haskell said jerkily: "Just a—minute, corporal. I'll have to . . . I want to consider your request." And he turned away to the window.

Ruth Chatterton is not superstitious.

The star proved it by letting a black cat cross in front of her, thirteen times during the filming of one of the longest scenes in her new Paramount picture, "Once a Lady." This attraction will headline at the Palace theatre two days starting Saturday.

Zoe Akins' screen story distinctly calls for a black cat to jump upon a table in an English inn, steal a drink from a glass of ale, then cross in front of the characters played by Miss Chatterton and Ivor Novello.

New Adventure Thrills in Buck Jones Western

Buck Jones comes to the Palace theatre Wednesday and Thursday in "The Fighting Sheriff," a Columbia picture in which he impersonates the county sheriff whose persistent efforts to establish the identity of the leader of a hold-up gang and bring him to justice are eventually crowned with success.

Loretta Sayers, the society girl Columbia is grooming for stardom, makes her screen debut as the heroine. Robert Ellis is the leading bad man and others in the cast are Nena Quartaro, Paul Fix, Harlan E. Knight, Lillian Worth, Lillianne Leighton, Tom Bay and Clarence Muse. Louis King directed from an original story by Stuart Anthony.

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, November 1st.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that everyone may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." (II Cor. 5:10).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Science adjusts the balance as Jesus adjusted it. Science removes the penalty only by first removing the sin which incurs the penalty. This is my sense of divine pardon, which I understand to mean God's method of destroying sin." (p. 40).

Night Coughing Quickly Stopped

Night coughing is almost always caused by an irritated, inflamed throat; so is almost all coughing. Ordinary cough syrups do not reach these conditions, but Thoxine, a prescription exclusively for throat troubles, does. It relieves the irritation and the cough stops within 15 minutes. And Thoxine goes still further—it eliminates the internal cause which many times develops into serious illness.

A swallow of Thoxine before retiring absolutely prevents night coughing and insures a good night's sleep. It gives the same speedy relief for sore throat too. It contains no chloroform or other harmful drugs and children like it. Relief is guaranteed within 15 minutes or money back. 35c, 60c, and $1.00 bottles. Sold by Central Drug Store and all other good drug stores.

Dr. Dean and Nurse Grace Congdon were callers at school Thursday. The hearts and lungs of all the children were examined and seven were vaccinated for smallpox.

We will continue the series on "The Ten Commandments" next Sunday morning. The subject will be "One's Duty to God." This series of sermons is developing interest. With-out resorting to the sensational or dramatic we are trying to set forth the truths of the Law in a manner that all may understand. Parents should urge the attendance of their children that they may have the Ten Commandments well fixed in the background of their religious life.

We wish to call attention again to the coming of Miss Ruth Seabury this Thursday afternoon and evening. The music furnished by the large mixed chorus of the high school under the direction of Mr. Rider and accompanied by Miss Atkinson added much to the interest of our last Sunday's service.

Arden Dixon Alleged to Have Attacked A. C. Hansen Tuesday Night

The charge against Dixon resulted from an alleged attack last Tuesday evening upon Chris Hansen, owner and operator of the Sunoco Oil station on U. S. 31 south of the city. Dixon is charged with attacking and bending Hansen severely when the latter refused credit and demanded payment for five gallons of gasoline pumped into Dixon's automobile. Korth's Market

Much interest and enthusiasm is shown in the new and unique type of special meeting now being conducted in the First Baptist church by the Rev. James F. Harrison of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Mr. Harrison has brought with him a variety of gifts, teacher, preacher, artist, and musician. These he freely employs in the nightly services. His appeal is not only to adults, but to young people and boys and girls as well. He has arranged a program that interests and benefits each of these three groups.

Nightly bible classes stimulate interest in the Scriptures and are enjoyed by all.

An interesting feature of the service each evening are the unusual Scripture songs written by Mr. Harrison, both words and music, and published in a book entitled "Truth-Tunes." Various musical forms are to be used during the meeting, such as canon form, etc. Tomorrow night the congregation will sing antiphonally.

Mr. Harrison's illustrated message is the climax of every evening service. While speaking, he draws with black crayon upon large sheets of newspaper. This not only enhances the message, but enables the listener to more readily grasp and retain the Scripture truth presented.

Timely and vital subjects, such as "Evolution," "Adam and Eve," etc., are being offered. Among other things, Mr. Harrison said, "Both God and Adam bore witness to the fact that among all the animals brought by God unto Adam to be named, there was not one found to be his counterpart, or to be evolved into him. On the mouth of two witnesses is truth established." This was a graphic rebuke concerning modern theories; namely, "evolution."

No one should fail to avail himself of the unusual opportunity to hear the word of God presented in this interesting and unique manner. The meetings are to be conducted each evening of this and next week except Saturdays, at 7:30 o'clock, and are to conclude Sunday evening, November 15th.

Come! Bring your friends!

Griss might change our view on debts, Stimson aide says.

SCHOOL NOTES

Publishing committee: Dan Genev, Lila Tillotson, Byrnee Lampman, Marian Tyler, George Bellinger.

Meetings

Last Tuesday evening Mr. North, A. Livingston, Dr. Winder, and Supt. Bush attended a meeting at Gaylord. Representatives from all communities of northern Michigan met to discuss plans for continuing the work of the Y. M. C. A. in this area.

On Friday evening the Northwest Michigan Round Table Conference of School Men met at Elk Rapids. Mr. Bingham, Mr. North, Mr. Rider, and Supt. Bush went from Charlevoix. Prof. B. A. Walpole of Michigan State college spoke on "Unit Plan of Instruction."

The state conference on child health and protection will be held at Lansing on November 9-10-11. It is sponsored by President Hoover and Governor Brucker. It is probable that Dr. Dean and Supt. Bush will attend.

Football

Charlevoix ended the conference games last Saturday when they battled to a 6-6 tie with Harbor Springs. It was a very good game, fast and interesting. Charlevoix fellows played a good game and portrayed some very good defense, and were in the shadow of Harbor's post a good part of the time. Arvilla picked up a blocked punt and carried it for a touchdown.

Next Saturday Charlevoix ends her football season when we play Petoskey on our home field. It promises to be a very interesting game, in fact one of the best which will have been played in this northern section this season.

Junior High

The junior high school is organizing a student council which is based on local school needs. It is similar to other junior high constitutional councils such as Fordson, Burton, Junior High in Grand Rapids and Holland.

A primary election for each of the three grades will be held soon to determine what persons will run for seats in the Council.

Mr. Bush addressed the students last Thursday concerning the ideals of the project and wished them good luck in the undertaking. The students are eagerly looking forward to the operation of this plan.

Soccer

The ninth grade boys defeated the eighth grade boys, 2 to 0, Monday afternoon. This was a peppy game and both goals were made by Charles Levinson.

The ninth grade listened to the Walter Damrosch program Friday, while in music class. It was coming in very clearly over the radio and was based upon the music written by Haydn.

Music

The mixed chorus sang "My Creed," by Garrett, at the Congregational church, Miss Atkinson, accompanist. "The Great Awakening," by Kramer, was sung by Mr. Rider.

Students were detained from their classes for a short while last Friday because when they entered the assembly they were confronted by a wonderful sight. The books from every desk were piled high and dry in the front of the room, and what a mess! But eventually the books were sorted out, but not without a loss of quite a few books not having the names of the owners.

All student activities have been cancelled until the damages are made good.

Plans are being made for a series of junior and senior high assembly programs. Some of these will be held independently, and some will be for both groups.

The first program is to be musical with assembly singing at the gym. The band and glee clubs will also officiate.

Other programs are to be put on by the English, history, and science departments.

The history department will emphasize the George Washington Bicentennial. The science department will put on demonstrations in chemistry and other subjects.

We look forward to a very eventful year with all these meetings being planned and many look for a very interesting time.

A class in physical education has been formed for Tuesday nights after school by a group of girls. This is voluntary on their part and shows the desire of the girls for this form of activity.

LEGION PLANS FOR MORE ACTIVITIES

Stag Supper Next Tuesday Night and Armistice Program Arranged

At their regular meeting, Tuesday evening, members of Leslie T. Shapton post, American Legion, decided to hold a stag supper at the Legion home next Tuesday evening, November 10th, at which rabbit will be the chief dish and to which members of Bayne City and East Jordan posts are to be invited. Among other matters of business transacted, perhaps the most important was the appointment of a house committee for the year to look after repairs and care of the Legion home. Fred Gill will be chairman of this committee, with Frank Coatta and Herbert Wakefield as co-members.

Legionnaires are urged not to forget that the 1932 departmental record cards and dues are to be turned over to the state commander on Armistice day, November 11th. If the post is to receive the special national citation, it will be necessary for the membership to equal or exceed that for 1931, on that date. Only $1.75 need be paid now by new or renewing members, with the balance of $1.25 due June 1st, 1932.

On Armistice day, the flag in the city memorial park will be flown at half mast until 11 o'clock a. m., when members of the Legion's bugle squad will play taps, after which it will be raised to the masthead and day fireworks will be set off. The post bugle and drum corps will take part in the parade at Petoskey in the afternoon.

New-Crop Dills ready. Bring containers, or we'll supply special airtight 5-gallon Pickle Jugs. Last day November 7th.—Adv. 441.

SPAWN FISHING MAY START IN FEW DAYS

Test Nets Set Monday—Fishers Demand Higher Market

Opening of spawn fishing for mackinaw trout is anticipated the latter part of this week. Test nets were set Monday at Dahlia Shoals by John Nordrum, but heavy west and north-west gales Tuesday and Wednesday has kept all small craft under cover and no lift has been made as yet.

The season opened a year ago November 9th, and it seems probable that the opening date this year will likely be about the same as last.

Judging from reports in circulation, all is not well between commercial fishermen and packing interests. Fishermen here and at Beaver Island want contracts before setting, requesting 8 cents per pound at Beaver Island and 8½ cents here on minimum catches of seven tons for gas boats and ten tons for steam tugs.

Booth Fisheries, leading local packers, are offering 7 cents, which they claim is all the present market affords. Whether or not fishermen will make good their threat to discontinue operations unless their demands are met, is a matter of conjecture.

CHURCH HALLOWE'EN PARTY FINE AFFAIR

Over One Hundred Were in Attendance Last Thursday Evening

One of the very enjoyable events of the Hallowe'en season was the all-church party given last Thursday evening at the Methodist church. Over one hundred were present to enjoy the evening program.

Cash prizes were given for the best costumes, adding considerably to the interest. Miss Igma Isakson of the Baptist church, representing a native Norwegian girl, won first prize. She wore a remarkable costume of genuine Norwegian clothing and ornaments. Mary Frances Zeitler of the Catholic parish, representing "Little Bo Peep," won second prize. Miss Dittmer, George Meggison and a gentleman from Detroit acted as judges.

The church was prettily and appropriately decorated by the Epworth League, whose members also served refreshments. It is hoped that the all-church party can be made an annual event for orderly and directed Hallowe'en merry-making.

1 cup bean liquid

Salt and pepper the meat and let stand 1 hour or more. Soak beans over night in cold water. If desired, add ¼ cup each of brown sugar and molasses, and ½ t. mustard. Heat fat in a spider, add flour and gradually a cup of hot bean liquid. Pour this sauce over the meat and beans and cook until beans are browned.

CHARLEVOIX CLOSED 1931 GRID SEASON

LOST FINAL GAME SATURDAY
BY 19 TO 0 SCORE

Completely Out-Played by Flashy Class B Petoskey Aggregation at South Side Field

Charlevoix high school closed its 1931 football season at south side athletic field Saturday afternoon, losing 19 to 0 to Petoskey's flashy class B aggregation.

Although out-played and fighting in their own territory most of the time, Charlevoix proved too strong for the second string line-up Coach Wolgast started in the game, and the first quarter ended in a scoreless tie. Petoskey lost several chances to score during the period. The first was a fumble which Charlevoix recovered on her 8-yard strip. Charlevoix again stopped Petoskey on her 3-yard strip near the end of the period.

Early in the second quarter, when Charlevoix fumbled on their 40, Petoskey advanced to the 10-yard strip and Coach Wolgast sent his regulars into the battle. In two attempts, Wells and Hooker were good for the ten yards necessary in addition to a 5-yard penalty. Hooker crashing through to score. The kick for extra point was wide, and remainder of the period scoreless.

Petoskey took only a few minutes to score a second touchdown in the second half. Taking the kick-off from the 25-yard line, Webbert, Wells and Hooker smashed their way to the 12-yard strip, from where Wells skirted left end for the goal. The try for extra point was again wide. The marker ended scoring for the period.

Petoskey's final goal came in the fourth quarter when Aeneas punt from deep in his own territory carried only to the 30-yard line. Hooker made 17 yards on the old Statue of Liberty play, and after several short gains through the line, slipped off-tackle for the touchdown. Wells added the extra point through the line. Petoskey was on Charlevoix's 5-yard strip as the gun ended the contest.

For Petoskey, Wells, Webbert and Hooker played outstanding, especially the latter, who wriggled through for gains nearly every time he carried the ball. Aeneas, Arvilla and Struthers broke away for some good gains, but their efforts never put the ball in scoring position. Bird, Parker and Roen played well in the line.

The lineups:

Petoskey	Charlevoix
Miller	LE
Parks	LT
Tillotson	LG
Gemmill	C
J. Gemmill	RG
Restum	RT
Griswold	RE
Harbaugh	Q
Hegener	LL
Webbert	RL
Frederickson	F

Officials: Dickie, Harbor Springs; umpire, Sutton, Harbor Springs; head linesman, Otis, Williamsburg.

The result of Saturday's contest gave Charlevoix two victories and four defeats as a season's record. They won two and lost as many in class C competition, and lost both games in class B.

With Saturday's game, ten players completed their football careers at Charlevoix high school. Graduating next spring will be Arvilla, Aeneas, Parker, Bird, LaBlanc, Davenport, Geneit, Dick, Novotny and Vic McSaubey.

JAMES TUMATH DEAD AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Succumbed Friday Morning at Home on Mason Street—Funeral Sunday

Charlevoix county lost a life-long resident Friday in the death of Jas. Tumath, who succumbed at 5 o'clock that morning at his home on Mason street following an illness of several years.

Born in Canada, March 6, 1864, Mr. Tumath came with his parents to Ironton when a child. He resided there until late in life, moving to Boyne City, thence to Hermansville, and later to Charlevoix, where he had made his home for about seven years.

Mr. Tumath was married at Ironton in 1905 to Miss Lottie Williams, who survives him in addition to two daughters, Mrs. Kathryn Nebis of Shepard, and Eleanor of Lansing, also two brothers, William Tumath of this city, and Hugh Tumath of Plains, Montana.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the residence on Mason street, Rev. W. W. Hurd of the Methodist church officiating, assisted by Rev. Frederick Sass. Interment was at Brookside cemetery.

STATE MOVES TO AC- QUIRE RIGHT-OF-WAY

FIRST DEFINITE STEPS TAKEN
ON U. S. 31 RE-ROUTING

Highway Department Engineer Here
This Week Purchasing Property
—Contract Award Soon

Definite action has been started this week by the state highway department on the project of re-routing U. S. 31 into Charlevoix from the south.

E. C. Curtis, state highway department engineer, has been here the early part of this week purchasing the right-of-way from property owners along the proposed route. Mr. Curtis has closed with some owners, and, unless unforeseen obstacles crop up, will have the entire right-of-way within a short time.

According to the state's blue prints, U. S. 31 will continue east from what is commonly known as the "Four Corners," swing northeast on a gradual curve through the Munyon and Bugbee properties, cross State street and continue on a curve to join South Bridge street at Carpenter avenue.

In all probability the job will be offered to contract as soon as preliminary work is completed and then actual work will soon get under way.

This project, along with hundreds of others throughout the state, is a part of the $10,000,000 emergency winter highway program designed to aid unemployed, and comes under the classification of "betterment." The contractor to whom the job is let will use as much local labor as possible. Much of the work will be done by hand. The state is foregoing the efficiency of machinery in its efforts to give work to unemployed in districts where projects are being carried through.

A disposition on the part of property owners along the route to hold for higher prices than the state feels the property is worth will only hold the project up, and might even result in the highway department pulling stakes entirely and taking their money where it would be more appreciated. According to reports, however, no objections have been offered, and in all likelihood the project will be carried through successfully. Charlevoix certainly cannot afford to throw any obstacles into the way.

PLAN EDUCATION WEEK OBSERVANCE

LOCAL SCHOOLS JOIN NATION
IN GREAT MOVEMENT

Local Churches Cooperating and Four Have Special Programs for Sunday, November 15th

Throughout the United States, this present week, November 9 to 15, is being observed as the 11th annual American Education Week.

The observance is being sponsored by the National Educational Association through fitting and appropriate programs. At its recent convention, this great organization urged all teachers and educational leaders to cooperate with the home and churches in the observance, recognizing that the home, the church and the school are fundamental institutions in human society, and therefore fitting that they should cooperate in this great cause.

While Charlevoix schools are unable to follow out the topic and program designed for each day of national education week, observance is being made through short programs, and the grades, under the direction of the Misses Button and Fitch of the school faculty, are making posters illustrative of the ideals for which the observance is being made.

National education week will come to a fitting climax next Sunday, November 15th. Several Charlevoix churches, cooperating with school authorities, have given over a short period of their day's activities to the observance and appropriate programs have been arranged at each.

At the Congregational and Baptist churches and the Church of God, the programs will be presented during the regular morning worship hour. At the former, Supt. Gerald F. Bush will give an address, the topic of which has not been given yet, and special music will be given by the Girls' Glee club under the direction of Esther Mary Atkinson. At the Church of God, Miss Pearl C. Bigge, county normal principal, will give a short address on the topic, "What the Schools Are Helping America Achieve in Citizenship and Loyalty to Law," and special music will be furnished by the school music department. At the Baptist church, several musical selections will be given by the Boys' Glee club under the direction of Mr. Rider.

At the Methodist church, observance will be during the afternoon vesper service at 4:30 o'clock. The special music will be furnished by the school, Mr. Rider leading an instrumental number and one by the Glee club. Mrs. E. J. Hiller will represent the board of education, speaking on "What the Schools Are Helping America to Achieve Through Helping America to Achieve Through High Ideals of Home, Life, and Harry Bingham, junior high principal, will represent the faculty with the topic, "How the Schools Are Helping America Through High Ideals of Character." These talks will be followed by a short educational address by Rev. W. W. Hurd.

ANNUAL RED CROSS DRIVE THIS WEEK

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY SET ASIDE FOR LOCAL CAMPAIGN

Headquarters Will Be Established at "The Exchange"—Workers Organize to Aid Committee

The American Red Cross has been giving expression to the sympathies of the American people for half a century.

Turning back the pages of time 50 years we find Miss Clara Barton, called the "Angel of the Battlefield," after working in the Civil war and the Franco-Prussian war, attending the meetings of the International Red Cross in Geneva in 1869. Returning home she did her utmost to secure the adherence of the United States to the Red Cross Treaty. Disappointment met her efforts.

At Dansville, N. Y., the home of Clara Barton, in August, 1881, was organized the Clara Barton Chapter No. 1 of the American Red Cross. The principal purpose of the organization was to show what one Red Cross unit could do in time of need.

Dansville had not long to wait, for in September of that year, a vast forest fire in Michigan took toll of hundreds of lives and rendered thousands homeless. Clothing, bedding and other supplies were shipped to Port Huron, also a liberal cash subscription. Grateful Michigan representatives in Congress used their influence on President Arthur and others at Washington. A message came announcing that the accession of the United States to the Treaty of Geneva, was ratified by the Senate March 16, 1882. This treaty provided, among other things, for the neutrality of all persons in attendance upon the sick and wounded in hospitals and on battlefields.

We have a right to be proud of our Red Cross.

Drought—America's greatest disaster—brought under Red Cross care 611,000 families in 22 states, upward of 2,750,000 persons. Distribution of 608,000 packages of garden seed helped in rehabilitation.

We are called to put over another drive for membership, from Armistice day, November 11, to Thanksgiving day. The local work will be conducted on the same lines as last year. There will be no house to house canvass, but we will have headquarters at "The Exchange." Mrs. James Simmons having offered room in her place of business, The Legion Auxiliary will put up the posters and assist at headquarters. Miss French will again have charge of the Junior Red Cross in the schools, with fine cooperation of the other teachers. Mrs. Lee Allard will have the work in the Parochial schools.

Friday and Saturday, November 20 and 21, will be Red Cross days, meet us at "The Exchange."

Adah Beaman, Roll-Call chairman.

SMALL GAME LICENSE SALE LIGHT THIS YEAR

Small game licenses issued this fall will amount to about 75 per cent of the 1930 total, Edward G. Iyer, of the department of conservation, estimated. Last year 330,000 small game licenses were issued and Iyer estimates that this year's total will not exceed 250,000.

WM. BURNS, PROMINENT FARMER, DIED SUDDENLY

Was Resident of Barnard District for Many Years—Funeral Saturday

Residents of this community were greatly shocked to learn of the death late Wednesday evening of William Burns, prominent pioneer farmer of Marlon township, who succumbed at Petoskey hospital, where he was taken for medical treatment following a brief illness.

Mr. Burns, who was born at Arn, Canada, had resided on a farm home-steaded in Marlon township by his parents, for 65 years. His farm was a model one and he was recognized as one of the successful farmers of that district.

Surviving are his widow, whom he married at Charlevoix forty years ago, also two sisters, Mrs. Alice Scroggie, this city, Mrs. Abbie Kersells, Grand Rapids, and three brothers, George and Edward Burns, both of Charlevoix, and Nassau Burns, Plainwell, Michigan.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon from the Barnard church. Rev. Kendall of Central Lake, officiating. Interment was at Barnard cemetery.

SPAWN FISHING SEASON IS OPEN

BAN LIFTED FRIDAY WHEN TESTS WERE OBTAINED

Early Season Catches Are Slightly Better Than Year Ago and Spawn
Results Are Up to Average

The closed season ban on commercial fishing for mackinaw trout was lifted Friday afternoon when the required percentage of fish taken in test nets obtained from fish taken in test nets at Dahlia Shoals spawning grounds.

Some few local and Beaver Island fishermen set at that time, although a greater portion, who have been holding out for a higher price than local packing houses offered, did not set until Sunday after arrangements had been made with a Detroit buyer to take their catches.

According to the arrangement made with Allan F. Giddey, Detroit wholesale fish dealer, fishermen will receive 8½ cents per pound for their fish. Beaver Islanders must deliver their fish at Charlevoix. The Eckenberger Fish Market is packing the catch at the rate of ¼ cent per pound, leaving the fishermen to clear 8 cents. The fish are being taken to Detroit by truck, the first consignment leaving here early Tuesday morning.

So far, catches have been somewhat better than the usual early season average. Lifts running all the way from 600 to 2,000 pounds have been made up to the present time, and prospects are that better fishing will be experienced as the season advances.

According to Game Warden Henry Fike, who has supervision of spawning in this district, results are on an average with other years. As a rule, spawn obtained is light during the early days of the season, increasing to greater proportion later.

With spawn now coming in from local and Beaver Island boats, and with that already received during spawn fishing at Detour and St. Ignace, the force the local government hatchery is being enlarged to take care of the eggs.

In all, there are about 10 boats operating out of this port and the industry has taken on its usual fall intensity. Heavy weather kept all local craft under cover Tuesday, but all boats took advantage of better conditions to lift Wednesday.

MOVE THIS WEEK TO BRIDGE ST. QUARTER

Bob Miles Studio and Walker Miles
Insurance Agency in Brown Bldg.

The Bob Miles Studio and the Walker A. Miles Insurance Agency have moved this week to the south portion of the Benj. Brown building, 409 Bridge street. They were formerly located on Antrim street.

"Bob" has increased the efficiency of his studio by the installation of a new Eastman super sensitive Panchromatic film, a new departure in the commercial photography field. The new film allows exposures in shorter time than former equipment, thus disposing of some of the discomforts of posing.

The move to their Bridge street location should be an excellent one for both concerns.

HUNTERS TREK TO THE NORTH WOODS

CHARLEVOIX SENDS A LARGE
CONTINGENT THIS YEAR

Season Opens Sunday, November 15
—Few Changes in Laws Covering Favorite Sport

The 1931 deer hunting season opens next Sunday, November 15th, and, according to reports, Charlevoix will have its largest representation in history in deer cover of the upper and lower peninsulas.

While Charlevoix will send more hunters than ever before, it appears that the state average will fall off considerably. Small game license sales showed a big drop from 1930, and it is only reasonable to expect the same with deer licenses. The increase in license cost from $2.50 to $3.50 is a contributing factor along with general business depression.

No changes of consequence have been made in the hunting regulations for the 1931 season. The period runs from November 15 to 30. The kill is limited to one male deer with antlers at least three inches above the scalp. It is unlawful to have the carcass in possession more than 30 days after the season closes. Hunting parties of not less than four members are entitled to a camp deer under special license costing $3.00. The resident license is $3.50, non-resident, $5.00.

All of the counties in southern Michigan south of Tawline 20 are closed to deer hunting. In addition to this a number above this line have also been closed under special order. These include Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Missaukee, Wexford and Benzie. All upper peninsula counties are open.

In addition to one buck the hunter is also privileged to kill one black bear.

Among the Charlevoix hunters who will be in the woods next Sunday morning are the following: Frank F. Bird, Frank Courier, Floyd Brown and Clarence Coblentz, Charlevoix; also Kit Carson, East Jordan, and H. G. Bird, Traverse City, who will camp on the Little Two Heart river northeast of Newberry.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Fitch and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hamilton, will locate near Grand Marais.

Albert Staley, B. Nickerson, Jim Wilson, Sterling Nickerson and Wm. Bogart, Charlevoix, also George W. Weaver, Kinsley, who go to their usual hunting grounds near Lake Gogebic in Ontonagon county.

Harold Byers, Charles Martini, E. J. Kihbe, Al Rehfus, Floyd Black and Eugene Lewis will locate near Lewistown in the lower peninsula.

Charles, Will and Clarence Heise, Kenneth Usher, Clarence Meggison and Vern Jones, go back another year northeast of Seney. In this same territory will be Harry Gregory, Glenroy Ikens and Jean Bearas.

Louis O'Neil and Pete Hallett will locate near Hendrick's Quarry. They may be joined later by Gerald Richardson and a party from Detroit. Raymond Nowland, John Curtis and son, Charles, Glen Rose and George Cook will hunt east of Vanderhilt, as will also Fred Bergman, his son, George, and possibly several others.

Edward Heise and Sam Shantz will hunt north of Newberry; Mr. and Mrs. Murley Plum and Tom Dixon locate near Trout lake; Mr. and Mrs. Amos O'Neil and a party of two from Flint, will hunt in the vicinity of Gladstone.

Get First Hand Information on Life-saving Methods and Signalling

Charlevoix Boy Scouts, who this fall have renewed their activities under new leadership, received some first hand information in life-saving methods this week.

A demonstration of artificial respiration was given before the troop by Charlevoix coast guards, also some flag signal drills.

In addition to their regular routine, the Scouts are forming a patrol for the school grounds to keep things in their proper order.

Headache, dizziness, nervousness and all other symptoms of eyestrain corrected. Consult Dr. Leahy, the Optometrist, when he comes Wednesday, November 18. Diligent cases solicited.—Adv. 4511.

MR. ADAMS SPOKE OUT OF TURN

Following a careful perusal of Webster's in order to analyze numerous strange journalistic phrases of ages gone by, we believe we now thoroughly understand Editor Adams' very meek attempt to repudiate recent editorial criticism made by the Courier against a Sentinel article calling attention to an investigation at Charlevoix hospital by the State Department of Health.

Editor Adams' statement that the Courier did not reveal facts concerning the investigation is false. True, they were not revealed in the editorial criticizing him, but in a news article we explained fully the reason for the investigation and the result. Had Editor Adams done that in the first place, he would not have been criticized.

Editor Adams states there was no small amount of talk among local citizens following publication of the article in the Sentinel to which we took exception. Certainly there was talk. His uninforming article occasioned this talk, and that is the very reason he was taken to task.

In regard to Mr. Adams' statement suggesting the putrid work be left to Mr. Usher, we might say that the record of the present board believes such an attitude. We believe if Mr. Adams would recall that he was a member of a former board asked to resign with the hospital a financial failure, and then compare the record of the former administration with the present, he would realize he had spoken out of turn.

CITY INSTALLS NEW CHANNEL WATER MAIN

Connect Belvedere and Chicago Club Under Upper Lake Channel

The city started its second improvement project of the fall this week—that of laying a new 8-inch water main under the channel between Round lake and Lake Charlevoix.

Contract for laying the new main, which will connect the Chicago Club and Belvedere resorts and give the city a complete water circuit, has been let to Tom Mahon, Muskegon diver. Mahon has sublet the dredging contract to Ira Jack Lyons of Grand Rapids, who has moved a tractor with clam-shell shovel from the Mackinaw City state ferry dock job to Charlevoix.

The main will be put down to a depth of 24 feet under water level in accordance with government specifications. Connecting mains from Chicago and Belvedere avenues have already been put down by the city and are ready to connect up with the under water circuit. The work is under the direction of Dan Soule, city electric light and water superintendent.

Another improvement just completed is the construction of a curb and gutter along Round lake between Antrim and Mason streets.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

Subject, "Mortals and Immortals." Wednesday evening at 7:45 first Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to all services.

"Adam and Fallen Man" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, November 8th.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the bible: "For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." (Rom. 8:2).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Science rolls back the clouds of error with the light of Truth, and lifts the curtain on man as never born and as never dying, but as coexistent with his creator." (p. 557).

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

So Baker had not given up; he was out of service, but he was coming back to finish with those landlarks. Haskell's knowledge of Baker's grim persistent nature and the man's uncanny wisdom in a wilderness situation, whispered to him: "And he'll corner them, too! He'll run those men down! He's going to have a showdown fight with them."

For a moment he was staggered by the man's superb daring. For a moment, forgetting personal scores between himself and Baker, he felt an admiration for this magnificent attempt.

Then, as he saw deeper into the consequences of this feat, his admiration darkened and flickered out. How would it look for the ex-sergeant to capture or kill those men, or at least corner them and go down fighting? What would the higher officials have to say about that?

All his hatred and jealousy of Baker flared up. "Not only was this man going to marry the girl he loved; this relentless sergeant, rising out of a crushing defeat, was going to show him up and make his very name a joke throughout the Force."

"You are instructed," he still heard those crackling words flashing up across the wilderness from Edmonton—"to ensure that plane and to arrest those criminals on sight." Baker was a criminal, a wanted man, subject to arrest, certain of a penitentiary sentence! Somewhere to the south he was flying across the latitudes. He had a rendezvous somewhere with Hardsock.

Hardsock could be trailed to that meeting place! The plane could be captured, Baker arrested, sent up for a term.

Presently Haskell turned around, smiling pleasantly. "I was disgruntled about something when you first came in, corporal. You really have patrolled hard for several months. I'm sorry I snapped at you. You can have your three days off whenever you like. You want to start tomorrow?" And when Bill nodded eagerly, "Very well, I'll throw in the rest of this evening, too. By the way, when you go past barracks ask Whipple to step down here."

"Snakes!" Bill breathed to himself, as he thanked Haskell and went out the door. "That Spring-heel Johnny must be winding up to ask a favor of me, or something. But I've got my three days to help Alan out. Lord, I hope Alan shows up during my free time. He might maybe let me go along on his trick."

With no suspicion of the ugly truth, he turned up the twilight slope. When Whipple came in, Haskell ordered him to close the door and pull down the window, to guard against possible eavesdropping. Then he tersely explained the situation. He added:

"Hardsock will probably steal some more gasoline and oil tonight. What he's already stolen isn't enough for a plane to do much maneuvering on. I want you to watch him stealing that stuff so that you can later be a witness."

ness. He'll probably have time to take those drums only a couple miles from here tonight. Tomorrow he'll take all of it on to the place where he's to meet Baker. He's been sneaking it away little by little when he had the chance, and hiding it close by; but during his three days he'll take it to the meeting place.

"You go down to the river bank now to those two teepees and get that Indian called Ogi-Tomax. You remember Hardsock thrashed him one time last winter for carrying a squaw-club and beating his wife. He's got a grudge against Hardsock, he'll have a personal interest in this, he's just the man we want. Take a carton of my cigarettes with you and a little rum as a silence present. I'll personally pay him five dollars a day. Do you understand so far?"

Whipple nodded. Haskell went on: "You and the Indian are to shadow Hardsock tonight and tomorrow. Find out where he's taking that stuff and where he's going to meet Baker. As soon as you do that, whip back here and report to me."

It was late the next evening before Whipple returned. He came back tired, bedraggled, but with electric news.

He and the Indian had watched Bill steal more gas and oil from the stores. They had shadowed him to the temporary cache two miles up the Mackenzie. There he had loaded his canoe and had taken them all to a big lake twenty miles up the river. He had cached the fuel on a headland called Goose point, and was waiting there, without the faintest suspicion that he had been trailed and was being watched. The Indian, lying low back in the willows, was keeping an eye on him.

As Haskell listened to the report, he forgot the hazy day and night just passed. He had scarcely dared hope for such news as this.

After careful thought, guarding against any slip-up, he ordered Whipple: "Go get your rifle and belt-gun. I'll take mine, too. We'll go up there in the launch. You can drive it. We'll capture Hardsock and those supplies. That'll be that. Then we'll wait there. The plane'll be alone in a couple days. We'll keep the launch in cover close by. When the machine lights down and they go ashore to get the supplies, we'll ram it and put it out of commission. Then we'll have Baker and this Featherfoot—and we'll put them where the dogs won't bite 'em."

After his despair of their last week, after his helpless fostering anger at Baker, it was a new lease on hope to know he was going to smash Baker's venture and throw him into prison and make his marriage to Elizabeth impossible! Baker was walking all unknowingly into a deadly trap. Walking into arrest and criminal disgrace and prison. He would be lucky to get off with a sentence of two years. That was the statute minimum for his offense.

Buckling on his belt-gun, Haskell snuffed the candles and went out of his cabin on the easiest, most exultant, most deadly certain trip he had ever made.

CHAPTER IX

Wings Over the Wilderness

On that first day of flight, as dawn broke full and the sun chased away a layer of gossamer clouds beneath the White Spear, Alan looked down with marveling eyes at a strange panorama. Evergreen forestry, silvery lakes and silvery network of rivers far below, swam past at a speed to amaze him. In thirty minutes he was covering a distance which would take a whole day's hard traveling by canoe or komatik.

Knowing that if he and Buzzard showed up at a police post or larger trading center, it would mean a quick and sorry end of their flight, Alan planned to avoid such places religiously. He had a conviction that he and Buzzard were "wanted." They had left too many tracks in Edmonton—clues that would speedily be followed up. The police there, a wise live outfit, had certainly connected them with the theft of all that government property and had radioed instructions for their arrest.

Eventually he and Buzzard were going to be caught. It was as inevitable as sunset. Soon or late they would have to return to civilization and face the music. To Alan the worst of it was that Buzzard was going to pay a heavy price for helping him on this thankless job. For himself he did not greatly care; he hardly thought of it. . . . He was headed north again, on his last patrol, his greatest patrol.

As they worked on north, they made moderately good time, but only by incessant care and worry. Engine trouble caused them delay. Again and again they set down on some unknown river or lake and sweated for hours over the old motor. Fuel was a constant problem. Avoiding Mounted detachments and Royal Signal corps stations like the plague, they dared stop only at wilderness-buried posts where radios were unlikely and no police hauly. They could never be certain of getting fuel, and what they did get was usually half kerosene.

Alan was looking forward to his rendezvous with Bill as the end of all this worry about gas and oil. Besides the fuel there at Goose point, Bill had promised to cache some supplies up the Alooska near Joyce's home.

Alan was fervently looking ahead to meeting Bill at En Traversé Lake, to getting those precious supplies, to seeing Joyce again there on the Big Alooska. All of his loyalty to the sister of his dead partner could not keep him from comparing Joyce's vital spirited personality with Elizabeth's lethargic and snail-paced two years of heroic sacrifice with Elizabeth's idle deliberate dependence. On their last evening, worn out by a day of engine trouble and head winds and blinding rains, they alighted in a little spruce-buried lake on Silver-tip river, a short hundred miles south of Fort Endurance. Anchoring the plane, they paddled ashore, cooked a warm meal, and rolled up in their blankets for a few hours of desperately needed rest.

"Tomorrow's the day of days," Buzzard remarked, thinking of the supplies and a base to maneuver from.

"It's the day of days," Alan agreed, but he was thinking of Joyce running down the path, bareheaded in the sun, to greet them. Tomorrow he would know if she was safe. Tomorrow, after the rendezvous with Bill, the White Spear would be dropping down upon the Big Alooska.

Buzzard was asleep almost instantly, but Alan, tossing in a useless attempt to sleep, finally got up, huddled a tiny fire, and sat beside it, thinking, a dead pipe in his teeth.

As he sat there under the solemn spruces, he tried to look steadily at his looming marriage to Elizabeth, and decide his course. No longer blinded by idealization of her as a girl, he saw now, with pitiless insight, that all along she had not wanted him unless he had a good income and was out of the North. She might love him as well as she had ever loved anybody; but to her he was not greatly more than a means of getting what she wanted out of life.

This tea was the first benefit of the kind to be given for this worthy cause and was of outstanding interest and one of the largest and most delightful social functions ever given. RELIGIOUS MEETINGS
DRAW LARGE CROWDS

Will Continue at Baptist Church to Evening of November 15th

The special meetings now being conducted in the First Baptist church by the Rev. James F. Harrison of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, are largely attended. The balcony is being used, also chairs on the main floor in addition to the church pews, in order to accommodate the attendance. The average testimony with regard to the meetings is: "They are becoming more interesting each evening."

Mr. Harrison's new and unique method of gospel presentation has proven itself not only to be acceptable, but also very effective. A goodly number of souls have acknowledged their acceptance of the Lord Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour. Others, who were previously Christians, have not been sparing in their acknowledgment of blessing. One individual has said, "Each message is a feast."

Music is a special feature of the meeting each evening and is greatly enjoyed by all. Various musical forms have been and are to be employed in the evening services. Mr. Harrison plays a special piano solo, sometimes an old and familiar hymn with variations of his own arrangement and again, a gospel song evangelistically. His pianologue, "David and Goliath," is something quite out of the ordinary.

The nightly bible contests have been engaging the attention and interest of all. The winners are to be awarded at the closing evening meeting, Sunday, November 15th.

ALLOCATION OF AUTO PLATES IS ANNOUNCED

Definite allocations of 1932 automobile plates in consecutively numbered blocks are being made by the department of state. The nearby branch offices of the department have been allotted numbers as follows: Petoskey No. 1-104-851 to 1-108-450; Boyne City, 1-052-201 to 1-053-700; Charlevoix, 1-097-851 to 1-099-050.

THREE STRAITS FERRIES ON DURING DEER SEASON

Because of the large number of deer hunters going north, three ferries will operate at the Straits of Mackinaw, beginning on November 10th. Instead of running on a regular schedule, the ferries will operate both day and night as fast as they are able to load and unload. This service will continue as long as there is traffic to demand it.

COUNTY TO LIST ITS UNEMPLOYED

ORGANIZE COUNTY-WIDE COMMITTEES FOR PROJECT

Work Gets Under Way at Meeting Called for Thursday Evening at East Jordan High School

Charlevoix county is this week falling in line with other counties of the state to cooperate with Governor Wilmer M. Brucker's Michigan Unemployment Commission, which has been designed to solve the state's unemployment problems during the coming winter.

To these various committees throughout the state goes the task of selecting men who will be employed on projects provided by the $10,000,000 emergency winter highway program, which will bring to Charlevoix county many thousands of dollars for road work.

Chairman Harry A. Craig of the board of supervisors, has selected a committee of 35 men from the several cities and villages of the county to carry on the work. An executive committee of five, including Howard Porter, East Jordan; Dr. Guy C. Conkle, Boyne City; Arthur Bergeon, Charlevoix; William J. Pearson, Boyne Falls; and James H. Gallagher, St. James, has been chosen, and committees from the five districts into which the county has been divided, are as follows:

Chairman Crnig has called a meeting of the various committees to be held Thursday evening, November 12th, at 8 o'clock, eastern standard time, in the high school auditorium at East Jordan. At this time plans for registering the county's unemployed will be made, and special projects aimed to aid unemployment within the county explained.

One of the first projects to be undertaken is that of widening the grade on M-75 between Boyne Falls and Boyne City. This work will be done as far as possible by hand, and unemployed men throughout the county will be used, working in shifts in order to give the largest possible number employment.

Any person interested in the work is cordially invited to attend the meeting at East Jordan Thursday evening.

COUNTY NORMAL

The normal class has had its second official recognition as prospective teachers. They were extended an invitation to attend the school officers' meeting held in East Jordan Tuesday, November 10, and through the courtesy of Miss Miller, Mr. Coulter, Mr. Palmer and Miss Biege, transportation was provided so they could attend.

Book reports of numerous and varied nature are the order of the day. Through the efforts of Misses Gleason and Kraemer the students are provided with a real November atmosphere, which is hoped may result in a whole hearted Thanksgiving.

The normal department wishes to extend a note of appreciation to Miss Irma Carey (a former graduate) of Charlevoix, for her generous contribution of a set of "Public School Method" books. Loyalty such as this helps to keep up the real normalist spirit of helpfulness and friendliness.

The normal class is looking forward with pleasure to the surprises held in store for them by Miss Gleason and Mr. Coulter, under whose guiding hands plans are being worked out for the observance of Book Week, November 14-20.

CHEBOYGAN COUNTY EMPLOYS MANY IDLE MEN

The Cheboygan county highway superintendent, Jack MacAlpine, reported to the Cheboygan Daily Tribune that about 236 men are now at work on Cheboygan roads. Most of these are working on the new paving and paving repair jobs. They work three days a week, one crew working the first three days and another the last three days of each week.

LAKE CO. FARMERS SEEK PROTECTION FROM DEER

The Lake county board of supervisors adopted a resolution urging the state to pay for damage done by deer to farm crops within the county at its fall meeting. Damage done by deer is now paid by the state, and the fact that there is no open season in Lake county on deer prompted the board to pass the resolution.

WHY do BIG concerns advertise?

NORTHERN TRANSIT CO. TWO BOATS ATTACHED

Action Taken for Protection of Bonding Companies

To protect the bond holders, the Central Republic Bank & Trust Company of Chicago, trustee for the bond holders, has attached the Steamers Manitou and Puritan of the Michigan Transit Corporation, as they lay at their winter quarters in Manistee.

The Manitou and Puritan, for many years, have been the only lake steamers making Charlevoix a regular port of call. The company controlling the ships has passed through many financial vicissitudes but has always kept the ships operating. It has been rumored in Chicago for some time that the company was seriously involved in a financial way and the attachment of the ships does not come as a surprise.

Maritime law was invoked in the case and the actual attachment was made through the office of United States District Marshal Martin Brown of Grand Rapids.

Charlevoix's chief interest in the case is through the possibility of the boats being sold to some company which does not operate on this part of Lake Michigan.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

By B. C. Mellenkamp

Importance Notice to Owners of Christmas Trees

Word has been received by County Agricultural Agent B. C. Mellenkamp, to the effect that county agents cannot inspect Christmas trees. This has been the practice in the past, but E. C. Mandenberg, orchard and nursery inspection department of agriculture, Lansing, has made a ruling that hereafter all inspections must be made by a representative of his department.

More important yet is the announcement that applications for inspection must be sent in immediately, as no inspections will be made after the first of December. In the past, many Charlevoix county farmers have waited until they have a buyer and then desire to have an inspector at once. Obviously, it would take hundreds of inspectors to take care of these short-notice applications which is out of the question with reduced budgets.

If you desire to sell trees, get in touch with your county agent immediately as he has all the necessary blanks, and other material that you will need when you send in your application for inspection. This notice is merely to state the reasons why your county agent will not be in a position to perform this service for you as has been the case in the past. Get your application in at once.

interesting to the leaders of any thus far conducted. Every group was represented by two leaders, and the information up to date indicates that over two hundred ladies have already enrolled in this splendid project.

The subject matter discussed by Miss Reis was that of rug making, and to say that the ladies were interested in it would be putting it mildly. Even the janitor can attest to the fact that large quantities of burlap and overhauls and other discarded clothing material were in great evidence. It seems rather strange that beautiful rugs can be made with this type of discarded materials, but several rugs were displayed by Miss Reis which eliminated any thoughts along this line.

This will be the last lesson to be given this year, so no doubt during the long winter months many of the ladies will be actively engaged in rug making. The next lesson will be given some time in April and the county achievement day will be held some time in May to avoid bad road conditions, thus enabling everyone to come for this very pleasant occasion.

ROOT CROPS MAKE GOOD STOCK FEED

Large Yields Cut Production Costs Per Ton to Low Figure

Root crops which produce 20 or more tons of good feed per acre and which cost less than $4 a ton to grow and harvest should be grown more commonly in Michigan than at present, according to the farm crops department at Michigan State college.

Farmers who live in sections where corn will not mature enough to make good silage can use roots instead. The kinds usually grown are rutabagas, mangels, or carrots. These crops contain from 80 to 90 per cent water but the dry matter in the crop has the same feeding value pound for pound as the dry matter in corn silage.

Roots have a conditioning value for livestock which makes them more desirable for feeding than the actual content of nutrients would indicate. Stock men who exhibit at fairs and livestock breeders use roots to keep their stock in good condition. Carrots are especially valuable for feeding to horses.

and Executed by Posts

With membership in the American Legion having passed the million mark and, in view of the realization of the rapidly growing strength and importance of this organization, the annual convention in Detroit, Mich., was emphasized by the recent national convention in Detroit, Mich., may not be amiss at this time to examine some of the things for which the Legion stands and what it has accomplished along the lines of service that it has elected to follow.

The inspiration of "Welfare and Service" came to the American Legion with the acceptance and understanding of their preamble: "To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America," "to foster and perpetuate a one hundred percent Americanism," "to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to community, state and nation," "to combat the autocracy of both the masses and the masses," "to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy," all this is the concern and work of the Legion post in its community.

The first efforts of the American Legion were directed toward the relief of their disabled comrades and their families and the widows and orphans of those comrades who have passed on. This work has been handled by especially trained men from among the Legion's own membership. It has become systematized to such a degree that Legion posts have found time for an expansion of Legion activities.

In the field of community service, over two hundred separate and distinct activities have been carried out by Legion posts. In 1930 a survey was conducted, and reports coming in from only 4,100 posts of the Legion showed that in this particular field safety programs were conducted by more than 3,000 posts, the park and playground activity was engaged in by 1,600 posts, emergency relief units were established by 3,000 posts, and the roofs of buildings were marked for the guidance of aviators by over 4,000 posts. Legionnaires, trained to work together in time of distress, have organized to work in ease of emergency during the time which necessarily exists between the time when the flood or tornado strikes until the time when the Red Cross can take over the work.

Youth Activities
Another one of the major activities in the 1931 program is that of youth activities. This is rightfully considered one of the most important works. In 1931 as in the past, the Legion placed the full force of its 10,000 posts in the support of the C. M. T. C. movement. There is no finer training for citizenship than these summer schools.

Junior baseball has already passed the Legion's greatest expectations. During 1930 over 300,000 boys were playing the game under Legion guidance. The goal for 1932 has been set as that of bringing into supervised competition over one-half million boys. The entire baseball program is based on the theory that the principles of good sportsmanship are closely related to the principles of

COCK ROBIN JOINS RANKS OF SOUTH SIDE BACHELORS

Charlevoix along with other northern Michigan towns, boasts of the late blooming of apple and peach trees, the picking of strawberries and raspberries, rose bushes and other plants producing flowers in full bloom, but here is a yarn that eclipses anything sprung so far.

Frank Coatta, South Bridge street, swears by all that is good and true, that a robin is building its nest in a tree in his back yard. From early morn to dusk this red breasted worker is carrying bits of grass and sticks with the proper amount of mud, and in a few days will have the nest completed. Frank did not say anything about the bird being mated, and we assume that he will spend the winter in the solitude of his own domicile.

We suggest he strike up an acquaintance with Hube Ackert, Jim Graham and other old "Bachelors" living on the south side.

CHARLEVOIX STARS HOSTESSES THURSDAY

Entertain Petoskey, Boyne City and East Jordan Chapters

Charlevoix Chapter No. 72, O. E. S. was host to Petoskey, Boyne City and East Jordan chapters at the Masonic Temple Thursday evening. A six-thirty banquet was served to about one hundred and forty guests which included eighty from out-of-town.

The banquet tables were tastefully decorated with autumn dahlias. Mrs. Archie Livingston sang two vocal selections, Cadman's "I Hear a Thrush at Eve" and "Indian Dawn" followed by "If" and "Indian Love Call" from Rose Marie, a current musical theatrical hit, sung by Miss Helen French, a teacher in the local schools. "America" by the assembly ended the singing. Miss Freda McMillan gave two readings, Tennyson's "Tears" and the "Drumhead Court Martial," which were received with much applause.

The program was followed by cards. Mrs. F. F. McMillan winning honors at bridge.

BASKETBALLERS START PRACTICE

COACH KIPKE HAS ONLY FOUR-TEEN OF 1930-31 SQUAD

New Aspirants Lack Size But May Show Playing Qualities to Balance
Shortness of Stature

It is a trifle early yet to make any definite pronouncement as to the coming basketball season for C. H. S. There are fourteen men available of last year's squad, but the balance of material so far offered, according to Coach Kipke, does not look promising as far as size is concerned. However, despite the fact that Charlevoix lost three regulars—Bill Novak, Corrie McCall and Vic Smith—last year, there is nothing to show conclusively that they will not have a good team in 1931-32.

Season tickets will be issued this year, as formerly, but the exact date they will be on sale has not been determined. Coach Kipke suggests that these tickets will make fine Christmas presents, capable of being enjoyed over a period of several months.

This year, it is Charlevoix's turn to have the district tournament, but that is another matter that has not yet come up for decision.

Following is the schedule of games:
Dec. 11—Traverse City, there.
Dec. 18—Petoskey, here.
Dec. 30—Petoskey, there.
Jan. 8—Boyne City, there.
Jan. 15—Harbor Springs, there.
Jan. 22—Traverse City, here.
Jan. 29—Manitoulin, here.
Feb. 5—Boyne City, there.
Feb. 12—East Jordan, there.
Feb. 19—Harbor Springs, here.
Feb. 26—East Jordan, here.

The players who were out last year and upon whom the coach may draw for the team now being formed are as follows: H. Davenport, Norman Ance, Joe Arvilla, Joe Smith, Harold Potter, David Dick, Dan Genett, Carl Beattie, Lyle Ance, Emerald Chew, Victor McSaba, Homer Struthers, Winfield Kirby, Herbert Campbell.

The new candidates that have presented themselves are: Warren Shapton, Grover Genett, Marquis Roen, Drew Young, Jack Winder, Harold Mayhew, Lewis Greenman, Charles Carey, Jack Foster, Robert Schwab, Herman Meyer, Keith Nickerson.

Practice started Tuesday, November 10th.

ALL UNEMPLOYED SHOULD REGISTER

QUESTIONNAIRES ON HAND AT INFORMATION BUREAU

Work Started This Week On M-75
As a Part of State's Unemployment Relief Program

Unemployed men and women of the county, residing in or near Charlevoix, are urged by the County Relief Committee to register for work at the information bureau on Bridge street. Those living outside this immediate district should apply to the relief committee in the town nearest their place of residence, if possible.

Questionnaires have been prepared, asking such questions as are necessary to enable the committee to place these applicants in jobs, intelligently. Those who are in most urgent need and those who are married—and, especially, if they have families of dependent children—will naturally receive first consideration. One of the questions asked is, "How long can you be self-supporting?" If you have any way of "hanging on" a while longer, do not fail to state this, as thereby you may give your chance at a job to someone who is in desperate and immediate need of help.

The situation we are now confronting is somewhat like that existing in a shipwreck, where strong men wait for women and children, the weak and the sick, to take to the boats before they, themselves, are saved and sometimes, even then, they have to swim to safety. Those who can "swim" in this emergency—if but for a little while—are in duty bound to do so until less fortunate brethren are cared for.

Work Has Started
Work started Monday on the stretch of highway between Boyne City and Boyne Falls (M-75) and applicants for work will be absorbed as rapidly as possible in the process of widening the grade for some five miles east of the Boyne City limits. The job is under the supervision of R. T. Davis, county road superintendent, in charge of state trunk line highway work in this district, and is being financed from the county's $10,000 share of the state's ten million dollar unemployment relief fund. Already, some twenty-five to thirty men have been put to work from various parts of the county and others will be added as they apply and as the work requires.

The date when work will be started on the new line of U. S. 31 into Charlevoix is not definitely known, as the negotiations for right of way are not as yet completed nor the contract let.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES CLOSE—LARGE AUDIENCE

The special meetings held in the Baptist church for the past two weeks came to a close Sunday evening with a record attendance. Every available space was filled with chairs but we were unable to accommodate the large crowd.

Rev. Harrison's method of presenting the gospel was highly appreciated by all.

Mrs. Kirby, Helena Isakson, Julia Norton and Estella Livingston won in the Bible contest.

A cafeteria supper will be served at the Congregational church, Friday, November 20, beginning at 5:30 o'clock.—Adv. 4611.

PLATES NOW ON SALE FOR NEW CARS ONLY

Personal Checks Presented At License Bureau Must Be Certified

Automobile and trailer license plates for 1932 are now on sale, for new cars only, at the branch office of the Department of State in the information bureau on Bridge street. General sales start December 1st.

As in former years, applicants for license are required to have all necessary documents in order, properly filled out and notarized, before presenting them at the license bureau.

Except in the case of dealers known to the branch manager, all personal checks presented must be certified. Heretofore, the office has accepted uncertified personal checks, but this year, due to the unsettled economic and financial condition of the country, the branch manager does not care to assume the risk of accepting such checks, as he is personally under bond and accountable to the state for all moneys received from the sale of plates or transfers or applications for title.

An original poem by Mrs. Harsha describing the characteristics of some of the Circle members was well received.

Mrs. Shackley and Betty Denn gave recitations and Mrs. Shores sang a German song. Several members gave their experiences earning a dollar for the Circle treasury.

The program closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and prayer by the pastor, Rev. Parker.

Two new members, Norman Wells and John L. A. Galster were added to the depositors' committee of the First State Bank of Petoskey at a recent meeting of the committee with Dr. Charles J. Gray, temporary receiver, and G. C. Townsend, cashier of the bank.

It was decided to call on the State Banking Commission for assistance in drawing up plans for reorganization. Details will be worked out immediately, it is expected, and a report will be made to the depositors in a short time.

WHY do BIG concerns advertise?

PENNY WISE AND POUND FOOLISH

SUCH, IT SEEMS, ARE THOSE WHO BLOCK RIGHT-OF-WAY

Unpopularity Will Undoubtedly Be Fate of Recalcitrant Property
Owners On U. S. 31

To those who have welcomed the readjustment of U. S. 31 as a project carrying the promise of many real benefits to Charlevoix, the reluctance of several property owners along the line of right-of-way to settle on the basis of the fair offer made them by the state is a disappointment tinged with no slight degree of amazement.

It is certainly surprising that these owners, who have paid taxes for years on unproductive and practically valueless property, should be so blind to their own interests—to say nothing of those of the community in which they make their living—as to imperil a project which, from the first spadeful of dirt turned over, will double, yes, perhaps treble, the value of their holdings.

It is unlikely that the State Highway Department, in times like these and working with a fund raised and appropriated by the state to relieve unemployment, will trifle very long with a community that permits obstacles of the character above-mentioned to be placed in the way of their progress. There is no obligation resting upon them to develop this particular piece of highway at this time. If we do not want to be helped, there are plenty of places in the state that do and where their efforts will be appreciated. It is our opinion that these recalcitrant individuals, whom we shall not hesitate to mention by name if we have to, are playing with fire. People of a community whose very bread and butter depends upon the successful carrying out of a plan like the one in question are not apt to be very lenient or sympathetic with the fellow that throws the monkey wrench into the gears, and who knows nowadays how soon he will need the aid of others.

There are a number of reasons why the work on U. S. 31 should be carried on at this time and in the manner planned. The most immediate benefit is, of course, the relief of unemployment. Next, perhaps, is the fact that this stretch of highway is the last remaining gap in the

FEATHERS WILL FLY AT LEGION'S PARTY

Those Who Think Thanksgiving
Spells "Turkey" Will Not Miss It

With Thanksgiving day following close on its heels, the feather party sponsored by the local Legion post and scheduled for the evening of Saturday, November 21st, should prove highly attractive to those who believe that Thanksgiving day cannot be properly celebrated without a "gobbler."

Bingo, an interesting variation of keno, will be the game of the evening and the turkeys are as fine a flock of birds as can be found anywhere in the region.

This is a party for both men and women and an effort will be made to see that everybody has a good time. Incidentally, it is your opportunity to help the Legion with its welfare work in this district.

The American Legion Auxiliary will hold the first of a series of five card parties at the Legion hall, Thursday evening of this week. Admission 15c.—Adv. 4611.

CANARY BIRD HIDES UNTIL THE ARRIVAL OF NEW SINGERS

A canary belonging to Mrs. F. J. Fessenden, of Mason street, was discovered Wednesday evening imprisoned behind a heavy bookcase, after having been missing from his cage since Sunday.

Although the water cup had been broken on the cage for some time he had made no effort to leave the cage until he managed to squeeze through the small opening during the family's absence and secret himself in the house. All efforts to find him had proved unavailing until two new singers arrived which had been recently purchased, and his answer to their voices disclosed his hiding place to the family.

Although the bird had been without food or water for three days he seemed little the worse for the experience.

PEOPLE CRY FOR PEACE

When Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand departed from Paris to be the first French ministers to set foot upon German soil in sixty years, the shouts of the French people rang in their ears: "We want peace."

When the really able French statesmen arrived in Berlin they heard, as high dignitaries shook their heads, the unmistakable cry of the people of Germany, who yelled: "No more war. Peace! Peace!"

Such is the cry of the people of the world today. Surely responsible governments should heed and respond.

AT THE MOVIES

George Bancroft Has He-Man Role in Latest Drama

"Rich Man's Folly," which will be the feature at the Palace theatre, beginning Saturday for two days, has a cast of great strength and popularity. George Bancroft, the famous star of the picture, has one of the strongest character roles he has ever undertaken.

Bancroft acts the part of a big shipbuilder, a man of large affairs in the business world, a dominating personality. Just to portray such a type is "easy stuff" for Bancroft, but the part calls for much more. He has to portray not only a type, but impersonate a character—a domineering, hard-fisted, ambition-mad man who has stifled all love and friendly feeling. This calls for the highest dramatic technique and vigor.

Farrell Wants to Play Part On Quarterdeck of Clipper

Charles Farrell wants to go to sea. No, don't get excited. He doesn't intend to desert the screen, to give up bringing such characterizations as "Chico" and "Fazio" into the world, and his present impersonation, "John Merrick" in "Heartbreak," Fox romance, which will be the attraction at the Palace theatre Wednesday and Thursday. He wants to go to sea in a picture. Furthermore he wants the locale of the drama to be that of the New England coast, preferably that of Onset Bay, Mass., scene of his boyhood.

Starred in "Heartbreak," Farrell plays just as virile an American type as any above described. Though not a sailor, he gets overseas. He is an attache at the American Embassy in Vienna when the war smashes his romance with an Austrian girl played by bewitching Madge Evans, co-starred in the feminine lead. In spite of separation and misunderstanding, their love has a quenchless flame that can survive tragedy and heartbreak and they are brought together again after a climax of terrific intensity.

The prospect of marrying her, when his respect was gone, made Alan wince. And his respect was gone with a vengeance. Those moments in the cabin, when she offered herself to him, had been a shock and revelation. She had acted not out of exuberant passion, not out of love, but as a guarantee that he would take that Victoria job. He thought of the incident with something of revulsion.

Now he was groping to see the honest and righteous thing for him to do. He wondered whether it would be courage, or a weak yielding to desire, for him to break with Elizabeth and sweep aside the obligations binding him. There was right on both sides. Elizabeth was waiting for him; he had promised to marry her and take her out; he had burned his bridges and committed himself to that Victoria job. Yet it was wrong to enter a loveless marriage that would bring tragic unhappiness. It was wrong to marry Elizabeth when his whole-hearted respect and love went out to Joyce MacMillan.

In the lonely anguish of his thoughts he laid his decision more or less in the hands of time. He felt he must see Joyce again before he could take a decisive step. If he did capture those six criminals and so cleared her father, she would be grateful with all her heart. He meant to tell her about the tragic happening which had bound him to Elizabeth. If he could win back that old intimate comradeship with her and they could begin anew, then the righteous thing was to put Joyce's happiness above Elizabeth's.

A little after gray dawn Alan rebuilt the fire, cooked breakfast, and reluctantly awakened his partner.

Later, when they skinned out to the plane, Buzzard glanced at the tanks and remarked tersely:

"I hope your buddy, this Hardsack, has got some gas and oil out to that lake. I'll be our faithful if he hasn't."

"Bill will have it there," Alan assured. "He may not be there himself, he's probably on duty; but we agreed exactly where to cache it. It'll be waiting for us."

They climbed in, taxied twice around the lake to warm the splintering motor, took off and headed north toward Goose point at Lake En Traverse.

With the heavy rain stopped and the insect scourges abating, Alan knew the handies were on the move again. He was shortly would be. When they did air, he wanted to be there on the Big Alooska to look out for Joyce.

Ever since he came to believe that Dave MacMillan knew nothing of the crime, he had been puzzling about that pack of stolen furs. Something dark and sinister lay behind that pack. There was some connection between the trader and those criminals. But what?

Alan reasoned: "Those furs didn't get in that shed by accident. Those men might have had a grudge against Dave MacMillan and plotted them there. They might have figured he'd show them to us and get in hot water. That guess is at least possible. If it's true, then their grudge might lead them to strike at Joyce."

If they intended anything against Joyce, they doubtless would attempt it just before they started eastward on their trek through the Great Barrens and Strong Woods. Alan had dreamed of that, dreamed of her being captured and taken along, as the bandits had captured Margaret Fournier.

With Hardsack refusing to extend her any protection whatsoever, Alan felt that he and he alone stood between her and a terrible danger. If anything happened to the plane, or to him and Buzzard...

Looking ahead through the propeller disk, he glimpsed the great blue lake of his rendezvous with Bill. A few minutes later on the northern shore he sighted Goose point reaching out into the amplit waters of En Traverse.

Leaning forward, he pointed out the promontory to Buzzard and shouted into his partner's ear:

"That's the place. Glide down and light, close in as you can. I don't see Bill there, but he probably couldn't get away from duty to wait for us. Our supplies are cached in that red-willow thicket back next to the woods. We'll go ashore and get them."

Buzzard cut off ignition. The engine roar stopped. As the plane glided down at a mile-long tangent and swept over Goose Point, Alan leaned out into the slipstream and looked under keel, searching the flag-and-willow headland for a possible sight of Bill Hardsack.

Hardly expecting to meet Bill, he was not surprised when his old partner failed to show up. But as the machine glided silently over the point, his eyes were caught by an object there on the muddy landwash. At a second glance he saw it was a large gasoline drum lying in full view at the very tip of the headland.

The sight of the drum startled him. He queried silently: "Why the devil did Bill put that thing out there go-glaring? He didn't need to draw my attention; we arranged about the cache."

Beyond the point the plane touched the surface, plowed on through a shower of spray and came to a stop three hundred yards off the landwash.

In the scarlet and gold police launch, hidden behind a low-sweeping balsam at water edge, Inspector Hardsack and Corporal Whipple watched the machine whirl low over the point. As it came down and down, Hardsack clutched his rifle a little tighter and watched intent.

His heart leaped as the machine touched the wavelets, skimmed on a little distance, and came to a stop.

"They're going ashore," he breathed exultantly to Whipple, as though unable to believe his incredible luck. "Well, skim out and run the plane. Get ready!"

Uneasy, Alan stood up in the cockpit and searched the headland with his glasses. Over and over he kept telling himself that it wasn't like Bill, his cautious old patrol partner, to roll that drum of gas out there.

While he was searching the point, he felt Buzzard excitedly grasp his arm.

"Alan! Look! . . . Lord's sake!—look over there!"

Alan whirled and looked where he pointed, at the southern shore of the lake eight miles away.

On a long timbered headland there a sudden sheet of flame had leaped up nearly sixty feet into the air and stood out above the tree tops, with a fiery puff and cloudlet of smoke visible for miles and miles across the open water. A few seconds later the flame died down a little, as though it had been of explosive origin, but a clump of paper birches up which the flame had risen still continued to burn like a gigantic torch.

Focusing on that distant headland, Alan saw nothing except the fire-wrapped birches. As he brought the glasses down, mystified, frowning, his unashamed sweat through him again, sharp and insistent. That suspicious drum of gasoline—Bill surely wouldn't have put it out there. That huge burst of fire across the lake—it had some meaning.

"Hardsack, something's wrong here! All wrong! I don't like the idea of going ashore here. If something's wrong, you don't know what we might be walking into."

"Well, what're you going to do? We've got seven gallons of gas in the wing tank and five in the emergency, and we can't get far on that!"

"Maybe so, but I'm not walking into any trap. Somebody's over there where we saw that big gob of fire. I'm suggesting we get into the air again and hop across and have a look-see. That's our best bet. This layout here is all off-color and I know it."

"All right. We'll hop across. But a couple more hops around over this landscape, and we'll be rocking on the wavelets."

From the height of a hundred feet Alan looked ahead through his glasses, scrutinizing that timbered point where the birches were still ablaze.

He started as the glasses picked up a tiny man-figure far away on that headland. Watching, he saw it rush out upon the extreme rock tip. With the plane whirling nearer, he caught the figure in sharper focus—and recognized Bill Hardsack!

Waving his arms, hat and part of a pine tree, Bill was frantically trying to draw their attention.

Alan leaned forward, cupped his hands and shouted to Buzzard:

"That's Bill! There on the headland. Light and taxi in. He's waving us down, so it must be safe. We'll soon see what the trouble is."

They angled down on the water and skimmed close in ashore. In a canoe Bill came paddling out to meet them. "I knowed you'd make it, Alan!" he panted, looking with marvelling eyes at Buzzard and the plane. "I knowed you'd show up sometime. The gun and oil—that is, most of it—it's right ashore here, ready for you. There's more cached up the Alooska, too. I was scared. . . . When you lit down over there. . . . Lord! I was afraid you were a goner!"

Hastily introducing a new partner to an old one, Alan demanded: "What do you mean, Bill? What under heaven are you doing over here? What happened? Man, you're all shot!"

"Am half-dead," Bill admitted. His voice was thick, he could hardly stand up. With the long strain over, a fearful reaction had set in. He looked ready to fall down dead asleep.

"But what happened?" Alan repeated.

"Alan, that Johnny Jump-up caught onto our trick. He was out to bug this air machine and nail you two. And he came skittish close to doing it."

"I had those drums cached over there on Goose point like we arranged, and I was waiting there, never suspecting a thing. One evening. . . . Must've been four or five days ago; I've been here for a week. . . ."

Two days later, that is, . . .

Anyway, I was sitting there in the willows slapping mosquitoes and listening to a comical whisky-jacks raise Cain with something back at the timber edge.

"I hadn't nothing much to do, so I sort of moseyed back that way to see what all the fuss was about. When I got up pretty close I all at once smelled tobacco smoke, cigarette smoke. Just a faint whiff, but no mistake about it."

"What the h—?" says I. "Who's smoking Turkey tobacco around here? It made me leery right away. I followed my nose upwind and snuck up real careful. There in the first drogue of balsam was a Smokey, that Oat-Tomax, sitting against a tree, lighting one cigarette on the butt of the last. They were that kind of cigarette that Hardsack gets clear from Paris, Alan."

"When he finally got wise to somebody being near, he grabbed for his rifle. But I jumped for him too quick and hit him a couple times, and while he was coming out of it I lopped that gun of his around a tree. Then I collared him and asked him what the condemnationation his intentions might be. At first he closed up like an oyster and wouldn't do nothing but grunt and look sour. I was suspicious of him lying low there watching me, so I up and himmed h—l out of him then and there till he did pry open his jaws."

"Hardsack had hired him to shadow me and spy out what I was doing. He must have got hop somehow to me taking that gas. And he and that fishworm Whipple were coming there to Goose point in the launch to get me, gas, oil, then lay low and nail you two when you lit down. Two hits to a shirt button they're over there right now!"

As he thought how close he and Buzzard had come to going ashore and being captured, Alan shuddered.

Bill went on: "When the Smokey told me that. . . . Say, did I make some tall tracks? I never got such a wiggle on in my life. With the Smokey helping, I made two trips across the lake and snaked the drums all away—all except one drum which I heard the launch coming and didn't have time to take."

"It's still over there," Alan interrupted. "They rolled it out in plain sight like a decoy, but instead of that it made me suspicious. They overplayed. But what got you all shot this way, Bill?"

"I've been awake four or five days and nights, that's what! Not a wink! Didn't dare sleep. It made me sweat blood to think of you lighting down over there and getting nailed. I had to draw your attention somehow, when you were over the lake; and it had to be one whopper of a signal, that far away. I got a couple big piles of birch paper ready and had a drum of gas handy to soak it with; and I kept a dry-wood fire going so's I could stand back and throw a blazing clunk at the paper. But it made the signal, all right. It nearly singed me and I stood thirty feet back."

"I'll vow it made a signal," Buzzard commented. "It looked like the evacuation of Lena."

"I had to stay awake every minute," Bill continued, "for fear you'd come and fly right into the trap. And then I had to guard the Smokey. He's tied up back there; didn't dare turn him loose, or he'd told Hardsack where I was. If I'd ever got started dozing, I'd have beaten this Rip Winkle fellow for long-distance sleeping. There was times when I got so near overpowered I had to wade out and set on a rock with the water up under my chin, where I didn't dare go to sleep or I'd been drowned."

Merely by looking at Bill, Alan knew that his former partner had left half his story untold. It was only afterwards that he heard all the details of Bill's heroic siege.

"How about Joyce?" he asked. "You've been to see her, Bill?"

"I ducked aside twice. Last time was a week ago. She's taken in a big raft of peltry. She's closing up the place to go out to Edmonton and be with her dad."

"A week ago," Alan thought. "Anything could have happened in a week." He asked, "Any news at Endurance?"

Just everyday things, Bill reported. Except for Larry. Larry would cry, Bill said, whenever he looked at his shattered leg. Larry, who kept himself as young as men half his age, who prided himself on his wolf-leon body—he was wasted away to a mere shadow of his former self.

Glancing out across En Traverse, Alan suggested: "We'd better be leaving here. Hardsack and his stool pigeon over there probably saw us light. They may take a notion to whip across the lake after us. Where's the oil and gas, Bill?"

"Right you by that rock jumble. The Smokey is just this side. I'll go along—"

"You stay here; you're about once in. Buzzard, you turn the plane and make ready for a quick getaway in case that launch shows up. I'll get the drums."

He hurried to the tangle of junipers and granite boulders where he found the precious gas and oil which Bill had sworn to bring to the rendezvous. Taking a load out to the plane, Alan hoisted it up to Buzzard, who began siphoning into the wing tank.

With an anxious inquiry in his bloodshot eyes, Bill asked:

"Say, Alan, why can't I go along on this trick? I'd give a leg to. Um, w. o. l. now. Hardsack can't do much worse to me than he intends to do as it is."

After all that Bill had done for them, Alan hadn't the heart to refuse him. He asked Featherfoot:

"How about it—can we carry a third person?"

"Well, we maybe could. But I wouldn't like. . . . It'd cut down our gas tank, and this is only a two-place plane."

"Then I'll not go," Bill agreed stupidly. "Don't want to be a drag. I'll sleep off my dry-lug here and then mosey in to Endurance."

Alan went after two more drums. As he reached the plane with them, his ears caught a faint low drone barely audible far out upon En Traverse. Standing up on the cockpit edge, he turned his glasses north.

Six miles out, the powerful scarlet and gold launch was heading straight toward them.

"Knock off on that!" he jabbed at Buzzard. "We've got to get gone. They'll ram us, or shoot at us from protection of the launch. You've got enough in the tank to take us to the Alooska. We'll stow those drums ashore, and what we can't take we'll leave here on this headland. Can get it later."

Under Buzzard's directions they worked frantically. When they were ready, when Bill clambered down into the canoe and held out his hand in good-bye, Alan was struck to the heart by the pleading unspoken prayer which Bill stonily refused to word.

"Buzzard!" He jerked around to his flight partner. "Bill's got to go along! D—d if I can leave him out in the cold! I simply can't do it."

"Then try to wedge him in with you. We'll carry him, if we have to tie him on!"

Alan pulled him up. Bill managed to squeeze into the tiny one-place compartment, and by that act deserted the Mounted Police.

With the big boat only a mile out, Buzzard taxied the plane and headed it parallel to the shore line. It seemed to Alan that the White Speedster, heavily laden with gas and oil and a third man, would never rise from the water. It taxied nearly a half-mile before it began snacking the wavelets. The police boat swerved right and diagonaled in to cut across its course. White puffs of smoke were bursting from a rifle in the prow, from a rifle in the hands of George Hardsack.

But when the plane finally did take hold of the air, it left the boat behind in a twinkling. Boasting out of range, it swung away into the north-east, toward its goal on the Big Alooska.

CHAPTER X

The Secret of Many Waters

Two miles down river Buzzard throttled the motor, eased the stick forward and glided expertly down and down into that difficult narrow lane of evergreens.

Alan started to get out the canvas canoe to tow the plane in to the land-ice; but Joyce, understanding, untied her father's sturdier craft, laid in an extra paddle, and came skidding out toward them.

As Alan clambered down upon a float and waited, he remembered his decision to tell Joyce what had happened within him since he saw her last, and to tell her of that inexorable circumstance which had led to his engagement to Elizabeth. Easy that decision then, but he wavered now. Did he dare tell her that? If it was useless, if she had put him out of her life, did he dare resurrect all the poignant memories and intimacies between them? Today he would find out how she regarded him; today she would surely give him some clear token.

Reaching out, he caught the prow of her canoe. Joyce rose and stepped up. . . . In another instant he was clasping her hand.

"Joyce! Joyce! I was afraid for you—here alone, girl. I can't tell you how glad—when I saw you. . . . And glad to be back here."

WATCH YOUR STEP
If you're not doing your best now you won't be able to equal even your present standard a year or month from now.

The price of progress is everlasting effort to improve upon the last job.

The minute a man becomes satisfied with his present situation, he takes at that moment a step backward, for he will never again do another job as well as the one he last finished.

That's the way the golf game goes. If you let down for a week and become careless, you find it takes a month to get back into your old form.

This is a depressing thought for those who like to take life easily, withdrawing, after winning early honors, from the rough competition. Many men have tried to do it. Having established a successful business by hard, persistent work, they reef sail and try to glide over the sea comfortably and safely. It doesn't work. The only secure way to travel over the high seas is to have a destination and to try to get there as promptly as you can. And that's the only safe attitude in business.

Storms surprise indifferent sailors; and disaster overwhelms careless business men.

ERRORS OF JUSTICE RARE
Another tragedy of blind justice is revealed with the announcement that Jesse Lucas, 50-year-old inmate of an Illinois prison has been freed because another man, on his deathbed, confessed that he killed the man for whose slaying Lucas was sent to the penitentiary.

Press dispatches tell us that Lucas had served 23 years for the crime that he did not commit, yet he is quoted as "bearing no grudge against society" for its fearful mistake. Let us all be thankful that this man has been freed, and that the latter part of his life will not be spent behind the bars that encompassed him unjustly.

However, there is no use for the sob sisters, male and female, to get worked up about it. There are not many instances of this kind. Occasionally one discovers that an innocent man has suffered through the error of the jury and the law, but these cases are rare and infrequent.

WHAT A SCIENCE!
There may be a lot of science around the alleged art of the astrologer, and maybe this simple writer is lost in the depths of ignorance, but we can't get it, and what is worse there seems to be something that has more hokum than the idea that you are controlled by the sun, moon, planets, etc. and etc.

This new bunch of yokel-feed revolves, we are advised, around the alleged science of Numerology, and if it isn't enough to make a kitten laugh, the bets are off. Add up the digits and let some fair numerologist tell you what an active 4 may mean, what a lazy 7 may forecast and so on until the whole thing becomes a wad of words and a fine mess of spinach.

Anyway, it's a great line of dope if you have a few dollars to spare and don't care what you get back.

BIG FIRES START SMALL
Nearly every newspaper in the nation will this week print some article on the general subject of fire prevention, calling attention to the enormous loss that citizens of the United States sustain each year from the fire demon.

Such propaganda serves a useful purpose, perhaps, but the lesson for the average houseowner of Charlevoix county is that the best method of preventing fires is by watching simple, little things around your premises. For example, seeing that the fires are out, or safe, before retiring for the night sounds small, and skittish, but it will prevent many fires.

Let us urge our citizens to take some thought on this subject and try to do their best in avoiding unnecessary fires in the next few months. The rest of the year will take care of itself.

Nothing happens to you that hasn't happened to someone else.

Fall Musical

A program of great interest will be given by the music department of the school on Friday evening, November 20, at the gymnasium. Mildred Atkinson-Bush, leader, and dancers from the physical education department will assist. The admission is 10 cents and 25 cents, the proceeds to be used for new music.

Last week Mr. Bush attended a conference at Lansing. About 15 or 20 superintendents from various cities were present and about 20 business men including representatives of the General Motors Co., Ex-Governor Green and Governor Brucker also attended the conference. Webster Pearce, state superintendent, and Dr. Edmonson, Dean of School of Education of University of Michigan, were there. Mr. Pearce presided and Mr. Bush named secretary of the group.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the advisability of teaching investments and personal budgeting in high school. A committee was appointed to continue the study.

This week C. H. S. will be entertained by two speakers. Dr. Armstrong will speak on mental hygiene. Miss Lora Curtis, from the state department of education, comes to the county normal and also to the high school.

The commercial department is busy working on a bulletin for the Parent-Teachers' association.

Last Friday night the students held a dance at the gymnasium. No admission was charged and the music was donated by various members. Everyone had a delightful time and hope for many more similar affairs.

The meeting of the Tip of Michigan class conference will be held at Potosky next Saturday.

Preparations are being made to send some of the boys to the Older Boys' Y. M. C. A. conference at Ann Arbor.

On November 24th a football banquet will be held at Boyne City, to which the Charlevoix team and men have been invited.

Stop That Cough Quick!

Almost instant relief from coughs is now guaranteed in the use of the physician's prescription called Thoxine. It works on an entirely different principle; having a double action, it relieves the throat irritation and goes direct to the internal cause not reached by cough syrups and patent medicines and the cough stops like magic, usually with the very first swallow.

Taken before retiring, Thoxine absolutely prevents night coughing and insures a good night's sleep. It gives the same speedy relief for sore throat too. Contains no chloroform or harmful drugs. Children like it. Remember—relief within 15 minutes from coughs or sore throat, or your money back. 35c, 60c, $1.00 bottles. Sold by Central Drug Store and all other good drug stores.

Junior high English department we see many posters and material stating books suitable for boys and girls to read.

The first meeting of the junior high student council was called to order by President Vivian Fike.

Names of those appointed to the following standing committees were read and approved.

The following people serve on the committees:

Social Events—Marie Novak, Hilda Roen, Francis Block.

Assembly Program—Helen Loskot, Ernestine Chew, Leslie Shapton.

Citizenship—Jack Withers, Anna Hlgman, Gladys Barnhart.

Athletics—Jack Foster, Steve Sereno, Robert Pearl.

Officers for Public Safety—Lewis Greenman, Robert Livingston, Bill Hansen.

C. H. S. is very happy to be once more back to the usual schedule. Scholastic activities have been renewed since about 65 of the students donated money to pay for the damages done through the stacking of books. This money was voluntarily taken by the students.

Monday morning Mr. Coleman's English class conducted a program for the high school. Mary Margaret Orlovski gave "The Social Conditions of England About 400 Years Ago." Two poems were given: "The Belle of the Ball Room," by Bernard Foster, and "The Song of the Shirt" by Winfield Kirby. The program was concluded with a short story, "Velvet Pants," by Dorothy Staley.

Now that the activity has been lifted and the juniors are hard at work on "The Enemy," which is scheduled for December 11th. Although this play is sometimes called a war play it would be more appropriate to term it one of peace, for the whole theme is of brotherhood and a plea for international understanding.

Articles by Channing Pollock, the author of this drama, may be found in the November "American" and the November "Ladies Home Journal." His latest play, "The House Beautiful," is enjoying an unusually successful road tour after record-breaking performances in New York and Chicago.

On Friday evening Mrs. Dowd will sing at East Jordan at their junior class play, "The Millionaire." She will be accompanied by Marjorie Carey.

The Glee Clubs

The members of three of the churches of Charlevoix were delighted Sunday with the vocal selections rendered by the school glee clubs. Sunday morning the girls' glee club sang at the Congregational church, and at the same time the boys' glee club sang at the Baptist church. Both glee clubs sang at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon, and Marion Tyler played a flute solo, with Marjorie Jenn Carey as her pianist.

The boys' glee club will sing at the Parent-Teachers' Association meeting Wednesday evening.

Physical Training

The sixth grade boys were the victors in the "German Bat Ball" tournament which took place among the boys of the elementary grade school last week.

The fifth grade boys and girls have become wild and furious. They have just learned an Indian war dance, and we all sincerely hope they won't go on the war-path and scalp us all.

The junior high girls are now preparing for the girls' volleyball tournament.

All Shut Up

A minister was passing a group of convicts at work on the roads and he became very much depressed at the wickedness of the country.

"My good men," he exorted, "we should strive to mend our ways."

"Well," snarled No. 5493, "what do yer think we're doin'?" Diggin' fishworms!

We will continue the series on "The Ten Commandments" next Sunday morning.

We cannot overlook an opportunity to speak of the exceptional service we had last Sunday morning.

Miss Atkinson at the piano and with the girls' glee club were splendid.

Gerald F. Bush, the speaker of the morning, aroused much interest by his address, with the compelling subject, "Handwriting on the Western Wall."

In his opening remarks Mr. Bush outlined the sources of western civilization and made clear the countless peoples and eras to which we are indebted for many of our institutions, our customs, our language, our form of government and the like. His next point was the complexity of modern life and an illustration of the fact that we are more nearly the slaves of our mechanized processes than we are the masters of our ways of living.

Then assuming that the values in our western civilization are in question he placed the western world on trial and ended on a number of experts to give testimony on the probable future of western civilization.

In succession he outlined the opinion of the biologist, psychologist, business leader, economist, mathematician, zoologist, historian and mathematician. In each field evidence was presented to show that western civilization must in time succumb to those influences which it has itself built up. The biologist foretells the doom of civilization on the score of the tendency toward structural overloading, biological regression and atavistic revolt. The business leader sees business becoming so large and unwieldy as to no longer be manageable or serviceable. The psychologist sees the stress and strain of the twentieth century weakening the nervous system and conditioning collapse. The zoologist visions an age of insects to follow the present domination of man. And the historian draws a lesson from the fate of other civilizations to guarantee the eventual decline of this one.

It was Mr. Bush's contention that all of this presents a tremendous challenge to both school and church. He intimated another side to the picture but left the audience to think that part out for itself and to accept the importance of both church and school bending their strongest efforts toward checking the forces of decline and decay.

But, Mr. Bush, in leaving to the audience so great a task did not figure with his listeners. There is being made a demand that Mr. Bush come back and finish the discussion in the near future. It was the lack of time that made it necessary for Mr. Bush to close just as he was about to solve the gloomy problem he had suggested.

PLANNED MENUS
REDUCES BUDGETTWENTY-FIVE CENTS PER DAY
BUYS FOOD FOR ADULTMichigan State College Works Out Menu for Week Costing 25c Per Day for Each Person

The new series of meals in which the foodstuffs are appropriate to the present season and cost 25 cents per person per day are being served in the home management houses of Michigan State college, under the supervision of Miss Irma H. Gross, home economics department.

During the summer, menus at this cost rate were studied and were found to be satisfactory as they provided an adequate dietary for the average college woman and furnished enough calories, sufficient protein, iron, calcium and phosphorus. The same basic foods used in the new series include one pint of milk per person per day and plenty of fruits and vegetables, the menu changes were made to use fall foods rather than those plentiful in the summer.

Men Require More

Only eight-tenths of the total amount of nourishment required by an adult man engaged in moderately active work are furnished in this plan. Miss Gross, however, states that the cost may be workable in the case of a family composed of adults and children as the requirements for the various individuals differ according to age, sex, and activity, thus balancing the total amount of food needed by a family.

The menus planned for nine days including two Sundays, follow. Only one major meal is planned on Sunday, but food for breakfast and supper is available in the house and the total market list includes whatever materials may be needed for other meals on those two days. The menus were planned by Doras Jackson, Richland; and M. da Tynni, Wakefield.

Sunday: dinner (at noon).—Spanish steak, mashed potatoes, cucumber salad, French dressing, rolls and butter, caramel tapioca, coffee.

Monday: breakfast—Cornmeal with dates, toast, coffee; luncheon: macaroni and vegetable salad, whole wheat rolls (hot) and butter, cocoa; dinner: creamed codfish, baked potatoes, buttered beets, bread and butter, applesauce and hot ginger bread.

Prunes for Breakfast

Tuesday: breakfast: prunes, milk, toast, coffee; luncheon: baked beans, spiced celery, brown bread and butter, apple ring salad with French dressing, chocolate milk; dinner: bacon rolls, escalloped tomatoes, whole wheat bread and butter, baked custard with chocolate sauce.

Wednesday: breakfast: cornflakes with bananas, bran muffins and butter, coffee; luncheon: cream of potato soup, crackers, baked apple with vanilla sauce, Mary Ann cookies; dinner: Irish stew, dumplings, whole wheat bread and butter, pineapple and cheese salad with French dressing, coconut bars, tea.

Thursday: breakfast: stewed apricots, omelet, buttered toast, milk; luncheon: lima bean salad, raisin sandwiches, milk; dinner: baked hamburger steak, eggplant, baked potatoes, rolls and butter, Brown Betty with hard sauce.

Friday: breakfast: tomato juice, bacon, coffee cake, coffee; luncheon: creamed eggs and peas on toast, fresh fruit, cinnamon crackers, cocoa; dinner: salmon loaf, buttered potatoes, celery and cabbage salad, rolls and butter, chocolate cornstarch pudding.

Saturday: breakfast: French toast and apple sauce, milk; dinner: pork chops baked on escalloped potatoes and onions, cabbage slaw, rolls and butter, butterscotch pie; supper: jelly vegetable salad, toasted cheese sandwiches, cocoa, cookies.

Sunday: dinner: pot roast of beef with gravy, parsnips, mashed carrots, rolls and butter, celery, marshmallow apricot delight, coffee.

Monday: breakfast: baked pears, cream of wheat with raisins, cinnamon toast, cocoa; luncheon: vegetable soup with rice, crackers, bread pudding and top milk; dinner: escalloped cabbage with cheese, baked sweet potatoes, tomato salad, rolls and butter, pineapple tapioca, cream.

REAL "WOOD WISDOM"

Michigan would do well to pattern after Connecticut in the matter of state forest land improvement and helping the unemployed situation.

Early this year the Connecticut legislature authorized a special unemployment emergency appropriation of $100,000 to be used in improving the state forest lands. This appropriation was for the employment of labor only and was equally divided between the construction of fire lines and tree planting. Two hundred and fifty miles of fire breaks in highly inflammable districts were built and 600,000 pine trees were planted on waste lands. Hundreds of unemployed men were given work.

Michigan, with its 700,000 acres of land, crying for reforestation, has cut its appropriation in half. This allows only for the raising of a few nursery trees and a restricted program of forest administration and does not allow for actual reforestation of any lands. It seems that with their knowledge and acceptance of the great need for reforestation that this laudable plan which Connecticut carried out would be given consideration at this opportune time.

Perhaps this reduction of appropriation is part of the state's plan to economize. But neglecting the forests which in the future will be Michigan's greatest asset seems like expensive economy.

Would it not be better to allow Michigan's unemployed to make a living and build up their forests rather than feed those who are destitute without receiving any returns?

SCHOOL AND BUSINESS

Children going to school always were important and always will be. This year, however, they have a rather special interest to the world in general. When children start to school in September they have to have shoes. They have to have new clothes. Maybe not so many nor so expensive as some years, but there is hardly a child who does not need something new in the way of clothing, if not this week, then next week or next month. The old togs which do very well for summer play will not serve for cooler weather and the more dignified usage of the school room.

Children need books and pencils too, and tablets and erasers.

The business of supplying these needs is always looked forward to as part of the regular fall upturn. This year it is of more consequence than ever.

Clothing is cheaper, so that people on salaries may buy more freely than they sometimes do. And they should do their buying not dolefully, but joyfully, because they can get such good value. And because every suit of clothes for John and dress for Sue means a little more work for someone in the needlework trades who needs desperately every cent and every dollar.

ADVERTISING BUILDS SUCCESS

Advertising is perhaps the most wonderful development of the modern commercial age.

It is the maker and breaker of business, big or little. It is the one factor of successful sales that is most apt to be overlooked by the merchants of small towns and cities.

Advertising is not the exclusive weapon of big business; it is the power that will make little concerns grow into larger success. It is a science that requires study and, be it said, character. It must build upon faith and honesty.

The Charlevoix Courier is prepared to assist local business men in their advertising problems. It may say, with due modesty, that its staff knows something about advertising, and that their experience is available to all who wish to use it.

REPRESENTATION NOT WANTED

One would think that Michigan prisons would house a greater percentage of Michigan born inmates than those born in other states. Of the 5604 convicts only 1875, or less than forty per cent were born in Michigan; 2794 were born in other states and 935 were born in foreign countries. Of the foreign born inmates Canada contributed the most, having 181, Poland is next with a total of 177, and Italy third with 82. China, Hawaii, Bohemia, Persia, and Switzerland are represented with only one from each country. However, they are not clamoring for representation.

STATESMEN WHO MEET

The visit of Premier Laval of France, to Washington, where he will discuss with President Hoover matters of international importance, is another indication of a new day in world affairs.

Of late one has read of his visit to Berlin which followed many other visits exchanged between the responsible heads of European nations. We have not forgotten in this country, the visit of Premier MacDonald, of Great Britain.

Such face to face interchanges between the heads of governments ought to have a beneficial influence upon the world as a whole.

AMERICAN LEGION POWER FOR GOOD

good citizenship. The American Legion is interested in boy baseball not because of baseball alone, as a game, but because of the possibilities it holds for the teaching of good citizenship lessons.

"The American Legion realizes that the greatest menace of liberty and government is that of ignorance. For that reason the Legion is vitally interested in proper education for all of the youth of the land.

Thorwald E. Thorsen, department chairman of the Americanism committee, says: "It should always be borne in mind that your community knows its past, and has formed its opinion of your organization, more from the subject of community welfare and service than from any other work that you may do. A post that labors unceasingly to translate the ideals of the Legion into concrete terms of service, of things done for the common good, will hold a high place in the community."

To give one example of the reaction of the public to the Legion, due to its community welfare and service work, the following instance may be cited. The Swartz Creek News, published in Swartz Creek, Michigan, is so thoroughly convinced of the value of an American Legion post in its community that it published, in its April 17th issue, 1931, a list of eligible veterans and called upon them to organize a post. The same issue of the paper carries a story of the Americanism and boys' work done by the Legion, particularly in the nearby city of Flint. This is the kind of reaction the Legion wants and needs and it is up to every post in the state to "carry on." In many of the communities the Legion is the outstanding civic organization and the public looks to it to take charge of community welfare and service. Also to take the lead in celebration and observance of National holidays such as Decoration day, 4th of July and Armistice day.

A FAIR POLICY

Most cities and villages of Michigan are adopting the policy of not giving aid to families who operate autos and radios and feed dogs. The best plan is to create work and make men independent instead of training them to be beggars.

MACKINAC EXPECTS BOOM

When Henry Ford purchased options on more than seven thousand acres of land in Les Cheneaux, located in the eastern part of Mackinac county, optimists predicted a boom.

This land is covered with a heavy stand of timber, but the real reason Ford is buying this property, it is said, is for the rich limestone deposits. There are also rich beds of marble and granite.

Factories must be built and a dock constructed at Brush Bay or possibly McKay's Bay, if the property is to be used. Narrow gauge railways must be run throughout the territory in order that the natural resources may be brought to the plant. This program of construction is bound to bring an army of workers into this territory which will no doubt cause a miniature boom.

What Ford wants with limestone is still a mystery, surely it is not to build a concrete Flivver.

PLAN MEMORIAL TO KNUTE ROCKNE

FAME OF GREAT COACH PRE-SERVED BY FIELD HOUSE

Campaign Now On to Raise One Million Dollars to Erect Structure at Notre Dame University

The memory of Knute Rockne, probably the greatest football coach that America has ever produced, will be kept by the efforts of the Rockne Memorial Fund to erect an enduring monument to his name and fame meet with the response that the supporters of this movement confidently expect.

The plan set forth by Joseph Sanford, Muskegon, district chairman of the fund, is to raise one million dollars for the erection and maintenance of a field house at Notre Dame as a memorial to the famous creator of the "Four Horsemen" of football, and the campaign to raise this sum is now in progress throughout the United States. The country has been zoned and committees have been formed, or will be formed, in all cities of any size.

This field house will be located on land donated by the University of Notre Dame, Indiana, and all contributions made will be placed in the fund, inasmuch as all the expenses of the campaign are being borne by the University, itself. This field house will offer facilities for exercise and recreation to the entire student body at the University and will contain tennis courts, handball courts, etc. It is a well known fact that the late Knute K. Rockne was very desirous of having such a field house built at Notre Dame and it is for that reason that the management of the University and Rockne's many admirers throughout the country believe his name will best be perpetuated by the erection of such a structure. A. R. Erskine, chairman of the board of the Studebaker Corporation, is general chairman of the campaign and he is being assisted throughout the United States by many nationally famous men.

Anyone wishing to send a contribution direct, without being solicited, may make their check payable to the Rockne Memorial Assn., Inc., Notre Dame University. The name of each contributor will be preserved for all time in a book kept for that purpose in the field house.

Knute Rockne was perhaps the most outstanding figure in the athletic world at the time of his death and it is really not an exaggeration to say that his influence upon the young men of this generation is incalculable.

SET FARMERS WEEK DATES AT COLLEGE

Outline Programs for One of Largest Farmers Meetings Held

Selection of the dates February 1 to 5 for one of the largest meetings of farmers in the United States, and a general plan for the daily programs has been announced by the Farmers Week Committee at Michigan State college.

The activities, this year, will be continued throughout the five days and full programs will be held on Friday, which in previous years has been "get away day." Morning and early afternoon sessions will be devoted to department meetings, and general programs and features will occupy the other hours.

Nearly all of the agricultural clans in Michigan schedule their annual meetings to be held at East Lansing during the week. This year will be no exception, and crops, soils, fruit, livestock, economic, and social groups will gather to discuss their special problems.

Last year's experience with crowds which were too large to find places in demonstration hall has led to the scheduling of two similar entertainment programs to be held on succeeding nights. These features are planned for Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

"UNTO THE THIRD AND FOURTH GENERATIONS"

Topic at W. C. T. U. Meeting Held Last Friday Afternoon

Mrs. E. E. Cross presented the topic, "Unto the Third and Fourth Generations," at the W. C. T. U. meeting held last Friday afternoon in the community room.

Investigators have proven beyond a doubt that alcohol is a specific cause of degeneracy and even the most temperate drinking by parents must in time bring about the disintegration of any family and the decline and downfall of any nation.

"A study of the basic facts about alcohol would deter any man or woman who is ever to have the responsibility of parenthood from using alcoholic liquors in any form."

Officers for 1932 were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Annie B. Saltonstall; vice president, Mrs. Ruth Belding; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ella Usher; recording secretary, Mrs. Mary Hamilton; treasurer, Mrs. Cora Kelderhouse.

otherwise completed trunk line highway No. 31 between Mackinaw City and Chiengo. Again, the route proposed through Charlevoix is the logical route for the highway to pursue. Tourists are used to following the main street of a town through to its limits, without making more or less obscure turns and twists in their route. It would be hard to estimate the number of southbound automobilists who continue straight on up Bridge street to its blind end and are forced to retrace their route, ask questions, or cut across lots, so to speak. This is a form of subtle annoyance that linked with the name of Charlevoix does not help the town's popularity. Any motorist with a fair amount of mileage to his credit is familiar with the unfavorable impression—almost unconscious though it may be—that such petty difficulties encountered in a particular town or over a particular route will leave with him. Lastly, the re-alignment of this highway will help values unbelievably on the South Side. Property that formerly had no value except as pasture will soon have valuable frontage, eagerly sought after as sites for rooming houses, hot dog stands and possibly another oil station or two. At any rate, it will greatly appreciate in value.

Return Late Sunday With Fine 4 and 8 Point Bucks

A week end party of hunters composed of Judd Hardy, Fred, George, Bill and Raymond Bergman, Ray Scheurer and Bernie Ward returned late Sunday afternoon from a week end hunting trip, satisfied with their expedition, their only regret being that they could not stay longer.

The party camped Saturday night a short distance from the fire tower, east of Vanderhilt. Ward connected with a fine buck early in the day, but failed to get enough lead in him to keep him down. While following the wounded buck he connected with another and filled his license.

George Bergman downed a fine 8 point buck and other members of the party had some shooting. Not so bad for a day's outing.

Mrs. Edna Lusk

George Lusk, Charlevoix merchant, located at the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets, has opened a branch store in the Madison building, East Jordan, the opening taking place on Saturday last.

The branch store will be in charge of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edna Lusk. The store is stocked with about the same line of goods as the Charlevoix store, with the addition of new goods and additional lines.

RATES ARE REDUCED AT LOCAL BARBER SHOPS

Charlevoix barber shops have reduced the price of haircuts according to the shop owner's idea, in some instances from 50 cents to 25 cents. Some charge 40 cents while others have reduced the price as low as 25 cents for both children and adults. All shops, we understand, are about decided that 20 cents is a fair price for a shave. A merry war is on and you can get a shave and hair cut for from 45 cents up.

MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF STATE WEEKLY NEWS BULLETIN

Durability of copper automobile license plates under actual driving conditions, is to be tested out by the Department of State.

Several sets of 1931 plates with a copper base have been made, and they are to be used on department cars. If found to be feasible and economical, the 1933 license plates are to be made of Michigan-mined copper.

Applications for drivers licenses under the 1931 act, are being received at the rate of about 7,000 a day. The department is able to handle over twice this number of applications. All persons whose original driver's license was issued prior to January 1, 1925, must register and secure a new license before November 1st.

The form and size of the Public Acts of 1931 are meeting with the approval of officials and attorneys in all parts of the state. The department has received many letters, commending the fact that in type setup and in size the new volume is identical with the Compiled Laws of 1929.

The Abrams Aerial Survey Corp. of Lansing, was the first company to secure a state airplane license under the 1931 act requiring registration of planes. Art Davis, Michigan speed and stunt pilot, secured license number 5.

Although the new act became effective September 18, but 10 planes and three manufacturers have secured registrations and the state department of aeronautics have been notified. The 1931 act says all Michigan-owned planes and outstate commercial planes cannot be flown in Michigan without paying a registration and weight tax.

COUNTY PREPARES FOR WINTER WORK

ERECTION OF MANY MILES OF SNOW FENCE COMPLETED

Approximately 200 Miles of State and County Highways on Program for Coming Winter

While weather conditions have shown a summer-like tendency during the present fall weeks, Charlevoix county road officials are going ahead with preparations to combat the advances of Old King Winter. Past experiences have revealed that early fall conditions present no precedent of what is to follow, with the result that preparedness has been found more wise.

For several weeks, county crews have been busily engaged erecting snow fence along state trunk lines and the numerous county roads which will be kept open to automobile traffic during the coming winter. In addition to snow fence already on hand, the county road commission purchased an additional carload of 18,000 feet. Part of this consignment, approximately 8,000 feet in all, was purchased by various townships and some by the city of Charlevoix, leaving an additional 10,000 feet for county use. The state highway department has furnished 8,000 feet for M-66, thus releasing that amount of fence lent the state by the county for use elsewhere. It is estimated the county will this winter have about 3 1/2 miles more fence than in previous years.

It will be noticed that a new system of putting up fence is being used. Instead of a continuous row, breaks are being left at regular intervals, thus making the fence so much farther than previously. The system, now used widely throughout the state, has been found very effective.

Charlevoix county will keep open a total of 196.9 miles of highway during the coming winter. Of this total, 74.9 miles are state trunk lines on US-31, US-131, M-75 and M-66, and the balance, 122 miles, is county roads.

Main county arteries, of course, will come in for first attention as in previous years, also highways in the East Jordan consolidated school district. Listed among the main county roads are Charlevoix-East Jordan, Charlevoix-Bayne City, Deer Lake, Peninsula, Advance, Ferry, Ellsworth and Bellaire. Other roads include Wildwood Harbor, Marion Center, Barnard, Norwood, McSaubey, Wilson, Elmira, Boyne Falls east, Chandler, Horton Bay north and others.

Erection of snow fence has been practically completed under supervision of R. T. Davis, county road superintendent. Another large crew is working on the grade-widening job between Bayne City and Boyne Falls, and this work is advancing rapidly. Many men from all portions of the county are being given work on this emergency job.

The Auxiliary members plan to hold their next party in about two weeks, the exact date to be announced later.

EAST JORDAN MEN FINED FOR THEFT

Admitted Stealing Rear Car Wheel Before Justice Withers Monday

Roman Kostner, 23, and Edward Nemecek, 17, the former of Chicago, and the latter of the Bohemian settlement east of East Jordan, pleaded guilty to a theft charge before Justice Robert Withers here Monday forenoon. They were assessed costs of $27.35, and placed under suspended sentence for a year.

The charge resulted when the two young men stole the rear wheel from a car owned by "Hep" Shepherd, South Arm township farmer, near Peninsula Grange hall last Wednesday evening. The two were suspected after being seen near the hall that evening, and a button torn from a jacket and found on the spot where the wheel had been taken furnished further conclusive evidence when Nemecek's jacket was found to be the same button.

After their arrest Saturday by Sheriff Dave Vaughan, the pair maintained they were innocent and were held in jail over Sunday before admitting their guilt Monday morning.

ANNUAL COMMERCE MEETING THURSDAY

BANQUET TO BE GIVEN BY PYTHIAN SISTERS

Election of Officers, Annual Committee Reports Important Business to Come Before Session

Headlining the events of the coming week in point of interest among Charlevoix business and professional people is the annual meeting of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce, which has been called for Thursday evening, December 3rd.

According to the announcement made by Dr. C. J. Winder, president of the organization, the annual session this year will be held at the K. of P. hall, with the Pythian Sisters serving the banquet dinner at the usual hour, 7 o'clock.

While there has been a scarcity of meetings of the commerce body during the busy summer months, activities of the various committees have been going on nevertheless, and the annual reports of committee chairmen will furnish an interesting part of the evening's program. Charlevoix, despite business depression, enjoyed its usual good summer season, and this success is due in no small part to the work of Association of Commerce committees.

In addition, there will be the annual reports of officers and that of the secretary-treasurer. The latter will reveal interesting facts this year. Despite its many activities, the Association did not call upon local merchants for financial support at the close of the season as in previous years. Fine cooperation of the city council made this procedure unnecessary.

Another important feature of the meeting will be the election of officers for the ensuing year. To those who have not already purchased their banquet tickets, or otherwise made arrangements to attend, an urgent request is made that they do so at once in order that a fairly accurate estimate may be made of the number it will be necessary to provide for.

Much important business will be brought before the annual session this year in addition to routine matters, and for this reason a good attendance is desired.

HATCHERY CONDI- TION EXCELLENT

TROUT SPAWN IN FINE SHAPE DESPITE BAD CONDITIONS

Report of U. S. Bureau of Fisheries Officials Following Visit Here Very Favorable One

Following a visit here last week of the district supervisor and assistant chief division fish culturist of the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries, Washington, D. C., conditions at the local government fish hatchery were reported to be in excellent condition.

This report is encouraging in the face of abnormally warm weather and water conditions, which have contrived to handicap spawn gathering and handling operations this fall. Trout spawn was reported to be in wonderful shape, as were also general conditions within the hatchery.

Collection of trout spawn, which has been in progress since opening of the season early in November, is now practically completed. At the present time only a small amount of eggs are coming in as compared to earlier days of the season. However, whitefish spawn is now coming in rapidly. The first consignment was received here November 14th, and shipments have been increasing rapidly. The largest, thirteen cases, was received on Tuesday of this week. Whitefish spawn is being received from Fairport, St. Ignace, Epoufette and Cheboygan.

No estimate of the number of eggs received this year is available at the present time. A report on trout spawn cannot be given until after tests are made, and the whitefish spawning run has just nicely started.

The force at the hatchery has been augmented as usual for the fall and early winter months, and operations are under supervision of Capt. E. R. Widmyer, hatchery foreman. Allison Bugbee, car man, also Floyd Chamberlain and James Stapleton, station men, all from Starville, are here for the winter months. In addition, a force of from four to eight women are being employed to pick over trout eggs, thus increasing the hatchery pay roll considerably and furnishing work for local people.

EIGHTEEN MILLION BUSHELS LARGER THAN 1930

Abundant Fall Rains and Absence of Frost Aided Farmers Harvesting Crops

The month of October was unusually favorable for the harvesting of late crops, and the work was completed except a portion of the sugar beet acreage and some corn husking. No general killing frost occurred and practically all crops came to full maturity. While the season was marked by extreme drought conditions which reduced yields of the later crops, yet fall rains were sufficient to cause some improvement. As a result, the total production of all field crops except oats, field peas, clover seed and hay was above that of 1930. Fruit production was also larger except in the case of pears and grapes.

The Michigan corn crop is about 43 million bushels as compared with 25 millions last year. The quality is very good, it being estimated that 81 per cent of the total grain portion is of merchantable quality. The wheat yield was the highest on record and gave a production of 18 million bushels, one and one-half millions more than last year although the acreage was smaller. Oats amounted to 46 million bushels against 53 millions last year. The yield and quality were poor in the northern counties where many acres were not worth cutting for grain, but the crop was relatively good in the southern counties. The rye crop was about equal to that of 1930 while the amount of buckwheat is more than double that raised in the previous year.

The Michigan potato crop, while below average both in yield and acreage, amounted to 23,750,000 bushels, a gain of 10 millions over 1930. Yields were very good in the northern commercial areas but rather poor in the southern half of the state, although some fields made a good showing in the latter section. The total production for the United States is estimated at 382 millions which is an increase of approximately 39 million bushels over the previous season.

The Michigan bean crop, like the potato crop, was benefitted by September rains. Recent acreage checks indicate a smaller planted acreage, both in 1930 and 1931 than previously reported. The present production estimate, based on these revised acreages is 6,136,000 bushels for the current season and 4,202,000 bushels for last year. Yields varied greatly between different sections and many acres were too poor to harvest. A similar situation existed in 1930 so that further adjustments will be necessary when complete information is available relative to the acreage actually abandoned this year and the yield on the harvested portion.

Field peas proved to be a poor crop this year. Insect pests, heat and drought greatly reduced yields and caused many acres to be abandoned. Sugar beets have exceeded expectations in regard to yield. The estimated production of 522,000 tons is practically the same as in 1930 although the harvested acreage is expected to be fully 20 per cent less this year. The few factories in operation are running full capacity.

The total production of apples approximated 10 million bushels or nearly double the quantity raised last year. Grapes, with a production of 62,100 tons, were somewhat less plentiful than in 1930. Likewise, the pear crop fell short of the previous year being only about 75 per cent as large.

While crop production is somewhat in excess of last year in Michigan, the total cash returns will be considerably less. The prices of many products are only about one-half of what they were one year ago, and a large percentage of growers are finding it difficult to meet fixed expenses from their meager cash returns.

WELFARE WORK NEEDS CLOTHING

ALSO SHOES TO DISTRIBUTE AMONG THOSE IN WANT

Local Legion Post Appeals for Assistance in Its Relief Activities—Post Officers To Meet

Commander Lee C. Allard of the local Legion Post is appealing to the public of Charlevoix for further assistance in the welfare work of the post. Clothing and shoes are urgently needed for both adults and children and it is hoped that this appeal will be generously met. A young Indian lad, desirous of entering a school in the southern part of the state, but destitute of clothing fit to wear, has been comfortably outfitted from a supply donated to the Legion and sent on his way, happy. A great deal more of such work remains to be done. Will you help the Legionnaires to do it?

Two new and important committees were appointed by Commander Allard at the Post's regular meeting, Tuesday evening. These are the entertainment and finance committees, whose duties it will be, respectively, to provide recreation and entertainment for the members of the Post and to plan projects for making money for the Legion, and see that they are carried out successfully.

The Mid-winter Post Officers Conference of the Department of Michigan will be held at Bay City on December 5th and 6th next. This will be a strictly business session of post officers and will include a school of instruction for post commanders and adjutants and also one for welfare officers. The National Adjutant, National Rehabilitation officer and the National child-welfare chairman of both the Legion and the Auxiliary will attend—this meeting and an extensive program is planned. The headquarters of the meeting will be at the Wenonah hotel, which is offering special rates for the occasion. Any Legionnaire who cares to attend this conference is welcome to do so. The local post will send Commander Allard, Adjutant F. V. Tyler and Post Welfare Officer Clarence Meggison as delegates to the conference.

BASKETBALL NEXT SPORT ON PROGRAM

CHARLEVOIX WILL HAVE TWO CLUBS THIS WINTER

High School Practice Under Way and Polar Bears Girding for Season—Both Appear Strong

With the football season past, interest in Charlevoix athletic circles has turned to basketball, the next sport on the winter roster.

Charlevoix will again this winter have two basketball organizations. Coach Ray Kipke is working with a large group of high school candidates, and the Polar Bears, who will be under the management of Gordon Todd again this winter, have been practicing the past three weeks to get in shape for the season.

The Polar Bears, five times Northern Michigan champions, will have a formidable combination again this year. Vic Smith, former high school star, and George Haggard, a newcomer, have joined the old guards, among whom are Dean Davenport, Floyd Brown, Ted Cooper, "Bill" Supernaw, Rny Kipke, George Higman and Glenroy Ikens. Manager Todd says his men are faster than ever before and that means they will have to be mighty good to be better than in previous years.

The Polar Bears are now arranging a full season's schedule, which will be announced as soon as completed. Season tickets will be issued and placed on sale. Their first game, probably the first week in December, will be free to the public. This game will be announced as soon as scheduled. Manager Todd also announced that he is now negotiating with the All-Star Girls' Basketball Club of St. Louis, Mo., for a December game with the United States professional girl champions, a combination claiming four all-American choices last year and a team that averages 168 pounds. The date preferred is December 22nd, and if arranged will provide an unusually good attraction. Home-and-home games with Boyne City, Harbor Springs, Alpena and other Northern Michigan teams are awaiting contract.

Coach Kipke is building his squad around Norman Ance and Vic McSaubey, last year's stars, and a group of 1930-31 reserves who show good promise.

Following is the complete schedule, with a change in the Petoskey game as previously announced:

Dec. 11—Traverse City, there.
Dec. 18—Petoskey, here.
Dec. 29—Petoskey, there.
Jan. 8—Boyne City, there.
Jan. 15—Harbor Springs, there.
Jan. 22—Traverse City, here.
Jan. 29—Mancelona, here.
Feb. 5—Boyne City, here.
Feb. 12—East Jordan, there.
Feb. 19—Harbor Springs, here.
Feb. 26—East Jordan, here.

Mrs. R. T. Davis in Petoskey Hospital After Crash Friday Night

Mrs. R. T. Davis, wife of Charlevoix county's road superintendent, is in Petoskey hospital suffering from a compound fracture of her right knee and other injuries received in an automobile accident last Friday evening.

The crash occurred when Mr. and Mrs. Davis were returning from Petoskey. Blinded by rain and the lights of an approaching car, Mr. Davis ran into another machine stalled with engine trouble on the right side of the road on Marquette hill north of Bay Shore.

Mr. Davis received injuries on both legs, and bruises on his face and body. Mrs. Davis is improving as rapidly as can be expected. The car was practically a complete wreck.

When TEETHING makes HIM FUSSY

One of the most important things you can do to make a teething baby comfortable is to see that little bowels do their work of carrying off waste matter promptly and regularly. For this nothing is better than Castoria, a pure vegetable preparation specially made for babies and children. Castoria acts so gently you can give it to young infants to relieve colic. Yet it is always effective, for older children, too. Remember, Castoria contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics — is absolutely harmless. When your baby is fretful with teething or a food upset, give a cleansing dose of Castoria. Be sure you get genuine Castoria with the name:

CHAPTER X—Continued.

As their eyes met, as Alan felt her small hand warm in his, he was torn between fear, in that first moment of their meeting, when impressions stood out so sharp and clear, it seemed that all passion had gone out of Joyce's manner toward him. She greeted him warmly, she was friendly, even cordial, but in the same way as she would have met Bill Harlock or Pedemont or Larry.

Introducing her to Buzzard, he stepped down into the canoe, tapped the painter rope around a strut, and together he and she guided the plane, atwain current to the landing. After mooring it securely and getting part of their personal duffle, the four of them, with old Pence appointing himself guard over the machine, went up the path to the trading store.

Alan could fairly feel the dozen eager questions Joyce wanted to ask him: Who was this new-found friend whom he called Buzzard? Where had they got this plane? How did they intend to use it against those bandits? But practical little soul as always, she asked no questions then. The three men, tired and hungry and desperately in need of rest, were her first consideration. Going back to the kitchen, she heated them water to wash and shave, and set about getting a hot substantial meal.

Alan happened to notice that his picture, which for two years had stood on Joyce's dresser, was not there now. It had been like a blow. Why had she taken it down? Was it some accident, entirely innocent? Or . . .

Back in the kitchen, while Buzzard was outside washing away the grime and oil of five days' flight, he remembered the cellulose fleecies and found it and brought it to Joyce.

"I thought of you, out in Edmonton," he said awkwardly, breaking the string. "I believed you might like this, Joyce. It isn't much, but I was short of . . . I was pretty near broke."

As Joyce unfolded the sash-belt and saw its exquisite beauty, an admiration leaped into her eyes. "Oh, it's beautiful! It's the loveliest I've ever seen anywhere."

But then, as she looked from the gift to the giver, something seemed to check her. With an effort she forced herself to say quietly, "It was kind of you, Alan, to think of me."

Alan turned away in bitter disappointment. "It was kind of you . . . How cold and distant those words sounded. She was talking to him across an abyss."

When Buzzard and he came back in, they sat down to their meal. As they passed their food and the three of them talked, Alan could not help noting Buzzard's quick ardent admiration, studying her intently, evidently astonished to find a pretty, well-educated girl like her living almost alone here in this far-northern wilderness.

Later, when Joyce had insisted on their getting a few hours of rest and had left them in her father's room, he remembered:

"There's one lucky devil in this world, Baker. The man that Miss MacMillan's going to marry."

Alan wheeled, he had never thought of Joyce marrying another man. The remark aroused a passionate resentment in him.

Sitting at the edge of the bed, Buzzard smoked a cigarette and glanced nervously at his partner who had lain down and was trying to get a little rest to fit himself for the night and battle just ahead. Something was wrong between Alan and this winsome, spirited Joyce MacMillan. There was, or had been, some passionate relationship between them. It had evidently gone on the rocks: Baker was engaged to some girl at Port Endurance; and Miss MacMillan . . . Well, there was that incident which he himself had seen half an hour ago when he happened to glance through the window.

"It's a pity," he thought, "for them to hurt up. A d-d shame, that's what. She's a regular girl. Looks, personality and spunk. . . . Lord, I'd hate to ever quarrel with her!"

He wondered whether to tell Alan what that incident had been. Alan was evidently floundering around in the dark about Miss MacMillan. He was a bit awkward and blundered in such matters. Buzzard thought:

"First chance I get, believe I'll tell him what she did. He ought to know. She either loves him or hates him, to do a thing like that!"

When Alan woke up, late in the evening, Buzzard was still asleep and Bill Harlock was dead to the world. Hoping to find Joyce, he went out into the trading hall.

Joyce was not there. For a few moments Alan stood looking about. As Bill had told him, she was closing out the post. He tried to think of Joyce's childhood home being sold to some outer stranger. Thinking of Larry, soon to be invalidated out of service and condemned to a life of intolerable illness, he wondered whether he might not get this post for his crippled patrol partner. It was well located, and Larry's host of friends among the Indians would be sure to bring him their furs.

Still hunting Joyce, he went down to the landing where old Pence, whistling at his story-stick, was guarding the plane against any log floating down and damaging it.

"You rise up early, Alan, eh?" "Yes. Got a couple things to do. They must've been on my mind. Where's Joyce?"

"She went down the river bank, down that 't' that fast brook comin' out'a the timber, to snag some trout. We're shy on meat."

Alan stepped into Dave MacMillan's canoe, laid in an extra paddle, and started down stream. Gliding around the first bend, he saw Joyce two hundred yards ahead, standing on a jutting rock beside a brook mouth. When he came alongside and lifted the canon prow out upon the shivering rock, she greeted him with a quiet friendly smile. They sat down together on the wolf-foot moss.

After his days in the plane, with the awful of hurtling struts and the thunder of a motor dining his ears, it was incredibly quiet on the spruce-buried stream.

Very observant, he covertly stared at Joyce. She was looking past him at the far shore and woods. As he studied her features, it seemed to Alan that something profound had happened to her since he saw her last. She had changed; she was hardly the same girl. There was some new strange spiritual quality about her, as of a person who has gone down into a ravaging sickness and has had the strength to conquer and rise out of it, but at a terrible cost.

To break the silence between them he began telling her of these last weeks—his trip to Edmonton, his providential luck in meeting Buzzard, the prison charges that stood against them, their flight back north, their escape from Thaskell's trap, his elation when he saw her running down the path.

As she listened, thoroughly alive to the danger and hardships he had gone through, Joyce felt a profound gratitude, for she knew Alan had done this largely for her sake. When he mentioned the prison charges facing him, she experienced a moment of pause; and imagined herself testifying in his behalf, fighting for him as he had fought for her.

A little later, after they had discussed plans for closing in upon the bandits, Alan rose up and gave her his hand to rise. He said:

"I've got to go down river a few miles, Joyce. Bill catches some supplies near that sand where you and I got upset, that day and had to swim for it. I want to bring them up here this evening."

He waited a moment for some hint that she might wish to go along with him. None came. He suggested:

"I'd take only a couple hours. If you'd care to, I'd like for you to go."

"It's better stay. Bill and Mr. Featherfoot will be awake before long. I'll have supper ready when you get back."

"I can help you with that—if you'll go."

Joyce hesitated. She was aware that Alan deeply wanted her company. After all he'd done for her, it seemed cruelly ungrateful to refuse. And she herself wanted to go. But bitter wisdom whispered a warning. Since that morning when she turned his letters and picture and gifts to ashes, there had been no looking back. There must be none now. She had strength and courage to talk with him calmly and to act toward him as though they had never been more than good friends; but she dared not presume too far on that new-born strength. To be alone with him two hours on a twilight river, with their talk inevitably drifting to former times—it would be unbearable.

With gentle firmness she said: "I'd like to go, Alan. But I'll have to run back to the post. There's so many things to do." She tried to smile. "I don't want to be a neglectful hostess to Bill and Mr. Featherfoot."

As she started up the river trail, her thoughts flooded on several things Alan had said in the course of his story, especially on his occasional references to Elizabeth. Not that he had said anything derogatory about Elizabeth. But his tone, his manner.

Was he becoming a little disillusioned? Not as the sister of his dead partner Curt, not as a girl to be cherished and shielded, but as a selfish, calculating person? Was he dimly foreseeing what his married life with her was going to be?

Joyce checked herself sharply from hoping or even thinking that Alan might break off his engagement, or from extending him anything more than grateful friendship. She was glad, profoundly glad, that his words had caused no resurrection of hope, no tremor of emotion. The discovery of her strength sufficed her with a kind of pride. But for all that, she felt a great sorrow for Alan. He was bitterly unhappy, and she knew it.

What was his situation now? Police work, his life in the North, comradeship with his old friends—everything that he had cherished was stripped away from him, and he was going into a marriage reluctantly and forcing himself into a life that was alien to his whole nature. When Joyce thought of all that, her sympathy, tender and compassionate, went out to him wholeheartedly.

Returning at deep twilight with the drums, Alan found Buzzard cleaning fouled spark plugs on the plane engine.

Candles were already lit in the trading store. Alan looked up the path, expecting to see Joyce's figure in the lighted doorway. He hoped to have an hour or two alone with her this evening. But all day the conviction had grown upon him that a talk would be worse than useless. If only God's truth didn't sound so preposterous; if only he could tell Joyce that he had become engaged to Elizabeth, and yet all the time, in his deepest longing, had wanted not Elizabeth but her. . . .

"If we're going to get away from here first thing in the morning," Buzzard broke into his thoughts, "we ought to put in a couple hours' work after supper on these allenor leads. They're pretty bad frayed around the pulleys."

Alan knew that Buzzard was asking him to help with that job. But he did not answer. He wanted this evening with Joyce. Unless he took circumstances into his own hands tonight, he and Joyce would drift across a continent from each other in a few days more. Torn with uncertainty of her affections for him, he was debating about this evening. After the incidents of today—his picture gone, her coldness, her refusal to go with him—he was wavering, undecided.

His tossed his cigarette out on the water. "Maybe we'd better go up and help Joyce what we can."

Buzzard did not stir. For several minutes he had been glancing uneasily at Alan. Finally he screwed up courage to speak.

"It's strictly none of my business, Alan, but— . . . You're engaged to a girl here at Endurance, but you thought Miss MacMillan that rainbow scarf with your last dollar and you talked a lot about getting back here and helping her."

Alan was loath to speak to Joyce, even with a partner. He tried to say quietly: "We've been good friends for several years. She's one of the sweetest girls I ever knew. You've met her now. You'd naturally want to help her, wouldn't you?"

"Of course. But—but . . . See here, I may be imagining things; you can tell me to shut up if you want to—but it seems to me there's something wrong between you and her."

Alan repeated, rather shortly: "We're good friends. There's nothing more than that."

Buzzard knew different. He had had a vague suspicion of it ever since Alan first mentioned Joyce MacMillan's name at the cafe in Edmonton. As he remembered the incident of this noon, he wondered at the Spartan courage Joyce had shown and at the passion behind such an act. Surely some bitter unhappiness lay between her and Baker.

He said reluctantly: "If that's true, if you're merely friends and nothing more, what made her burn up that scarf you brought her?"

"What!" Alan Whirled on Him, Gasping. "Burn Up That Cellulose Fleecies?"

"What?" Alan whirled on him, gasping. "Burn up that cellulose fleecies?" He half-raised. "You say that's what she did? You're sure about that? You didn't make a mistake?"

For a moment, groping about to retrieve his blunder, Buzzard hardly knew what to say or do. There had been no mistake; he had seen that incident with his own eyes when he glanced through the window to find where Alan was. He debated whether to draw back from his statement or to plunge ahead and tell the rest of it—Joyce's momentary battle, the slender that swept her whole body when she put the scarf into the stove, and the quick blinding tears that she dashed away.

He thought: "Better not get any deeper into this. I'll only blunder again. Better back out entirely."

He stammered: "I might have made a mistake. I might—uh—I might have been the wrapping paper. I just merely saw her put—uh—something into—and I jumped to conclusions. Must have been the wrapper. Why would any person want to burn up a gift like that? Let's forget it."

His tones carried no conviction. He realized it himself. Alan disbelieved him; Alan knew Joyce had burned the scarf he gave her.

Crushing himself badly, Buzzard looked out across the purpling river. He had meant only the best, and he had dealt Alan a savage pitiless blow. After a little time Alan said to him: "You'd better go up, Buzzard; she may be waiting for us."

"Aren't you going?" "No—not now; I don't much care. I don't want supper."

Something in his voice warned Buzzard not to urge him. As he turned away, Alan said, in the tones of a man who has made some hard and abiding decision:

"When you've had supper, come back down here; I'll help you with that work; we'll do it now, so we can get away early. I was thinking—for this evening—something else. But that's out—now."

At three o'clock the next morning Buzzard lifted the plane out of the Big Abuska. With Alan directing him, he headed due north.

One hundred and thirty miles away, nearly four hundred miles from Port Endurance, a small tribe of Timucos lived along the western fringe of the Thak-Azaki. They were a thin, skulking, inoffensive band, shrouded into a region where other tribes scorned to live. Dave MacMillan had been their friend and they brought him their furs; and Alan, during his years at Endurance, had sent a protective patrol to them twice a year.

Joyce had found out where they were spending this summer; and Alan had a mission with their old headman, Migwa-Ethen.

When the timbered country began yielding to lakes and semi-muskeg, he got out his glasses and started searching ahead for their camp. At a height of five thousand feet he could sweep a region of more than two hundred thousand acres. The eyes of an eagle, the wings of a bullet-swift curlew, and that big-barreled throwing machine gun—through luck and driving purpose and a faith in his dubious plan, he had smashed through obstacles till now he held the power and heavy odds over those bandits.

The sure knowledge of this was about all that was left to him. His work in the Mounted, his life here in the North, were both gone; and Buzzard's cantel-side words last evening had showed him that his secret hope towards Joyce had been a fool's hope, a fool's wishful thinking.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Mable: "All the girls are going to the dance tonight, and each one must wear a dress the color of her sweetheart's hair. Why don't you go?"

Maizie: "Gosh, Mable, I can't. My sweetie is bald."

The garbage man's daughter should not be sniffed at.

ELLSWORTH PIONEER TAKEN BY DEATH

Death Took Place at Home of Daughter in Chicago

Ellsworth lost one of its oldest settlers in the death of Benjamin Madill, Thursday evening, November 12th, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Bess Russell of Chicago.

Deceased was born in Canada, November 27th, 1855. He moved here with his parents at the age of fifteen years and resided in this vicinity until two years ago when they left to make their home with their daughter. He was united in marriage to Abigail Frink on August 27, 1879, at Elk Rapids, and to this union were born five children, Herbert, who preceded his father in death six years ago, and Mabel, who died 13 years ago, Ray of Washington, Mrs. Lila M. Kiddy of Jacksonville, Florida, and Mrs. Bess Russell of Chicago.

During his years of illness, Mr. Madill still kept his sunny disposition and had a ready smile and word of cheer for everyone.

The remains were brought to Ellsworth and funeral services were held Monday afternoon from the M. E. church, of which he was a member. Rev. Kendall and Rev. Harris officiated. Burial in the Ellsworth cemetery.

'BILL THE BIRD KING' EXPECTED TO RECOVER

Lover of Michigan Wildlife Ill at Burt Lake Cabin Home

Lying ill of complications in his cabin home beneath the evergreens on the west shore of Burt lake is William King, famed throughout northern Michigan as "Bill the Bird King," lover of birds, naturalist, expert snowshoe craftsman and hewer of railway ties. He is expected to recover.

William King, a middle-aged bachelor, has a warm place in his heart for all of nature's creatures. Especially well has he succeeded in his tireless endeavor to befriend all species of birds that share his woodland environment and help to make his forest home the pleasant abiding place which it has come to be.

Like the unfolding of a miracle, the wild and timid partridges fly out of the shadows of the forest at his call to flutter about him like domestic fowl as he scatters a supper of grain over the snow for them.

Several years ago, through "Bill's" efforts, conservation photographers were able to obtain the first true-to-life motion pictures of these shy birds in their natural haunts.

Taxes Will Save Situation

When school funds at Cadillac became low, Mayor Felix Flynn appealed to several large taxpayers to pay their winter taxes in advance with the result that the Consumers' Power company has advanced their payment of more than $10,000.

Harold Hallett and Louis O'Neil, who spent the first five days of the deer hunting season near Hendrick's Quarry, returned home Friday, as did also Frank Bird, Frank Courier, Ted Coblenz and Floyd Brown of this city, also Kit Carson of East Jordan, and H. G. Bird of Traverse City, who were camped on the Little Two Heart northeast of Newberry. Neither party brought home deer.

The Misses Monica and Catherine Smith entertained informally at the home of their parents, on Petoskey avenue, Thursday evening. Two tables of bridge were in play, honors going to Miss Freda McMillan and Miss Ada Yettaw. Guests were the Misses Genevieve Supernaw, Freda McMillan and Ada Yettaw and Mrs. Henry Buddy, Mrs. Vne Smith, Mrs. Fay Bradley and Mrs. Walter Bergeon.

ACID STOMACH

EXCESS acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. "The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. Harmless, and tasteless, and yet its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, once you learn how quickly this method acts. Be sure to get the genuine.

The ideal dentifrice for clean teeth and healthy gums is Phillips' Dental Magnesia, a superior tooth-paste that safeguards against acid-mouth.

RURAL SCHOOL NOTES

BARNARD SCHOOL.
Our sides stand nine to six, with the "Reds" in the lead.

Our flag was mended last week by Mrs. Cornell. Thank you.

The 7th graders are making flour and salt maps for geography now.

The 8th graders are studying "Advantage of the Middle Border" for history.

Friday was a busy day. We made flowers and put them in cans for our windows.

The chart and first grade class drew white mice to represent the poem they have learned.

The 7th and 8th graders have learned to write and punctuate "The Star Spangled Banner" for grammar.

Mr. Mellenkamp called at our school Wednesday. We organized a Handicraft club and a Clothing club. Mr. Mellenkamp also favored the "Blues."

Tuesday we had six visitors. Mrs. Cummings, Mrs. Dhaseler, Mrs. Willis and Clara Louise Cummings were on the "Red." Mildred and Clara Potter were on the "Blue."

Our November calendar was made by Chere Beattie and Gordon Cummings. We find from it that we have much to be thankful for, as the horn of plenty showers out many good things.

The "Blues" had another star when Mr. Palmer called at our school Friday. He brought us a health poster and also a large picture of Gen. Washington which was framed before dismissal.

PHILIPS SCHOOL

During art class Friday we made Thanksgiving greeting cards.

We have an outline of a "Diagram of An Oat Grain" in our school room.

The sixth graders are making a poster showing the history of means of travel.

Bernice and Merle Blanchard spent Sunday with Mary and Marjorie Smith.

Pete Henley and James Block are back from hunting. They both secured their deer.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson of Charlevoix, spent Sunday evening at the James Block home.

The beginners have commenced reading their primers, "We Three." They surely are proud.

After hearing the story of "Old Man Rabbit's Thanksgiving," the beginners made posters about the story.

The sixth grade had a very interesting lesson on uses of wood when they were studying the Siberian forest region.

On Tuesday afternoon a short

Thanksgiving program is to be given. Mr. Palmer will be present to give a little talk.

The fifth graders are making a large map of New England on which they are putting the different things grown or made.

Mr. Palmer, Mary Veenstra, Clara Zylstra, Byard Stevens, Rosie Saganek and B. C. Mellenkamp were visitors at our school last week.

Josephine and Clair Stevens, Cecil Drost and Howard Peters did not need to write spelling on Friday as they had 100 per cent every day.

We have a crepe paper border beneath the blackboard. On it there are turkeys which appear to be marching along to get their heads cut off.

The girls' sewing club elected their officers on Monday. Josephine Stevens is president, Mary Saganek is vice-president, and Florence Himebaugh is secretary.

The Flying Sawdust Handicraft Club was organized on Thursday. Cecil Drost is president, Kenneth Balch, vice-president, and Francis Himebaugh, secretary.

AT THE MOVIES

Old Man Had Luck Proved Dame Fortune in Disguise

Had it not been for a run of bad luck, James Dunn, who became an overnight sensation in his first Fox picture, "Bad Girl," and who makes his second screen appearance in "Sob Sister," which opens its local engagement next Saturday at the Palace theatre, might be one of the many salesmen who push your door bell daily instead of the very few young men who have pushed their way up to the heights of film fame.

In "Sob Sister" Dunn plays opposite another star of the New York stage, Miss Linda Watkins, who makes her screen debut in the title role. Miss Watkins, blue-eyed, blonde and gracefully slender, was chosen as one of the three Fox debutante stars of 1931 and great things are expected of this young lady.

In addition to Dunn and Miss Watkins, the cast of "Sob Sister" is made up of some of the screen's finest players. Minna Gombell, who also starred in "Bad Girl," Molly O'Day and Howard Phillips have the other featured roles. Alfred Santell directed the production from Mildred Gilman's novel of the same name which Edwin Burke adapted for the screen.

Dainty Fox Film Actress Roughs It for Her Art

Marguerite Churchill, acclaimed by film critics to be one of the most promising young actresses of the screen, and who is featured with George O'Brien in "Riders of the Purple Sage," Fox film version of Zane Grey's celebrated action romance, coming next Wednesday and Thursday to the Palace theatre, disputes the theory that Hollywood film stars live lives of rosy ease.

Almost a third of her time for the past year or more has been spent in tents, camps, hunting lodges, small town hotels or in the crowded compartments of railroad trains.

Mrs. Vorse and children, who have been visiting her parents here, returned home with him Sunday.

Friday evening the students who attend high school at Petoskey while on the way home, had car trouble and had to stop at the side of the road to repair it, when a car driven at a high rate of speed coming from Petoskey and driven by R. T. Davis of Charlevoix, struck them in the rear, wrecking the car and throwing the girls that were in the back seat through the top of the car and pinning them under the fence at the side of the road. They escaped with no serious damage but were badly bruised. It was mere luck they were not killed. Mrs. Davis was cut and her knee hurt. She was taken to the Petoskey hospital.

CENTRAL LAKE

Guy White, Guy Morse and O. P. Barber have been hunting deer near their lodge at Atlanta.

Rev. Lincoln of the F. M. church here begins holding revival meetings at Mancelona this week.

are invited to attend. Miss Cotton will be there.

Guy White, Charles Roberts, Ira Bennett and "Happy" Wilson have returned from the eastern part of the state with their deer which they shot early in the week. Ira Bennett is up from Detroit.

The death of our fellow townsman, William Somerville, came as a distinct loss to the community. After about two years of illness he finally succumbed to the disease of the blood which it appears the doctors did not know the nature. He leaves a wife and five children. He was highway commissioner here for a number of years.

The death of Mrs. George Telgenhoff last week came as a great surprise to her friends. Heart failure, following pneumonia, was the cause. Her husband died about a year ago caused by falling off a load of hay. Her daughter, Madeline, who had been teaching at Alma, came home, and is ill from the shock of both her mother's and father's death. Two little girls, Florence and Arlene, are left at home with their grandmother, Mrs. Klooster. The son, Gerald, was recently married and is living in Bellaire. The relatives have the sympathy of many friends here. Funeral services were held from the Holland church, conducted by Rev. Koopman.

C. H. S. SCHOOL NOTES

Thanksgiving From a Student's Viewpoint

Why are we thankful for Thanksgiving? First and perhaps most important, is that we will have no school from Wednesday night until Monday morning! Second, when we think of that turkey, cranberries, plum pudding and pumpkin pie we certainly begin to be thankful beforehand. Third, we are thankful that our teachers may spend the week end in other places. But we are truly thankful for the health and prosperity that Charlevoix has enjoyed during the past year and that we have not had to endure the suffering and want that is prevalent in the larger cities.

Parent-Teachers' Meeting

An exceptionally interesting and well-attended meeting of the P. T. A. was held last Wednesday evening at the high school. The boys' glee club gave two selections which were much enjoyed, after which Miss Dasef presented plans for serving one hot dish at noon for the children who bring their lunches. Miss Payton spoke briefly on National book week and gave a list of books especially interesting to parents and teachers. In presenting to the group a questionnaire by means of which the program committee may plan the year's meetings in accordance with the wishes of the members, Dr. McMillan stated that the aim of the year's activities is to promote a better understanding between teachers and parents. Dr.

Dean then gave a short synopsis of the child welfare conference which he and Mr. Bush attended recently.

The evening closed with refreshments and visiting, and it is hoped the splendid attendance may be increased each month and that the P. T. A. may have a more fruitful year than ever before.

Musical

The program presented last Friday evening by the music department was much appreciated by a large audience.

Civil Government

The Civics class has formed a House of Representatives. Speaker, Hugh Parker; clerk, Leo Yettaw; chaplain, Carl Bentie; with committees, each committee preparing a bill for their various departments. A president was appointed by Miss Fernu, Mary Margaret Orlowski, who in turn appointed her cabinet as follows:

Secretary of State, Margaret Smith; Secretary of Treasury, Carl Beattie; Secretary of War, Leo Yettaw; Attorney General, David Dick; Postmaster General, Evelyn Seymour; Secretary of Navy, Lula VanDusen; Secretary of Interior, Ruby Supernaw; Secretary of Agriculture, John Posek; Secretary of Commerce, Kieth Kerr; Secretary of Labor, Minnie Gornell.

The subject for discussion in the cabinet will be the "Manchurian Crisis."

Junior Play Staff

In recent years the work of the producing staff of a play has at last come in for its share of praise. In many little theatres these people who have spent long weary hours in carpentering, focusing lights, sewing, et cetera, take a final curtain call beside the actors, for it is to them that a great share of the success of any play is due.

Following is the staff for "The Enemy."

Business manager, Lila Tillotson; advertising manager, Marian Tyler; stage managers, Herbert Campbell, Jane Stelter, Jean Stelter; electrician, Winfield Kirby; costumes, Ethel Powers, Margaret McCann. Assistants and ushers will be appointed at an early date.

Jollies

The orchestra held its first rehearsal Tuesday, November 24th.

The Tip of Michigan class C conference met at the Perry hotel in Petoskey, Saturday, Nov. 21, for the fall meeting and dinner. East Jordan was given the conference championship in football. Gaylord also has had a good team but has not played enough conference games to be eligible for consideration. Rogers City was admitted to the conference. Three or more of the Hi-Y boys, with an adult leader, will go to Ana Arbor, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, to attend the older boys' conference.

The basketball squad is practicing every night now. If they continue with the same energy they have displayed so far Charlevoix will surely have marked success this year.

Mr. Bush enjoyed several days of deer hunting last week.

COUNTY NORMAL

The normal class wishes to express their appreciation to Miss Paton for her interest in their behalf during book week.

An invitation has been received from the Maple Lawn school (taught by Wesley Manley) for the normal class to attend the Thanksgiving program Tuesday evening, November 24th.

Judging by the many calls from rural teachers for supplementary reading and program material, the county normal serves not only the teachers in training, but also those out on the job. Any services are freely and gladly given.

The normal class has enjoyed the second number in the series of lectures provided by the state department under the direction of Miss Marjorie Dhanan. The third number will be given by Dr. Davis, whom Charlevoix knows well. The first date has been cancelled, so it is not known just when he will appear.

The strenuous days' work of the week is relieved somewhat by "setting-up" exercises conducted by Mr. Coulter.

Training Room News

The sixth grade arithmetic class is working out parcel post projects, preparatory to offering their assistance to members of their respective families who may need a bit of help at the Christmas mailing time.

The fourth grade arithmetic class is completing the planning of a Thanksgiving dinner. The total cost might possibly be quite shocking to most people this year.

Under the direction of Miss Gleason the children are learning some Thanksgiving songs.

The children of the training room are planning a Thanksgiving program to which they are inviting the normal class.

The training room has its 100 per cent enrollment in the Red Cross.

Positive Proof of FORD ECONOMY

City of Detroit purchases 137 new Ford cars
Hundreds now in use prove low cost of operation

THESE 137 new Ford cars represent one of the largest deliveries ever made to a municipality at one time.

21 radio-equipped Ford scout cars were traded in on this purchase. They had been operated day and night for two years in heavy traffic and all kinds of weather.

Their individual records ranged from 78,434 miles to 143,723 miles with a grand total of 2,283,097 miles. The operating cost of the 21 cars was 2.284 cents a mile—less than 2 1/3 cents. This cost included all fuel, oil, tires, repairs and every other item except depreciation and insurance.

Of 577 Ford cars in Detroit City service, the 300 in the Police Department traveled a total of 6,591,937 miles during the past fiscal year, at an average cost of 2.9 cents a mile.

Many claims have been made on operating costs, but here in the carefully kept motor car records of the City of Detroit is positive proof of Ford economy.

In the paragraphs above, it is seen that 21 Ford scout cars averaged less than 2 1/3 cents a mile and 300 Ford cars in all branches of Detroit police work averaged 2.9 cents a mile!

Day and night, twenty-four hours a day, these Ford cars are in operation. Few branches of transportation demand such grueling service. The records show that low fuel and oil consumption is but one of the Ford's many economies. Ford materials, simplicity of design and accuracy in manufacturing provide unusual strength, stamina and freedom from replacements and repairs.

The individual car buyer as well as the purchasing department of a city or a business cannot afford to ignore the proved economy of the Ford car.

Let Us Give Thanks

In the history of human affairs those who have had the least for which to be thankful have rendered thanks most fervently.

It takes trials and suffering to focus our attention upon our blessings. Thanksgiving Day had its origin in a period of hardship and suffering. If our early ancestors, surrounded by dangers and faced with a seemingly insurmountable task, could pause to give thanks surely we, despite present hardships, can take time to acknowledge our innumerable blessings.

Let us then give thanks for the things we have had and still have, and for the future which this land offers all those who have the faith to fight and the courage to carry on.

LITTLE SIX STARS PICKED BY FERENZ

TWENTY-TWO PLAYERS CHOSEN
BY WELL KNOWN OFFICIAL

Gaylord and East Jordan Each Given Five Positions—Charlevoix Has Four Mentioned

John Ferenz, Traverse City, who officiated at a large portion of games among Northern Michigan class C schools, and is, we believe, in the best position of any man in this region to choose all-star players by merit of their performance, has again chosen his conference team.

Gaylord and East Jordan each have been awarded five positions. Struthers, Anee, Bird and Arvilla have been picked from Charlevoix, and Arvilla is rated the best defensive fullback in the conference.

Following is Ferenz's story:
The task of picking an all star team is again upon us. Many guesses are made, some good and some bad. In all cases, it is only the judgment of one or a few that the most.

The Little Six Conference football season this fall was a very successful one. Better football was played as compared to last year. Many games were close and hard fought. Sounder and more fundamental football technique was evident. East Jordan, Gaylord and Boyne were the stronger teams, and were better balanced than the other three. Charlevoix, Harbor and Manelona were handicapped with green material and suffered bad breaks during their playing season. All in all the conference played no games which might be termed setups.

Since there was a scarcity of line material and an abundance of backfield men, I find it impossible to pick a first and second team without being unjust to several stars who should be on the first team. There are at least six good backs who would rate a first team position. Hence, I shall pick a squad of twenty-two players who in my judgment are the outstanding men in the Little Six Conference. These players I have selected to make my Little Six All Star squad.

Ends: Lorraine, East Jordan; Ely, Gaylord; Schroeder, Harbor Springs; White, Boyne City.

Tackles: Shreur, Gaylord; Hardy, Manelona; Green, Boyne; Joint, East Jordan.

Guards: M. Somerville, East Jordan; Tompkins, Boyne City; Norton, Harbor Springs; Struthers, Charlevoix.

Centers: Fritz, Gaylord; Bird, Charlevoix.

Half-backs: V. Somerville, East Jordan; Bradley, Harbor; Makel, Gaylord; Anee, Charlevoix.

Full-backs: Sandell, Boyne; Arvilla, Charlevoix.

Quarter-backs: Hignite, East Jordan; Criski, Gaylord.

This All Star squad possesses all the football technique and ability that is required to score on an opponent and also that which is necessary to stop the opposition. A good defensive and offensive team may be picked as a starter. Any one may take the place of another without any worry to the coach. The following players excel in the point mentioned.

Ends: Lorraine, East Jordan, good pass receiver; Ely, Gaylord, defensive end; Schroeder, Harbor Springs, pass receiver; White, Boyne, all round end; punting.

Tackles: Schreur, Gaylord, aggressiveness, breaking through to smear plays; Hardy, Manelona, all round end, very outstanding; Green, Boyne, rugged and hard to stop; Joint, East Jordan, good on defense.

Guards: M. Somerville, East Jordan; Tompkins, Boyne; Norton, Harbor Springs; Struthers, Charlevoix; all on a par in ability to break through on defense and block well when running interference.

Centers: Fritz, Gaylord, one of the best centers in Northern Michigan, does everything well; Bird, Charlevoix, just about equals Fritz, does all things well.

Half-backs: V. Somerville, East Jordan, open field running and passing, Bradley, Harbor Springs, one of the best in the North. Seems to have faculty of doing everything a good back should, punts well; Makel, Gaylord, very good in making gains, off tackle, aggressive; Anee, Charlevoix, needed at half instead of quarter; smart, passes well, good end.

Full-backs: Sandell, Boyne City, versatile and smart, open field ball carrier, good on defense; Arvilla, Charlevoix, best defensive full-back in the conference, good for short gains.

Quarterbacks: Criski, Gaylord, good field general. Punts well and is a good passer. Very adept at carrying ball in broken field. Hignite, East Jordan, good field general, picks plays well and is a very good safety man. Good at getting around end with the ball.

I have selected Bradley of Harbor Springs as captain of this squad. Bradley was captain last year also.

FIRST COUNTY SEAL BUYERS REPORTED

TWO LOCAL MEN AMONG EARLY PURCHASERS

Tuberculosis Association Renews the Urge for Public to Buy Generously During Drive

Mrs. Ben Smatts, East Jordan; Clinton Cooper, Charlevoix, and Peter H. Timmer, Charlevoix, were the first buyers of tuberculosis Christmas seals in Charlevoix county. It was revealed in a tabulation made of the early sales by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. Their remittances were received in Lansing immediately after the opening of the 1931 campaign.

The first returns reported from over the state indicate that Michigan does not want to let down in its fight on tuberculosis, it is the opinion of Dr. Henry D. Chadwick, president of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. Many of the first contributions, he revealed, have been made at a considerable personal sacrifice for the givers in order to keep the anti-tuberculosis work going.

Encouraged by this spirit and the favorable reports, Dr. Chadwick promised that the Michigan Tuberculosis Association would extend its new program for tuberculosis prevention among high school students widely during 1932, if the returns continue to come in at such a high level.

"Year after year, tuberculosis has been making costly raids on child life in Michigan, but with the new testing and X-ray program, every youth in Michigan can be protected against the disease," Dr. Chadwick said. "How much we can make of this program to save the lives of Michigan children will be dictated by the people of Michigan with their purchase of 1931 tuberculosis Christmas seals."

Bulow, Henry Buddy, Donald Swinton, Vane Smith, Arthur Weststaff, Floyd Brown and Lloyd Curtis.

BAPTIST OFFICERS PLAN CHRISTMAS FESTIVITIES

The teachers and officers of the Baptist church met at the home of Mrs. Harker Kirby on West Upright avenue Monday evening to perfect plans for Christmas and the coming year. DEER SEASON FELL BELOW 1930 AVERAGE

WARM WEATHER AND LACK OF SNOW SHORTENED KILL

Charlevoix Hunters Bring Home Record Number While Straits Reports
1200 Less Than Last Year

The last stragglers from an army of more than 50,000 deer hunters who invaded the upper peninsula fifteen days ago started their homeward journey Tuesday after what has been declared the most unsatisfactory season in years.

While the season has been termed generally poor, Charlevoix hunters experienced one of the best years in history. A check-up which does not include many successful hunters from nearby rural districts, reveals that 40 bucks—and one black bear—were brought home by local sportsmen. Of this number, 25 and the lone bear came from across the straits and the balance from eastern deer cover. Five local hunters filled their license Sunday, the day before the season closed, in eastern counties, and the average for all was nearly fifty per cent.

Statistics sent out from Mackinaw City reveal that five hunters were killed by guns, one was killed in an automobile accident enroute to the hunting grounds, one fell dead of heart disease while hunting and one was lost and has not been found.

More than 4,750 deer were shipped across the Straits of Mackinac, compared with 5,900 shipped a year ago. The state ferries also carried 70 bears, 17 coyotes, 10 fox, 8 bobcats and 6 timber wolves. Not to mention a live-hald headed eagle.

Warm weather during the first nine days of the season made it necessary to take slain deer out of the woods within a day after they were killed, spoiling the vacations of many sportsmen.

Included among the fatalities were: Carroll Cross, 33, Niles, Mich., shot and killed near Felch under mysterious circumstances.

Charles Keddle, New Hudson, 41, mortally wounded near Seney, when shot by Robert McDonald of Grand Marais, member of party of eight making a drive. Keddle camped near a Charlevoix party composed of Charles, Will and Clarence Heise, Clarence McGinnis, Vern Jones and Kenneth Usher, and was intimately known by these boys.

Joseph Mauser, 18, killed accidentally by his own gun near Escanaba.

Carl Seagraves, 18, Hudson, killed accidentally when partner's gun discharged while being unloaded.

It is feared that Paul McDowell of East Muskegon, missing since the opening day of the season and sought by hundreds, is dead.

Theodore Klein of Montmorency county, fatally wounded near Alpena under mysterious circumstances.

IRENE MCCANN FETED HOLIDAY CITY GUESTS

Miss Irene McCann entertained a small group of friends at the home of her parents on Bridge street last Friday evening, honoring Miss Lila Heise and Walter Hackett of Lansing, who were holiday guests of Miss Heise's parents. Included among the guests were the Misses Angie Scott, Leona Smith and Lila Heise, and Messrs. "Bill" Fessenden, "Bill" Supernaw, George Higman, Versal Seymour and Walter Hackett.

By the time we've solved today's problems we'll have a new set.

ANOTHER LEGION DANCE IS COMING

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 12, IS
DATE FOR A GOOD TIME

Post's Recreation Room Proving Its Worth to Members—Clothing and Shoes Still Needed

On Saturday evening, December 12th, at the American Legion Home, will occur another of the Legion's justly popular dances, with Brown's orchestra from Ironton functioning in its usual efficient manner. Bills will be out on this dance in a day or two. Post members should see to it that their friends and relatives attend this dance.

The post's recreation room is proving a popular gathering place for the Legionnaires of the district these winter evenings, as the fire is kept up continuously and the Legion Home is warm and comfortable both day and night. With the pool and ping pong tables and the radio and the box-hall alleys soon to be installed in the basement, there should be no dearth of amusements. The post has decided to set the first Tuesday in each month for a strictly business session, at which time all bills will be read and passed for payment. The second Tuesday will be a social night and the entertainment committee is charged with the duty of providing some form of entertainment which they will "spring" on the members at that meeting. One meeting night during the month will be reserved for a tri-post county meeting to be held alternately at Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City, with "chow" and a program of entertainment the principal features. Matters of mutual interest to the three posts will also be taken up at this meeting. The next county meeting is December 14th, at Boyne City.

Welfare Officer Clarence McGinnis would like to repeat here his request for clothing, shoes and other needed articles to be donated for the Legion's relief work. Much has been done, but much still remains to do. Everybody, surely, can help to some extent. The post also wishes here to acknowledge the very kind and acceptable cash donation of Mrs. A. A. Swinton for the relief work of the Legion.

A most attractive bulletin board, reproducing faithfully the lettering and style of the cover page of the American Legion Monthly—the work of the post artist, Vice Commander Bert Carey, will soon appear on Bridge street in a well-frequented location and "he who runs may read" what is going to happen and what has happened in Legion circles.

The Methodist Literary and Sewing Club will hold a Bazaar and Bake Sale December 11 and 12. — Adv. 4811.

FUNERAL OF YOUNG MOTHER HELD MONDAY

Death Friday of Mrs. Marguerite
Brown Shock to Family and Friends

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Powers for their daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Brown, whose untimely death last Friday afternoon at Saginaw was a severe shock to relatives and many Charlevoix friends.

Rev. W. H. Rauch, pastor of the Baptist church, officiated at the services and interment was at Brookside.

Marguerite Powers was born June 29, 1910, at Charlevoix. She lived here until after her marriage June 29, 1927, to Wilbur Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brown of Ironton. Her untimely death was the result of peritonitis following child birth.

Surviving besides her husband and parents are two children, Donald, age 4, the infant baby, Howard; also a brother, Gilbert Powers. A daughter, Gwendolyn, died when 18 days old.

MUST ACT SOON ON FISHING LAW

PLANS FOR NEXT TWO YEARS
MADE IN JANUARY

Petitions Must Be in Hands of the Conservation Commission by December 10, 1931

The following communication from the Michigan State Conservation commission is given in order to acquaint sportsmen with plans of the commission to make changes in fishing regulations for the next two years, at an early meeting, probably in January. The communication brought from the commission by Conservation Officer Henry Pike of this city:

Must Act Quickly
Changes in the fishing regulations on the streams and lakes of this state must be presented to the Lansing office, by the district supervisor, not later than December 10, 1931.

Therefore if you or the sportsman's club to which you belong have any regulation you or they want considered by the conservation commission it would be well for you to get in touch with your local conservation officer and talk your ideas over with him as he is the man who will make the recommendations for your particular territory, and his report will be greatly governed by your opinion unless your opinion conflicts with other regulations.

If you are interested in making suggestions please do so at once as all of your local wardens' proposals should be in the district supervisor's hands by December 5th.

Once these regulations are established they will remain unchanged for at least two years, so now will be your time to make that lake that don't suit you what you think it should be, "trout, bass or pike." The same for the stream, if it is open too far or not far enough, or whatever the particular fault is. Let's have your opinion not later than December 5th.

Also beaver trapping licenses are now on sale at your local conservation officer's office or at the district headquarters at Boyne City.

The most unusual attraction ever offered local basketball fans will be staged at the school gymnasium on Wednesday night, December 23rd, when the famous St. Louis, Mo., "All Star" girls' basketball club (world's professional champion girls' basketball club) clash with the powerful Polar Bears, local men's team.

Manager Gordon Todd of the local team feels very fortunate in being able to secure a team with such international reputation. During the past eight years the "All Stars" have played such teams as the Saginaw Independents, Saginaw; Lansing State Journalists, Toledo Red Men, Rochester Oldsmobiles of Rochester, N. Y., and the Fairbanks-Morse club of Beloit, Wis.

The feminine snipers, six in number, are all college graduates. They play basketball in winter and go to school in summer. They average 5 feet 11 inches in height and 170 pounds in weight. Every player takes her basketball seriously and really plays and trains to win. These players have the advantage over many men's teams in view of the fact that they have played with the team since it originated eight years ago. Every girl on the squad has been chosen "All-American" for her respective position at the national girls' tourney. Men's rules are played by the girls even to the extent of using only five players against the men's five players instead of the regular six girls per girls' rules.

Elizabeth Hamisak, forward, is one of the greatest feminine stars in the world. "Red," as she is better known to fans, plays the floor like a man and has a deadly eye for the basket. Alice Humbarger, center, of Ripley's "Believe it or not fame," is over 6 feet four inches in height. She shares honor with Miss Hamisak of being the two known girls in the world that can pick up a basketball upside down by gripping the top of the ball while it is laying on the floor, a feat few men can accomplish without considerable effort. Grace Pike is ranked as the best defensive player in girls' basketball, while her running mate, Miss Frances Tratar, does her share at guard. Virginia Osborne, forward and captain, is the most clever at handling the ball of any of the team. Delann Nelson, forward, furnishes the fans with plenty of eye-openers with her excellent shooting and her ability to cover the floor at forward like the best of men.

The "All Stars" are a very expensive team, having their own private transportation system, stopping at the best hotels and are always neat.

The Polar Bears will probably open their season the second or third week of December with a nearby team before taking the St. Louis girls' team, although no definite plans are now available. In booking the girls' team, Manager Todd feels that he is offering local fans one of the best attractions available.

OFFICIAL WEIGHT RECEIPTS REQUIRED

State Department Changes Former Commercial License Method

Under present regulations governing the issuance of 1932 licenses for trucks and trailers, owners are required to use only Department of State weight receipts in certifying to the weight of their vehicles, it was announced by F. V. Tyler, manager of the Department of State branch office at Charlevoix.

This change is expected to add about $500,000 to revenues of the state.

In Charlevoix, the scales of the following companies have been designated as official and they will weigh all trucks and furnish official department weight receipts: Charlevoix Cooperative Association, Ferry avenue; S. M. See & Sons, Bridge street; Argo Milling Co., River street.

When a truck owner has his vehicle weighed on official scales, the weighmaster and the owner will sign the receipt. This receipt will then be used at the branch office of the department in computing the weight tax for 1932.

C. H. S. SCHOOL NOTES

Junior Play Thursday, December 10
 "The Enemy," a play by one of our greatest modern playwrights, Channing Pollock, will be presented by the junior class, Thursday evening, December 10, at 8 o'clock in the high school gymnasium. It is hoped that the public will give a splendid support to this drama and thus encourage the young people to continue to offer plays of the highest standard.

The scene is laid in Vienna, in the flat of Prof. Arndt and his daughter Pauli, before the war. The plot carries us through the excitement and glamour of the flying flags and beating drums, through the breaking of life-long friendships, the sorrow of privation and want and uncertainty, finally to the real understanding of the true glory of tolerance, love, and peace.

The cast is as follows: Carl Behrend, playwright and idealist, Junior Supernaw; Pauli Arndt, prophet of tomorrow, Dorothy Staley; Baruska, the maid, Dorothy Partridge; Bruce Gordon, English student, John Winder; August Behrend, Austrian profiteer, Homer Struthers; Jan, Carl's friend and servant, Douglas Knudsen; Prof. Arndt, beloved philosopher, Wayne Belding; Mizzie Winckman, neighbor, Virginia Nickerson; Kurt, neighbor, Gerald Novotny; Fritz Winkelman, neighbor, Lloyd Arnold.

The price of admission is only 25c and 35c. Though the royalty is high and there will be some expense for staging, the object of the junior class is not only to make money, but also to give to the largest possible number of people the opportunity of seeing this drama which has been called by some "the greatest modern classic."

Other plays of distinctly different type, but we hope of the same standard of excellence, will follow. The Drama Club is making plans to present a piece by Sir James M. Barrie, England's most beloved playwright, a whimsical tale of the adventures of three old maids and one young maid of "Quality Street," and in the late spring the seniors will offer an up-to-the-minute American comedy yet to be selected. "To the Ladies," by Knufman and Connely, the authors of the never forgotten "Duley," or "Two Girls Wanted," by Gladys Under are being considered.

Twenty-Five Years Ago
 Twenty-five years ago the senior class started publishing a high school newspaper called the "High School Hustler." The first editor-in-chief was Frank Campbell.

The paper was published by the class so that they could obtain money to use for graduating purposes. The paper seemed to be a success, at least the few copies that we have obtained, contain some very interesting and valuable information. From these few copies we are going to portray a few incidents which occurred twenty-five years ago in Charlevoix high school and in the town.

The lawn tennis courts, now taken up by the new soccer field, were being constructed twenty-five years ago. Class tournaments were being carried on.

Miss Sophin Manson, still a teacher in our grade school was starting to teach the North Side Ward school.

"Sam" Rose was planning on setting up a candy store in the high school assembly.

Charles Jeffries, our present chief of police, ran a meat market.

Bert Beaudoin ran a "Candy Kitchen." It was the natural gathering place of all the students.

Twenty-five years ago a proposal was made for the erection of a Carnegie library. The high school students were very much enthused about it. The basement was to be used for a gym. Plans were later altered and a gym was begun in the basement of the high school.

EXTRA! Twenty-five years ago Charlevoix defeated Boyne City twice during the football season, the scores being 56-0 and 11-0, both in favor of Charlevoix.

Next week we will continue with this history.

DOUBLE SERVICE IS PLANNED FOR WINTER

Four Trips Each Way Daily at Straits Has Been Arranged

Motorists crossing the Straits of Mackinac this winter will be given double the ferry service they received last year, Grover C. Dillman, state highway commissioner, announced.

Boats of the Mackinaw Transportation company made only two trips each way a year ago, but will make four this winter, Dillman said. State ferries do not operate during the winter because they are not constructed to battle ice.

Car ferries will leave Mackinaw City at 7 a. m.; noon; 5 and 9:30 p. m. They will leave St. Ignace at 9 a. m., 2, 7, and 11 p. m.

CHAPTER X—Continued.

How low he must have fallen in her esteem, that she should burn his gift to her! At first it had seemed a little cruel of Joyce to do that. But, then he looked at the incident with relentless honesty, and he could not blame her. Once he and she had planned to marry. People had spoken of it; it had been generally accepted along the River. She had liked him, loved him. What must her feelings have been as she watched his relations with Elizabeth, and saw him engaged to another girl and coming no more to the Big Aloooska? She must have felt shame, a burning shame, at being jilted. Month after lovely month of that—it had been an outrage to her girlhood. Nothing she could do to him could be so heartless as what he had done to her.

Through the propeller disk he at last sighted the Indian camp, a cluster of brown leather tents beside a lake where the band was passing the summer near their fish weirs. Buzzard roared over the camp and banked to alight. Old Mugwa-Ethen, a gaunt and wrinkled old savage, stalked up and gravely bade them welcome.

After this flood season of heavy rains, Alan knew there were a few acres in the watery wilderness of the Thial-Azzah where a party of men could camp. He himself had only a hazy idea where those areas lay; but this old headman, Mugwa-Ethen, who followed the Caribou, had lived his life along the border of that great marsh and knew it better than any man alive, and could probably give him a pretty definite idea where to look.

Very wisely, Joyce had kept from letting the nomad bands know anything about the police defeat. The Shagalahsa maintained order in so huge a territory largely through their reputation of never failing, and the news of their stunning defeat would do incalculable harm. Joyce had not even told old Mugwa-Ethen.

After pledging the headman to silence, in guttural Tinnah Alan began sketching the story of the robbery and battle. As he told of the hand-to-hand fighting, the old headman noticed that the old chief suddenly became all interested.

Alan looked at him keenly. "Something's up," he thought. "I've stumbled onto something." He demanded: "When I wa-wa two three breaths ago you start like hit buck. Why?"

Drawing a crude map of the Thial-Azzah with his bony forefinger, the old headman aprang his astounding news. Ten suns ago, he said, Tukeok and another young buck had gone westward into the Land of Many Waters to locate rat colonies for autumn trapping. One evening they heard the boom-boom of fire-sticks far away southward. Slipping up, timid, cautious, they saw some strange men shooting waves for food. They saw a tent, a camp on an island.

For several minutes, fighting down a wild elation, Alan forced himself to crouch there, asking questions, fixing that map and that spot unforgettably in his mind.

At the signposts he retained Bill.

"Come on! Let's be getting into the air! An hour and a half from now we'll be saying it with a machine gun. When we flew up here we brought our luck along!"

From his height of three thousand feet, reading the country spread below him, Alan could follow the crude finger map without once being in doubt. That should be the great blue-water lake which Mugwa-Ethen had described. It should have islands in the center of it. On one of the islands near the north edge of the cluster the hand-to-hand combat, if they had not moved on.

"Swing north!" he shouted at Buzzard. "Those islands there to themselves."

The machine swerved and thundered closer. One by one Alan started to search the sea. On the first one, nothing. On the second, nothing. But on the third... He started suddenly as he caught that center one in clear focus. Below them on that center island, conspicuous to their sky patrol, stood a solitary dirty-white tent.

After a few moments Alan had presence of mind again. He leaned forward and shouted instruction: "Drop down to a thousand feet. Fly over that island again. Slow. Want to study it carefully before we start things."

Buzzard dropped down, swung around. As the plane sailed over a second time, Alan drew the island up to him studying the tent sharply, he saw a movement of the flap-front and distinguished a man's face, upturned, peering at them.

One bandit there at least! But the others?

A guess shot into his mind: those others had probably gone hunting for caribou over east at the fable.

As though that watcher there below realized what this ominous dwelling meant and had become panicky, a puff of white, a single puff, burst from the flap-front. Confident the man was alone and the others were gone, Alan decided to take this bandit alive. He needed information about the others, and information about that pack of furs to clear Dave MacMillan.

While Buzzard circled at a safe distance, he tore a page from a memo book and printed a message:

"If you shoot again, we'll splatter you and that island into the lake with our machine guns. Stand out in the clear. No weapons on you. Don't try any crooked move after we light."

He whipped the message around a monkey-wrench and handed it to Buzzard. From wartime practice of dropping "eggs" on ammunition dumps and second-trench flame-throwers and camouflaged batteries of Krupp 79's east of Verdun, with no aerial sights except two nails and a string along the fuselage, Buzzard was a good judge of speed, altitude and the right split-second to release. Whirling over the island, a few hundred yards up, he planted the missile within a dozen paces of the flap-front.

As they looked back they saw the man run out to it, read the message, hesitate a moment, and then raise his left arm, waving something white.

A pistol-shot off the island the plane lighted. Buzzard stayed in the machine. Alan and Bill got out the canvas canoe, slipped automatically into their pockets, took rifles prominently in hand and went ashore.

While Bill searched the bandit for a hidden revolver, Alan looked at him curiously. He was a strange character to find in this country. Slant-eyed, his skin olive, he looked as though he had oriental blood in his veins. The rag he had waved in token of surrender was a sling. His right arm dangled limp at his side.

Alan demanded, "Are you the fellow we hit in that fight?"

"Chink," Woolley nodded.

"Are those other men out hunting?" Alan asked. "Or where?"

Woolley batted his eyes slowly, as though taking thought. "Huntin', yes," he managed.

"Which way?"

"Not east."

"That probably means they went southwest," Alan remarked, and his short laugh was not pleasant. "You're natural and easy-like, but it won't get by with us. We've nallied too many Inna in our time. I want to know who this party of yours is, where they came from, how they got into this country, how they know their way about in it. I want to know how that pack of other pelts got into Trader MacMillan's storage shed. I want to know the man who killed Jimmy Montgomery there on the Midnight Sun. Now get busy."

He elicited the safety on his automatic and brought his elbow up against his side.

Chink Woolley trembled, his knees shook, he wilted. He guessed that this man must be the Baker fellow, the sorcerer terrible, whom Mivl Andre always mentioned in lowered voice. Those hypnotic gray eyes seemed to be boring through him. That heavy automatic was tilted to make his next

He the last. And if he turned king's evidence, he might escape the noose. It was a strange story that Alan and Bill, listened to, there on the island in the heart of Many Waters.

Eighteen months ago, on a whaler in Beaufort sea, the five whites, excluding the half-breed Andre whom they picked up later, had "ruu a buck" under Jensen's instigation, but were overpowered by the captain and rest of the crew. Flung ashore with the skipper's sulphurous good wishes at bleak Demarcation point on the Arctic coast, they made their way across the Romanzoffa to the new placer fields in the Kayukuk headwaters. They came too late to get worthwhile claims; and they discovered, too, that "hawking" in the perpetually-frozen subsoil was even harder work than whaling.

It was Jensen, brooding over their predicament, who conceived the idea that it was easier to find gold which already had been found than to thaw a hole thirty feet down in black sand and bedrock and then maybe get nothing. It was Jensen who allayed their fears and dangled the golden lure in front of their eyes till their mouths watered and they were ready for anything he planned.

Andre the half-breed was a find. He fitted into the party like a key into a lock. They were crassly ignorant of the country; they were tyros when it came to traveling, hiding, living in the bush. But Andre the "breed" was hush-wisa as a weasel and water-wisa as a muskrat mink, and he knew the whole north country from Icos We come to Point Barrow as he knew the palm of his hand.

It was Andre who had brought the party into this strange country, by back rivers and untraversed trails, avoiding all sight of men, so that they seemed to have dropped from the sky. It was Andre who suggested the place of attack on the Midnight Sun, and the Thial-Azzah as a place to hide in after the swoop and robbery. And it was "breed" Andre's sharp-speaking, Savage that drilled Jimmy Montgomery through the heart.

Alan Baker breathed a little harshly. He ordered, "Describe that 'breed'." And he added, "So there will be no mistake when I meet him."

Woolley described his met confederate. Alan nodded curtly. After a few moments' silence, he spoke again: "Now about Trader MacMillan. How did that pack of furs get in his shed?"

"Jensen put it there."

"Why?"

Woolley did not know all the details, but from hints Jensen had dropped he was able to piece the story together pretty well.

Several years ago at Thersell Island, that gathering place for whalers, Indians, traders, Eskimos and Arctic explorers, Jensen had run afoul of Dave MacMillan. He had come ashore from a whaler, hungry for drink and hungry for woman's company after eight months of following the herds. He had found the drink, and in a whisky haze had started to make rough love to fifteen-year-old Joyce MacMillan.

Dave MacMillan fell upon him. For years now Jensen had been nursing his hairy chin reminiscences where MacMillan's hard fist had caught him; and his ears still rang with the derisive jeers of those who saw him dog-whipped down across the awells and over the ahingle to the whaler.

He had never forgotten the MacMillan girl nor the incident of that snowy October day. The incident had smoldered in his vengeful soul; and when his party passed the trailing post, it had flared out. It was a neat stroke, putting that comparatively worthless hulk of furs in the shed of the man who had dog-whipped him. He had counted on the trader discovering them, wondering about them, innocently calling the attention of the police to them, and getting into hot water when he failed to explain how they got there.

The revelation of Dave MacMillan's complete innocence was no surprise to Alan but merely a proof that his and Joyce's instinctive belief had been correct. Now he could know that in buying out of service he had saved the reputation and possibly the very life of Joyce's father. Under Haskell's tyranny he could never have vindicated Dave. In his own way he had planned, and had fought through to this partial triumph.

Writing down the essential points of the confession, he forced Woolley to make his mark on the paper, with himself and Bill as witnesses. He made a second copy for Bill, in case something happened to Bill or him. Then he demanded of Woolley: "You say those other men went hunting. When are you expecting them back?"

Woolley did not know. He seemed strangely hesitant. Fidgeting uneasily, he would glance up at Alan and then away, as though he had something to tell but was afraid to tell it.

Alan saw his agitation. He demanded: "What're you stumbling over? Cooking up some lie?"

The man wetted his dry twitching lips. "You'll not kill me if I tell you the truth—where dey went? You may be can git back dero on de Aloooska in time to save de girl."

"On the Aloooska—in time to save the girl!"—Alan jerked as though a bullet had sung past his throat. His face went suddenly pale. "You mean Joyce MacMillan? What about her? Tell it, or by G—d I'll choke it out of you! Open up. What about her? What do you mean—in time to save her? I'll not kill you if you tell."

Woolley stammered: "Dey went down de Aloooska to git her. It's Jensen's idee. He's aimin' to take her along on de escape and keep her for himself. He's all hurrin' about dat girl."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

COUNTY NORMAL

Many of the normal teachers had even more than a big turkey dinner to be thankful for this year. The Thanksgiving vacation was an opportunity which was welcomed by the class as a time to go home. From the happy atmosphere prevalent in the room, we judge that everyone had an enjoyable time.

The student teachers will soon launch out upon their most cherished desire—their practice teaching. The teaching begins Monday, although several members of the class have already had some experience in dealing with the children. By graduation every student will have taught each subject and will have dealt with each of the three grades in the training room. This affords an opportunity for quite a bit of experience in handling the various problems coming up with each class.

Thursday and Friday of this week the final tests for the first term will be held. The end of this week closes the first third of our year's normal work.

Training Room

The Thanksgiving program which the training room children gave before the normal class was a great success. Four delightful songs were sung under the direction of Miss Biggie and Miss Gleason, with all three grades taking part. Mr. Coulter read an interesting Thanksgiving story.

"The First Thanksgiving Day," a play centering around the early Pilgrim life was well given by children from the fourth and sixth grades. The cast was as follows: Father, Billie Miles; Mother, Patricia Clarke; Betty, Maxine Fralick; Edward, Bobby McGhan; Richard, Jack White; Aunt Ruth, Mary Jane Cook; Miles Standish, Ernest Nowland; Priscilla Mullens, Patty Myers; John Alden, Gene Mitchell; Mary, Edna Mae Hull; Robert, Bobby Westcott; Squanto, Marie Hull; Indians, Richard Edwards, Edward McSaubey, Keith Carey, Ben Palmer, Neil Fike.

The gun which Miles Standish used belonged to Ben Palmer's great-grandfather. This fact made the bearer of it even more proud of his military acquisition.

FIRE DESTROYS FARM HOME MONDAY EVENING

Ben Mason Family Left Practically Destitute by Misfortune

A family of nine was left practically destitute when fire completely destroyed the Ben Mason farm home on U. S. 31 eight miles south of this city late Monday night.

According to reports, the parents and seven children were barely able to escape with their lives. Only a small amount of household goods could be removed.

Poor Commissioner L. E. Benton has made an appeal to local citizens for donations of clothing, used household furniture, or any article which will help this unfortunate family. Those who are able to do so are requested to communicate with Mr. Benton, who will send the county truck for the donations.

PETOSKEY COUPLE OB- SERVE GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnnecheck Feted At-Affair Saturday

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnnecheck of Charlevoix avenue, Petoskey, was celebrated Saturday with a gathering of their children, grandchildren and friends of the couple.

The families joining in the happy home-coming were served a delicious dinner. Table and room decorations were carried out with flowers and candles in shades of yellow and gold. Covers were laid for twenty-eight.

Those coming to pay tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Johnnecheck included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dell, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hunt, Mr. Albert Johnnecheck and August Johnnecheck of North Bay; Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Sterzik of Resort township, and their families, and Miss Ina Johnnecheck, who resides with her parents, and Mr. and Mrs. Buchaust, friends of the couple. Joseph Johnnecheck of Traverse City, and Paul Johnnecheck, Jr., of Charlevoix, were the only members of the family not present.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnnecheck moved to Petoskey about a year ago from their home at North Bay, where they lived since moving to this country, the former coming from Germany 52 years ago.

Following their marriage November 21, 1881, they established a home at North Bay.

There were ten children born to them, eight of which are living. Charles, died in infancy, and Henry, a World War veteran, died October 6, 1918, for which he was awarded a decoration for bravery.

TWELVE YEAR BAN ON BEAVER IS REMOVED

Each Licensed Trapper Allowed Five During Open Season

The first beaver trapping licenses to be issued by the state in 12 years are now on sale. The open beaver season will be from December 5-20 inclusive.

Each trapper obtaining a license will be permitted to take five live beaver or five beaver pelts. Not later than December 25 each licensee must take the beaver or the pelts he has taken during the season to the place where he secured his license. The officer there will place a seal on the pelts. A fee of $1.50 will be charged for each animal and each pelt sealed. The cost of the beaver license will be $2.00.

Charlevoix is one of the nineteen counties that will be open to beaver trapping.

NO GUN PERMIT NEED- ED IN OPEN SEASON

Shotgun or Rifle May Be Carried By License Holders

Hunters equipped with hunting licenses do not need a "gun permit" during the open hunting season. However, such a permit is needed to carry firearms in the game areas of the state during the closed seasons.

This is the way the office of the attorney general interprets the 1931 amendments to the hunting laws, in an opinion given to the department of conservation. The attorney general's office classes the open hunting season as being from October 1 to January 31 and the closed season from January 31 to October 1.

The attendance at the preaching services continues large and is much appreciated by the pastor.

Wednesday evening at 7:45 first Wednesday of month only.

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced," was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, November 29.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the bible: "Repent; or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will fight against them with the sword of my mouth" (Rev. 2:16).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christian Scientists must live under the constant pressure of the apostolic command to come out from the material world and be separate. They must renounce aggression, oppression and the pride of power. Christianity with the crown of Love upon her brow, must be their queen of life." (p. 451).

The American Legion Auxiliary will hold the second of a series of five bridge and polo parties at the Legion home on Thursday evening, December 3.—Adv. 4811.

AT THE MOVIES

"Yellow Ticket" Promises Pathos, Thrills, Romance

Romance, intrigue, charm and pathos are elements that make "The Yellow Ticket," Raoul Walsh's production for Fox Films, opening its much heralded engagement next Saturday, a picture of unusual entertaining quality.

Elissa Landi, the beautiful and talented daughter of an Austrian countess, novelist and emotional actress, portrays the leading feminine role, with Lionel Barrymore and Laurence Oliver, handsome newcomer from the London stage, in the principal male parts. Other notables of the screen in the cast are Walter Byron, Rita La Roy and Sarah Padden.

Failing to register at the police station when she reaches St. Petersburg, she is thrown into prison. When she is released she finds herself an out-cast, hounded and persecuted by the police.

Eventually she falls in love with a handsome English newspaper correspondent and becomes his secretary. She becomes so enmeshed in a web spun for her by its insidious head that she is, at last, forced to shoot him.

How she escapes the horrible fate that awaits her, offers one of the most startling denouements ever presented on the screen.

As the persecuted girl, Miss Landi, is said to rise to new emotional heights and as the cruel and lustful head of the secret police, Barrymore, it is claimed, excels anything he has previously achieved on the screen.

Every rose has its thorns; each new fire plug reduces the available parking space.

LEGION BIDS FOR STATE CONVENTION

EXTEND INVITATION AT RECENT BAY CITY MEETING

Social Program Tuesday Night Was Very Successful—Ask Further Aid in Welfare Campaign

The first social meeting night of Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, American Legion, proved to be a great success. These social good times are to alternate with the business meetings during the month and will probably prove very acceptable, as "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" and the Legionnaires have certainly worked hard since their reorganization in the spring.

Tuesday night, business was dispersed with, outside of the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, and then the members were privileged to enjoy the very excellent singing of the high school male quartet with Miss Marjorie Carey as accompanist. Ralph Newman also entertained the crowd with his harmonica playing and a comical monologue adapted from "The Arkansas Traveler," after which coffee and fried cakes were served.

Next Monday night occurs the tri-annual county meeting at Boyne City, which will be of a semi-social nature. It is desired to have as large an attendance as possible. The bugle and drum corps practice date will be shifted to accommodate this engagement on that evening.

The three delegates to the mid-winter post officers' state conference of the American Legion at Bay City returned Sunday afternoon and Commander Allard, as spokesman, reported that Tuesday night's meeting at the invitation extended to the conference, composed of commanders, adjutants and welfare officers from all parts of the state, to hold the 1933 state convention of the American Legion at Charlevoix in September met with general favor. The prospects look excellent for Charlevoix getting the convention, as the other posts of the lower eleven district are willing to let it come here and it will be due in this part of the state in 1933, as the practice is to hold the convention twice in succession in the south and twice in the north. It was held at Pontiac this year and will convene at Kalamazoo in 1932.

The convention is a three day affair and will bring upwards of 6,000 Legionnaires and Auxiliary members to Charlevoix. The state department of the Legion allows the local post a certain sum of money to defray the expense of the convention.

Officers and members of Leslie T. Shapton Post are anxious that the post shall take an active part in the Kalamazoo convention, next Labor day week. It is hoped by that time to have the bugle and drum corps, the members of which are practicing assiduously this winter, properly uniformed and that Charlevoix can have a float in the parade, so as to make a good showing. The place of the 1933 convention will be decided at Kalamazoo.

Farmers of the district who have wood, or wood lots or swamp land where wood may be cut, and who care to donate this wood to the Legion for the relief of the fuelless unemployed of the community, are asked to communicate with Commander Lee Allard, Adjutant F. V. Tyler or Welfare Officer Clarence Meggison. The Legionnaires will agree to cut the wood themselves, on shares or in any other way the owner may elect. One plan proposed is to transport the men whose families need the fuel to the spot and let them do their own cutting. An endeavor will be made to arrange with the city or county for the use of a truck to haul in the wood.

Saturday evening next is the date of a dancing party at the Legion home, open to the public. A good time is assured.

PIONEER ST. JAMES RESIDENT SUCCUMBED

Word was received Tuesday of the death at 10 o'clock that morning of Francis Donlevy, aged and pioneer resident of Beaver Island, who died at his home at St. James following a week's illness. Mr. Donlevy, who was the father of Mrs. Earl Miller, and grandfather of Mrs. Arthur Pischner of this city, had resided on Beaver Island for many years.

PETOSKEY WOMEN CONDUCT PROGRAM

Gave Interesting Talks at Group Missionary Meeting Friday

With the exception of the worship service conducted by Mrs. W. W. Hurd, Petoskey women furnished the entire program at the group convention for Home Missions held last Friday at the First Methodist church.

Mrs. W. N. VaaAvery, district corresponding secretary, gave a fine report of the national convention recently held at Minneapolis, while Mrs. Merrill covered the program of the conference convention in Cadillac. She gave much material in detail.

Mrs. M. Wynans gave a practical talk on materials and supplies available for the work of the society as provided by the national officers and boards. Miss Lydia Bowman reported all of the national convention program that dealt with junior work, while Mrs. Bachelor spoke of the fine worship services at the Cadillac convention.

The program was preceded by a fine luncheon, served by the Aid Society of the church.

BELOVED WOMAN TAKEN BY DEATH

EXTENDED ILLNESS FATAL TO MRS. WM. F. JOHNSON

Funeral Services Will Be Held at 1:30 Thursday Afternoon From Farm Home Near Ironton

Charlevoix and the Ironton district has lost one of its beloved women in the death of Mrs. William F. Johnson, which occurred late Monday evening at the farm home on the Charlevoix-East Jordan road.

While her illness had been continuous since a year ago last July, Mrs. Johnson's condition had not been serious until a few days preceding her death, and the sudden end was a shock to her family and friends.

Rena Riftenbergh was born October 12, 1874, in Denmark township, Tuscola county, Michigan. She was married January 1, 1897, to William F. Johnson, and after a residence of five years at Fairgrove, the couple came to Charlevoix, making their home here until 12 years ago when they moved to their farm home near Ironton.

Surviving besides the husband are two sons, Elwyn W. and W. Foster, also eight grandsons. A daughter, Nita, died eight years ago.

Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the residence, Rev. G. R. Parker officiating. Interment at Brookside cemetery.

Mrs. Johnson was a member of the Pythian Sisters and Ironton Congregational church. Her cheery disposition, which won her a large following of close friends, remained with her to the end. She will be missed by all who knew her.

GOVERNMENT LIGHT-SHIPS WINTER HERE

Manitou Shoals and Grey's Reef Arrived Saturday Afternoon

Manitou Shoals and Grey's Reef lightships are both in winter quarters near the government supply depot in Round lake. They arrived here Saturday.

Grey's Reef was delayed on its arrival here because of time spent in picking up the crew at Skillingalee lighthouse. Due to the exceedingly low water level in Lake Michigan, the light tenders at Skillingalee were unable to launch their boat. They were taken ashore by Grey's Reef lightship, which stopped at the light-house in answer to distress signals the men had put out.

The condition which made their removal necessary by another boat is a very unusual one.

WORLD WIDE GUILD GIRLS MET MONDAY

The World Wide Guild girls of the Baptist church held their monthly meeting Monday afternoon with Mrs. W. H. Knuch. One new member was received at this meeting. Christmas scrap books were made. Any girls over twelve years of age desiring membership are asked to plan to be present at the next meeting January 4th, at the home of Miss Marion Tyler. Miss Dorothy Beardsley will be in charge of the program.

OPEN BASKETBALL SCHEDULE FRIDAY

KIPMEN GO TO TRAVERSE CITY FOR INITIAL TILT

Start Defense of 1930-31 District and Regional Titles With Three Veterans in Line-Up

Charlevoix high school will open defense of its 1930-31 district and regional basketball titles Friday evening. The opening contest of an eleven-game schedule will be away from home, Coach Kipke taking his cagers to meet the class B Traverse City team.

Charlevoix fans will watch the outcome of this initial tilt with interest. From its outcome they will be able to judge the strength of this year's squad, which represents only a remnant of the team which swept aside all schools in the region a year ago.

No small amount of optimism resulted this week from the fact that Joe Smith emerged from the ineligible list and will be in the starting line-up Friday evening along with Norman Anee and Vic McSauby, two veterans of the 1930-31 championship campaign. Joe saw action in a great many games last year and will be a valuable addition to the squad. In fact, Coach Kipke has built his squad around these three players. Two of last year's reserves, Emerlind Chew and Howard Davenport, complete the quintet which will probably start against Traverse City Friday.

Coach Kipke will take ten men to Traverse City for the opening tilt.

His starting line-up will likely see Chew and McSauby, forwards; Anee, center; Smith and Davenport, guards. Of the reserves are Harold Potter and Winfield Kirby, forwards; Dan Genett, center; Joe Arvilla and Lyle Anee, guards. Homer Struthers, who is slated for a reserve team berth, will be unable to make the trip Friday evening because of an injury to his hand which has kept him from practice during the past week.

A glance from the side lines during practice would lead one to believe Kipke has a formidable team again this year. The boys have plenty of speed and are lanky. A couple of games should iron out weak spots and tell the story.

COUNTIES FAIL IN LOWERING OF TAXES

CUT IN ROAD APPROPRIATIONS GOES TO OTHER PURPOSES

Tax Delinquencies Force Raises in Some Counties and Poor Fund Needs Generally Higher

A 40 per cent reduction in their highway programs for 1932 has been the answer of Michigan counties to the need of lower taxes in a time of economic depression.

Falling elsewhere to cut down materially in county expenses, the boards of supervisors of 70 out of 83 counties in the state slashed their next year's appropriations for highway purposes to $6,923,599, compared with $10,782,167 for 1931, a survey by the United Press reveals.

Benefit of the full reduction of $3,858,578, however, will not be extended to the taxpayers. While the supervisors were able to cut high programs they were forced to add to other county expenditures—chiefly to their poor funds—and the net result will be a reduction in taxes for county purposes of only $2,838,928 in the 70 counties.

Almost exactly, their entire amount will be saved in the Detroit metropolitan area where the combined action of the supervisors of Wayne, Oakland and Genesee counties resulted in a tax slash of $2,891,737 for county purposes. Wayne contributed $2,113,566 of this cut; Genesee $642,796 and Oakland $135,375.

Elsewhere in the state the average was almost identical to the tax required a year ago. Forty of the 70 counties reporting have made reductions, while 29 have added to their tax burdens, but the total for the two years outside the Detroit area remains the same.

Outside the metropolitan area the extremes were represented in the counties of Kent and Gogebic. Kent supervisors reduced their tax load by $314,867, while in the upper peninsula county the boost was from $455,106 to $825,000—a rise of $358,894.

The Gogebic tax advance, incidentally, is the highest of any county reporting, even exceeding the advance of $312,026 voted by the Macomb board.

The major reason why the supervisors were able to cut only about $3,000,000 from their tax burden despite a reduction of nearly $4,000,000 in highway programs is that they will spend $1,300,000 more for the relief of the poor next year than they did in 1931.

County poor funds for 1931 were fixed at $4,516,898 while the boards appropriated $5,909,935 for 1932. In most counties all other appropriations were drastically reduced. Salaries of county officials were cut in many instances. To offset this, however, tax delinquencies of the last few years added materially to this year's burden.

Burgess Group Meets Friday

The Burgess "Home Management" club will meet Friday, December 11, at the home of Mrs. Otto Kane. The subject, "Rug Making," will be continued and will be represented by the local leaders, Mrs. Fred Willis and Mrs. George Burns.

The Methodist Literary and Sewing Club will hold a Bake Sale, at the Charlevoix Hardware Co. store, Saturday, December 12.—Adv. 4911.

SCHOOL BAND WILL GIVE MUSIC TREAT

Concert Announced for Evening of Thursday, December 17th

What has promise of being a very delightful pre-Christmas entertainment feature is a program being planned for a public concert by the Charlevoix school band.

Under the leadership of Albert Rider, director, the band will present a program of melody, harmony and rhythm at the school gymnasium the evening of Thursday, December 17. No admission charge will be made.

Since the opening of school, the Charlevoix school band has made rapid strides of progress in its efforts. Charlevoix citizens had opportunities several times during the fall to hear the band at football games, to which the organization marched in formation, not only to and from the field, but also during intermissions at the game.

Charlevoix has just reason to be proud of its school band, and will be looking forward with anticipation to its concert program. A full program of numbers will be announced as soon as released.

NEW CHEVROLETS ARE ON DISPLAY

FIRST 1932 MODEL SHOWN AT CHARLEVOIX AUTO SALES

Most Extensive Change Since Inauguration of "Six" Embodied in General Motors Offering

Chevrolet's new car for 1932 is now on display at the showrooms of the Charlevoix Auto Sales on Antrim street. Only the tudor model is now on display, but other models, including the new sedan will be shown soon.

Embodying silent synchro-mesh transmission in combination with selective free-wheeling, a twenty per cent increase in power, top speed of 65 to 70 miles an hour, streamlined bodies and a wealth of other new features, the new car remains in the price range of the current series, the lowest at which a Chevrolet has ever sold.

The car boasts more extensive changes than any annual Chevrolet model since the change-over to a six in 1928. Yet changes are mostly refinements over the basic design of the 1931 car which, from a standpoint of public acceptance, was the most successful in the history of the company.

Pretentiously every proven automotive feature of recent years is incorporated in the new 1932 Chevrolet, as well as a new "stabilized" front end construction embodied for the first time on any car. Outstanding improvements in the '32 line over last year's models are down-draft carburetion, counter balanced crankshaft, smaller wheels and larger tires, radically changed front end appearance, "finger touch" front seat adjustment, cowl ventilator on all models, hood doors instead of louvers, improved clutch and an additional cross member in the frame.

Twelve standard body styles are in the line this year—three open and nine closed Fisher bodies—all in new Duco color combinations and all with smart new features. In addition, eight models also are available with deluxe equipment, making possible individuality of ownership and providing selection from twenty different types.

WINDER ELECTED COMMERCE HEAD

CHOSEN AT ANNUAL MEETING LAST THURSDAY EVENING

Other 1930-31 Officers Also Retained By Unanimous Vote—Many Problems Were Discussed

Dr. C. J. Winder was unanimously elected to the presidency of the Charlevoix Association of Commerce for a third consecutive term at the annual meeting of the organization held last Thursday evening at the K. of P. hall.

Other 1930-31 officers were also re-elected unanimously as follows: Vice-presidents, Martin Block, Archie Livingston, J. M. Foster; secretary-treasurer, George Beeman.

Call to business order was made by President Winder following a fine banquet dinner served by the Pythian Sisters, who were voted an expression of appreciation.

Reports of F. V. Tyler, corresponding secretary, and that of the secretary-treasurer, George Beeman, were read and approved, and reports of the past year's activities were given by chairmen of the various committees, including advertising, golf, tennis, winter sports, aviation, etc.

Perhaps one of the most important problems under discussion, and one which will be given action at once, was the matter of raising finances to retain the present corresponding secretary. For the past two years, this office has been combined with that of the automobile license sales bureau, which the Department of State maintained on a salary basis. Within a short time all branch managers go on a commission basis. Sales of the Charlevoix branch are not sufficient to pay the manager a living wage, thus it is necessary to seek other financial sources. A committee of the Association of Commerce has been appointed to work with the city council on the matter, and, inasmuch as the opinion was unanimously in favor of retaining the corresponding secretary, the problem will probably be worked out satisfactorily within a short time.

Following discussion, the matter of future booklets and city advertising was left to the advertising committees of the commerce body and the city council.

After many members had expressed their views favoring the early construction of a municipal bathing pavilion on Lake Michigan, it was voted that a committee be appointed to enter negotiations with the city council to further the project. The general consensus of opinion would indicate that many viewed a municipal bathing pavilion as one of the city's most needed public improvements.

Matters pertaining to retention of an aviation field, future winter sports plans, etc., were discussed at length. Altogether, the meeting was snappy, with a satisfactory spirit of progressiveness on all matters of civic betterment.

Stop Night Coughing

Night coughing is almost always caused by an irritated, inflamed throat; so is almost all coughing. Ordinary cough syrups do not reach these conditions, but Thoxine, a prescription exclusively for throat troubles, does. It relieves the irritation and the cough stops within 15 minutes. And Thoxine goes further too. It eliminates the internal cause which many times develops into serious illness.

A swallow of Thoxine before retiring, absolutely prevents night coughing and insures a good night's sleep. It gives the same speedy relief for sore throat too. It contains no chloroform or other harmful drugs and children like it. Relief is guaranteed within 15 minutes or money back—35c, 60c, and $1.00 bottles. Rev. J. C. Kendall went to Norwood last week Tuesday and asked seventeen different men to assist at a wood bee for the church, on the William Mayne farm. About ten men responded and the remainder will probably draw the wood. About ten cords were cut in an hour by Rollo Baumbach with his buzz rig. At supper time the hungry men, with other invited guests, 70 in all, gathered at the town hall where a wonderful repast had been prepared in a day's notice. Mr. Brock, with his Barnard-Norwood orchestra, furnished some splendid music for the occasion, and Rev. Kendall gave an excellent talk on church work.

And then there was the girl so dumb she thought Free Wheeling was offered by a bicycle agency.

His stony voice trailed off. He shrank back in quivering dread from the expression that had come into Baker's eyes.

For a little while, a few moments only, Alan stared unseeing out across the waters of the great blue lake. To wait here, until the bandits came back? Not that; they'd be three days and nights on the return trip. . . . Joyce would be helpless all that time, in the power of the man who was "all burns" about dat girl. They had left only thirty-odd hours ago. He stood a chance of beating them to the trading post.

"Whirling on I'll be ordered."

"You stay here. You attend to this end of it. Buzzard and I will attend to the other. We'll go after them in the plane. There's a chance we can get to the trading post before they do. You'll have a rifle extra. They're intending to come back here after the loot. If anything happens to Buzzard and me, you'll be left, you'll have a chance at them. It'll be all up to you."

"I'll Not Kill You If You Tell."

He turned on his heel and ran down to the canoe and skied out to the waiting plane.

"Get back to the Aloska, Buzzard! To Joyce's home!" He pleaded hoarsely. "For God's sake make it straight and fast!"

No one appeared at the doorway of the trading store. No one, with hair shimmering in the sun, came running down the path to greet them.

Their shouts at the landing brought no answer from a girl's lips or from old Pence. In some measure prepared, Alan called Joyce's name as he strode into the trading hall. His called but once; he looked but once into her room.

Buzzard came running to him with a piece of paper in his hands. His face was lit with elation.

"Alan! Alan! Luckiest thing in our whole d-d lives! Look here."

read this. Joyce and old Pence had left! Weren't here when that pack came! Went after carbons! Almost too good to be true!"

Alan grasped the note and read. It was in Joyce's fine swift handwriting. No doubt about that. It stated that she and old Pence had gone to Black Timber lake thirty miles north to get carbons and would be back in two days, in case a patrol happened past.

Alan studied the note for half a minute. His face did not relax.

"Yes, too good to be true," he commented slowly. "Don't you see?—this note is addressed to Constable Larry Yonag. Why did Joyce do that? She knows Larry is not patrolling, knows he is at Endurance all shot up; and she knows we know it. Don't you see what she tried to do? It was her only way of telling us that something was wrong. She had to write this note as they debated it, but she tricked them."

"It's so, it's so," Buzzard agreed. "She tricked them under their very eyes, and counted on us to understand."

From room to room—Joyce's room, her father's, the kitchen, the trading hall, the ground outside—Alan went carefully, nothing signs, recalling the story of what had happened.

Nothing about the post was disturbed. There were no signs of a struggle or fight. Joyce's light rifle still hung on a peg in her room. Its barrel inside was clean and shiny; the weapon had not been fired. Joyce must have been surprised and overpowered without a chance to fight back.

At the clearing edge Alan found a trampled spot in a thicket where five men had lain and watched. Kneeling down, examining the broken twigs, the wilted leaves, the crushed nettles, he read that all this had happened three hours ago and that the criminals were thirty or forty miles up the spruce-barked Aloska, with Joyce their prisoner.

About the whole post there was only one telltale sign of something dark and sinister. In their hurry to get away, the bandits had overlooked that sign. Beside a stump in the sunlit clearing, Alan picked up old Pence's story-stick. Once or twice he had wondered what they had done with that old white-haired wail. They would not burden themselves with him, nor would they turn him free, to report and bring the police hot on their trail. How had they dealt with old Pence?

As he picked up the stick, he saw a brownish splash already turning dark, and a few hoary white hairs clinging to the wood. And this story-stick which old Pence had been whittling at, curving clumsy his relief scenes from his own life—scenes of mining camps, of the fur-paths and lonely gold trails, of dog teams and packhorses, of broad-shouldered men bent under heavy portage loads and of women with a crude beauty of face and figure—this story-stick of his life, from its rounded handle to its tapering end, was completed now.

CHAPTER XI

How to Damn an Enemy

A Takanah brought word to Endurance of a strange happening at En traverse lake. He had been fishing there at an inlet for barabites, he said—half-asleep that morning, with the fish line tied around his leg toe. A thundering sound in the sky had roused him; and looking up, he had beheld a fearful thing come out of the southern horizon and roar out over the lake.

The sight of it, said John Afraid-of-his-Squaw, had nearly tumbled him from his boat. It had lit down on the water, he said, near Goose point. And behold, a few minutes later it rose and started across the lake for the south shore. He had watched it no longer, but scurried to the bank and crawled in among some rocks; for the dreadful thing might have been hungry and questing for food.

Frank Pedneult listened very thoughtfully to the Indian's story, and then began drawing some conclusions of his own. To him this Indian's story monster was a possible key to many puzzles. To the best of his recollection he had never yet seen Anna Baker throw down a job merely because it was tough. And he knew that Baker had been heart and soul determined to wipe out that first stinging defeat and save Joyce MacMillan's life. Bill had insisted that Alan had gone after those bandits; without violating his oath of secrecy, he had dropped a few broad hints to that effect.

Pedneult drew a conclusion: "Alan went out and got himself a flying machine to hunt them men out of the Thel-Azzah or make that Incan trip. He and Bill arranged to meet somewhere. He picked Bill up and now they're over there together on the roughest trick in a coon's age!"

As he stood in the barracks door and gazed westward across the Mackenzie to the distant hills, he felt all deserted by his comrades. "And they left me out in the cold. Didn't tell me one d-d thing about it. To hell with 'em both! But Lord! I wish—on a trick like that—oh Lord, I wish . . ."

Not absolutely sure of his conclusions, he started out along the grassy terrace toward Mrs. Drummond's flower garden where Elizabeth Spaulding was reading. He was pondering, in vague outline, a trick of his own. It was a serious matter, and he wanted to be certain of his guess before he cut loose with a scheme like that. Elizabeth no doubt knew all about Alan's plans, since she was waiting here for him to return and marry her.

Elizabeth did know the story. Haskell had let her know. Not daring to go to her himself, he had employed Whipple to casually tell her that Baker had stolen valuable government property at Edmonton, had broken several flying regulations, and was certain of arrest and imprisonment the hour he showed up in civilization. No longer a policeman, and having no authorization of any sort, Baker might even be charged with second-degree murder if he killed any of those bandits.

The news affected Elizabeth very little. Superintendent Williamson and Colonel Stone were his good friends of Alan's and both had power in high places. If his venture should be successful, they no doubt could get him clear. There is a lot of virtue, she reflected, in success.

When Pedneult came across at 1 began asking roundabout questions concerning Alan and his venture. Elizabeth told him what she knew. She knew that Pedneult would repeat her words to Alan, if he got the chance; and Alan would thus hear from another person of her steadfast loyalty to him.

Very thoughtful, when he found out his guess had been correct, Pedneult walked back across the terrace to the mission hospital where Larry Yonag was propped up in a chair beside a window. For twenty minutes, leaning over the sill, Pedneult conferred with Larry in low tones.

From there, he went over to Haskell's cabin.

Haskell was shaving. He turned around and snipped: "Well, what is it?"

"Sir, a man called Adolphe brought word of trouble down river in an Indian camp. The Smokies, several families of 'em, have got hold of some 'permits' and they're quarrelling, fighting. I could handle it myself, I've straightened out messes like that. I could be there and back in the launch by mid-afternoon, with your permission."

"You can't go. I need the launch myself in a little while."

Pedneult cleared his throat nervously. "Sir, I know it's not my place to say a thing like this, but—just a mere suggestion, sir—Superintendent Williamson is coming here on the next down-boat, probably tomorrow evening; and he's always very vexed about Indians killing each other in drunken brawls. He's always pleased when we put a camp like that, sir."

It was a consummate stroke, his reference to Williamson. Larry Yonag had prompted him to that.

Haskell took thought. If he sent a man and smoothed out this Indian trouble, it would look very well in a report. It would be a positive action, an achievement. He said: "All right. Go down and reduce them to order. But be back here in three hours. I want that man."

Pedneult was already on his way up to barracks for rifle, belt-gun and keys from Whipple. Down at the wharf, he hurriedly tanked up on gas and put in a big drum extra. Jumping in, slipping into the wheel seat, he stuck a pipe between his teeth, jammed his hat low over his eyes, yanked the starter chain and swung out upon the broad river.

A little puzzled by these preparations and all this haste, Haskell stepped outside his cabin. As he stood there, watching Pedneult's demoline driving, watching the scarlet-and-gold launch, guided by its own spray down the Mackenzie, he heard a feeble shout up the terrace behind him; and he turned and looked at the hospital.

At that moment Larry Yonag, leaning forward in his padded chair, was shaking a fist out the window and emitting a weak—

"Yee-haw! Three whoops for Ted!"

It was Haskell's intention, as soon as Pedneult came back with the launch, to take Whipple and make a trip up the Big Aloska. Baker would probably use the MacMillan trading post as a maneuvering base against the bandits. By muffling the motor over the last few miles the launch could slip up quietly. They would not be expecting him to strike a second blow; they likely would be up at the trading store; and at best it would take them ten full minutes to rise out of the narrow cramped river.

But as he sat there in his cabin, planning this blow, Haskell doubted if he was to succeed. A kind of fatalism had laid hold of him. In his feud with Baker he had been successful in the main, but what did all his triumph mean, when he had lost Elizabeth Spaulding? His victory had been a barren one. He saw that she was going to marry Alan Baker. In these last weeks the prophetic knowledge of that marriage had been a waking nightmare. Day by day it was marching closer and he was powerless to halt it.

When four hours passed and Pedneult failed to return with the launch, Haskell began to get suspicious. Five hours, six—and Pedneult still absent. Haskell finally went across to the hospital and demanded of Larry Yonag:

BUSINESS ON UPGRADE

Evidence that the American business state of mind has improved a good deal in the last month is offered by the American Federation of Labor.

The Federation's monthly review of conditions met reinforcement for its conclusions in a $36,000,000 favorable trade balance for the United States in October and assertions by legislators returning to the Capital that business is on the upward grade.

Among the optimistic developments noted in the report was that "the upturn in prices is important, for a continued general price rise is the signal for expanding activity." The all-commodity price line was described as climbing by November 13 to 2.1 per cent above the June low point.

Placing the number of unemployed at 6,200,000, the survey said the mafor problem was to adjust work hours to the actual work time needed in industry.

While some thinkers do not expect a sudden transformation to prosperity, they do hold honest convictions that the depression at last has reached its lowest ebb and the business cycle is turning for the better. In every quarter we hear remarks indicating that the psychology of business men is changing to hopefulness. There is a strong current of belief that better times are at hand. When people look up and ahead, as they now are, we have reason to at least look for work and make plans for the new year with restored confidence.

LOUIS SHARROW ACCIDENTLY ELECTROCUTED

Killed Instantly at Home on South City Limits This Afternoon

Louis Sharrow, 52, for the past 15 years a rural mail carrier on R. F. D. No. 3 out of this city, was accidentally electrocuted in the yard of his home on the south city limits at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Sharrow was killed instantly when he took hold of a flag pole, guy wire which had crossed a 4,000 volt power line serving the Norwood road district. His son, John, was badly shocked when he snatched the wire from his father's hands, and Gordon Raby, who was assisting, also received the shock as he came in contact with the younger Sharrow in the rescue attempt.

Besides his wife, Mr. Sharrow is survived by two sons, John and Louis, a daughter, Lydia, his mother and two brothers.

SET FARMERS WEEK DATES AT COLLEGE

Outline Program for Large Sessions at East Lansing February 1 to 5

Selection of the dates February 1 to 5 for one of the largest meetings of farmers in the United States, and a general plan for the daily programs has been announced by the Farmers Week committee at Michigan State college.

The activities this year will be continued throughout the five days and full programs will be held on Friday, which in previous years has been "get away day." Morning and early afternoon sessions will be devoted to department meetings, and general programs and features will occupy the other hours.

Nearly all of the agricultural clans in Michigan schedule their annual meetings to be held at East Lansing during the week. This year will be no exception, and crops, soils, fruit, livestock, economic and social groups will gather to discuss their special problems.

Last year's experience with crowds which were too large to find places in Demonstration hall has led to the scheduling of two similar entertainment programs to be held on succeeding nights. These features are planned for Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

The automobile drivers of Michigan are urged to keep to the right, but all many of them think about is keeping ahead.

REBEKAHS PLANNING NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT

Sponsor Program at I. O. O. F. Hall On Tuesday Evening, Dec. 15th

A very unique and interesting "repression" entertainment, with program, is to be a special attraction at the I. O. O. F. hall on Tuesday evening, December 15th. The Rebekahs are sponsoring the affair.

"Repression?" Yes, of course. That's what Andy says, and he expects to be present to talk upon this timely subject.

An outstanding feature of the program will be the "Breeheisen Entertainers" from Bay Shore. If you have never heard them, don't miss this program. Those who have already heard them, will want to again. Everyone is cordially invited to enjoy an evening of songs, dances, drama and a sure cure for "repression."

There will be no set admission charge, but a silver collection will be taken at the door.

NINE MILLION PEOPLE VISITED PARKS

Smaller Acreage Calls More People Than Other States

While much smaller in area than the systems of many other states, Michigan's state parks were visited by more people during the year 1931 than were reported for any other state park system in the United States, with the exception of New York.

The attendance figures for the year of more than 9,000,000 people represented a much higher number than those who attended the national parks.

Michigan's parks are fewer than the number operated by some other states, and Michigan ranks comparatively low in the acreage included in the parks. The fact, however, that many of this state's parks are near the centers of population, and that there are adequate swimming facilities is believed to be the reason for the enormous number of annual visitors.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Last Sunday evening we observed the ordinances of the church, the baptismal service, the Lord's supper. In spite of the inclemency of the weather both morning and evening services were well attended. Eleven new members were welcomed into the fellowship of the church.

Sunday evening, December 20, at the evening service, the young people of the church will give a Christmas musical. This service will be in charge of Harker Kirby.

POLAR BEARS TO OPEN SEASON NEXT TUESDAY

Play Elk Rapids Cardinals in Contest Free to the Public

The first home game of the 1931-32 basketball season will be played here next Tuesday evening, December 15th, with the Charlevoix Polar Bears, four times Northern Michigan professional champions, stacked up against the flashy Elk Rapids Cardinals.

True to promises, Manager Todd of the Polar Bears, announces that the contest will be free to the public. This inducement, together with the fact that the game will mark the first appearance of the Polar Bears in quest of another regional title, should fill the gymnasium to the rafters.

The Elk Rapids Cardinals have been one of the stronger independent teams of the region for several years. So Tuesday's contest will be no set-up for the Polar Bears.

The Polar Bears will this year have Brown, Kipke, Davenport, Ikens, Cooper, Supernaw and Higman of last season's outfit, together with George Haggard, a new-comer, and Vic Smith, former high school guard.

The nets, set on closed ground without a permit and of illegal size mesh, were believed to have been owned by a Wisconsin boat which out-run the patrol to the Wisconsin shore when apprehended leaving the Manitow fishing grounds. Capt. Allers reported the violators threw huge quantities of whitefish overboard during the chase, erasing all evidence necessary for arrest.

BOYNE RAILROAD IN HANDS OF RECEIVER

Judge Gilbert Appoints L. H. White to Handle Affairs

Boyne City's only railroad, after struggling along with less and less business for many years, was last week placed in charge of the circuit court to protect all creditors' interest alike.

When the timber was no more and trucks continued to haul the package freight to the merchants there remained not enough earnings to pay for the operation, taxes and interest on bonds and other indebtedness—hence the Receiver.

L. H. White, late vice president and general manager of the road has been appointed receiver by Judge Parm C. Gilbert and will operate the road subject to court orders. The sale of the road to N. Y. C. railroad interests rests with I. C. Commission. That body may issue their latest findings at an early date. Until then the receiver will furnish such transportation as is needed.

Hon. J. M. Harris, general attorney for the road for many years was the active agent of the bondholders in arranging for the operation of the road until such time as the I. C. C. makes their decision. — Boyne Citizen.

SCHOOL NOTES

Junior Play Thursday

On Thursday evening of this week at 8 o'clock, the curtain will rise on "The Enemy," written by Channing Pollock, one of the greatest playwrights of modern times.

An overture of the same name written especially for this drama will be played under the direction of Mr. Rider.

Many out-of-town visitors from East Jordan, Petoskey and Boyne City are expected, and from the interest shown among the students and citizens of Charlevoix it is evident that the cast will play to a full house.

Chemistry

Last week and the fore part of this week the senior chemistry class spent in conducting experiments in the laboratory. Most of the experiments have been carried on in the fields of acids, bases and salts.

English

The senior English classes have been studying the English authorities, Milton, Dryden, Addison, Steele and Pope. Perhaps right now, while we have to learn their lives and works, we do not appreciate and enjoy them properly, but they tell us "teacher knows best" so maybe sometime we will be glad to have had them.

The sophomore English classes have been studying the construction of various kinds of poetry. Members of the class have been writing themes on this subject and may later try their hand at writing some of the poetry. This promises to be very interesting and we should not be surprised to discover some future Poe or Wadsworth in our midst.

History

The weekly news graphs have been put on display this past week. In the American history class of thirty students Drew Young takes first place with a score of 39 out of a possible 50. In the same class Marion Tyler took second place and Virginia Nickerson third.

In the Modern history class of 21, Byrnee Lamphear led, Christian Hanson taking second place and Albert McMillan third.

Personals

Miss Anderson and Miss Button were Traverse City visitors Saturday.

Miss Dasef spent Thanksgiving at her home in Stanton.

Miss Fargo spent Thanksgiving in Chicago with friends.

Athletics Contribution to School Life

There is nothing in life that exposes the true character of a person more accurately than an athletic contest. If the winning of a tournament depends on the honesty of a single play, from one of its contestants, if he does the fair thing though he knows it costs his team a victory, is there anything that so vividly portrays the kind of "stuff" that boy or girl possesses?

The very spirit of contest is alone beneficial. When competition is involved, one strives to surpass the accomplishments of the other. So it is in school, through clean, wholesome school sports each boy and girl who takes part in athletics is daily putting forth his best. But this condition exists not only in the gymnasium and football field, it carries over to the class rooms, where there is the ever striving for higher grades, for the marks that make it possible for an athlete to play on the school teams.

Junior High

The junior high school have elected a student council assembly committee whose members are: Helen Loskot, chairman; John Block, Ernestine Chew and Leslie Shapton. The class officers of the three junior high classes are cooperating with this council in plans for a Christmas program. This program is scheduled for December 18th. It will take place in the junior high assembly with the students taking part in the entertainment.

The seventh grade have planned a class party to be held Saturday evening, December 5th, in the school gymnasium.

Miss Dowd was a judge at a debate in Petoskey Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bush spent their vacation in the southern part of the state visiting friends and relatives. Miss Atkinson accompanied them to Detroit.

John Winder, David Livingston, David Dick, Devere Bird and David Coulter returned Sunday from a week end spent in Ann Arbor attending the Hi-Y conference.

Mr. North went to Bay City for the week end to attend an American Legion meeting.

COUNTY NORMAL

The normal class is very busy making preparations for Christmas. The art periods this week are given over to making Christmas gifts and decorations for the tree.

The class is also busy making silhouettes on glass. Miss Bigge has several samples which show how they will look when they are finished. If the normal teachers' work is as good as Miss Bigge's, some very attractive pictures will be the result.

The first day of practice teaching is one that will probably be remembered by every student teacher as long as he or she lives. Every teacher enjoyed this first experience and each one is looking forward to a happy winter working with the children.

Last week a botanist, Mr. Powers, from Michigan State college at Lansing, gave a stereopticon lecture on the common barberry. He told what the State Department is doing to exterminate this harmful plant, and showed the student teachers how they, as rural school teachers, can cooperate with the state in the extermination of the barberry.

AT THE MOVIES

Pictures Welcome Popular Star from Broadway Stage

Dorothy Hall, young blond stage actress who created the role of Schatze in the Broadway stage production of "The Greeks Had a Word for It," has her second featured role in Paramount's pictured romance of metropolitan business women, "Working Girls," the Palace theatre feature for Saturday and Sunday. This assignment came because of her excellent work in "Nothing But the Truth" with Richard Dix and other successes.

Miss Hall shares the featured honors with Paul Lukas, Charles "Buddy" Rogers, Judith Wood, and Stuart Erwin in this filmization of Zoe Akins' screen adaptation of the stage play, "Blind Mice."

Blondes Predominate in "Good Sport" Cast

As a forerunner of the style trend of milady's coiffure, the fact that six blondes are to be found among the leading feminine players in the Fox production, "Good Sport," which opens its local engagement at the Palace theatre next Wednesday and Thursday may be of decided interest to women.

"Good Sport" deals with the story of a young and trusting wife, who suddenly discovers that her husband has transferred his affections to another woman. Rather than turn to the divorce courts for help she decides to find out just why this other woman was able to lure him away from her and in doing so she meets up with some rather startling revelations.

In the male lead opposite Miss Watkins is to be seen John Boles, star of "Rio Rita" and "Seed." The other featured players include Allan Dinehart and Hedda Hopper. Kenneth MacKenna directed the film.

ANTRIM SUPERVISORS FACE MONEY SHORTAGE

Call Special Session to Find Emergency Measures

A special session of the Antrim county board of supervisors was called for Monday, December 7th, to consider ways and means to meet the county's financial obligations.

Besides the county officers' salaries, which have not been paid for two months, there are several other unpaid bills that must be taken care of.

Taxpayers are being urged to make an effort to pay their taxes early this year. Everything hinges on the amount of tax returns sent in by the several township treasurers.

DEER TALLY CARDS GIVE INFORMATION

MAJORITY HUNTERS IN FAVOR OF ONE BUCK LAW

Bucks, Seen by Two Hundred Reporting Nearly Half as Many as Does—More Bear Killed

About 1,200 deer tally cards, submitted to deer hunters have been returned to the department of conservation, and it is hoped that several thousand more cards, reporting hunters' observations and opinions, will be received. It is planned to compile the information given on the cards to give the department more accurate information as to the condition of Michigan's deer herd, and to obtain the reaction of hunters as to the present deer laws.

Compilation of information given on 200 of the cards, taken at random from persons who hunted in the upper peninsula, show that 114 of them got their buck and 86 were unsuccessful.

The 200 hunters reported seeing a total of 606 bucks while they were in the woods, 1,481 does, 392 fawns and 344 whose sex were undetermined. This made a total of 2,823 deer seen. Each hunter saw an average of 14 deer. One of the 200 hunters killed a bear and six other bears were reported seen.

Forty-six of the hunters reported deer to be increasing in the vicinity in which they hunted and 55 believed the deer to be decreasing in number.

Of the 200 hunters reporting, 115 favored a continuation of the one buck law; 77 were opposed to the one buck law and of these 77, 40 favored a one deer law; five wanted a later open season and two wanted the deer season closed for from one to three years.

A man hunting in Chippewa county reported seeing a cow moose and an albino doe in the woods. A pure albino buck was killed on Drummond island.

According to the game division of the department many more bears were seen and shot this year than ordinarily because of the open weather. Many deer "spoiled" before they could be removed from camp and many deer shot were not found because hunters were unable to track wounded animals through the woods.

CATTLE NOT INJURED BY ERGOT ON BARLEY

Station Runs Feeding Trials With Grain Affected by Fungus.

Ergot, a fungus growth, which develops on some species of barley grown in northern Michigan counties was not injurious to dairy cattle in feeding trials conducted at the Chatham experiment station.

The barley which was fed in the experiment was quite badly affected by the fungus, approximately one head in each hundred showed the growths which are typical of the disease. The barley was fed in a ration which contained cottonseed meal, beet pulp, sunflower silage, and mixed hay in addition to the grain.

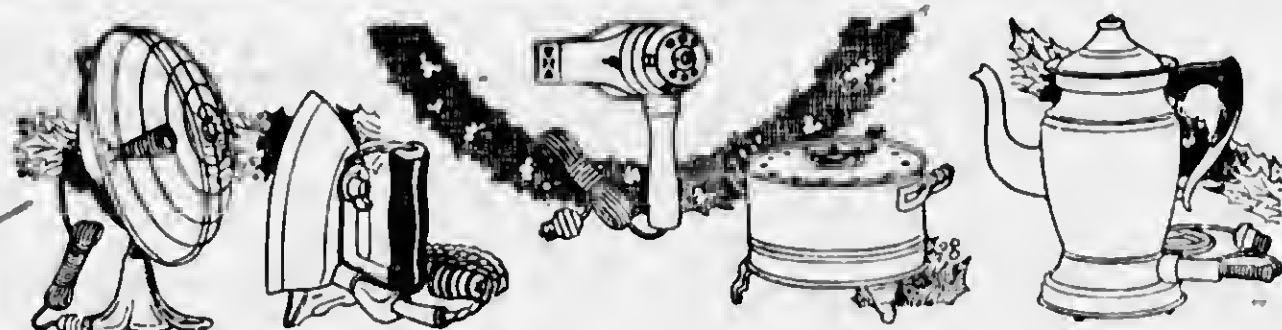

The three animals in the trials ate quantities of barley varying from the 577.9 pounds which were fed to the lowest producer to the 986.4 pounds consumed by the best cow. This cow produced 116 pounds of butterfat during the feeding period.

The animals were examined by a veterinarian several times during the experiment and no ill effects from the diseased grain could be detected. The cows calved normally and finished the trial in excellent general health.

NEW SERVICE GIVEN BY MICHIGAN BELL

Central Switching Control Makes Teletypewriters Available to All

A new communication service is made available by the Michigan Bell Telephone company, the American Telephone and Telegraph company and the other associated companies in the Bell System.

This new service which is announced by Burch Foraker, president of the Michigan Bell company, consists in the establishment and operation of central switching exchanges for teletypewriters, machines that typewrite electrically over wires to a distant teletypewriter.

For Long Distance Too

Any subscriber to the service can obtain connection with the teletypewriters of any other subscriber to the service within the same city or in a distant city and this will permit the immediate transmission of letters, typewritten statements or other information between the two subscribers. In effect, the method used for interconnection of the instruments is the same as that now employed in the telephone system.

played in the telephone system.

The present typewriter service of the Bell System is furnished only in connection with private wires which are not connected to central switching points. This private wire service, now widely used for interoffice communication, will be continued as heretofore. The new switching service through teletypewriters exchanges is now possible because of developments in apparatus and operation. These permit intercommunication by teletypewriter on a nationwide basis just as the development of telephone switchboards made possible the interconnection of telephone instruments.

Get Quick Connections

The new teletypewriter service will thus have the flexibility that characterizes the regular telephone service of the Bell companies. The establishment of switching offices similar to telephone exchanges enables subscribers to the new service to call and secure connections just as they do for local or long distance telephone conversations. While their teletypewriter lines are connected they may send or receive typed messages as desired.

COUNTY CLUB WORK SHOWED BIG GAINS

YEAR COMPLETED MOST SUCCESSFUL ON RECORD

Champions in Various Divisions of 4-H Program Given Recognition for Their Accomplishments

(By B. C. Mellencamp.)

The boys' and girls' club program for the year 1931 has been the largest ever carried on in the county. When everything was carefully checked it was found that a total of 47 clubs with 338 members, 301 of which finished up their program satisfactorily. This means that 89.1 per cent of those starting the project finished up. This is an increase of ten clubs over last year's enrollments and 75 in club membership.

One of the most pleasing features of the club program is the recognition that is given to the outstanding club members at the end of the fiscal year. County championships are awarded those who have fulfilled the requirements the most successfully. Further, county championships are awarded in all the projects carried on by club members depending upon the particular year that they are enrolled in.

POLAR BEARS DROP OPENING CONTEST

NOSED OUT BY ELK RAPIDS 29 TO 26 TUESDAY NIGHT

Contest a Thriller from Start to Finish—Play Famous Girls Team Here Next Wednesday

A disastrous second quarter, during which they were out-played and out-scored, gave the Charlevoix Polar Bears a 29 to 26 defeat by the Elk Rapids Cardinals in their opening contest of the season at the school gym Tuesday evening. A capacity crowd took advantage of the absence of admission to witness the game.

The contest was a thriller from start to finish. The Polar Bears overcame an Elk Rapids lead in the first quarter and were out in front 7 to 6 at the first intermission, but during the second period let the Cardinals run circles around them. At the half the visiting team was leading 21 to 9 and it looked like a complete rout for the Polar Bears.

But it was a different team that took the floor in the second half. By close guarding and a good brand of team work mixed with several long shots, the Polar Bears out-scored Elk Rapids 9 points to 4 in the third stanza, bringing the count 25 to 18, and in the fourth added 8 points to the visitor's 4. Their rally could not overcome the advantage Elk Rapids piled up in the second period, however, and the contest ended with the visitors leading 29 to 26.

Elk Rapids displayed a fast passing attack and a pair of dangerous tossers in Duvrney, forward, and Ringnor, guard, who scored 11 and 9 points respectively. Despite loose playing at center during the first half, Brown collected 13 points to lead the Polar Bears, while Davenport and Kipke accounted for 5 each.

KIPMEN DEFEATED BY TRAVERSE CITY

POWERFUL TROJAN OUTFIT WON 26 TO 10 FRIDAY

Contest With Class B. Potoskey Outfit Opens Home Schedule Here Friday Evening

An altogether too powerful Traverse City basketball combination handed Charlevoix a 26 to 10 defeat in a contest which inaugurated the 1931-32 season for the Red and White at Traverse last Friday evening.

From the time Norman Ace, center, sank the first deuce, Coach Gordon MacDonald's quintet were masters of the situation, holding the Kipmen in check with an air-tight defense. A smooth-working offense scored frequent enough to keep the Trojans out in front with a comfortable lead.

Traverse City held the long end of a 16 to 5 score at the half, and despite numerous substitutions, collected 10 points to Charlevoix's 5 following the intermission.

Despite their set-back in the initial tilt, the Kipmen presented a team which will go places as the season advances. Their chances for a showing were limited against Traverse, which this year has possibilities of a powerful combination. The Trojans were a tough opponent for a partially green team to stack up against in their opening game.

Schlicht, Traverse forward, furnished the outstanding performance of the evening, collecting 15 points. For Charlevoix McSauby and Ace were the best performers. McSauby accounted for a pair of field goals, and Ace a goal and two free tosses.

CARE OF 'RETURN- ERS' IS PROBLEM

INFLUX FROM CITIES FILL MOST NORTHERN COUNTIES

Deserted Farms and Abandoned Shacks Now Occupied—Many Ask County Poor Fund Aid

Northern Michigan counties would have only a small unemployment and poor relief problem if it were not for the families which have left the industrial centers of the state and returned to their former homes, according to L. E. Henton, county poor commissioner.

Detroit alone, according to a bulletin recently issued by the State Unemployment Commission, has lost between 75,000 and 100,000 people in the past few months and, the report states, "it is probable that if the figures were available a proportional reduction would be reported for the other industrial centers."

Charlevoix county has felt the result of this influx. Nearly every little shanty in the eastern part of the county and most of the farm houses which have been abandoned for years, now have smoke coming from their chimneys. In many instances the unemployed have simply moved in without taking the trouble to consult the owner. It is far cheaper to live without rent in these places than to remain in the automotive centers and be out of work. In many instances these people have applied to the county poor commission for help. If it is an emergency, they get the relief but their status is always investigated and, if they have failed to establish a residence, the cost of maintaining them reverts to the county in which they last maintained residence.

Another plan to manufacture employment advanced by the state commission, is the odd job campaign. The commission recommends that each community promote such a campaign by urging people to hire a man for a few hours each week to do odd jobs such as house cleaning, furnace tending and other routine duties. It even suggests that each block organize and hire a man to keep the walks in that particular block clean. Chairman Harry A. Craig of the Charlevoix county unemployment board, has these suggestions under consideration. In giving a summary of the unemployment situation in the state the commission says:

"County reports indicate considerable unemployment in every county. The large industrial centers have a serious problem and are meeting it fairly well by relief measures and promotion of more employment in industry. A few counties with no industry and little agriculture, who depend upon forest products, fishing, berry-picking, and some resort businesses, report a serious situation. The market for forest products, such as lumber, railroad ties, poles, fence posts, pulpwood, etc., is very slow. Fishing has not been good. Berry-pickers from the cities have overrun the northern country the past summer and many of these are squatting in abandoned shacks, lumber camps and farm buildings, most of these cannot maintain themselves this winter and are being cared for by these already hard-hit counties. Productive rural counties without large city populations seem to experience the least difficulty. The low price of farm produce made them short of ready money for taxes and other essentials."

COUNTY NEEDY BENE- FIT BY LAKE RAIDS

Illegally Netted Whitefish Given to Legion Welfare Committee

Charlevoix county needy families are benefiting as the result of raids made at closed whitefish grounds in Lake Michigan by Capt. C. C. Allers, commander of Michigan patrol boat No. 1 of the department of conservation.

Illegally netted whitefish, taken in two seizures at Manitou islands early last week, and still another quantity, taken from 16 boxes of nets lifted at the closed Fox island grounds Sunday, have been turned over to the American Legion welfare committee for distribution.

Commander Lee C. Allard stated Tuesday that the Legion has in all about 3,000 pounds of whitefish. About one thousand pounds have been salted and the remainder frozen at Booth Fisheries company through the courtesy of Allan Campbell, branch manager. The fish will be divided among the three Legion posts of the county and distributed to needy families upon request.

Nets valued at several thousand dollars have been confiscated during the recent raids. The seizure last Wednesday at Manitou islands was a follow-up of an earlier raid of the same week.

COMMUNITY XMAS PROGRAM PLANNED

LEGION AUXILIARY BEHIND AFFAIR FOR KIDDIES

Arrange With Santa Claus to Grant Children Saturday at Railway Station—Xmas Tree, Free Show

Through the efforts of the American Legion Auxiliary, cooperating with the Legion and the city council, Saturday, December 19th, is to be made a happy day for the children of Charlevoix and surrounding rural districts.

After much difficulty, the Legion Auxiliary has made arrangements with Santa Claus for a visit here that afternoon. He will arrive on the northbound train, and, in order to meet him, all children are requested to gather at the school grounds at 1:15, where conveyances will be provided to take them to the station.

After the greeting with Old Saint Nick, everyone will be taken to the Legion home on East Garfield avenue for the community Christmas tree. Santa Claus will see that all children get a bag of candy and nuts.

Then on Christmas afternoon, Friday, December 25th, a free movie party has been arranged for all children under 12 years of age at the Palace theatre. This is the annual children's party given by Mrs. Elizabeth Moon, manager of the theatre.

These two fine affairs, along with parties and programs at the schools and the several churches, should make the Christmas of 1931 one long to be remembered by the kiddies.

Everywhere the spirit of Christmas is being manifest. Merchants are placing Christmas trees along the curb of Bridge street in front of their stores, and the city has erected a large community tree at the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets. Many are electrically lighted and very beautiful. One outstanding decoration of this nature is at the Charlevoix Oil Co. station across the bridge, where a beautifully lighted tree has been placed atop the station building.

Parents are asked to arrange their plans so that all children may greet Old Santa Claus when he reaches here Saturday afternoon.

SCHOOL BAND CON- CERT IS THURSDAY

PROGRAM OF POPULAR NUM-BERS HAS BEEN ARRANGED

High School Boys' Glee Club Will Assist With Vocal Selections—Program Is Given

Thursday evening, December 17th, twenty-eight talented high school musicians composing the Charlevoix school band, will perform their first concert. Under the direction of Albert Elder, these musicians will give a performance which includes some of the finest repertoire of any school band.

It is felt by those in charge of the program that the audience will feel a keener appreciation of the music if they are at least briefly acquainted with the story, spirit and purpose of the various selections to be played, and for that reason a short synopsis of numbers on the program is being given.

To open the program, the band will play "Red and White," the Charlevoix school song. This will be followed by Sousa's "High School Cadets," a number popular with most every high school band, and dedicated by the famous composer to the American high school youth. Another of Sousa's numbers will be the "U. S. Field Artillery." The band will sing one stanza of the trio.

A following number, Ed. Chenette's "Northern World," is perhaps the most popular by this modern composer. It was written several years ago at the time the local director was a member of the Chenette band. The scene is that of a cold, winter night in the far north. At the opening of the number will be heard the shrill, weird sound of the cold north wind as a sleighing party starts on its journey. Such an occasion is never without a song, and soon the band will be singing the party song. The next scene displays the grandeur of the Northern Lights, then comes a reindeer race, the "Land of the Midnight Sun" and an Eskimo dncer.

"Beneath the Holly," a number of well arranged Christmas selections which are always popular during the Yuletide season, will be given. These arrangements include: "Tomorrow Will Be Christmas," "Cantique de Noel," "Adeste Fidelis," "O Sanctissima," "Sacred Night, Holy Night," "O Come Little Children," and "O Faithful Pine."

The Boys' Glee Club will assist the band by singing several numbers during the intermission.

Following is the complete program: "Red and White," school song; "High School Cadets," by Sousa; "Northern World," by Ed. Chenette; "LaSonnambula," by Cavallini, Hugh Parker; "U. S. Field Artillery," by Sousa; "Back Mid the Clover and Corn," by Rosenfeld; "Winter Song," by Ballard; "Grant Us to Do With Zeal," by Bach; "Hail Charlevoix," by Rider, Boys' Glee Club; "Men of Valor," by Klor; "Simplicity," by Lee; selections by brass quartette; "Beneath the Holly," by Brackton; "Lights Out," by McCoy.

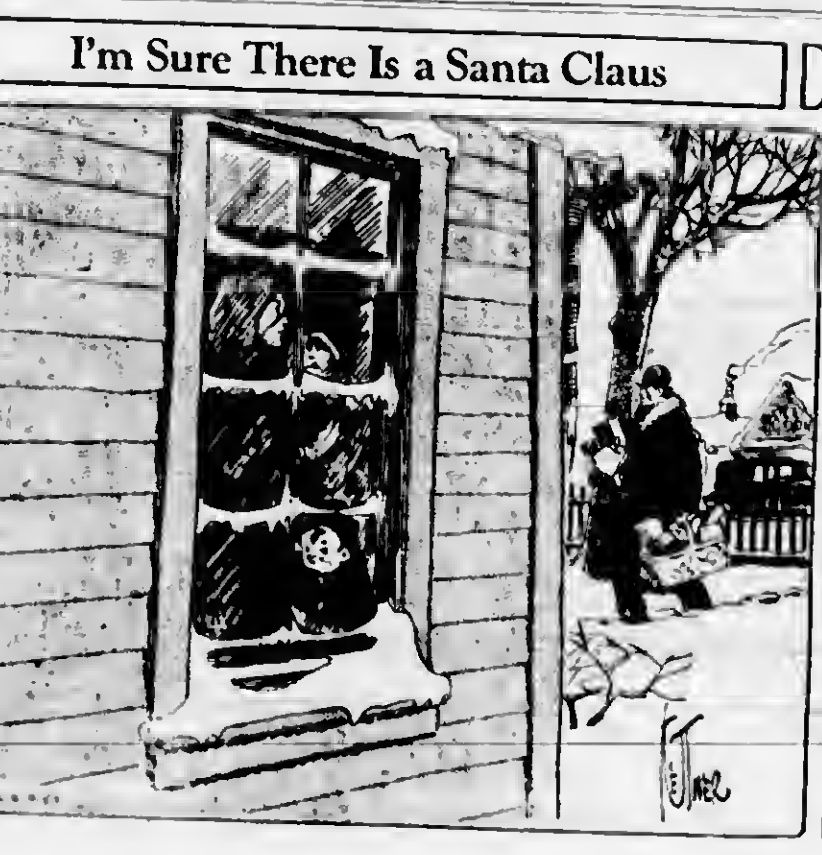

The officers and committees of the school band, who are furthering plans for the concert are: Hugh Parker, student director; Marian Tyler, li-brarian; Rex McGhan, property manager; publicity, Ralph Lemieux, chairman, Lillian Novotny, Robert Cummings; program, Edna Knutsen, chairman, Carl Bentie, James Black; decorations, Ruby Supernaw, chair-man, Virginia Black, Lloyd Arnold. Pianist, Marcy Jean Carey. Ushers for the concert will be Joe Arvilla and George LaBlanc, members of the Boys' Glee Club.

CENTRAL LAKE

Nice little snow storm Monday. Rev. J. C. Kendall preached the pre-dedication sermon at Bellaire Holiness church Tuesday evening.

A. I. Sage has returned from a visit to Jamestown. While there he called on Miss Ida Brouwer and found her still confined to her bed.

There were ten present at Bay View Sunday school last Sunday. They will have their Christmas program next Sunday, when they will close until April.

The church is expected to be crowded to capacity that evening, storm or no storm.

Rev. Guy Liskum and family are visiting in Kingsley this week. Their nephew, Forest Babcock, came over and got them last week. We see by the East Jordan paper that their relatives at that place had the misfortune to have a lot of household goods taken from a building where the goods were stored. Some young cattle were stolen from a field out east of town last week. There, no doubt, will be quite a lot of such work going on this winter.

Mr. Porter is having quite an extensive job of wood cutting done on his cut-over land in this neighborhood, thus furnishing work for some of East Jordan's unemployed.

The American Legion are to be commended for the work they are doing to help the unemployed, but why do they wish to bring back what has always been a curse to the working man and his family by the repeal or even the modification of the Eighteenth Amendment?

"What were you and Pedneault talking about before he came to my cabin?"

Larry never smiled. "I don't exactly mind, but I think we were talking about the weather. Ped said he hoped it ain't going to rain any more."

Haskell snarled: "You're laughing in my face. You hatched some deviltry with him." He threatened viciously: "I'll fix you, constable. You're to be involved out of service. I've got something to say about the terms. When you're huddled around, trying to live on a few dollars a month, you won't be quite so d—t chipper!"

In a seething fury he turned away. Pedneault had tricked him, stolen the launch, and joined Baker's venture!

Unable now to go up the Atsooska and smash that plane, he found outlet for his bitterness in avenging plans, vengeance against Alan Baker and those men. At Williamson's coming visit he could deal them some terrible blows. His enemies had played into his very hands. Baker had bought out under suspicious circumstances, had made a criminal of himself, had taken the law into his own hands and turned justice to private ends. Pedneault had given a false report and absconded with police property. Bill Hardsack had stolen supplies and subverted them to his own uses, had gone a. w. o. L. had added in a criminal enterprise, and to crown it all, had deserted.

Knowing Williamson's foibles pretty well, Haskell foresaw the superintendent's anger when he learned those blunt facts. They violated every tenet in the stern old officer's code, for he was a stickler for discipline. He would soak Hardsack and Pedneault to the hilt. He would turn thumbs down on any leniency toward Baker. The ex-sergeant would be branded with disgrace, if he escaped the pen. And if he did get those hands, he had unwitting him the news that Trader MacMillan, whose innocence he had championed, for whose sake he had done all this and whose vindication had been his great purpose—that Dave MacMillan, broken by shame and bitterness, was lying dead, a suicide, at Resonation.

Haskell saw that his only real difficulty lay in overcoming Williamson's earlier prejudice and winning his personal liking. That called for shrewd psychology, but on that point he knew he could make Alan Baker look like a stammering farm boy.

The next evening, when Williamson arrived, Haskell first of all took him on an inspection tour of the post. Flashed with that, they stopped and talked together on the slope, a little distance from the barracks. A respectful distance behind them Corporal Whipple waited, note paper in hand, ready to scribe and salute if they glanced his way or asked for any figures.

Haskell was elated, he was secretly exultant, at his success so far in "working" his superior officer. Williamson was openly pleased with the inspection. Barracks, cabins, dog pens, canoes, guns—everything was in capital shape.

This suspicious beginning was all faith in Alan Baker. He had always liked Alan, had trusted him as he trusted few men; and had fought for his promotion. He, who had given forty years of his life to the service at a miserable salary; who with his brother officers of the old guard had unselfishly watched other men of their generation carve out fortunes in timber, ranches, land and mines in the developing West—he had thought of Baker as of one to carry on that tradition and spirit of loyalty to the Force.

Now, according to Inspector Haskell's account, Baker had quit because his commission had not come. At the beck of a higher salary he had tossed aside loyalty and his invaluable work here in the North. He had made a miserable failure of a patrol, had misled the other men with insubordination, and then bought out.

Stern and impartial, Williamson could not help feeling that Haskell, though a newcomer and not fully experienced yet, had been fair, and more than fair, in this trouble with Baker, and these other men. Baker had certainly had a fearful moral lapse from the man he used to be. Without doubt his failure to get commissioned had set him brooding and had worked a pernicious harm on a once-superlative man.

As he looked thoughtfully at Haskell, Williamson considered it very creditable of him to praise a man who had done him so much injury. And he thought it showed exceptional stuff in the inspector to remain in service, to stick with his hard thankless work here in the North, when he had come into a large inheritance and might be leading a pleasant life in Ottawa. Playing no favorites whatsoever but trying to give every man his just dues, the old officer felt that his former uncharitable opinion of Haskell had been entirely wrong, as wrong and misplaced as his faith in Alan Baker.

Presently, in slow decisive tones, he said: "You did right to denote Baker after that patrol. It was foolhardy of him to split his detail. Constable Young over there will pay the price of that mistake for the rest of his life. And about those other men, I think the rough sledding you've had was in charge before you came; he was rather lax on discipline so long as the work got done. One of the things urged against him when he was up for commission was the fact that he was too familiar with his subordinates. When you came and insisted on stricter discipline, I presume they resented it. The faults is theirs, not yours. I'm backing you to the hilt against them and against Baker, too, if he tries to stir up any further trouble."

Haskell drew a deep breath. His story had gone across handsomely. In half an hour of skillful talk he had accomplished more than Baker could match in a month of labor and heavy expense and danger.

For Alan and Featherof there at MacMillan's trading post after their discovery of the catastrophe, the waiting was the worst of it—the long hour after hour of grim, self-enforced delay.

"We've got to let them get out of timber country into the open Thatazzah," Alan spoke to Buzzard, who was looking to his experience and leadership in this fraught crisis. "There we can be sure of sighting their canoes. They'll have no shelter there, when we drop down on them. We'll make ourselves give them a fifteen hour start on us."

It was his cold man-hunting wisdom that spoke; but all his being clamored to start instantly, flinging himself against those men and tearing Joyce away from them before twilight fell.

He forced himself to go up to the trading store and cook a meal, for they had eaten nothing since dawn.

He remembered the little automatic Joyce always carried; remembered the hard bulge of it that time he lifted her down from the window. Knowing her spirited pride, her passionate nature, he had fearfully imagined her choosing a proud escape from her horror.

When he and Buzzard had forced themselves to eat supper and were putting the things in order again, as though for Joyce to come back and find, they heard a far-away drone miles down the Big Atsooska. A breeze whipped the faint sound away for several minutes. When they caught it again, the sound was clear and unmistakable. They once had heard that same low thrumming drone approaching across En Traverse lake to destroy their plane and stop their venture.

Alan rose up, with an expression on his face that frightened Buzzard. "It's Haskell. He's coming to smash us. He didn't quit with that one attempt. I don't think—even if he knew that you and I are all that stands between Joyce and a horror—I don't think he'd hesitate a second. Buzzard, you stay here. I'm going down to the landing. I don't want you to be involved in—I suppose it'll be called murder."

He went out through the trading hall and down to the landing, and crouched there behind the machine gun. With his hand on the slide grip, training the weapon down river, he waited.

But, as he listened to the launch tearing wide open up the treacherous Atsooska, he grew convinced that Whipple never would or could drive it at so demoniac a clip. Frank Pedneault was the man behind that wheel.

Uncertain, in a dilemma, he reasoned: "Haskell might have forced him to make the trip. But Ped would never throw himself into it like that, he'd never risk his life that way, unless it was something he felt like putting all his heart into."

Lifting the binoculars, he focused them on the first bend below. When the launch came tearing into sight and thundered on up toward the post, he saw at a glance that it carried but one man—a man with his hat jammed low on his eyes and a dead pipe in his teeth.

Swinging the launch around in mid-stream like a toy, Pedneault gently nosed it in beside the plane. "Thank Lord, you're here, Alan. . . . Was afraid you'd be gone."

"Ped! What are you doing up here? You're on some patrol?"

"Patrol h—!" Pedneault panted, breathless and excited. "I caught onto your idea. Elizabeth told me about it, too. She's aching for you to win out. Larry and I talked it over. I said, 'By Lord, I'm going, Larry! I'm going to be in on that with Alan and Bill!' So I eucked the launch away from Haskell, pitched off, and streaked for here. Brought you some extra gas if you need any."

STANDARD RED CROWN THE BETTER GASOLINE

Alan was staggered. "Good Lord! And you've deserted, too, Ped?"

"But I couldn't miss out on a trick like this, could I?"

Alan wheedled. There was Pedneault mixed up in his trouble. Like an eager wolfhound whom his master has left behind, Ped had chewed his collar and come along on the hunt.

"Where's Bill and Joyce?" Pedneault's face grew long, his eager excitement sobered down. He decided it was better to say nothing just now about Dave's suicide. Alan had enough anxiety preying on him.

"I'm thankful for that gasoline," Alan said. "And for you throwing in with us, Ped, at the price you'll pay. But I don't see how you can help. We can't carry a third person on this trip. I'll have to have room to work the machine gun."

"Then I'll go in the launch," Alan said. "You can't make it. Above the Atsooska forks there's twenty miles of low water that you can't get through."

"I can make it now. I know what the launch can do. After all these heavy rains, draining down that left fork from the Thatazzah. . . . Look there—" he pointed at the water stage on a pier—that's eighteen inches higher than when we made our arm patrol after them. I can get through; and once I'm in those deep-water channels of the Thatazzah—"

TEMPERANCE UNION INSTALLED OFFICERS

Report of Year's Work Heard at Meeting Friday Afternoon

Mrs. A. C. Belding was program leader at the W. C. T. U. meeting held last Friday in the community room and gave an interesting review of the events of the year relating to the temperance cause.

These included the report of the Wickersham commission, the reversal of the decision of Federal Judge Clark that the eighteenth amendment was unconstitutional, the refusal of the supreme court to pass again on the constitutionality of the amendment because they had done so often before, the announcement of Democratic women that they would vote the Republican ticket if their own party adopts a wet plank, the opinion of economists showing the fallacy of the demand for the return of beer and wine as a cure for the depression.

Mrs. A. J. Usher had charge of the devotionals, which were in keeping with the Christmas season. The regular offering was sent to the Brown Home for the Aged in Grand Rapids and $5.00 was voted to the welfare work of the Legion Auxiliary.

The officers' reports showed state and district dues had been paid on 118, 11 of whom were new members. Ten honorary members were reported.

The officers for 1932 were installed by Mrs. S. M. Rife. The plans for the year's work include the assignment of members to groups, each named for some woman prominent in the W. C. T. U. work.

The Lillian M. Stevens group will be hostesses at the meeting on January 8th and Probate Judge E. A. Ruegger will give a talk on "Law Observance," following a 1 o'clock cooperative luncheon.

AIR MAIL SERVICE INAUGURATED TODAY

Hammond Flying Service Awarded
Charlevoix-Beaver Island Contract

Air mail service between Charlevoix and Beaver Island for the present winter months was inaugurated Wednesday. The final trip of the Hill Transportation Co. steamer Marold II was made Tuesday afternoon when the craft made its return from St. James harbor.

At a conference here last Wednesday afternoon, the contract, calling for two trips weekly between Charlevoix and St. James, was awarded the Hammond Flying Service of Owosso and St. Ignace by Postal Inspector F. E. Smith of Washington, D. C. The bid of "Bud" Hammond, who flew the route last winter, was given preference over that of a Grand Rapids concern, largely because of better equipment and his previous experience.

Patrons of the service will find things much to their liking this winter. Pilot Hammond will use a six place Ryan cabin plane, affording comfortable accommodations for passengers. The passenger compartment will be heated.

Plans for installation of a radio beacon at Charlevoix and Beaver Island coast guard stations are being considered at the present time, and, if carried out will aid the pilot greatly.

MISS GRACE CONGDON, COUNTY NURSE, DEAD

Succumbed Friday at Kalamazoo
Following Brief Illness

The untimely death late last Friday at a Kalamazoo hospital of Miss Grace Congdon, for the past year connected with the District Health Unit as county nurse, has caused deep grief among local citizens.

The fatal illness took Miss Congdon while she was spending the Thanksgiving holidays at Benton Harbor with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Congdon. Death resulted from an intestinal obstruction.

A graduate of Lake Side hospital, Chicago, Miss Congdon, who was 23 years of age, worked in Detroit as a member of the Visiting Nurses' Association before her connection with the Children's Fund of Michigan a year ago. She was popular and well liked throughout the county.

Funeral services were held at 3:30 Tuesday afternoon from Pence Temple, Benton Harbor.

* * * BITS OF INFORMATION * * *

This is the time of year to watch out for trichinosis, the disease caused by small parasites known as trichinae which may occur in pork and pork products. Cook pork thoroughly. Don't eat it raw.

Some beef cattle-breeders think that too much silage harms the breeding qualities of a bull. A bull weighing about 1400 pounds should keep in excellent breeding condition during winter if fed a ration of about 30 pounds of silage, 10 pounds of good quality alfalfa or other legume hay, and 12 pounds of grain mixture.

Many ranchmen have discarded the old method of "roping out" calves on the range or in the corral, for branding. Instead, they separate the calves from the cows in the corral and drive them into small pens known as "crowding pens." They throw the calves by hand, the smaller ones being "flanked" and the larger ones being "mugged" down. Flanking or mugging is less likely to injure the calves than is roping.

It is a good plan to whitewash the dairy barn once or twice a year. To make a disinfectant whitewash, dilute 1 1/2 quarts of commercial lime-sulphur with about 3 gallons of water, and add 3 tablespoons of common salt, previously dissolved in a pint of water. To this solution, add, while stirring constantly, a lime cream made by mixing a heaping quart of good hydrated lime with water, or by slaking 2 1/2 pounds of fresh quicklime and straining through a wire fly screen.

Waterproofing canvas or duck makes it last about twice as long. Farmers' Bulletin 1157-F, Waterproofing and Mildewproofing of Cotton Duck, which can be obtained from the U. S. department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., contains formulas and directions for waterproofing canvas or duck. The bulletin also says that sunlight is injurious to canvas and that the addition of lamp-black or earth pigments to the waterproofing material lessens damage by the sun.

The coot deserves a better gastronomic reputation than it generally has, says the U. S. bureau of biological survey. Coots skinned and broiled are excellent eating and many people are foolishly prejudiced against them. The so-called "mud hen" is a cleaner feeder than many other birds prized as game. It eats the green foliage of aquatic plants and also such delicacies as the tubers of wild celery and sage pond weed and the grain of wild rice. The Federal open seasons on coots conform to those on ducks, geese, and brant for various parts of the country.

Curing Hides and Skins

Promptness, thoroughness, and cleanliness are the three essentials in curing hides and skins, says the U. S. department of agriculture. Remove and salt the hide or skin as soon as the animal heat has escaped from it. In hot weather prompt salting is absolutely necessary. Use plenty of salt—at least two pounds for every three pounds of hide or skin—and cover every part of the flesh side, smoothing out folds and wrinkles. Keep the hides and skins clean and use clean salt. Many defects in hides and skins result from the growth of bacteria and molds that feed on dirt, dung, blood, meat, or fat. If salt must be used more than once, clean it as well as possible. Let the hides and skins cure in a place that is cool and watertight. Don't cure them on a dirt floor. Calfskins need from 14 to 28 days to cure and cattle hides from 30 to 60 days. Sheepskins heat quickly and should be marketed within five or six days.

Uncle Sam Says—

In July of this year 386,659 men were employed on Federal and state highway work.

A principal advantage of electricity as a source of heat for hotbeds is the ease of control with a simple thermostat.

Hunters and sportsmen have been killing from 12 to 15 million ducks a year. This year a kill of half that number would be too many.

Federal meat inspection is 25 years old. In the quarter of a century veterinarians have examined more than 1,600,000,000 animals and have passed 98 per cent as fit for human food.

Potato Bin Ventilation

Potatoes stored in bulk in large bins need good ventilation, especially for the first three or four weeks. A cheap and convenient method for providing ventilation consists in the insertion of upright ventilating shafts at suitable intervals in the bin before filling it. These shafts may vary in size from 12 by 12 inches to 12 by 18 or 18 by 18 inches. Three-inch slat boards spaced 1 1/2 inches apart are nailed crosswise on four 2 by 3 inch uprights which form the framework and are of sufficient height to protrude above the stored potatoes. Such shafts spaced 6 to 8 feet apart serve as an outlet for the excess heat and moisture accumulation certain to occur in the first few weeks of storage and may prevent serious losses from storage rots.

* * * "INSIDE" INFORMATION * * *

Fine steel wool is good for scouring your aluminum saucepans.

If you have some jelly which is not firm enough to use on the table, it will do in place of cider or grape juice in fruit cake or mince meat.

Cut raw potato will sometimes remove a mud spot from black silks of firm weave. The thin film of starch left when the potato has dried can be brushed off. This treatment leaves a spot on all but black materials.

Farmers' bulletin 1497-F contains much useful information about laundering clothes and some suggestions about ironing them. How to fold a man's shirt, tablecloths, and other flat pieces, and how to wash sweaters, curtains, blankets, pillows, and infant's woollens are among the practical directions.

Cooked rice has a good many uses besides being served for dinner in place of potato or as a breakfast cereal. Put it in soups; combine it with baked and stewed dishes; use it in waffles, spoon bread, muffins, cookies, and even in sponge cake; use it in salads; make it into deserts, such as farmers' pudding or custard rice pudding, or rice with stewed fruits or preserves.

Bleaches and other chemicals strong enough to remove stains will usually attack dye-stuffs. It is therefore necessary, in removing stains from colored fabrics, to handle them more carefully than white ones. They should be treated rapidly and rinsed thoroughly. Color changed by treating with an acid can often be restored by using a weak alkali, such as ammonia solution or ammonia fumes. Acetic acid will often restore a color that has been changed by an alkali.

Cottage cheese is good in a great many ways. Serve it with rich cream and a little salt, or with sugar, and cream or whole milk. Try combining it with pears, peaches, or other fresh fruits; raisins, cut dates, or figs; brown sugar, maple sugar or sirup, honey, jam, or marmalade; or chopped nuts. You can mix cottage cheese with broken nut meats, chopped pimientos, finely cut green peppers, diced cucumbers, or other crisp vegetables. Horse-radish, onion juice, and parsley make a good combination with cottage cheese.

"Hopping John" is an old-fashioned country name for a dish made of dried black-eyed peas and rice. Wash one cup of the peas well and cook them in a covered pan in 3 or more cups of water with 1/2 teaspoon of salt until they are tender but not broken. Cook 1/2 cups of rice for about 20 minutes in 2 quarts of boiling water, to which 1 teaspoon of salt has been added. As soon as the grains of rice are soft to the center, drain and pour cold water enough through it to remove the surplus starch and keep the grains whole and separate. Brown 1 cup of diced salt pork until crisp, remove from the skillet, and cook a medium-sized onion, chopped, in the fat for 2 or 3 minutes. Add the rice, peas, and fried salt pork, and season with tobacco and red pepper. Serve with horseradish or chili sauce.

EDITORIALS
BUY EARLY

The first Christmas messages from the mercantile part of Main street are reaching you this week through the columns of the paper. This is an unusual year, but from the individual offerings of the stores we are inclined to believe that Christmas this year may be made to be just as real, just as joyful as those of other years at much less cost to the individual.

Plan to buy early—buy now. Your selections will be laid away for you if you so desire until the day before Christmas. You can help much in the work of emptying the shelves of the nation so that factory wheels can once again begin the hum of industry. And as a parting word—buy what you can well afford—buy it now—and above all, buy it of your home merchants.

HELP FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

With the opening of the annual sale of Christmas seals, sponsored by the Michigan Tuberculosis association, Charlevoix county people have an opportunity to lend their assistance to a worthy endeavor. The TB association has as its goal the stamping out of tuberculosis within the state. Funds to carry on the campaign are derived, in part, from the sale of Christmas seals.

There is need for the continuance of an aggressive fight against the disease. During the past decade in Michigan 13,627 young people have been victims of tuberculosis. High school students, it appears from statistics, are a special prey of the dread disease. Heaviest mortality from this cause occurs in the first decade of maturity and during this period tuberculosis causes every fourth death.

The figures prepared by the Association bring to attention a condition that is appalling and at the same time indicates a challenging problem that must be faced by medical men, health officials, educators and perhaps legislators.

Evidently something of the thoroughness achieved in combatting smallpox and diphtheria is demanded. Something of advantage is gained from the fact that children of school age for extended periods are grouped and subject to authoritative control. Application of scientific tests to determine earliest beginnings of infection is facilitated and might be made compulsory. The tuberculin test is simple and in no way harmful.

The importance of special care, nourishment and instruction of those known to show tendencies to tuberculosis has been demonstrated. Coordinated efforts must be made possible to prevent these ravages among the youth of the state.

MOTORISTS—HAVE A CARE

Motorists are warned by the American Automobile Association that the three worst months of the year for automobile accidents are November, December and January. More people are killed in auto accidents during this time than in any other three consecutive months of the year; although gasoline sales indicate that there is less traffic than in the summer.

Understanding by the motoring public of the cause of these seasonal accidents, and the use of proper care can greatly decrease the number of fatalities, and less of 10,350 lives in these months (the number of last year) can be avoided.

One of the common accident causes is skidding on wet leaves. Wet leaves are more dangerous than ice, because motorists pay less attention to their potential danger. Leaf skidding accidents can be eliminated by use of proper equipment and by driving with proper care.

The early twilight deceive many drivers, who accustomed to the long summer daylight hours delay turning on their headlights.

Cold weather causes many motorists to close their car windows, and this makes hand signalling difficult. It also causes a tendency to close garage doors while working over the car. An increase in carbon monoxide deaths result.

An automobile engine running in an ordinary small garage can cause enough poisonous gas in a few minutes to kill a person. It is therefore necessary that there be proper ventilation in the garage. Garages should never be shut up tight while a person is in the building with the engine running.

Another common cause of accidents is children playing the streets. They have a rightful claim for a place to play; and parents and municipal authorities should try to see that they have suitable places away from the streets. Parents should warn their children against playing where traffic occurs, and motorists should operate at a safe speed and have their equipment in good order to do their part to avoid striking a child.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Again we hear loud blasts for a Federal Education Department headed by a secretary in the President's cabinet. This time the recommendation comes from President Hoover's national advisory committee on education. The group has just completed a study covering a period of two years upon which it bases argument for a Federal Department. This committee would have the Secretary of Education instructed not to meddle with state educational affairs.

It is probable that the committee's proposal will be submitted before the coming session of Congress, but the necessity for strictest economy in all governmental affairs probably will be a strong enough force to prevent the establishment of a Department of Education.

The conviction has persisted throughout the country's history that education is best administered as a system when it is kept closest in touch with the home, the community and local institutions. That there may be phases of educational work which may be encouraged and bettered by nation-wide standardization and Federal support is the theory which prompted the Smith-Lever Act, providing for cooperative agricultural extension work, and the Smith-Hughes Act, having to do with vocational rehabilitation of soldiers incapacitated through war service.

But that there is any nation-wide demand for the Government to build up a Department of Education with its consequent necessity for flocks of political office holders, huge supporting staffs and magnificent headquarters in Washington seems hardly possible.

WHY SOME AMERICANS HAVE NOT BEEN WORKING

Speaking about Montgomery Ward & Company reminds us that the people of Chicago were startled by a commotion at the Montgomery Ward plant a few weeks ago. Pieces of paper were thrown out of windows raised at a given signal and the jubilee was in progress. The cause of the celebration was the docking of the steamship "Anna" from Belgium, the first foreign boat to dock at the plant.

Michigan farmers will be interested in the cargo, which was fifteen thousand tons of wire fence, which will be sold partly to Michigan farmers. American working men are walking the streets or being supported by charitable organizations and American factories are closed—but this, of course, does not bother Montgomery Ward & Company so long as they can buy fence cheaper in Belgium.

We sincerely hope that the farmer who buys this fence will not consider us presumptuous in suggesting that the Belgium laborer who was provided a job by Montgomery Ward & Company will not consume, with the money so earned, any of the products of Michigan farms.

AIR TRAVEL INCREASES

As a result of the heavy travel over the nation's air lines during the summer, the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce believes that the total number of passengers carried by these lines during 1931 will exceed 400,000. That would be an excellent showing for the airways of the United States, considering the comparatively recent development of them and the financial difficulties which they have faced in common with other forms of transportation.

In 1930 the country's air lines carried 385,810 passengers. Between February and May of this year passenger traffic was smaller than in the same months of 1930. But it increased so rapidly during June, July and August that the total for the first eight months of 1931 was 286,088 passengers, or 2,695 more than were transported during the same months of the previous year.

There was a time when the girls liked to hear the boy friend pop the question rather than hear him pop the cork.

MUSIC IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

"What is music?" This question has occupied our minds for many years. The very existence of music is wonderful, I might even say miraculous. Its domain lies between thought and phenomena. Like a twilight mediator, it hovers between spirit and matter, related to both, yet differing from each. It is Spirit but Spirit subject to the measurement of time. It is matter but matter that cannot dispense with space.

Giuseppe Verdi at the age of seven, was so hungry for good music that he quite forgot the craving of his rapidly growing body for food as he clung to the railings of an iron gate, pressing his little dust covered face against them in ecstasy as he listened to someone playing the piano in a big house with multicolored windows. He knew he could hear music there each evening that wholly satisfied his little heart and so it became his habit to steal away from the little hotel where he lived with his parents, each evening, to bathe in the sweet sounds which floated so entrancingly from the great house in the garden. The father of the young player saw Verdi one evening and recognizing his great hunger took him by the hand and led him into the beautiful house which must have seemed Paradise to the little lad whose eyes as well as ears were starved for beauty. When questioned about his love for music, he said shyly, "Yes, it means more than anything to me," and added naively, "You see, I play a little, too."

Someone hearing of his passion for harmony had presented the family with a very old, dilapidated spinnet. Every spare minute the lad had to himself was spent before it. Someone said of it, "Verdi never saw its defects. To him it was a shrine, and before it he worshipped constantly."

One of the large music stores of the country is running a full page advertisement. In it, they tell the story of Verdi, with a very appropriate illustration and captions. They then make a direct appeal to parents after this wise: "Perhaps your child has the same strong yearning for music which Verdi had. Are you doing anything to feed his hunger?"

He: "I'm keeping a record of all our good times in a book."
She: "Oh! D diary?"
He: "No, a checkbook."

Dr. Wilkinson Speaks

Monday morning, December 12,
Dr. Wilkinson gave a very interesting talk to the junior and senior high schools on the care of the teeth. This was one of the series of talks arranged by the extension department of the University of Michigan, and was greatly appreciated by the audience of young people.

P. T. A. Monthly Meeting

Last Wednesday evening the P. T.
A. held its regular monthly meeting.
Rev. Parker, chairman of the hot lunch committee, reported an investigation already made, and was requested to look further into the matter.

Mr. Bush spoke regarding adult education. Night classes for adults, conducted by members of the junior and senior high school teaching staff are expected to begin some time in January.

Junior Play

"The Enemy," which was presented last Thursday night by the junior class turned out to be a great success. Much praise is given to the cast in their successful playing. The cast succeeded very well in giving their parts as the play in itself is very difficult to portray in the real points of its plot.

A good crowd attended and helped in every way to make it such a success. The class reports successful returns to cover expenses. The entire staff showed excellent work in producing the play.

Christmas Program

The Christmas program which will be held Friday afternoon is in charge of the senior class. Norman Ance was elected chairman of the program committee, and he promises an hour of great interest to the students.
There will be selections by the glee clubs, singing directed by Miss Atkinson, and several readings. The session rooms already bear a festive appearance, due to the Christmas trees which were brought in Saturday.

Assembly Program

An assembly program of great interest was given last week by the American History class. This was the first of a series of programs given in honor of George Washington. The program was opened by singing "Columbia The Gem of the Ocean," after which Virginia Nickerson gave an account of Washington's life. Paul McCartney read a humorous poem written by a British soldier, and Lila McMillan closed the program with a most entertaining account of her trip to Washington,

State Director of Interscholastic Athletics Guest

Mr. C. E. Forsythe, head of the department of interscholastic athletics gave an exceedingly interesting talk to the boys of the high school Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. From here he went to Petoskey where a meeting was held concerning basketball rules and regulations.

Mr. Bush will speak at the P. T.
A. in East Jordan this week.

Junior High School

Seventh Grade Honor Roll—Marguerite Young, Mildred Withers, Leslie Shapton, Marjorie Miller, Ora
Howe, Jean Campbell, Esther Lou Fochtman, Anna Higman, Jimmy Hiller.

Eighth Grade Honor Roll—Gloria
Dickie, Adaline Bellinger.
Ninth Grade Honor Roll—Jack Withers.

The seventh grade had a most enjoyable party Saturday evening. The hours, from 7:30 to 9:00, were spent in playing games and running relay races.

In a rather surprising fashion, the girls defeated the boys in a basketball relay race which may be partly accounted for by the larger number of boys who had to put the ball through the basket before being permitted to report to their line.

Later in the evening, the boys managed to overcome any previous discomfiture by winning a game of volley ball by a large score.

Sandwiches, cake, and delicious hot chocolate ended the evening in a very satisfactory manner.

The seventh grade appreciated very much the presence of Misses Milner and Dasef, Mr. Rider and Mr.
Bingham.

In a Saturday morning basketball practice, the seventh and eighth grade boys began the season's work in preparation for several games, with other teams chosen from similar groups in East Jordan, Boyne City and Harbor Springs.

The primary court as provided for by the Charlevoix junior high constitution is being effectively organized by Lewis Greenman, director of public safety.

As cases necessitating its sitting arise, the court will hold sessions on Thursday at 8:15 at which time the accused, prosecuting and defending attorneys, witnesses and members of the primary court will be present. If the accused fails to be present at the time his case is brought up for trial, contempt of court will be considered an additional offense.

Under the direction of the assembly committee chairman, Helen Los-kot, a fine Christmas program is in the midst of preparation. The actors in the plays have been assigned their parts so preparations are moving forward smoothly.

Don't wait for business. Advertise.

COUNTY NORMAL

Dr. Case of the state department will talk to the normal class this week about "Health Inspection of School Children."

The class enjoyed Miss Harris' discussion of "Understanding Children" last week. Miss Harris is one of the lecturers sent out to visit the normal schools of the state.

Miss Behling and Mr. Moran have decorated the normal room so that it looks extremely Christmasy. The tree is decorated with original things made by the students and each normal teacher made two original Christmas gifts.

"Santa" is giving a party to the normal class Wednesday evening at the school. Everyone is very excited to see what kind of party Santa is going to give.

The holiday season makes people think of old friends. The spirit must be stirring the hearts of former normalites, since last week end found a goodly number back at normal headquarters for a visit.

The county normal extension library and regular library have once more been remembered with contributions of books. Miss Juanita Baker is the generous giver.

Training Room

The training room is entertaining the normal class with a Christmas program Friday afternoon. Several Christmas songs will be sung. Twenty characters from the 6th, 4th and 1st grades will produce "Santa Claus in Many Lands."

"The Christmas Crazy Class," a short play, will be given by the sixth grade. The first grade will present
"The Doll's Hospital," and the boys of the first grade will give "Letters to Santa." A selection, "A Christmas Secret," will be given by Keith Carey.

Boy Severely Injured

A 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs.
William Crick of Poplar street,
Boyne City, had both legs broken when run over by a truck driven by his father. The lad ran out of the house to tell his father to bring something from the store and got in the way of the truck backing out of the barn.

Staff Members, Etc.—Has Much Interesting Information

L. C. "Louie" Reimann, director of Camp Charlevoix, sends us from Ann Arbor a copy of the Camp Charlevoix "Thunder Bird," a novel eight-page booklet, which has been designed to keep the campers in touch with news of the camp, members of its staff, and doings of the campers themselves.

Aside from being attractive, the booklet contains mention of new things at the camp such as improvements, etc., and an assortment of camp gossip which should be tender reminders to the boys of the wonderful summer vacation past.

Among the many important announcements is that of a winter camp to be held from December 26 to January 2 for ten of the older campers. A program of winter activities such as skiing, tobogganing, skating and bobsledding here and at nearby cities with winter sports equipment is promised. The venture should not only be a delightful one for any taking advantage of it, but a successful one for the camp.

A permanent memorial will be erected for Stanley Moore, Lowell youth killed by a bandit early this fall while hitch-hiking to visit an uncle at Denver, Colorado. Director Reimann speaks highly of the character and ability of Moore, who served as counselor at the camp two summers. The memorial, to be known as "The Stanley Moore Memorial Museum," will be constructed of logs in the center of the camp. The museum will hold collections of forestry, insects, flowers, plants and animal life mounted in attractive form. Funds earned by the camp carnival are to be augmented by contributions from the staff and campers.

A Canadian canoe trip for fifteen young men of the age of 15 years or over is announced as a new feature for 1932. The first four weeks of the camp will be spent in making canoe trips up the Jordan river, from the headwaters of the famous Ausable river at Grayling to its end in Lake Huron, then for three weeks the members of this section will go into the Canadian wilderness beyond the Canadian Soo.

Another item says Ernie Reimann, brother of the director, is busy improving the camp for next summer, landscaping the approach back of the club house with trees, rock gardens, wild roses, sundial, etc. He is also making rustic furniture, improving the athletic grounds, tennis courts, etc.

The booklet, which will be published three times this year, is a clever idea and should be popular with camp patrons.

In what promises to be one of the feature contests of the 1931-32 season, the Polar Bears meet the famous St. Louis, Mo., "All Stars" Girls basketball club on the local court next Wednesday evening.

Out on their winter's tour, this girls team, boasting several all-American choices and a combination which has played together for several years, are an equal to most teams of men players. Aside from the unusual attractions of women vs. men on the basketball court, these feminine stars are no set-up for any man's team, promising a good, fast game. Admission to this contest will not be included on the season tickets now being issued by the Polar Bear management, a straight charge being made. On page five of this issue will be found a photo of the visiting girls team.

SCHOOL BAND GAVE ARTISTIC CONCERT

GYM PACKED FOR PROGRAM THURSDAY EVENING

Varied Program Wonderfully Received and Skill of Performers Reflected Fine Training

The Charlevoix school band, making its first fall concert appearance last Thursday evening in the high school gymnasium, gave a program which was as varied and spicy as it was artistic.

The largest audience ever to listen to such an organization in Charlevoix enthusiastically applauded this unusual group of young musicians. The spontaneity of the band reflected the careful training under Mr. Rider as director. Each variation and technical phrase was perfectly executed by the artistic control of the director's baton.

The program opened with Sousa's "High School Cadets," probably one of the most difficult high school marches by this famous composer, was very ably presented by this well trained group of instrumentalists.

The outstanding number of the evening's entertainment was Ed. Chenette's "Northern World," characteristic and descriptive overture. Music by Chenette is usually extremely difficult and this number undoubtedly showed such characteristics. "Northern World" required the strict attention and ready command of each instrument, which these young musicians played with apparent ease and self confidence.

Much of the success of the concert was due to the brilliant clarinet work of Hugh Parker. Superb in tone and technique was Hugh's interpretation of the 1st movement of Weber's 1st Concerto. This difficult solo was ably supported by the splendid accompaniment of Mrs. Stelter.

The band not only showed instrumental capabilities but they also showed they could sing. This was well demonstrated in the stanza of Sousa's "U. S. Field Artillery." The words were written by the director.

During the concert intermission the glee club sang several numbers, all of which were done in a very pleasing manner. Their selections were: "Winter Song" by Bullard, "Back Mid the Clover and Corn" by Rosenfeld, "Grant Us to Do With Zeal" by Bach, and "Hail Charlevoix" by Mr. Rider.

The second part of the program included Khor's march, "Men of Valor," "Simplicity," a very delightful selection by Dorothy Lee. The brass quartet composed of Virginia Block, James Block, Carl Beattie and Robt. Cummings played two Christmas hymns in a very well executed manner. The unique ensemble effects in "Beneath the Holly" were extraordinarily brought out by the various instruments. The evening's entertainment was brought to an appropriate finale by the stirring music of the famous "Lights Out" march by McCoy.

The brilliant colors of the stage setting added much to the effect of the concert. Those in charge of arrangements were: decorating committee—Ruby Supernaw, Virginia Block and Lloyd Arnold; program committee—Edna Knutsen, James Block and Carl Beattie; publicity committee—Ralph Lemieur, Lillian Novotny and Robert Cummings.

EPISCOPAL XMAS SERVICE ARRANGED

Mrs. Ray O'Brien Directs Program at Petoskey Church

An exceptionally beautiful program has been arranged for the Christmas morning service in Emmanuel Episcopal church in Petoskey.

The choir, with the assistance of additional singers from Petoskey and Charlevoix, will number about thirty. Mrs. Leo Brown of Petoskey, and Miss Morella Oldham of Charlevoix, will be the soloists. Miss Louise Snyder and David Cohen will play the beautiful Berceuse for two violins by Godard, and Mr. Cohen will play the exquisite Andante movement from the Mendelssohn Concerto. Mrs. Ray O'Brien is organist and director.

Those wishing to hear a fine musical service together with a service of divine worship and prayer, are requested to be in their pews at 10:20. The service will begin promptly at 10:25.

CONGREGATIONAL MUSICAL PROGRAM SUNDAY

Selection from Messiah by Instrumental and Vocal Artists

After several days of uncertainty, a decision has been reached to present a Christmas musical program by the adult choir of the Congregational church.

The plans of the choir were to give the program last Sunday, but the death of Mr. Stelter's father made it necessary to postpone the event indefinitely. However, the program will now be given Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

The musical numbers will be solos and choruses taken from the Messiah. One of the features will be the use of the organ and two pianos. Miss Gwendolyn Miller will preside at the organ, with Mrs. Carleton Dean and Miss Helen Parker accompanying at the pianos. The soloists for the occasion will be Mrs. Archie L. Livingston, Dr. F. H. Wilkinson and Albert W. Rider. Miss Lola Fessenden will play the offertory.

The program will be under the direction of Mrs. A. J. Stelter.

LEGION WELFARE WORK PROCEEDS

CHILDREN ARE CLOTHED AND SHOD AND HUNGRY FED

Opportunity is Afforded for Any Unemployed Man to Get His Winter's Wood for Labor On It

The Barnyard Party held at the American Legion home, Tuesday evening, netted a tidy sum which will be devoted to relief purposes.

Work of aiding the needy in Charlevoix and vicinity is being vigorously carried on by the members of Leslie T. Shapton Post under the direction of Welfare Officer Clarence Meggison. To date, some twenty-five children have been outfitted with shoes and clothing from the Legion fund and supplies. Last Sunday, about a ton of fresh, salted and frozen fish was distributed out around Charlevoix and in East Jordan and Boyne City and about two tons of fish are still on hand.

The welfare officer has located several woodlots and an opportunity is being given unemployed men (whether Legionnaires or not) who are in need of fuel to cut for their own use. The men are taken out to the grounds in crews, carrying their dinners with them, and the city trucks are used to haul them out and bring them back with the fuel. There is plenty of wood and anyone is welcome to join the crews who need the fuel and is willing and able to swing an axe.

The Legion post wishes to take this opportunity of thanking the ladies of the Eastern Star for their very welcome donation of five dollars for the relief fund.

The next affair at the American Legion home will be the dance on the night after Christmas, December 26.

SCENIC PAGEANT GREAT SUCCESS

M. E. CHURCH FILLED TO CAPACITY SUNDAY EVENING

Choir of Sixteen Voices and Visiting Soloists Given Lavish Praise for Presentation

An attendance which taxed the capacity of the First Methodist church, filling alcoves, balcony and aisles, and then leaving many standing, witnessed presentation of the Christmas pageant, "The Nativity," Sunday evening. Many who saw the pageant pronounced it the finest non-professional presentation ever given here.

Mrs. James Simmons, Mrs. Adah Beeman, Mrs. A. C. Belding and Mrs. W. W. Hurd were the committee in charge.

The choir of sixteen voices, augmented with solo numbers by Mrs. Maud Couse of Chicago, and A. C. Belding of this city, did remarkable work, reflecting great credit upon Mrs. A. C. Belding, who directed and trained the choir in addition to having charge of the music. The elaborate cantata-anthem "Oh, Holy Night of Memories," by Wilson, gave opportunity for the finest effects, among which was the soprano obligato by Mrs. Couse with the choir singing an arrangement of "Silent Night" to accord in unison and harmony.

A solo, "To Victory," by Mrs. Couse, and Mr. Belding's solo, "Birthday of a King," both by Neidlinger, were beautifully given with the finest interpretation and artistic effect. One of the new, modern classics, "The Adoration" by Borowski, was beautifully given on the violin by Miss Lucille Germond of Petoskey, who also accompanied the various scenes of the pageant. Excellent lighting effects were arranged for the scenes of this great Christmas story, which depicted the shepherd, the angel, the Wise men, Mary, Joseph, the manger scene, etc.

Much credit is due to local Odd Fellows for the loan of beautiful and expensive costumes for the scenes.

Mrs. Adah Beeman planned the scenes, while the interpretive readings were given with much dramatic effect by Miss Freda McMillan. Harold Newman provided the color changes in the lighting.

The many who took part cannot all be mentioned personally, but the committee greatly appreciates the ready response and cooperation of all.

UNUSUAL WHITEFISH SEASON NEAR CLOSE

PHENOMINAL LIFTS MADE AT FOX AND MANITOU ISLANDS

Record Catches and Extended Operations Flooded Most Satisfactory Opening Markets

This present week will probably bring a close to one of the most unusual whitefish seasons commercial fishermen of the northern lake region have experienced in recent years.

A fleet numbering around thirty craft were at the Fox and Manitou Island grounds for opening of the season December 15th, and at the allotted time miles upon miles of nets were set. First lifts ranged all the way from nothing at all for one fisherman who could not locate his nets to a phenomenal catch of over four tons. Early last week Roland McCann and Joe Sendenberg, both Beaver Islanders, brought in catches of 8,500 and 8,000 pounds, respectively from the Manitou Island grounds. Other island fishermen and members of the local fleet brought in lifts of varying weight, many running above average.

Local packing houses were fairly swamped with whitefish and a ready holiday market in New York, Detroit and other large cities, absorbed the heavy catches at the very satisfactory price of 17¢ per pound in the round. Enormous quantities were trucked to Cheboygan to make direct New York rail connections, while others were shipped direct from Charlevoix or trucked to Detroit. It looked like a bonanza for the fishermen.

Unlike some previous years, fair weather conditions continued, allowing fishermen to make more sets than usual. Following his initial large lift, McCann brought in further catches of 5,500 and 4,000 pounds, and other fishermen corresponding lifts, with the result that the market became flooded. This week there is no market at all and movement of fish is extremely light in comparison with the previous week. This unfortunate condition has made it necessary to freeze many tons of whitefish at local packing houses and commercial fishermen must now wait for returns from their labors.

EAGLETON HOME SCENE OF ENJOYABLE PARTY

The farm home of George Eagleton was the scene of an enjoyable party last Wednesday evening. A group of thirty-five friends and neighbors were present for an evening of cards, followed by a pot-luck supper. As the guests departed at a late hour, they voted Mr. Eagleton a most amiable host.

UNUSUAL WEATHER REMAINS IN NORTH

Golfers Enjoy Sport—Bugs Still In Evidence and Green Xmas Prospect

With reports coming in daily from scattered points throughout the region, columns could be written calling attention to phenomenal occurrences brought about by abnormal weather conditions of the present winter season.

Berry bushes in some instances are bearing their second crop of fruit, plants are flowering again, frogs, snakes, butterflies and whatnot have been reported.

Recalling similar conditions three years ago, a group of golf enthusiasts were out to the Belvedere Club course for a round last Sunday. Fairways and greens are reported to be in mid-summer condition.

And as this issue goes to press, the thermometer stands at 50 degrees above zero. Inland lakes are open and early falls of snow have disappeared. It certainly looks like a Green Christmas.

Have ready cash at Christmas time next year. A sure way is to join the Christmas Savings Club family at the Charlevoix State Savings bank.—Adv. 5111.

KIDDIES ENJOYED CHRISTMAS PARTY

AFFAIR SPONSORED BY LEGION DECIDED SUCCESS

Seven Hundred Greeted Santa Claus at Depot and Received Gifts at Legion Home—Free Movie Party

Perhaps the most successful Christmas party ever staged for children of Charlevoix and surrounding rural districts was that sponsored last Saturday by the American Legion Auxiliary, cooperating with the Legion and city council.

Due to unseasonable weather and lack of snow, hay loads were necessarily substituted for sleighs for the trek to the Pere Marquette depot to meet Santa Claus when he arrived on the northbound train, but little difference did the mode of conveyance mean to the happy throng of kiddies which had assembled.

The fact that Santa was forced to abandon his reindeer somewhere enroute to take to rails in order to keep his appointment seemingly added to the imagination of the kiddies, and it was an eager, noisy and enthusiastic crowd that all but swamped Old Saint Nick as he alighted from the train. No one, not even our famous Lindberg, ever received a more royal welcome.

Roynly enthroned upon the lending hay load, Santa led the procession to the Legion home on East Garfield avenue, where he presided (Continued on page 8.)

PETOSKEY WINS CLOSE CONTEST

DEFEATED KIPMEN 18 TO 17 HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Local Cagers Unable to Locate Hoop Throughout Game—Reserves Won Prelim by 10 to 3 Count

Petoskey high school cagers nosed out an 18 to 17 victory over Charlevoix's Red and White tossers on the local court last Friday evening in as thrilling a game as local fans have witnessed for some time.

It was a royal battle from the first to the closing whistle, with neither team gaining more than a three-point advantage at any time. The score was knotted 4-all at the end of the first period and Petoskey led 10 to 9 at the half. Charlevoix scored a pair of field goals to Petoskey's single deuce and free toss to tie the count 13-all at the three-quarter mark, but the visitors' two goals and free throw in the final session were a single point better than Charlevoix's two deuces, giving them an 18 to 17 victory.

From the standpoint of team play, Charlevoix held a decided advantage over Petoskey. They could not sink their shots, however, while the visitors made good on nearly every chance, both from the field and the foul line. Charlevoix missed seven close-in shots in the first period alone, and nearly as many more in the following periods. From the foul line they made but one out of ten tries, while Petoskey cashed in on 6 out of 8 chances. The Kipmen certainly had an off night as far as scoring points was concerned, but their brand of floor work was fast, clever and well played. With their shooting eye in better form, they will make trouble for most any opponent in the future.

For the visitors, White, forward, scored ten points, the best individual performance of the evening. Ance, center, and Chew, forward, scored 6 points each for Charlevoix, while Davenport added three and Smith two. Eight personal fouls were called on Petoskey and seven on Charlevoix. John Ferenz, Traverse City, refereed the game in his usual satisfactory manner.

Charlevoix reserves led all the way to win a 10 to 3 battle from Petoskey reserves in the preliminary game.

The Kipmen will have an opportunity to even the score with Petoskey next week. The second game of a home-and-home series between the two schools will be played at Petoskey's gym next Tuesday evening, December 29th, and a large crowd of local fans will be on hand for the game.

COMMUNITY RABBIT HUNT PROPOSED AT PETOSKEY

The Petoskey Evening News says: "The community rabbit hunt proposed as a means of providing fresh meat to needy homes of the county and also to provide a get-together for sportsmen of the county, is being well received and at a conference of a group of sportsmen it was decided to hold such a hunt on New Year's day, with Don McCoy and George McCabe as captains of two teams to be organized. The hunt will be known as the Emmet County Community Rabbit Hunt."

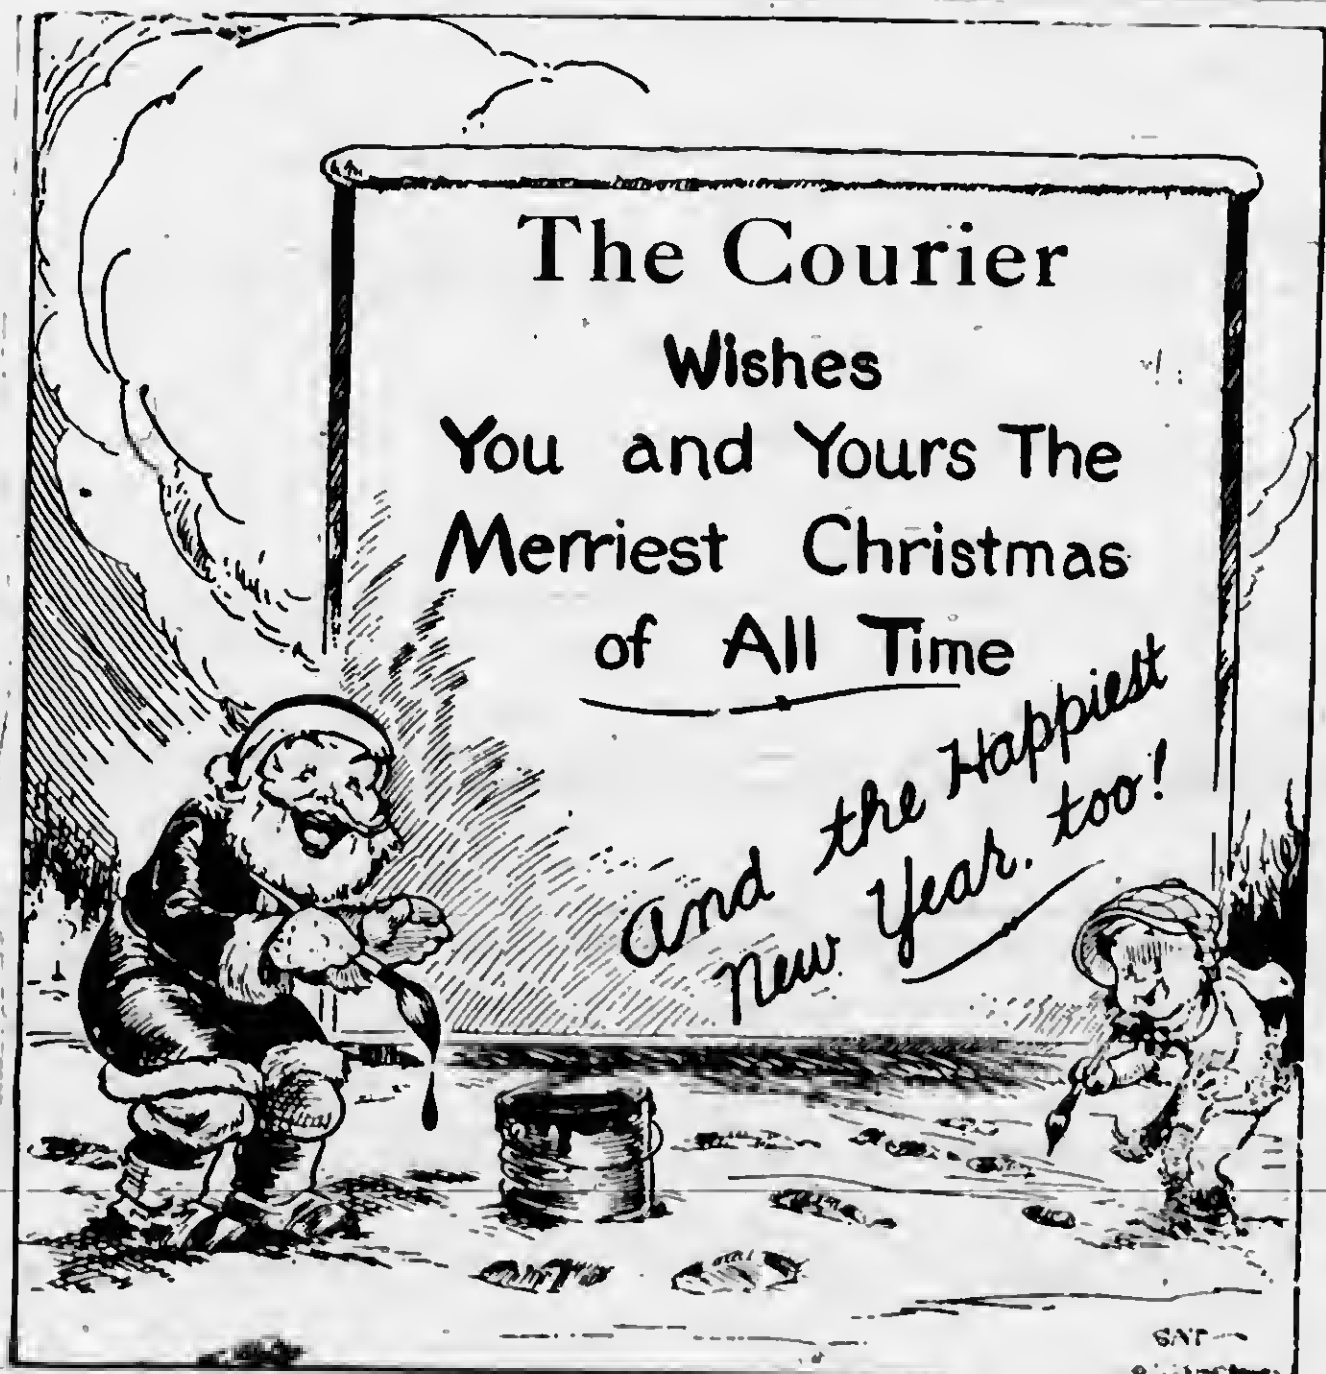

CHRISTMAS SEAL GIFTS TO BRING HEALTH TO MANY

"Santa Claus may not knock at as many doors this Christmas as last, but tuberculosis may knock at many more."

So warns the Michigan Tuberculosis Association in an appeal for redoubled efforts in Michigan's war against tuberculosis now carried on by Christmas seal funds.

Insufficient food, poor living conditions and worry are opening the door for the spread of tuberculosis which must be checked at once before it can kill its new victims. It is cited by the association. The disease will fall most heavily on those who, weakened by hardships, have been earlier exposed to tuberculosis.

The fight against tuberculosis, led by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and its local branches, is supported by the sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals. More than 30,000 Michigan people, half of them children, are estimated to have tuberculosis. In 1930 alone 2,912 people were killed in Michigan by the disease, five of them Charlevoix county residents.

"An' right," Alan agreed, "you'll be a mighty big help. If they put us out of it, you'll be in position to carry on with them. Let's go up to the post and make our arrangements. You'll be leaving ahead of us."

Meeting Buzzard in the trading hall, he introduced Pedneault and explained. They went on back to the kitchen and worked out their plans.

Pedneault was to leave at dawn in the launch. Then the plane would leave at ten o'clock. Passing Pedneault just inside the Thel-Azzah, the plane would fly on ahead, locate the bandits and bring them to bay. The two craft would thus close in together for the battle.

There was but one hitch in the plan. All three men were aware of it, but no one mentioned it. Those bandits had Joyce with them; they could and would use her for protection. How could they be swept with a machine gun's deadly spray when she was with them?

It was something which had to be left to luck or fate.

Alan gave final instructions: "If anything happens to the plane, don't try to fight those five men by yourself. Pedneault, swing wide of them, go on east to that big lake I mapped for you, and join Bill there. Then the two of you fight them to a finish."

"One other thing. I don't want Buzzard or myself to be charged with murder. You're in service, Pedneault; you'll not only be on a legitimate patrol, but you have the power to deputize us as special constables. We'd better put that down in black and white."

It seemed strange to Pedneault, who had sworn in half-breeds and Indian scouts and dog-team drivers on emergency occasions, to be swearing in his former officer commanding in so lowly a capacity. He wrote out the formal authorization: James A. Pedneault; status, special constable temporary; capacity, aviator. Alan McCleod Baker; status, special constable temporary; capacity, scout and machine gunner.

At the earliest hint of dawn they went down to the landing, inspected the launch and barked Joyce's light canoe on the stern half-deck. Pedneault shook hands with them, slipped into the wheel seat, and set out alone, a solitary figure, up the Big Alouka.

Waiting, nervous and jumpy, as both had waited for zero hours in France, Alan and Buzzard stalked about the mottled lonely post.

At nine o'clock, drawn down to the landing, they went over the plane for the third time, and Alan mounted the machine gun in the cockpit. When their zero hour came, he towed the craft out into midstream, held it there while Buzzard warmed the spluttering motor; and then, sending the canoe spinning with a kick, he sprang up into his seat.

Buzzard lifted the plane out of the river, climbed to five thousand feet, and headed into the northeast.

CHAPTER XII The Swan Nest

Thirty miles above the Alouka forks, they caught up with Pedneault. When he saw that all was going well with him, Alan turned his glasses ahead again, sweeping the dozen waterways within vision. He picked up two tiny black objects creeping up a broad blue channel ten miles on into the Thel-Azzah.

Signaling Pedneault that they had sighted the canoes, Buzzard slowed down to stalling speed. Pedneault answered back that he understood and they saw him open out the launch till a long narrow V-shape of white froth stretched behind it. Then, winging on ahead, they closed in for the battle.

As they drew near and Buzzard dropped to a couple thousand feet, Alan began to make out figures in the two craft. His heart leaped as he counted six persons. Nearer still, he distinguished a slender girlish figure in the prow of the lead canoe. They must have found that gun on Joyce, or else she had clung to her faith that he would save her.

Half-raising, Alan glanced back westward to find how near Pedneault was. A puzzled expression crept over his face as he failed to glimpse the launch in either the Alouka branch or the broad blue channel. With a premonition of disaster clutching him, he whipped up the glasses, focused on the connecting creek, and caught the big boat in clear vision.

The thing he saw brought a cry into his throat.

"The craft was not moving. It lay on its side, half out of water, hopelessly stranded. Either from rock-bleeding or from an accident no man could have averted, Pedneault had struck a mud bar hidden under the treacherous mottled water; and now the scum-covered launch, lodged suddenly in the mud, by the momentum of its headlong dash was out of the battle for good and all. Pedneault

Alan tore his gaze away from this disaster. It was all up to him and Buzzard now. Pedneault was out, the launch was out; Bill was a hundred miles away, and alone.

He tilted the Browning muzzle downward and steadied himself to run a burst at the rear canoe. But that craft darted up alongside the leading boat and hovered there, protected against his machine gun by their nearness to Joyce. With sullen faces upturned, the bandits watched the maneuvering plane, waiting for Alan's next move, defying him to touch them.

Buzzard had banked in a neat hair-pin turn, had dropped down to six hundred feet, and was flying back past a hundred yards off the vertical, so that Alan could fire down at them diagonally and double his concentration by ricocheting bullets off the water. It was a superb position. Alan could have killed those five bandits and sunk their canoes in half a minute. But he dared not fire a shot.

It was in that space of hopeless deadlock that Joyce came through. Alan saw her make him some slight sign, a mere gesture which the bandits, leering up at him, did not see. He read the meaning of that gesture:

But he dared not fire a shot.

Alan gave final instructions: "If anything happens to the plane, don't try to fight those five men by yourself. Pedneault, swing wide of them, go on east to that big lake I mapped for you, and join Bill there. Then the two of you fight them to a finish."

"The craft was not moving. It lay on its side, half out of water, hopelessly stranded. Either from rock-bleeding or from an accident no man could have averted, Pedneault had struck a mud bar hidden under the treacherous mottled water; and now the scum-covered launch, lodged suddenly in the mud, by the momentum of its headlong dash was out of the battle for good and all. Pedneault

Early from where she had lived, Joyce reappeared a moment, cast a frightened glance back, tossed the ill-shedded hair from her eyes, swam a stroke or two, and then slipped under again like a young otter, making for a soggy reed bed on the other side of the lake.

"Low! Fly low!" Alan shouted into Buzzard's ears. "Sweep low over 'em! They'll try to get her again if we don't force the fight now!"

With rifles snarling at them from flags below, with white puffs of smoke drifting away on the breeze, the plane banked and dived; and less than four hundred feet high, it soared over the bandits, its third time, its last and fatal time.

Nearly flung out bodily by the quick wrenching maneuvers, Alan braced himself and hung grimly to the Browning and ran a burst at the flags that the bandits were firing from. He killed a man; he saw the criminal fling up his arms and stagger and fall face downward in the reeds and water. With another burst, engulfing those flags from a side angle, he would have wiped out the other four.

But that chance was not given him. The thunder of the engine suddenly slackened, the motor spluttered and died; in place of the throbbing roar Alan heard only the swish of struts and hum of wires. In the sudden quiet he heard Buzzard's cry of consternation and saw his flight partner turn a white face toward him; and he guessed the engine had been put out of commission by those snarling rifles in the flags below.

The next instant, with those rifles still blazing away, a tremor seemed to hit the plane, as though other bullets had struck it. It lurched violently, its nose and right wing dropped, and it started a steep descent at this second mortal blow. Buzzard cut out ignition and battled with stick and rudder-bar to keep the plane from plunging into the bog under keel.

Two-thirds of a mile from the bandits, it fell heavily into the water on one wing and pontoon, rocked a moment uncertainly, righted itself and floated—but disabled, useless, out of the battle.

Before the spray from the plane's heavy fall had fairly settled, Alan was on his feet, stripping off helmet and jacket, looking back at the flags where the bandits lay hidden and the reedy bog where Joyce had found a temporary refuge.

For a moment, numbed by this sudden crash of all his plans, he stared hopelessly across that watery thousand yards. The launch was stranded, miles away; Pedneault and Bill were both out of the reckoning; the plane was disabled; the bandits were free to recapture Joyce and escape in their canoes. In the space of five minutes his whole venture had come to nothing.

From the bandits' covert to the bog where Joyce was hiding was a scant two hundred yards. Whatever move he tried, he must act swiftly. In a very few minutes, when those men recovered their wits, they were going to whip across, heat through those flags and find her again. She would never flit out of their hands a second time.

Whirling on Buzzard, he demanded sharply: "You can't taxi back there? Can't get me close enough to use the Browning?"

"Can't taxi a foot. Motor's out. They hit something; that's why the engine konked on us. Think the wire to the timber box is cut."

"How long—us to fix that?"

"Take us an hour."

Even as Buzzard spoke, Alan saw the bandits rise up yonder in the flags and start shoving their canoes into the water. They were going to dart across and recapture Joyce.

At the sight of that, his last hesitancy was swept away. Snapping around to the fuselage cubby, he jerked out the frail canvas canoe and unfolded it. Buzzard had been thrusting pliers, wrench and tape into his pockets, but now he stopped and stared wide-eyed at his partner.

"Good Lord! You don't intend . . . ?"

"What else? Stand here and watch them hunt her down?"

"Across that open water? Right into their rifles? Then shooting into you from cover? Alan, don't! For God's sake, don't try that!"

Alan jammed the last thwart-prop into its notch, lifted the canoe one-limbed down upon the water, flung in the paddle and jumped down upon a float.

"Hand me the Browning and the cartridge webs. Come alive! Don't you see they're starting across to get Joyce? Why shouldn't I go after them on open water? Larry Young did once. Hand those things down!"

"All right, then," Buzzard gave in. "But if you're going . . ." He seized the second paddle, caught up the light rifle which had been Joyce's and flung a leg over the cockpit edge. "I'm in on that, son."

Alan fended him back with an arm. "Stay here! That's what I mean! You can't help—out there. If you'd go, if they'd sink the boat, we'd both be out. Get busy on this plane. Fix it. You've got her rifle to fight 'em away from you. If they put me out of business, you can whip down and get Pedneault and fly over to join Bill. You three can carry it on with them."

He pushed off Buzzard's restraining hand, skirted away from the plane and headed west toward that acre of thick flags where the bandits had been driven to cover.

Pliers in hand but his work forgotten, Buzzard climbed upon a wing to watch the outcome of that fearfully uneven battle.

Alan's goal was a little patch of reeds three hundred and fifty yards from the bandits. It was a miserable place to fight from, when those four rifles would be snarling at him from perfect hiding. The patch was merely a few yards square; the reeds, only a couple of feet high, were so sparse that one could see through the clump; and the approach to it across that open water was a gantlet of death.

But it was all the cover Alan saw, and it was better at least than nothing. The reeds meant that the water there was shallow enough for him to plant the canoe low-on, he believed he might get to the flags. Once there, once the Browning leaped into play, he could smother those rifles in a few seconds.

The bandits had been shoving their heavily laden canoes back through the flags to the open water of the pond lying between them and Joyce. But when they saw him skirting away from the plane, they stopped and watched him for a few moments until his intention became unmistakable. Alan saw them hold a quick council. And then, as though realizing how deadly that open water stretch was, how impossible to cross in the face of four rifles, they pulled the canoes back and secreted themselves in the flags and coolly waited.

When he was still two hundred yards from the reed patch and nearly six hundred from the bandits, they opened on him. A rifle boomed dully like a cannon. Wheeler, and its heavy bullet ricocheted off the water a dozen feet to his left. Another barked at him. A third kicked up sparks a little nearer. Then the fourth, a sharp-cracking Savage, spoke out. Better aimed, in the hands of a deadly marksman, it sent a bullet so close past Alan's ear that involuntarily he winced and bent lower.

The second bullet splintered a hole through the blade of his paddle, up-lifted for a stroke. His third, still closer, struck the water between paddle and canoe, ricocheted off, spun on end and tore through the fat side of the canvas craft, missing the middle thwart by an inch. The fourth, elevated a little, sang past in air, harmlessly, but with a murderously close whizzing that jerked a gasp from his lips.

The fifth bullet hit Alan. His left hand felt numb and paralyzed. Glancing down at it, he saw the blood start spurting—falling in crimson splashes upon the white canvas. And then he saw that his ring finger, almost completely severed, hung by a mere shred of skin.

With one glance he realized his finger was beyond any surgery to restore. The dancing thing hampered his grip on the paddle. As though its loss was of no consequence in those moments of life and death, he took firm hold of it and pulled it off. The pain came then, in darting throbs that shot to his elbow and made him shiver.

As he gripped the paddle and turned his eyes ahead again toward the thin patch of reeds, he was hit a second time, by the sixth and last bullet of the "breed's" magazine. For a second he was dazed, so dazed he could not realize where he had been struck. Then he felt a pain like a hot iron pressed along his forehead; and something warm and crimson began trickling down into his eyes, half-blinding him.

The Savage did not shoot again just then. The "breed" was evidently reloading and lowering his elevation sight. In the comparative silence, Alan became aware that Buzzard was hoarsely shouting at him. Dimly he heard the pleading frantic yells:

"Back away! For God's sake, back away! They'll kill you, Alan! Look across. To your right. Something like cover. . . . Back away, swing over there!"

Slakened by pain and bullet-shock, Alan scooped up a handful of water and dashed it across his eyes, so that he could see. Glancing north, vaguely wondering what cover Buzzard meant, he saw a little reed bed two hundred yards distant. As he glanced at it, he saw that it was dry ground, standing a foot above water. A swan nest there, a huge structure of willow sticks and reeds and tassel heads, almost completely covered it.

Backing off a few dozen yards, he turned the canoe and flung his whole strength into reaching that swan nest. The three bandits, knowing he was hard hit, seeing the wobbly, erratic course of the canoe, came bursting out of the flags with eager shouts to finish him off.

A bullet, striking a few feet short, ricocheted off the water and tore through the prow. Alan laid the Browning down flat on the bottom to keep the precious weapon safe; and thrusting his foot against the jagged hole, he tried to stop the spout of water that was rapidly flooding his craft.

In a hazy way he was conscious that the dreaded Savage was not shooting at him. He was still clear enough of mind to realize there must be some reason, some ominous reason, for that. What was staying that murderous gun?—when he had but a handful of yards to safety. Pausing a second, jerking his head around, he saw the cause. The "breed" had leaped out of cover, like the others; but had raced up near the flags edge and splashed out into knee-deep water. In deadly range, he intended to end the battle with one magazine of cartridges.

Si Perkins drove into town from the backwoods the other day after having been busy on the old farm for quite a spell. A conversation developed and someone spoke up: "Si, what do you think of this unemployment and the country's all talking about? And this depression,—ain't it terrible?"

"Huh," replied Si. "What can you expect with Wilson as President?"

We've a thousand happy wishes for our friends and patrons, too. But to sort them out would be a mighty chore;

So we gave them all one wording, now no matter who is who—
Though we fear you'll say "I've heard that one before—"

STATE TO PROPAGATE NEW RAINBOW STRAIN

Fish Spawn in Spring and Remain in Native Rivers Longer

A new strain of early spawning rainbow trout, said by many to be of less migratory habits than the Michigan strain, will be introduced into the streams of this state next year, it is announced by the fish division of the conservation department in reporting the importation of 350,000 rainbow trout eggs from Missouri and Minnesota.

The United States bureau of fisheries is giving the department 250,000 rainbow trout eggs taken from the bureau's station in Missouri. This state will also receive 100,000 eggs of Minnesota trout through exchange.

The Missouri and Minnesota eggs are of rainbow trout which spawn much earlier than the trout now found in Michigan waters, and as a result are much more desirable, according to the fish division.

Michigan's rainbow trout do not spawn until late April and early May. As a result they are much more retarded in growth than brook trout which hatch in the fall. The eggs to be imported are from fish spawning during the fall months and it is thought that they may stay longer in the streams after reaching maturity.

NEW SOURCE OF INCOME FOR MICHIGAN FISHERMEN

An increase in production of fish fillets on the eastern coast and nationwide advertising of this product has brought a demand for fillets of fresh lake fish, according to Michigan commercial fishermen.

Commercial fishermen are looking to fillets to form a new substantial source of income. Trout and whitefish fillets, wrapped in parchment paper are desired by markets.

MOST PLANTS NEED PLENTY OF DRINKS

Daily Baths Also Aid in Keeping Foliage Thrifty in Dry Atmosphere

House plants, growing in containers need water often, but if the soil around the plant is always saturated, the plant dies because the roots can not obtain enough oxygen, according to horticulturists at Michigan State college.

The moisture requirements of the different varieties of house plants vary considerably but some of the troubles of providing proper amounts of water can be avoided if the pots in which the plants are set are placed in copper or iron trays and a layer of pebbles is placed in the bottom of the tray to permit the water to drain from the flower pots.

The foliage of the plants as well as the roots need moisture and, if water is sprayed upon the leaves with an atomizer once or twice a day, the plants will remain in a more healthy condition. The atmosphere in most dwelling houses is too dry to provide an ideal environment for plants.

Flowering plants bloom most satisfactorily if they are placed in a sunny, south window, but plants grown chiefly for their foliage are most thrifty if placed in an east or west window. All plants require a relatively large amount of light but their need for direct sunlight is variable.

Information about the proper care of plants is given in circular bulletin No. 99, "House Plants," Michigan State college. All college bulletins are mailed free to those who request them from the bulletin clerk.

SMALL PRAIRIE WOLF KILLED EAST OF TOWN

Just before going to press, James Morphy, who resides seven miles east of Central Lake brought to town a coyote, which he shot near his home early this week. The animal was about the size of an ordinary collie dog, and was very pretty with its heavy coat of fur.

Mr. Morphy reports that there is more of these small prairie wolves in his vicinity, although we seldom hear of one in this part of the country. When he arrived in town the word traveled fast and soon an excited crowd had gathered to see the coyote.—Central Lake Torch.

CENTRAL LAKE

Compliments of the season.

The editor of the Torch attended church services in Bellaire Sunday night.

Charles Austin and A. E. Sage left in Mr. Sage's car for a visit in Detroit, last Monday.

Lloyd Morse left for a winter's sojourn in Florida last week. C. H. Morse is looking after his horses.

Harry Chamberlin left Monday for a visit with relatives in Grand Rapids. He has finished his trapping for a while.

Coach Cross took a Pennsylvania train Friday for a visit with relatives at his home town in Missouri. Blaine Wilson took him to Mancelona.

Central Lake schools closed last Friday for the two weeks' vacation. Out-of-town teachers have departed for their respective homes.

E. R. Jones of Norwood, was in this vicinity with Rev. Kendall last Friday evening. He is now agent for the Greening Brothers nursery stock. Work has begun on M-66, between Mancelona and East Jordan. It is said that the Italians set such a pace that it is hard to keep up with them. Several farm teams were taken off the road as it was too hard work for them.

Norwood had 44 in attendance at Sunday school last Friday evening. They will have a special Christmas program next Friday evening. Mrs. Miller is furnishing the sacks and Rev. Kendall the candy for the occasion. The attendance of the Sunday school has kept up splendidly during the whole year and the L. A. S. is helping on the pastor's salary. Rev. Kendall is very much encouraged with the way Norwood people have helped out with the Sunday school work.

MAGAZINE IS PAL OF BOYS

Those boyhood years between the ages of ten and twenty are the impressionable years—the formative years when the fundamental character of a boy is molded into the pattern it will maintain throughout the remainder of his life.

That is why so much importance is placed on the factors that govern the lives of adolescent boys—their companions, their environment, their reading, the food they eat, etc. At this age is determined whether the boy will develop into a cheerful or surly man, generous or selfish, intelligent or dull, ambitious or indolent.

School teachers, librarians, Scout leaders and others engaged in boy activities have found that THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION magazine is one of the most favorable influences a boy between ten and twenty can have. Its stories and articles are a force for good—wholesome, alive, inspiring.

The million or so boys who read this magazine every month consider it their closest friend. In it they find the keenest entertainment, adventure, mystery, everything that delights a lively American boy. Its sports features help boys win places on their school team. Its professional articles and biographical sketches aid them in selecting their life's work. Its keenly analytical editorials guide them in their daily problems.

That boy or young man in whom you are interested would have a world of pleasure reading THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION. Make a subscription to this magazine your gift to him. Subscription prices are only $2.00 for one year or $3.00 for three years. Mail your order direct to THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION, 550 W. Lafayette Blvd., Detroit, Michigan.

Church Wedding Saturday Evening at Ironton a Pretty Affair

The Congregational church at Ironton was the scene of a very pretty wedding last Saturday evening, when Miss Bessie Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brown, became the bride of Glen Allen, son of Mrs. Matt Allen.

Rev. G. R. Parker, pastor of the local and Ironton Congregational churches, performed the ceremony, using the impressive ring service. The bridal party advanced to the altar to strains of a wedding march beautifully played by Faldin Ogden.

The bride, attended by her sister, Miss Agnes Brown, was attired in powder blue chiffon with gold metallic hat, and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. The maid of honor wore green chiffon with gold metallic hat, and carried a similar bouquet. Glen Allen, brother of the groom, acted as best man. Claude Dean, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer and Betty and Virginia Dean, nieces of the groom, and Mary Lou Peterson, niece of the bride, were flower girls.

Following the ceremony, fifty guests were present at a wedding supper at the home of the bride's parents. The house was prettily decorated in pink and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen, both life-long residents of the Ironton district, will make their home in Lansing. They take the best wishes of a large following of friends with them.

BITS OF INFORMATION

Fall is the best time of year for dairy cows to freshen, says the Bureau of Dairy Industry. Winter is second choice, spring third, and summer last.

Choose a day for slaughtering farm stock when the carcass will cool rapidly but will not freeze. A temperature of 34 to 40 degrees is desirable.

See that the houses for the brood sows are well bedded with clean material this winter. The U. S. department of agriculture recommends wheat or rye straw, prairie hay, or shredded corn fodder. Oat straw is not so good as it retains too much moisture.

Whenever practicable, gather mummified fruits left in the orchard and burn or bury them, or plow under deeply before buds open in the spring. These dried-up fruits carry disease spores, especially the spores of brown rot, and they may spread diseases next spring.

Late December or early January is the best time of year to give horses medical treatment for botfly larvae and also certain stomach worms and large intestinal roundworms. The U. S. department of agriculture has found that carbon disulphide is very effective against these pests. A veterinarian should give the treatment with this drug.

Wheat may well take the place of middlings or shorts in the poultry ration this year. One good mash feed suggested by the U. S. department of agriculture is 35 pounds of corn meal, 20 pounds of ground wheat, 4 pounds of bran, 20 pounds of meat scrap, 15 pounds of ground oats, 2 pounds of dried buttermilk, 2 pounds of fine oyster shells, and 1 pound of salt. This makes 100 pounds of feed.

Food for birds is more attractive if it is protected from the weather. One excellent device is a coconut with a hole made in one end, stuffed with suet, and hung by wire from a tree limb. Cans with small openings also make good containers. Suet baskets may be made of wire netting or metal grating. Food may be mixed with melted fat, and put in holes made in a branch or stick, in cracks of bark, or poured over evergreen branches. The food hoppers in common use for poultry are adapted to feeding birds, and special kinds of wild birds are now manufactured.

Uncle Sam Says
Allspice is the dried unripe fruit of the pimiento tree. It is called allspice because it is said to have the odor of all the spices.

Out of every 100 buildings struck by lightning only 2 are protected by lightning rods. Lightning causes an annual loss of $12,000,000.

The department of agriculture has planted in this country more than 200,000 Japanese chestnut trees, which promise to be resistant to the American chestnut blight.

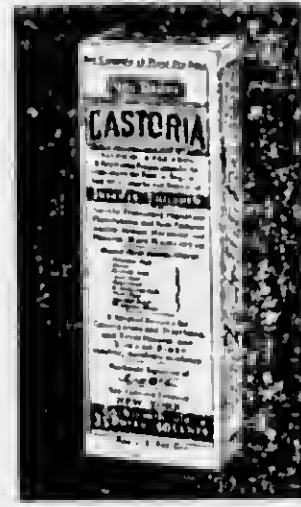

More than 3,000 varieties of soybeans are being harvested this year at the experiment farm of the department of agriculture. This is the largest collection of soybeans in the world.

Labels on Canned Beans

Canned beans are put up in many different ways. A label saying "baked beans" or "baked pork and beans" means that the food was cooked, before canning, in an oven with dry heat. "Canned beans" and "canned pork and beans" are blanched, sealed in cans, and processed with steam. The terms "Boston" and "New England" on cans mean linked beans flavored with molasses. Canned beans, pork and beans, and linked beans other than Boston or New England style are usually packed with plain sauce or tomato sauce. Plain sauce is made with salt, sugar or molasses or both, spices, caramel, and water, and sometimes with a little vinegar or onion juice. Tomato sauce is usually made from tomato pulp and some water, and is sometimes spiced and sweetened.

Logs for Cabins

Winter is the best time for felling trees to be used in the construction of log cabins and farm buildings of logs and poles, says the U. S. forest service. If you want to keep on part of the hark, it will stick better if you score the log with an ax on two sides for the full length. It may also be necessary to tack the hark to keep it in place. The foresters recommend seasoning the logs in the shade as much as possible and piling them to permit circulation of air. By cutting in winter when the sap is not running, the logs will be less subject to fungous attack. For more permanent structures, the foresters recommend peeling the logs. Creosoting is sometimes used to prevent rotting. Protective coatings of paint or preservatives are excellent to protect cuts made by notching at the corners.

Made specially for BABIES and CHILDREN

Physicians tell us that one condition is nearly always present when a child has a digestive upset, a starting cold or other little ailment. Constipation. The first step towards relief is to rid the body of impure wastes. And for this nothing is better than genuine Castoria. Castoria is a pure vegetable preparation made specially for babies and children. This means it is mild and gentle; that it contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. Yet it always gets results! You never have to coax children to take Castoria. Real Castoria always bears the name:

GIVES NATIONAL ECONOMIC PLAN

By ROME C. STEPHENSON
Former President American Bankers Association

WE hear much of future economic planning to save the nation from a repetition of depression and promote more stable business activity.

R. C. STEPHENSON

I know of no better plan than this to build for the nation as a whole a stronger economic situation—that is, through a common structure of individual working, earning and saving. And I know of no better plan to revive activity in a depression than to spend a proper volume of past savings to keep the momentum of business going. But unless there are savings in prosperity there cannot be spending during depression.

Those who practiced this plan during the past period of prosperity have a security and a protection against present adversity that could be provided in no other way. Those who did not are the ones who are now most dependent upon others. If there had been more preaching of this doctrine when it was more feasible to put it into effect than it is now, there would be less depression and less financial insecurity today.

However, while there should have been more emphasis on savings during prosperity, a measure of the emphasis today might properly be the other way—at least to the extent that those who can safely do so may well increase their spending instead of overdoing their saving. While many have seen their earnings fall, there are millions who have not suffered so seriously in respect to the real purchasing power of their incomes. If we listened to all the scare stories of the day, one might get the impression that everybody was out of a job and nobody's business was earning anything. Many of our people who are able to continue a normal program of prudent buying are curtailing their expenditures beyond reason. The sum total of this unreasonable curtailment of spending is an economic influence contributing to the stagnation of trade. By the opposite token, I believe the resumption of normal spending on the part of those who are able to do so would be an important tonic toward the stimulation of trade. I do not mean by this that we should have indiscriminate spending merely for the sake of spending, but the very motive power of our economic life is the interchange of goods, and unless we have that we cannot have prosperity.

I strongly believe that we are at that point in the depression stage of the business cycle that any sound stimulating influence will start a real movement in the direction of a return toward prosperity. So much of the weakness of the old state of affairs has been liquidated, so many maladjustments corrected and such large volumes of our consumers' goods have been used up or worn out that the pressure of necessities purchases must sooner or later be felt. When that time definitely comes we may consider it the first impulse of a new era of normal business.

MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF STATE WEEKLY NEWS BULLETIN

The mileage allowance of department of state employees who use their own private automobiles on state business, will be reduced from six to five cents a mile on January 1, 1932, it was announced by Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald.

The reduction was ordered after the department made an analysis of automobile operating costs and were convinced that five cents a mile was sufficient to operate a medium sized automobile.

About two weeks ago, higher-paid employees of the department voluntarily accepted a salary reduction ranging from two per cent for those receiving $1,300 a year to five per cent for those receiving $5,000 a year.

The new regulations for the weighing of trucks and trailers before 1932 licenses can be obtained, will benefit honest truck owners, instead of working a hardship on them, it was pointed out by Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald.

The new regulations require that the truck owners secure an official weight receipt after having their vehicles weighed on a designated scale. This receipt then must be presented when 1932 licenses are obtained.

In the past honest truck owners always paid their full tax to the state. But they have been penalized by dishonest owners who have not borne their full share of the cost of operating the state, it was pointed out. Under the new system, the honest owner will pay the same tax as in other years and will have the satisfaction of knowing that others are not defrauding the state and thereby gaining an advantage in lower operating costs. The new regulations are expected to add at least $500,000 to the state's revenues in 1932.

Furniture polishes, waxes, and cleaners can easily be prepared at home.

If the egg supply is limited serve the children first. The egg yolk is most important as a source of iron. They should be used at least three times in the week's menus.

To keep children warm on chilly days choose a light weight coat. If it is loose enough to permit the wearing of a sweater under it on colder days, it will be most satisfactory because two light weight garments are warmer than one heavy one.

Too many necessities spoil a costume. One lovely thing such as a string of beads, an attractive pin, or a bracelet is often all that is needed to complete an ensemble.

To clean fur, first sponge it well with gasoline to loosen the dirt. If it is very soiled, rub in cornmeal while the fur is still damp, then beat out the meal, and brush the fur thoroughly. Finish by hanging the fur in the sunshine for several hours.

GASOLINE

There is between 75,000 and 100,000 gallons of gasoline consumed in the county by county equipment in the course of a year. This varies somewhat, contingent upon the variable seasons, between 20,000 to 30,000 gallons.

Of this amount the state pays for about 20,000 gallons per year and around 600 gallons of lubricating oil. The contract price in barrel lots for the oil ranges between 50 and 55 cents per gallon. There is a small amount of oil that is purchased for special use or in emergency cases at stations, that are purchased at higher prices, but the amount is negligible.

For the past few years gas stations have been accumulating rapidly. It is an easy matter to build a small gas station involving a few hundred dollars and then expect, and demand, a portion of public patronage.

The menace and embarrassment in this county is perhaps no more acute than in many others, but just the same it is like all problems—one that has to be disposed of.

The Charlevoix county road commission has been giving some thought and study to the proposition. Several plans have been discussed and thought of, and some of them partially put in service. Inasmuch as the gallonage has in recent years grown to some sizeable amount, one of the first plans talked of was for the county to install a large storage tank and purchase this material in tank car lots, which would mean some substantial saving to them. This, however, had to be abandoned and could not be put in use as in some other counties, for the reason of the peculiar topography of the county, laying as it does in triangular outline, with East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix forming the triangle. In other words, if the storage tank was located in any of these cities, trucks could not go at the end of the day and fill for the reason of the great distance.

Another plan was to install underground storage at each of the three garages and have the bulk plants at these points service these tanks. While this does not entirely meet the situation it seems to be the most favored one and some progress has been made in that direction by the commission. A plant has been installed at Charlevoix and one at the garage at East Jordan.

The commission is gradually working along to a definite end in handling this item. They have many tasks to perform in the course of a year—which demands in the supplying of motor fuel, other than just a pump or station service—such as running the screens about the county, tractors, graders, and other equipment, which have to be serviced on the job. This can be done only by a distributor who has full equipment and can give tank wagon service. A jobber of this type also has considerable higher investments than does just a station man. He must meet with the above requirements in both summer and winter months, and on many occasions has driven out to snow plows on perilous days and nights that brought to him actual loss rather than profit for his effort.

Keeping in mind the full service that is required by the commission in motor fuel requirements, they have felt that this business should go to the jobbers in the county who could serve best, and pro-rated among them. In Charlevoix county these have been found to be as follows: East Jordan—East Jordan Co-ops, Standard Oil Co.; Boyne City—General Oil Co., Standard Oil Co.; Charlevoix—W. H. Wallace, Standard Oil Co.

While it is realized that the commission has not hewed strictly to this policy as yet, it appears to the writer that they have been gradually making progress to some definite policy. At Charlevoix, we are told, that the W. H. Wallace company handled the gasoline account, and the Standard Oil company had the oil and fuel for the Ironton ferry wholly, and a goodly portion of the lubricating oil, which over a period of years has been satisfactory.

The county road commission are having a lot of work thrust upon them, and we believe the board of supervisors feel that they have made a splendid showing this year. They have carried excellent cash balances and have paid their bills to date. This gasoline item is just one of many they are handling and the writer has no apprehension but that it will be ably taken care of. Just because a few people have got a sour grape in their stomach or do not personally like one commissioner or the other, is no good reason why the rest of us should get excited at all. No county around us is making as a whole, a better showing in their road department, and if those who are trying to embarrass or cramp the efforts of the commission in their work would turn their attention and efforts to more useful things, they would confer a great blessing and service to all of the constituents and taxpayers of Charlevoix county. Please change the record and play a few tunes of more cheerful music.

The following editorial from the pen of Ed A. Nowak, published in the Michigan State Digest, Lansing, Thursday, November 19, 1931:

$10,000,000 MORE OR LESS
"$10,000,000 sounds like a lot of money. Just say it over to yourself two or three times—ten million dollars—and you will realize what a fine, mouth-filling phrase it is, how well it fits into an oration. Perhaps that is why it was selected for use in connection with the famous 'winter highway program' for the benefit of the unemployed."

"The sum was not chosen because it represented the state's ability to pay. Not with a $7,000,000 deficit in the general fund that is increasing every day. It doesn't seem to have been chosen because it represented even a wild estimate of the highway work that could be done this winter. Neither in finance, fact or fancy does there seem to be a $10,000,000 winter highway building program."

"The projects approved so far seem to point to a total program of a little less than $10,000,000—about $4,000,000 of which is frankly part of next summer's road building. Another part of that mouth-filling $10,000,000 is ordinary winter maintenance that would have been carried on if nobody had thought of relieving the unemployed or if there had been no unemployed to relieve."

"It will be interesting, when all the conversations and conferences and orations about the Winter Program have passed into the realm of trivial past history to find out just how much there really was to the ambitious proposal that the state build roads under snowbanks."

THE TRADE IN THE DRIVEWAY WAY THAT DIDN'T WORK

Scene—South Arm township, October, 1930.

Time—Beautiful autumn Sunday morning.

Principals—Herman C. Meyers, Boyne Falls; Leon Balch, now Cheboygan; S. E. Rogers, road commissioner; Supervisor Charles P. Murphy.

Consideration—Purchase of county airport.

Amount—Not to be considered seriously if deal was accepted. Picture in your mind, dear taxpayer, if you will, a beautiful October setting in 1930 as above outlined, with men driven to madness in their "last hour" desire to elect "their" candidate for road commissioner, dealing with a supervisor, or attempting to, in these terms. Just how or what good could come of that? Were these men working secretly, as they were, doing so with the taxpayers and road department at heart? If you think they were, ask the Boyne Citizen to explain just why these men were not in church on that beautiful Sabbath day instead of Murphy's driveway?

LOCAL MAN TO ATTEND ROAD BUILDERS' MEET

F. H. Wangeman, Charlevoix county road commissioner, East Jordan, has been appointed by Gov. Brucker as one of the official representatives of the State of Michigan to attend the 29th Annual Convention and Road Show of the American Road Builders' Association in Detroit on January 11-15.—Charlevoix County Herald.

On November 5th, this appointment was made by the Governor to all of the road commissioners in the state, and of course Mr. Rouse of Boyne City and Mr. Myers of Charlevoix received theirs. They were just as pleased to receive the appointment, no doubt, as was Mr. Wangeman, and, in all probability will attend the convention. When Commissioner Wangeman handed this information to the newspaper, why didn't he include the other two commissioners and the full information?

BUNGLES SIGNALS—NEARLY LOOSE GAME

Quarterback E. J. Olson Calls Wrong Numbers—Substitution Saved Close Game

The smooth working team of Clark Hare, E. J. Olson, Chester Naylor, Coach Herman Meyers and others, which has been functioning so nicely the past few weeks with their series of articles appearing with regularity in the Citizen, nearly lost a decisive battle in their attack of the county road commission and their distribution of gasoline patronage, issue of The Boyne Citizen, December 3rd.

After a few days of rest, and then a hard work-out, Coach Herman Meyers whipped his team into action with Olson calling signals on the debate with the commission upon the topic. He began, calling his signals to his team mates slowly—1928, 1929, 1930, 1931, and the ball was off. Commissioner Rouse streamed through the line and tackled quarterback Olson in his tracks before he had fairly time to get rid of the ball to his team mates. The attack was so perfect and furious from the hard charging commissioner, that Coach Herman Meyers, on the side lines, grew frantic and immediately substituted Clark Hare as quarterback. Hare, an old head at the game and fully accomplished with all of the tricks that go with it, barely rescued his junior team mate, Olson, from a fatal game.

Coach Herman Meyers administered counsel on the side lines to his young recruit, "You called the wrong signals" said the coach to Olson. "1931 is the only safe signal that we would dare call on the opposing team of the road commission with that young recruit of a Rouse playing on the team. You should not have called the signals 1928, 1929 and 1930 when your playing in opposition with the commission and the gasoline matter, for they know all of those numbers and know they are 'weak sisters' and just how to handle them. Watch Hare pull the curtain on the boys out there, he will see that only 1931 is called." And so just through the sheer clever handling of Veteran Quarterback Hare at a crucial moment, was the game held to a tie. Olson is still playing the benches and it is a question whether Coach Herman Meyers will again trust the scoring performances of his team to the direction of the young recruit.

COACH HERMAN MEYERS

Coach Herman Meyers is having some interesting days just now, directing the pen of Editor Hare of The Boyne Citizen in their attempted attack and discredit of the activities of the county road commissioners. Every morning the hour is devoted to planning and laying out the work, with Mr. Meyers at the side of the editor at his desk.

Many extra copies of the weekly issue are furnished Coach Meyers, and he in turn, sees that they get in the hands of the good people about the villages and cities of the county. The coveted objective is to keep constantly in the minds of the constituents the shortcomings of the commission and to make themselves look bigger in the eyes of the people.

But we are afraid before they are through with it, that old adage may assert itself: "People who live in glass houses should not throw stones." The writer is not surprised that the nimble Editor pulled the curtain on the past history of his noble topic and we know of many the past history of whom, no doubt, would not look good in print, and bear investigation.

Coach Meyers has laid out the work for next week. Let's see, that will be the issue of December 24th, and that "masterpiece article" will have to do with the "False Economy and Cheap Building of the Project Work This Year," etc., etc. Isn't it too bad that these disciples who have suddenly fell heir to all of the wisdom of the road department that they were not some of the commissioners. No doubt the county roads would be built of cement or gold from end to end if news ink would do it.

LIBERAL REWARD

Interested persons will pay liberal reward for a certain letter from the State Welfare Commission intended for Chairman of the Board of Supervisors which was last heard of in the court house building a few weeks ago. Any definite information will be promptly rewarded.

MARL COSTS LITTLE IF EVERYONE HELPS

Teamwork in Osceola County Enables Farmers to Prepare Soils

Teamwork between the county road commission, farmers of Osceola county, and the county agricultural agent of that county has made it possible for the farmers to obtain marl needed to prepare suitable seed beds for the sowing of alfalfa without spending much money.

The county agent located several beds of excellent marl which were needed to correct the acidity of the soil needed for the production of a legume which would add fertility to the soil and furnish high quality hay for livestock. The marl was suitable for the purpose but the cost of getting it out hindered its use.

The county road commission agreed to loan an excavating outfit owned by the county for digging the marl if the owner of the marl bed would agree to sell the material at a low price to his neighbors. As soon as the owners of the marl beds agreed to this, digging was begun at advantageously located beds.

Enough marl was taken out and used in 1930 to sweeten 1,500 acres of soil, and a still greater amount has been used in 1931. An estimated saving of $12,000 has resulted from the use of marl as compared with the cost of other materials used for correcting soil acidity.

NEW CHAUFFEUR LICENSES ARE READY

The fee for chauffeur's license is $2.00 per year, from January 1st to December 31st of each year, and not from the date of issue.

MANY HARBOR PROJECTS LOST PLEAS

Charlevoix and Petoskey Requests Refused by War Department

Dispatches released from Washington, D. C., indicate that Charlevoix will receive only a minimum amount for harbor improvements during the coming years.

Extensive improvements asked by the U. S. engineering department were turned down by the war department and the $6,000 allotted will probably be used for necessary dredging. Proposed improvements in Cheboygan river to Mullet lake, Petoskey harbor, harbors of refuge in Black and Au Sable rivers and many other Michigan harbors were turned down.

EXTRA LEGISLATIVE SESSION IS HINTED

MAY CALL SOLONS TO PROVIDE ROAD BOND RELIEF

Committee Is Named to Draft Legislation—Meeting Held Monday to Solve Tax Problems

Symptoms which appear to indicate that Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker is preparing to bow to demands for a special legislative session for tax relief purposes were being diagnosed in official Lansing circles Tuesday.

The governor closed his all-day conference with a state-wide group discussing the Covert road bond indebtedness of the counties Monday by appointing a commission which was instructed to report back on January 18 with a concrete plan whereby the counties can be relieved of one of their most troublesome burdens.

The fact that the commission was ordered to report next month rather than to prepare its recommendations for the consideration of the regular 1933 session is the basis on which proponents of a special session have their hopes.

Following the conference the governor declined to say whether or not he intends to call the state solons back to Lansing before 1933, but he did not deny that there is significance to the date set for the commission report.

The governor shunted aside a direct request that he place himself on record concerning the possibilities of a special session. The question was voiced by George Smith, Oakland county property owner, but the governor evaded reply and offered other conferees their chance to be heard.

Monday's conference was characterized by an honest universal demand for a highway construction "holiday" on the part of both the state highway department and the departments of the counties and townships. Particularly was this ultimatum presented from the urban counties which at the present time are most feeling the burden of their Covert road assessments.

Specifically, these demands ranged from proposals that the state assume responsibility for the retirement of the $44,000,000 which the counties have issued in Covert bonds to a suggestion that the entire weight tax collected by the state be returned to the counties for this purpose. At the present time only one-half of the auto weight tax is sent back to the counties.

In the middle ground of the proposals was that sponsored by the Michigan Good Roads association which proposes new legislation to permit the counties to refund their Covert bonds over long periods, to permit them to use their shares of the weight tax for the retirement of these bonds, and to place a limitation on the amounts which the counties may raise for road purposes.

Although this plan was submitted by William M. Connelly, of Spring Lake, secretary of the association, it was received by the conference as the administration plan—especially since the proposal to limit road taxation blends with Governor Brucker's "Indiana plan" which the 1931 legislature turned down.

Adoption of such a solution to the Covert road situation would require a special session of the legislature if it were to be placed in immediate operation, and the governor admitted that at least half of the problem facing the state in this respect is for immediate action.

Connelly, in introducing his proposal, said that new legislation probably would be required to permit refunding of present bonds; that the highway revenue acts would have to be amended to permit use of portions of the weight tax for retirement of bond issues; and to limit road expenditures of the counties in the future.

Startling pictures of the situation in which property owners in the metropolitan counties find themselves as the result of too rapid real estate expansion, overinflation of property values and other depression effects were portrayed to the conference Monday.

Property owners in wholesale numbers are to lose their holdings in Oakland, Macomb and Wayne counties unless relief is afforded, it was said, while those who have kept up their tax payments to date, will be unable to do so in the future when the lands of their neighbors revert to the state.

But while there was complete agreement that "something must be done to relieve the situation," utter lack of harmony existed to the method to be used. Outstate conferees balked sharply at proposals which propose to divert their highway revenues to pay for the debts of other counties; the districts most deeply in debt demanded nothing less than complete payment of their indebtedness by the state.

The Covert road act was state legislation, they said, and because the state provided the pitfall for them the state should shoulder the costly results.

Charles Roxburg, master of the State Grange, expressed the outstate viewpoint when he said he approved any plan to enable the hard-hit counties to work out their own salvation, but that he opposed any plan to disrupt other counties because of the "folly" of others.

The commission which is expected to work out a program from relief is composed of Frank P. Rogers, former highway commissioner, chairman; Rep. J. Earl McNitt, of Cadillac; Clark Brody, Michigan State Farm Bureau; Sen. George Leland; William M. Connelly; Bruce Leggat, of Pontiac; Bert V. Nuanoley, of Mt. Clemens; Leroy C. Smith, of Detroit; Louis C. Webber, secretary of the Michigan Real Estate association, and H. E. Larson, of Crystal Falls.

The children have still another treat in store for them on Christmas afternoon, Friday, December 25th, when they will be guests of Mrs. Elizabeth Moon at the annual free picnic at the Palace theatre. All children under the age of 12 years are invited to attend.

WELFARE WORKERS DISCUSS PROBLEMS

COUNTY-WIDE MEETING HELD AT BOYNE CITY TUESDAY

Reports Showed That Every Possible Means Is Being Used to Aid County's Unemployed

Unemployment problems in Charlevoix county was the topic for discussion at a meeting of the Charlevoix County Welfare Committee at the American Legion hall in Boyne City Tuesday evening.

The meeting, called by Chairman Harry A. Craig of this city, was attended by mayors, poor commissioners and welfare committee members of all cities and villages of the county. The purpose was to obtain a general analysis of the unemployment situation and, if possible, to devise a program to aid the problem.

A comprehensive report was given by R. T. Davis, county road superintendent, relative to activities made possible by widening of the grade on M-75 between Boyne City and Boyne Falls, a project included in the state highway department's $10,000,000 winter emergency program for the relief of unemployed. Mr. Davis reported that registration of unemployed from various cities and villages in the county totaled 493, divided as follows: East Jordan, 60; Boyne City, 275; Charlevoix, 115; Boyne Falls, 43. Through use of the "stagger" system of employment, Mr. Davis stated 247 men, 15 teams and 13 trucks had been given work on the project since operations were started several weeks ago.

A general discussion of the class of men to be given employment on relief projects showed all in favor of using men who are permanent residents of the county, especially married men with families who are located in cities and villages and faced with rent and other pressing domestic problems.

Frank Wangeman, East Jordan member of the county road commission, called attention to the fact that there would be no special work on county roads during the winter aside from the regular snow removal program, and following his remarks, a motion was carried instructing chairmen of welfare committees in each district to meet with the road commission to affect a distribution of unemployed on maintenance work which will become necessary.

Remarks by Mayor Arthur Bergeon of Charlevoix, Mayor Vought of Boyne City, and Howard Porter of East Jordan, revealed measures being taken by the various cities to aid the unemployment situation. All cities are carrying out limited programs of civic improvement, thus giving work to many. Mayor Arthur Bergeon lauded the welfare work of the American Legion, which this year has carried out one of the most complete and comprehensive programs this county had ever experienced. Efforts of the Charlevoix Post have the situation in this city well in hand.

From the various reports and discussion during the meeting Tuesday night, the casual observer could readily see that every possible means is being used to aid the county's unemployment problems.

HIGHWAY JOBS ARE PART TIME

Department Will Continue Half-Time Program Until Conditions Change

The state highway department will continue its policy of working employees half-time until there is an improvement in economic conditions, it was announced last week by State Highway Commissioner Grover C. Dillman.

This means, he said, that next summer the department will work men only half-time in accordance with the present system which was adopted when the $10,000,000 winter highway employment relief program was announced.

Even under the new policy there will be fewer men in the 1932 summer payroll than during the past season, Dillman explained. The reason for this, he explained, is that highway construction funds, normally spent during the warm months, are being used now to provide winter work.

The employment report of the department for the period from December 1 to 15 shows that the average number of men employed was 11,296 while the maximum number on the payroll at any one time was 23,978.

LOCAL PEOPLE ON RADIO BROADCAST

Mrs. Gerald Bush and Esther Mary Atkinson on WOWO Program

Supt. Gerald F. Bush of local public schools, who with Mrs. Bush, is vacationing at Upland, Indiana, sends a communication of interest to local citizens.

In his letter Mr. Bush states that Mrs. Bush and her sister, Miss Esther Mary Atkinson, music director in local schools, will be heard over radio station WOWO (Fort Wayne) on New Year's evening, December 31st, at 9:30 central standard time.

The Atkinson Sisters Quartette, composed of the two people above mentioned and two other sisters, Thelma Atkinson and Mrs. Doris Atkinson Paul, will broadcast at that time.

Station WOWO is quite a strong station and is often heard in Charlevoix. Local citizens will no doubt be interested in this item of news and will tune in on the station for the program Thursday evening.

CIRCUIT COURT SESSION MONDAY

CRIMINAL AND DIVORCE CASES HEARD BY JUDGE GILBERT

John Priebe, Bay Township Farmer, Given From 2 to 10 Years at Jackson for Arson

Following a procedure started some time ago of calling extra court sessions to keep the docket of non-jury cases cleaned up, Judge F. M. C. Gilbert of Traverse City, disposed of several criminal and divorce cases at a special court session Tuesday morning.

Arden Dixon, who had been a guest at the county jail since an attack several weeks ago on A. C. Hansen, oil station operator, was arraigned Monday morning on charges of assault with intent to rob and assault and battery. He pleaded guilty to the second charge and was placed on probation until the October term of court. Dixon was ordered to pay court costs.

John Priebe, Bay township farmer, was sentenced to serve from 2 to 10 years at Jackson prison following his plea of guilty to a charge of arson. When first arraigned, Priebe entered a plea of not guilty, but changed his plea to guilty later. Prior to his arrest, Priebe had signed a written confession before Deputy State Fire Marshall McKenna and Deputy Henry Steimel of Boyne City.

Herbert Thompson, East Jordan, pleaded not guilty to a charge of larceny, which resulted when he was alleged to have stolen an automobile. He was bound over to the March term of circuit court under bond of $2,000.

Following examination of claims on file in the receiverships of James Wyers and the Charlevoix Hardware Company, both cases were ordered continued.

The special court session Monday disposed of all but one criminal case and quite a large number of chancery actions without the necessity of calling a jury, thus saving a tidy sum of money for tax payers of Charlevoix county. This procedure eliminates long, drawn-out court sessions, and is to be commended.

POLAR BEARS OUT-GLASSED DAMSELS

WON GAME FROM WOMEN STARS BY 28 TO 20 SCORE

Packed House Saw Rather Mediocre Showing of Highly-Touted St. Louis, Mo., Girls Quintet

Scoring practically at will, the Charlevoix Polar Bears romped to an easy victory over the highly touted All Star girls aggregation from St. Louis, Mo., last Wednesday evening before one of the largest houses to pack the high school gymnasium in a long time.

The Polar Bears got away to a poor start in the first period, which ended with the locals leading 3 to 0, but once they found out it was just a ball game rather than an exhibition, it was only a question of how many times they wanted to score. The visitors had a team of women that were fast on their feet and good at locating the hoop, but their chances were few and the outcome was never in doubt after the Bears really opened up in the second quarter.

Davenport, Higman, Brown and Supernaw had all contributed deuces to boost the Polar Bear lead 14 to 3 at the half. Miss Hamisack, forward on the girls team, scored a free toss and a goal.

The Bears stalled through the third session, contenting themselves with possession of the ball. They added 5 points during the period to the visitor's two, and as the final quarter opened, were leading 20 to 5. Continuing their loose playing, the Bears looped through enough shots in the final session to keep in the lead, while Miss Melton, right forward for the visitors, found the hoop for a quartet of deuces and one free toss, and Miss Hamisack added another deuce for a total of 15 points. It was their best showing of the evening, but a gift proposition at that for the Polar Bears could easily have run up a tremendous score had they cared to.

Davenport was high for the evening with 10 points. Miss Hamisack, the red-haired forward, was next with 9 and then Brown with 8. "Pete" Hallett was referee and George Driggett umpire.

INDIANS ARRESTED FOR KILLING ILLEGAL DEER

Conservation Officer Koboski of Petoskey and Weber of Cheboygan, made a raid on an Indian home at Levering last Monday and there discovered parts of carcasses of three deer hanging about the home. The Indians were arrested and taken before Justice of the Peace Rotha where they pleaded guilty to the charge of pursuing and killing deer and possession of venison out of season, and each went to jail for 30 days. Neither one of the fellows, named Dan and Tom Waanygekik, had a license to hunt or to kill deer.

SCHOOL BAND GOOD MORAL INFLUENCE

RAISES CHARACTER STANDARD OF YOUNGER BOYS

Statistics Show Many of Country's Leaders Are Exponents of Instrumental Music

(By A. W. Rider, Director Charlevoix Bands.)

No stronger influence exists for good citizenship than a boys' band, for bands attract boys surely and firmly as a magnet draws bits of steel.

The value of a school band to a school and the community has long been recognized. The improvement in the general morale of the students and the social benefit to the school and to the community are well known. But the study of instrumental music is beneficial to each boy or girl who takes it up. The mental discipline, the healthful physical exercise and deep breathing, are obvious advantages. Furthermore, when a boy becomes interested in a band he loses interest in the harmful associations which would otherwise occupy his time. Membership in a school band has improved many a truancy record. Scholastic requirements for band membership have caused more application to school work than all of the promises and threats of teachers and parents. You owe it to your school to put good influence to work. May we explain to you just how it can be done?

Facts You Should Know

1. A recent survey in the high schools of Springfield, Mo., showed that the average grade of students who had taken instrumental music for six months or more was three points higher than the average grade of students who had never studied music. In the junior high schools of the same city the differential was more than 4½ points. This is an increase in efficiency of about 25 percent. There were 3,478 students in the schools surveyed, of which 739 had taken instrumental music.

2. Many of the statesmen and industrial leaders of America have been players of musical instruments. The late President Harding, Vice-President Dawes, Charles M. Schwab, Henry Ford, Walter P. Chrysler and Clifford Durant are a few of the well known men who have found pleasure and mental relaxation in music of their own making. Several of these were at one time members of their home town bands.

3. Deep breathing, open-air exercise, erect carriage, constant alertness, subordination of the individual to the good of the whole, personal neatness, the care of valuable property—these are a few of the things that a band teaches its members. These are the things you would like to have your boy learn.

4. Within six months a group of green recruits, without musical knowledge, can be developed into a presentable band, capable of playing a wide variety of band scores. The Denver Boy Scouts' band played a week's theatre engagement, ninety days after its organization.

POLAR BEARS SIGN NEW YEAR'S GAME

Play Strong Midland Team on Local Court Thursday Evening

Announcement Tuesday by Manager Gordon Todd of the Charlevoix Polar Bears that he had signed with the Midland Hlayden-Parkers for a basketball game here New Year's Eve, Thursday, December 31st, adds a bright spot to the holiday week's entertainment features.

The Midland aggregation, one of the strongest professional teams in southern Michigan, have furnished strong opposition for the Polar Bears since their organization four years ago. Results of their games have been about fifty-fifty as near as can be remembered without authentic records, with the Polar Bears winning their home contests and dropping those at Midland on their annual southern tour.

Midland will bring its usual strong line-up for the game Thursday evening, promising a close and interesting contest.

KIPMEN DEFEATED BY PETOSKEY FIVE

DROP SECOND GAME TO NORTH—MEN BY 16 TO 12 COUNT

Outplayed Opponents Through Three Periods, But Defense Cracked in Final Session—Reserves Win

Although out-playing their opponents through three quarters of a close game, Charlevoix basketballers lost 16 to 12 to Petoskey's class B Northmen in their second meeting of the season at Petoskey Tuesday evening.

Through a closely played first period, the two teams battled to a deadlock. The count stood 2-all as the second quarter opened and during this session Charlevoix scored a goal and three free tosses to Petoskey's single deuce to lead 7 to 4 at the half.

Joe Smith, Charlevoix right guard, added a pair of field goals in the third session, while Petoskey's only score came through Dombroski's gift shot. The quarter ended with the Kipmen out in front 11 to 5.

With an apparent victory tucked away, Charlevoix defense cracked. Petoskey scored five goals on follow-up shots and a free toss for 11 points, while Charlevoix's combined efforts produced a single marker from the foul line. Loose defensive playing by McSahy and Chew accounted mainly for Charlevoix's defeat. As in their previous meeting on the local court, the Kipmen showed to a decided advantage on team work, but their defense, especially in the final period, was woefully lacking.

White, Petoskey forward, turned in the best performance of the evening with 11 points. Dombroski, center, added 5 and Parks 2. Joe Smith marked up 6 points for the locals. Once made 4, and Chew 2.

BAY SHORE MAN ENDS HIS LIFE IN CISTERN

Services were held at 10 o'clock a. m. last Tuesday for William Redfield, 62, Bay Shore, at the Illeika funeral parlors, Petoskey, with Rev. E. P. Linnell officiating. Redfield wrote a note, "You'll find me in the tank—I stand myself no longer," and ended his life by drowning in a large cistern at his home at Bay Shore. He had been in ill health and despondent over the death of his wife two years ago.

Sheriff Thomas L. Bryant and Dr. G. W. Nihart, coroner, were called to the home and removed Redfield's body from the tank.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Asa Burnett and Mrs. George Barber.

WORK ON U.S. 31 RE-ROUTING PROMISED

BIDS ON PROJECT TO BE ADVERTISED THIS WEEK

With Legal Phases Completed, Actual Preliminary Work Will Soon Be Commenced

Word that definite action would soon be forthcoming on the re-routing of highway U. S. 31 entering this city from the south was given in a telephone conversation between a Courier representative and State Highway Commissioner Grover C. Dillman at Lansing late last week.

Mr. Dillman stated that advertising for bids on the project would be placed this week, and, with this formality completed, it would be only a short time before actual work was started.

The re-routing, which is a part of the highway department's five-year program and one of the projects outlined on the $10,000,000 winter emergency program for unemployment relief, has been held up for several weeks through inability of highway department engineers to procure necessary property for the right-of-way. According to information available, three property owners along the proposed route have set the value of their holdings at a figure higher than the state's valuation, thus making it necessary to institute condemnation proceedings to procure the several parcels of land.

A hearing as prescribed by law was held at the court house here last Wednesday morning in an attempt to settle differences between the state and land owners. Demands were submitted to highway department representatives, and these, in turn, were to be considered at Lansing. Whether or not the requests property owners made Wednesday will be accepted is not known, but in case they were not, the property will be condemned.

The re-routing will bring U. S. 31 on a northeasterly curve from what is known as the "Four Corners" to connect with South Bridge street. If present weather conditions continue and legal obstacles are removed in time, there is no doubt but what considerable grading and preliminary work will be completed yet this winter.

Over in the east end of the county, workmen are still being used to widen the grade on M-75 between Boyne Falls and Boyne City. This job is an emergency project also. The work has been under way for some time and is now nearing completion. Highway department specifications call for 1-course gravel, but this operation will not be started until spring.

BUY BEET SUGAR

Five of Michigan's fourteen beet sugar plants are operating.

A still insufficient tariff, the depression, the government supported Mississippi barge line permitting less-than-cost shipment of Cuban sugar into the heart of the middle west, the great water rate advantage of foreign cane over beet sugar producers who must ship by rail, have accounted for the other nine, shut down and waiting for a better day.

When normal the beet sugar business in Michigan is a $10,000,000 industry, half of this amount being paid to farmers for beets, one of the best of all rotation crops; the rest in field labor, an annual 100 days of mill labor supplies such as coal and limestone for the mills, and freight. Most of this business is lost to Michigan today, in common with the other larger beet sugar producing states.

It's worth saving. Better general business conditions will soon be helping in that respect. The St. Lawrence seaway will help overcome disadvantages of midland producers. But meantime the average Michigan housewife can do a great deal to help.

She can ask for beet sugar at the grocer's. In England this sugar is given a general preference for household use. In our own country modern machinery has eliminated its former disadvantages for canning. Chemically it is the same as the cane product. And in effect upon the state of Michigan—in release of capital, increase of employment, new prosperity to agriculture—a beet sugar purchase is infinitely better than just a request for sugar.—Grand Rapids Press.

DIVORCE AND HOME LIFE

"Essentially divorce is a character problem, and not one of environment," Rev. Herman Page, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Michigan, told a recent gathering of ministers in Detroit.

Difficulties are as likely to break a family relationship as temptations. People who do not take life seriously and people who have not been imbued with the sacrificial character of life, are apt to take divorce as an easy way out of a difficult situation.

"One of the reasons for the great number of divorces today is that we have left untouched one of the most important problems of human life, the art of relating our lives to the lives of others."

"We spend millions on our universities. Our young people could find courses informing them all about the marriage problems of the Greeks and Romans and Babylonians. But if they wanted to take a course on how to become a good husband or a good wife, they could not find it."

"Many homes could be salvaged if the church could get the people to bring their problems to the minister. But if this is to be accomplished, the church must be committed to an attitude of mercy, rather than the old attitude of punishment."

"One reason why people do not come to us is that they fear us judges because we are so fond of denouncing people and things."

The suggestion of Bishop Page that young people be taught a few of the essentials of how to become a good husband or wife is a sound one, but he neglected to mention the most vital factor of all in training young people—the home.

Children, reared in homes where they see exemplified a congenial mother and father, whose married life is a success, are fortified with the deepest and the most lasting impressions that can be acquired. High schools and colleges could be made more valuable than they now are, in teaching problems of home life, but even at their best, they can never be as effective in character training as the home. Fathers and mothers who give their children a worthy home environment are bestowing upon them a lasting heritage.

ONLY FOUR DEAD

While it verges a trifle toward the ghastly, we suppose that the state department of conservation is right in feeling elated over the fact that only four hunters were killed during the 1931 deer season. This score compares favorably with the total of nine men killed in 1930 and the total of 11 killed in 1929. Only one of this year's casualties was shot when mistaken for a deer. An undetermined number of minor accidents occurred. Although there were nearly as many men in the woods this year as last year, and although absence of snow would seem to have made conditions ideal for accidental shootings, the new law preventing issuance of a deer license to anyone who within the past five years has killed or injured anyone in a hunting accident is credited by the conservation department for the small number of accidents. Doubtless this law kept a good many nitwits out of the woods and impressed the need for caution upon a good many others. But the next year or so, when the novelty of the new regulation has worn away, will tell the story of the law's effectiveness more fully than the past season. The toll this year might well have been higher, it seems, except for fortunate intervention. In one case, a Gary, Ind., man, illegally "shining" deer, shot another hunter and then fled, leaving the wounded man to die in the woods. The injured hunter was saved by another nimrod and the man who did the shooting sent to prison for a term of from nine to four years.

STATE'S PROFITABLE CROP

There is food for thought in a recent report covering the past resort season issued by the Chamber of Commerce at Sault Ste. Marie. It reveals that in the current year 60,000 tourists left the tidy sum of $415,484 in that city. The total number of persons stopping at hotels was 22,414; rooming houses ranked second with 10,028, while tourist camps accounted for 9,072. If these figures seem large, it should be chronicled further that in 1929, the peak year, 105,269 persons visited the Soo and left behind them the sum of $782,150.

The rest of the state can echo the words of the Escanaba Press. What is true of the upper peninsula is true of the lower, and especially true of the western Michigan area. Says the Escanaba editor:

"In these times, when industrial plants are reducing payrolls and farmers are getting drastically reduced prices for their products, the tourist business is being looked upon by upper peninsula communities as a good provider, whose ability to help has not been so much affected by the depression. And now is a good time to make changes and other improvements in preparation for the next season, instead of waiting until the tourists are with us again, asking for those services and conveniences which they naturally have a right to expect. We must have our house in order when the guests arrive."

TO BUILD CONFIDENCE

The best way to end the present depression, we hear, is to create confidence in the hearts of our people.

Interesting, but the one thing that cannot be created by order is confidence. Studied attempts to manufacture such a feel rarely succeed. It is based upon faith that must erect itself from the experiences of men and women.

Frankly, we don't know how long this depression will take. When it has been done, the depression will be at an end.

WM. WITHERS INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE MISHAP

Quick Turn to Avoid Hitting Unlighted Wagon, Caused Crash

William Withers, Marion township dairyman, is in Charlevoix hospital for treatment to severe injuries received in an automobile accident near the Greiner farm late Monday afternoon.

According to reports, Mr. Withers' delivery car turned turtle several times when he lost control of the machine after making a quick turn to avoid striking an unlighted wagon which loomed up suddenly as the car broke over the top of a hill.

Mr. Withers' left arm was badly lacerated from being dragged some distance on the roadbed under the overturned car. It is also feared he may be suffering from internal injuries.

ACCOUNT BOOKS HELP ON PROFITS OR LOSS

Financial Statement Is Necessary to Pay Income Taxes Or To Borrow

Farmers who file income tax statements, or those who borrow money from their banks find the account books issued by the farm management department at Michigan State college a great aid in either endeavor.

The account books kept by more than 1,300 Michigan farmers this year show both these financial activities are a necessary part of the year's work on some of Michigan's 169,372 farms. It is almost impossible to file an accurate income tax return without a complete financial record of the year's business, and it is difficult to borrow money at a bank without giving the banker a financial statement.

Most Michigan farms keep some records, but only a small percentage of them avail themselves of the opportunity to obtain account books which were designed for their business in this state. These books are distributed at cost by the county agricultural agents or by the farm management department at the College.

Provision is made in the books for each farm enterprise, either in crops or livestock. Space for household accounts is also provided. Most of the account books are started early in the year when the supplies of grains and forage are the lowest.

The farm management department staff helps many of the state farmers in opening their books, checks them at least once during the year, and closes them at the year's end.

STATE ADDS ACREAGE FOR PUBLIC HUNTING

Large Blocks of Game Cover Provided During Past 18 Months

Within the past 18 months the state has received an income of $125,207 through lands sold by the department of conservation, it was announced by the lands division, which has charge of administering approximately 2,200,000 acres of public domain.

The income was received through the sale of 45,077 acres and 2,000 city lots.

In addition to selling the state owned lands, 97 homesteads were granted. They had an aggregate area of 8,900 acres.

The department spent $190,000 during the 18 months period from the game protection fund for the purchase of 46,300 acres of land to be used for game refuge and public hunting lands purposes.

The lands division during the year also effected the exchange of 13,285 acres of land within state forests and game refuges for 13,900 acres of isolated state owned lands. Most of the lands obtained in forests and game refuges in the blocking out processes are obtained through exchange, the state giving lands it does not need for lands already within its organized projects.

* MICHIGAN DEPARTMENT OF STATE WEEKLY NEWS BULLETIN *

The extension of time for the purchase of 1932 license plates to March 1, 1932, was granted by the Secretary of State purely as a relief measure to help those who, due to economic conditions, would be unable to secure plates January 1st.

All who are financially able should buy their plates as usual, prior to January 1, or as soon thereafter as possible, and should not take advantage of this extension which was granted primarily as an aid to the less fortunate.

Although few citizens realize that the Department of State is one of Michigan's major revenue producing agencies, department records show that $51,489,376 was collected for the first eleven months of 1931.

Among the outstanding highlights of the past year is the fact that with 66 building and loan associations with assets of $165,269,540 operating in Michigan under the supervision of the department, not one of those associations closed its doors because of adverse economic conditions. Indications are that all will "come through" in fine shape.

The gasoline tax was the biggest revenue producer of the department, $22,010,367 being collected during the first eleven months of 1931. Motor vehicle weight taxes took second place with $20,182,885. From corporation privilege and franchise fees, the department turned $7,023,936 into the treasury. The new operators and chauffeurs license law yielded $772,553 while the old law, in effect but a few months last spring produced $22,051.

From the malt tax the state received $595,173, all of which by law must be used to pay the state's share of caring for tuberculosis victims. The automobile title division collected $488,321; while licensing of private detectives yielded $2,000. Department investigators added $146,138 to the state's revenues through enforcement of laws regarding use of foreign license plates and compelling truck owners to pay proper fees on the correct weights of their vehicles, and $76,322 from malt tax enforcement.

DETROIT MARKET FOR NORWOOD TWP. TURKEY

Robert Matchett Shipped Over Ton and a Half There Last Week

One of the largest shipments of turkeys ever made from this district by an individual owner was trucked by J. C. Marshall to Detroit last week for Robert Matchett, prominent Norwood township farmer.

Matchett raised 600 turkeys on his farm this year. The Detroit consignment of dressed fowl totalled 3,109 pounds and still left quite a large number of turkeys for the New Year's trade.

MICHIGAN EDUCATIONAL MEETING DATES ARE SET

The representative assembly of the Michigan Education association will be held in Lansing March 24, 25 and 26, directors of the organization announced. District meetings will be held in the following cities: Detroit, Oct. 27, 28 and 29; Saginaw, Oct. 20 and 21; Lansing, Oct. 20 and 21; Grand Rapids, Oct. 27 and 28; Traverse City, Sept. 29 and 30; Ann Arbor, Oct. 14 and 15; Marquette, Sept. 29, 30 and Oct. 1; and Benton Harbor-St. Joseph, Oct. 13 and 14.

VETERANS MUST FILE CLAIMS BEFORE DEC. 31

Warning that World War veterans have only until December 31 to file their claims for the Michigan bonus, was given by Fred Beard, state welfare officer for veterans of foreign wars. Veterans are entitled to $15 a month for each month served between April 6, 1917, and August 1, 1919. Heirs of any veteran who died during his service or as the result of wounds or disease contracted during it, are entitled to collect the bonus also.

RABBIT SEASON OPEN TO 1ST OF FEBRUARY

The month of January, included in the open rabbit season for the first time in years, is expected to afford hunters with opportunities unequalled during 1931. By 1931 legislature the season was extended a month this year in the lower peninsula to January 31. The season up-state closes on the same date. Thus far hunters have had wonderful luck and large numbers of rabbits have been killed. With the return of snow predicted for January still greater success is predicted.

If cheese is melted in the white sauce instead of being grated on top of various escalloped dishes, the usual tough, rubbery result will be avoided. High temperatures such as are necessary to brown oven dishes are too hot for the cheese protein.

If we would have our children obedient, we must be sure first, that we have the child's attention. We should be sure that what is expected of the child is appropriate to his age and development, and we should remember that a courteous request is always better received than a command by both children and adults.

Much of the backache caused by standing while ironing can be saved by standing on a rubber bath mat. It is much less tiresome than a hard floor.

To keep the metal tops of salt shakers from corroding, cover the inside with melted paraffin. The holes may be opened while the paraffin is cooling and is still plastic.

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

A moment after Alan turned to look, the breed crouched, steeled his rifle and drew aim. Alan ducked down, the bullet screamed over his head. It had been aimed at his head. By the fraction of a second he had saved his life. The next bullet struck him, burned through his shirt sleeve, tore a gap in his fore-arm, and passed in front of his body, three inches from his heart. Knowing that the next bullet would surely kill him, Alan flung himself bodily out of the boat to escape that dreaded rifle. Submerging himself, with the craft between him and the breed, he clutched the gunwale with his shattered and bleeding hand. Pushing the clumsy craft, he started to swim, in a last goaded effort to reach the safety of the tiny islet. A dozen yards further on, in hip-deep water, a spinning slug struck the middle of his forehead, and the frail craft caved in. Gridding the gun and cartridge work out of it, Alan tumbled a glance at the bandits, rose, and dashed for cover.

Staggering under his heavy burden, with his feet sinking into the quivering mud underfoot, he splashed frantically through the water, throwing all his exhausted strength of body, all his undying strength of heart and will, to those two-score yards. His little haven of safety became dim—a bounding red blur seen through a reddish mist. He was struck in the leg; the shock staggered him, he dropped a web of cartridges; but gripping the others tighter, he lurched on.

Nearly blinded, breathing in hoarse gasps, with his great strength ebbing away, he groped and stumbled through those last few yards to the tiny islet, and collapsed there behind the big awan nest.

For a little time, a minute or two, he lay quiet, breathing heavily, fighting down a nausea of pain. Dully he heard those rifles still snarling at him and heard the sing-song of their bullets whanging overhead and plipping into the mud and dry reeds.

In a vague way he realized that the triumph was his now, if his hands had strength to seize it. If only he could rise up, he could smother the Browning behind this nest and scatter every square inch of the bandits' covert. As he lay there, nearly helpless, fighting for one last flicker of strength to rise and use the machine gun, he heard Buzzard shouting at him across those seven hundred yards. He could not distinguish the frantic words; he thought Buzzard must be trying to encourage him to one more effort. But then he heard Joyce's voice, crying to him. Closer, vibrant with fear, the warning came to him clearly:

"Alan! Alan! He's coming for you! Alan! Stop him. . . Shoot him!"

The panic and terror of her voice roused Alan. He understood that some peril was looming upon him from those bandits. With a great effort he rose to an elbow, drank with pain, giddy from loss of blood. A few seconds later, he crept on elbows and knees to the water edge and loved his face and managed to tie a kerchief around his forehead wound.

The bandage stopped the blood from running down and blinding him. The cold shock of water drove the nausea away for a little time. Again he heard Joyce crying out to him, but now it was a cry inarticulate, despair-stricken.

He cautiously raised his head, and saw the peril that his two friends had tried to rouse him to meet. The huge, red-headed leader had seen him collapse helplessly, and was coming across to put a bullet through his brain and seize the machine gun. Stinking back unseen, Alan drew his heavy automatic, slipped the trigger safely, and waited. A few moments later, with his enemy within a dozen paces, he suddenly reared up, up above the shelter, shooting as he rose.

The seven heavy bullets caught the bandit leader in the breast, knocked him over, killed him instantly. Crouching down again behind that pile of willow atanka and reeds, Alan turned to the Browning. Methodically he spread the tripod and planted it firmly and clicked it into its mount. Very carefully he fed in a web of cartridges till it was caught. Hissing to one knee then, clasping the spade grip, he cautiously raised his eyes above his shelter.

The breed with the deadly Savage, who had sent three bullets into his body and had drilled Jimmy Montgomery through the heart, was trying to make it back to the flags. Shouting hoarsely, he kept jerking his head around to see what his enemy was doing. Alan answered the Browning a few degrees, looked down the sights, and his trigger finger lightened. . . .

The breed stumbled as that hail of death caught him—stumbled and flung up his arms and pitched face-down in the knee-deep water.

Releasing for a moment, Alan trained the Browning on that clump of trees where two rifles were still screaming at him; and when he had determined his concentration, the Browning went into play again. Methodically, the gun drumming out its message of death, he swept the clump from end to end, spraying it with bullets, mowing down the flags, splintering the bandits' hiding with a raking, slow-weaving fire.

There in the flags a figure leaped up and blindly tried to escape. Alan swung upon it, the figure vanished, there was a thrashing for a moment among the reeds. To the right a single rifle still held out, shooting at him. He located the spot and poured a storm of bullets into it. . . . With a shrill yell a small wiry man sprung up, flung his gun spasmodically into the air, doubled up limply and sank down in the flags and mud.

Alan stood up then. He thought to swim across and get one of those canoes and go after Joyce. But he had not the strength. The nausea was overpowering him again; his wounds had bled him weak, and the pain of them sickened him. Staggering from the fearful reaction setting in, he sat down on the awan nest, with his world swimming in front of him and all his senses reeling.

The Seven Heavy Bullets Caught the Bandit Leader in the Breast.

It was four days later that those who waited at Fort Endurance learned what had happened northeast in the land of Many Waters.

One evening at sunset an airplane came swinging around the thundered headland down the Mackenzie. Flying low, just over the water, it veered in toward the steamer landing, touched lightly, skinned the waxwax, and taxied close in.

As an excited group began gathering at the wharf, the scarlet-and-gold police launch hove in sight around the headland and bore on toward the post. The two craft manifestly had timed themselves to come in together.

Three Indian canoes darted out to tow the plane to the landing. Father Claverly had come down the terrace and stood a little apart, quietly watching with observant eyes. Haskell and Williamson had come down; and Elizabeth Spaulding, slipping through the crowd, was trying to edge up near the pier-heads, to be the first to greet Alan Baker.

As the launch drew close, the crowd saw it carried four men. When it moved alongside, they recognized Pedemount and Bill Hardsack, maddled, maddened; and Alan Baker, a bandage around his head, his left hand wrapped in surgical dressing, his left arm in a sling. The fourth man was some outlandish individual of yellowish complexion and stoned eyes, with his right arm carefully splinted and bandaged.

The freightage that the launch carried—a machine gun and clutter of rifles, a half dozen bales of poultry worth a small fortune each bale, shovels and corded packs, and five stout leather pouches sewn with rawhide in the prospector fashion—the mere sight of that cargo drew a gasp from the crowd and brought them edging up close.

Joyce had come with Buzzard in the plane. As she unsnapped her safety belt and stood up, she was remembering her last time here at Endurance, when her father was all alive. It seemed a heartless irony of fate that he had died just when his innocence had been proved. Small comfort to know that his name and memory were cleared of guilt. As she thought of him lying dead at Resolution and of the tragic duty calling her there, she was glad that tonight a steamer was coming past and she would leave this North.

By the time she and Buzzard had stilled ashore, Alan had stepped out upon the planking. In another moment she saw Elizabeth elbow her way through the group pressing around Alan. A gust of emotion—jealousy, scorn, anger—swept across Joyce's pretty face as she watched Elizabeth's arrival. It was stazov. It was all artificial. Elizabeth's gladness at his return and her sympathy over his wounds were effusive and contemptible. Joyce could not help thinking of herself swimming across to Alan at the awan nest, and of the compassion that torn at her when she found him there, wounded, bleeding, half unconscious. She felt she had known more real sympathy in those moments than Elizabeth would feel to her whole life. A fierce jealousy, a jealous proprietorship, surged through her. Alan had got those wounds fighting for her; she had dressed them and taken him to her home, and she had nursed him through those long hours of feverish pain.

Haskell came shoving his way out to the wharf edge. "Hardsack, you and Pedemount are under arrest!"

Bill scarcely glanced up at him. Muddled and haggard from two days of shovel work cutting a channel to refloat the big launch, he and Pedemount continued tossing the pouches and fur bales and upon the planking. "Did you understand, Hardsack?" Haskell repeated. "You're under arrest."

Bill looked up. "I heard you," he said in weary scorn. "But haven't time to be arrested just now. Put it off a few minutes, can't you? Here's a hundred and fifty thousand in furs and gold that'd better get under lock and key before part of it walks off. And a prisoner to take up."

Williamson came down to the wharf edge. Joyce saw him hesitate a moment, then hold out his hand to Alan. It was only a momentary pause, but she saw it distinctly, and understood the reason; and it roused a hot anger in her.

She was proud of Alan for the way he reacted. He, too, had noticed the hesitation, and he remarked curtly, refusing his hand: "Don't bother, superintendent. You ain't lost caste. I've heard I'm a criminal."

The division commander was visibly hurt by Alan's words. His eyes were taking in the recovered boat, the tired men, Alan's wounds.

"I see you was out against those men. The prisoner, I suppose, is one of them. Where are the others?"

"Over in the Thul-Azzah. We did take the trouble to give them a decent burial."

"Dead?"

"Yes, dead. It was a fair fight, if you care to take my word for it."

Williamson was silent a few moments. Into his eyes came a far-away expression, as though he was thinking of renowned patrols in the history of the Force and realizing that Baker's victory over these six criminals was one of them and one of the best of them. Finally he requested: "Won't you come up to the cabin, Baker? I'd like to hear your report on this."

"I'll come up," Alan sent an ominous glance at Haskell. "I've got several things to say to you, superintendent."

Joyce felt some one touching her arm. Turning, she saw it was Father Claverly.

As he shook hands he asked her, "Joyce, if you have time tonight, stop over to my study and visit me, won't you?"

"Why yes, Father Claverly. If you wish. I'd better come before ten; the steamer may be here any time after that."

"You're leaving tonight?"

"Yes. There'll be no other for two weeks. Bill told you I'm going back to Ottawa?"

Father Claverly nodded, and a little afterwards he left her.

Joyce was deadly serious in her last words to Alan.

"You'll not forget what we talked over—the income trap?"

"I'll not forget. But he may not walk into it, Joyce. He's shrewd, he's careful."

"You can be shrewder, Alan! You can make him walk into it. Let him think he's got you beaten and hopeless. Hide what you feel. And don't antagonize Superintendent Williamson."

She held his hand a moment in her warm clasp, thinking of her father lying dead at Resolution, of Alan's noble struggle to save him, of Haskell breaking her father's will to live. It was some solace to know she had helped Alan plan a trap for the guilty inspector, a deadly trap if Haskell only walked into it.

As she quietly wished him good luck, in her heart she was fervently saying to him, "God go with you, Alan." And because she had passionately resolved not to see him again before she left, she meant her words not only for the stormy hour ahead of him, but for all the years of his life.

Alan strode into the cabin in a savage fighting mood. He had risen from a sick bed to come to Endurance before Williamson left, and he had sworn he was going to crush Haskell. The inspector had forced him out of the Mounted; had caused Larry to be crippled for life; had refused protection to Joyce in her desperate need; had made a scapegoat of Dave MacMillan to save his face; and more than anyone on earth he was responsible for that sorry tragedy at Resolution.

Almost the only hope Alan had was that trap which he and Joyce had planned—an idea born in Joyce's quick brain and developed between them during the three days she had nursed him.

When he went in, he found Williamson and Haskell sitting at the desk, waiting. Haskell did not move; but Williamson, considerate of his wounds, drew up a chair and invited him to sit down.

"Won't you give us the story of your patrol, Baker?" he requested kindly.

BOYNE CITY SECTION

VOLUME 1

DECEMBER 30, 1931

NUMBER 2

EDITED AND DIRECTED BY INTERESTED CITIZENS IN CHARLEVOIX COUNTY—ANSWERING CRITICISMS OF THE BOYNE CITIZEN PERTAINING TO THE COUNTY ROAD COMMISSION.

COVERAGE—CHARLEVOIX COUNTY, INCLUDING BOYNE FALLS

PAID ADVERTISING

HOW WOULD THIS WORK OUT

At the last regular December meeting of the county road commissioners, a resolution two arms long or so, was presented to the board for consideration by Commissioner Frank Wangeman which had to do with the parceling up of the operating activities of the road department, into three units or districts.

It is apparent from subsequent events, that the idea originated as between Mr. Wangeman, The Boyne Citizen editor, Clark Heire, and perhaps others, for the reason that this is the thing some of these gentlemen have been ranting about for the last while back. "Divide the county equipment and be fair."

On the conclusion of the reading of the interesting document, Commissioner Byers stamped the instrument as vicious, as the Boyne Citizen might express it. Commissioner Rouse, who had taken no active part in the meeting, we are told, until this matter was presented, inquired who was the proponent of the idea, and Commissioner Wangeman confessed that he was its author.

Time and space will not permit us to give the reader a summary of its contents, but it had all of the "ear marks" of being a model for mischief-mongers to work on. It did not carry the present day thought of cutting down governmental activities to a smaller cost operation. It did not even "fit in" with the present day trend of the state in eliminating small township units and the needless waste, duplication and expense of these units in the maintenance of the road department. It did not in any way fit in with the admonition of the county road committee to the board of road commissioners in October, consisting of members, William Haskew, Orton VanDusen, Frank Partridge, Clarence Schaub and W. J. Pearson when they instructed the commissioners to pay off just as quickly as possible the remaining balances of bond money to district No. 2, Boyne City, and district No. 3, East Jordan, and abandon all territorial outlines and function as a county unit. It will be remembered these districts, one, two and three, were created a few years ago to assure the success on a road bonding issue of $350,000 in the county. When this issue was successfully passed, the money raised and spent, no doubt it had lived its full and useful purpose.

Commissioners Byers and Rouse opposed the adoption of the measure and it died in the author's hands. Thus ends perhaps one of the most damaging and detrimental acts the commission could have perpetrated in their whole year's activities.

Just to carry this subject matter along a little further to the reader we will make use of an article published throughout Michigan last week by D. L. Runkles on centralized control of administrative bodies, and also Prof. M. Slade Kendrick of Cornell University.

Local Units Are Needless to Small Lansing, Mich., Dec. 24, 1931—Too many persons are on the public payroll spending the taxpayers' money.

The modern trend in business and industry is to consolidate small corporations into larger ones for the purpose of economy and efficiency in operation. Centralized control reduces administrative costs. Economies effected by this system in business also can be effected similarly in government, in the opinion of advocates of this reform. Conditions are considered ideal now to inaugurate more business-like principles in government.

Auto Changes Situation The present system was adopted in the horse and buggy age, calling for small units of government. Michigan now is living in an automobile age, calling for larger units. Taxpayers today can travel as far in 30 minutes as they formerly traveled in a whole day with a horse and buggy.

For Smaller Boards Economies in county government also could be effected by placing a smaller board in control, in the opinion of Prof. M. Slade Kendrick of Cornell University, who has made a study of costs of supervisors' sessions in a half dozen states, including Michigan. This state is one of seven where large boards of supervisors administer county government.

In comparing the advantages of small and large county boards, Prof. Kendrick draws these pointed conclusions which challenge attention in Michigan where the cost of local government has become burdensome.

"The responsibility to the voters is much more evident in the small board than in the large board. With a board of three to five members there is some opportunity to learn how each voted, what course the discussion took, and why. With a board of from 10 to 70 members this opportunity exists in only a limited degree.

"In such a board the transfer has been made from individual responsibility and individual psychology to group responsibility and group psychology. Yet individuals must be elected in spite of the fact that it is a rare puzzle to determine how much praise or blame attaches to any single individual for the group action of a large board.

"The small board functions with much more freedom than the large board. A group of three or five men may sit around a table, talk a matter over and come to a conclusion concerning it. A large group takes on the character of a legislative body, with speeches, bickering, obstructive tactics, formalities and other time-consuming activities, which mean that less work can actually be accomplished by it."

WELFARE COMMITTEE ACTIVITIES ANXIOUSLY VIEWED

Unemployment and its famished homes and destitution throughout the land has the anxious thought and attention of the thousands of people who perhaps have the opportunity of assisting or devising various methods to offer relief in the situation. Michigan, through its governor, has elected to make use of appointed welfare commissions through the various counties in the state. In all probability at this time, a complete coverage of the state has been effected.

It is the hope of every well thinking person, that they will be most efficient and work out the most measure of good to the needy. The welfare department at Lansing has laid out the work to the various county committees in a definite, painstaking manner and no person is to be given relief only as they qualify on a regular questionnaire—blank—furnished by the state department. They are there and then classified to determine who is the most needy, and then given employment.

Inasmuch as these various local units are purely local there will be mistakes and abuses of the opportunities given these boards by the state department. Complaints are in several instances coming to the ears of those who are righteously interested. Just how effectively these committees are working in our own county should and will be looked up.

In Emmet county, charges are made of irregularities there and this is true of other counties. The following news article appeared in the Dec. 23rd issue of the Petoskey Evening News. "Chairman Weaver said last evening that a delegation of Levering business men and unemployed men from the needy homes had a conference with him picturing conditions there. These men brought word that the state's plan for employing men from the needy families was being disregarded for a plan of putting to work men selected by supervisors or some other means. They declared that several single men, whose families were occupying prosperous farms, had been employed on the county projects arranged entirely for men from homes of needy families. They also declared the 'staggered' system of work was not being used."

Cheboygan, Dec. 3, 1931.—Cheboygan county is having its troubles with the unemployed. In one instance 120 were notified to come to work, and only 30 of the men showed up, while several of these were late.

Complaints have been coming in to the Charlevoix county road commission of irregularities of some of the welfare commissions and particularly has this been true in the districts at Boyce City and Boyne Falls. Just how reliable are the complaints can only be determined by a review of the activities of the committees at these points.

HIGHWAY EMPLOYMENT NOTES

Michigan Roads, Dec. 3.—Authorized by the Wexford county board of supervisors to borrow $10,000 to use in providing employment on the highways this winter, the county road commission so far has been unable to find a lender, according to Carl Linquist, chairman. Meanwhile about 120 men have been given part time employment by the commission. It will be noted then that there is at least more counties in the state who have been—unfortunate—enough—to have been unable to avail themselves of the work offered by the state highway department. One of the members of the Wexford board stated the other day that the commission had not considered the offer seriously of loaning money and their equipment for this work and instead was directing unemployment relief work upon their own county roads.

Too Much ACID

MANY people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

The ideal dentifrice for clean teeth and healthy gums is Phillips' Dental Magnesia tooth-paste.

SUNDAY MUSICAL AN OUTSTANDING SUCCESS

Lavish Praise Given Members Cast Presenting "The Messiah"

The many expressions of praise and congratulation from a large audience that heard the Congregational church choir give selections from Handel's "The Messiah" last Sunday evening are evidence of the program's success.

In addition to the overture, five solos and five chorus selections were used. The solos "He Shall Feed His Flock," "Rejoice Greatly, O Daughter of Zion," and "How Beautiful Are the Feet of Them" were sung by Mrs. Archie L. Livingston. Dr. F. H. Wilkinson gave the tenor solo, "Comfort Ye My People" and Albert W. Rider the baritone solo, "Thus Saith the Lord." The entire cast of the very successful presentation were local people.

As the program came during the Christmas season, the services of three students, the Misses Lola Pessenden and Helen Parker, and Gilbert Saitonstall, were available. Mrs. Gladys Dean at one piano and Miss Gwendolyn Miller at the organ, helped greatly to make the program possible. The sponsors wish to thank those not regularly connected with the church, and are indebted to Dr. F. H. Wilkinson, Loren Hunt, Walker Miles, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Belding, Mrs. Clinton Cooper and Miss Frances Milner for their willingness to assist.

Much credit is due Mrs. A. J. Stehler for her efforts in directing the large chorus to success.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

Subject, "God."

Wednesday evening at 7:45 first

Wednesday of month only.

Reading room Tuesday and Saturday, 3:00 to 5:00 p. m.

The public is cordially invited to all services.

"Christian Science" was the subject for the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches on Sunday, December 27th.

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Let not your heart be troubled; ye believe in God, believe also in me." (John 14:1).

"The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Science is an emanation of divine Mind, and is alone able to interpret God aright. It has a spiritual, and not a material origin. It is a divine utterance, — the Comforter which leadeth into all truth." (p. 127).

The politicians, instead of keeping their ears to the ground, should keep their noses in the air to smell out corruption.

PLAN WAYS TO AMUSE FARMERS WEEK CROWD

Program Two Nights To Avoid Disappointing M. S. C. Guests

To avoid again disappointing thousands of visitors, two feature programs on successive nights, February 3 and 4, during Farmers week, have been arranged by the Michigan State College program committee which hopes that the people who attend Wednesday night's entertainment will not attempt to go Thursday night also.

A band concert, beginning at 6:30 p. m. eastern standard time, will be given each night by the College cadet band. The band enjoys the reputation of being one of the best in American colleges.
